CHARLEVOIX WINS FROM HARBOR "5"

COPPED TWELFTH VICTORY BY 42 TO 19 SCORE

Close Pre-Touroament Schedule Friday Night With Boyne City on Home Court

Charlevoix's Red Rayders, undefeated in 12 auccessive basketball games this season, will elose their pre-tournament schedule on the home court Friday night.

The contest is a "natural" in view of the fact it brings together Charlevoix, the Northern Michigan Class C conferênce leader, and Boyne City, the runners-up, in the final scheduled game for both teams. Charlevoix edged out a one-point victory over Boyne in a previous game and a win Friday night will give them an undisputed conference championship, a title they have never won despite the fact they have been district and regional champs several times since the conference wus organized. A victory for Boyne would mean a tie for the conference title.

Charlevoix's reserves, also undefeated and previously winners over Boyne by a single point, conclude their season's play. The two games promise to be the feature home baskethall contests of the year.

Tickets for the Friday evening games may he obtained at the three local drug stores, Fessenden'a, Central Drug Store, and Curtis Pharmacy.

Win from Harbor Springs

The Rayders hung up their 12tb victory last Friday night with a 42 to 19 win over Harbor Springs on the home court. The reserves won their 11th victory by a 26 to 10 score.

With the varsity and subs alternating play, Charlevoix led 10 to 3 at the quarter, 17 to 9 at the half, and 27 to 16 at the third intermission. The team played nearly the entire game without Gallagher, center, who saw little action because of an ankle sprain and the fear of further lnjury before the Boyne City tilt. The reserves led 6 to 2 at the quarter, 14 to 2 at the half, and 16 to 6 at the close of the third quarter. In both games, four local tenms saw action.

Jurors have been drawn, but will not appear for the opening of tbe term. The calendar contains no criminal eases. There are two issues of fact and law, and three chancery cases exclusive of divorce actions, which number six.

ASK TRUCKERS MOVE HEAVY LOADS SOON

Spring "Break-Up" Restriction Will Be Enforced in Short Time

The State Highway Department tbis week asked truckers and contractors to move all heavy equlpment before spring "break-up" begins on tho highwsys.

In a letter addressed to truckers and contractors operating in Michigan, Stata Higbway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner pointed out that special spring loading restrictions go into effect during March. Ha emphasized that no permits for overweigbt loads would be issued during the period of spring break-up.

E. E. Blomgren, maintenance engineer for the department, said, "This advanced warning is being sent out at this time because we cannot aet n definite date after whicb no permits will be issued for overweight loads. The law authorizes the state highway commissioner to put the special spring restriction in effect at his discretion during March, April and May. We are guided entirely by the condition of the ronds."

Loads exceeding weight restrictions set up by lnw for other seasons of the year may be moved by special permit from the state highway commissioner.

COMMISSION IN FAVOR ONE BUCK LAW

STANDS PAT ON PRESENT RULING IN MICHIGAN

Would, However, Favor Amendment, Allowing Killing of Does in Over-Crowded Areas

In response to a request by members of the State Legislature, the Conservation Commission at its Februàry meeting made plain its stand on deer legislation.

The commission issued a statement declaring that, in its opinion, tbe present one-buck law should be retained but that it should be amended so that in certuin local areas in which critical conditions of food and deer supplies are found to exist, the shooting of one deer might be authorized.

Under the one-buck law so amended, the commission points out, the greater part of the deer territory by far would remain open to buck shooting alone, while one-deer hunting would be allowed only in certain local areas such as those in which many deer died of starvation last winter.

The commission believes that such liberalization of the present one-buck law as suggested would be beneficial in two ways—

First, it would allow tho use by sportsmen of a part of the surplus of deer which might otherwise die because of a shortage of food in their winter yarding areas and thus go to waste.

Second and of even greater importance from a long-range viewpoint, it would permit of conserving the winter food supplies that remain by limiting the increase of the deer and keeping them to a level with their food aupply.

Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner to Speak Here

Will Address Public Meeting at School Gym at 1:30 P. M. Thursday Afternoon

Charlevoixans will have an opportunity Thursday afternoon to hear State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner, one of Michigan's foremost officials, who is scheduled to address a public meeting at the aehool gymnasium at 1:30 o'clock.

Northern Michigan, with the tourist business one of its chief assets, owes much to Mr. Van Wagoner for his progressive highway program. He has been a keen observer of upper Michigan highway and traffie needs during his tenure in office. He has been forwnrd in stressing the importance of more and better highways in upper Michigan and has followed his ideas with action. The betterment of highways not only in Charlevoix county, but throughout Northern Michigan generally, speaks for Mr. Van Wagoner's views and accomplishments.

Mr. Van Wagoner and city officials will be luncheon guests of Robert F. Sloan prior to the public meeting and, out of this informal gathering it is hoped there will come information regarding the possibilities of a new bridge over the channel in this city and improvement of US-31 from Charlevoix north to Bay Shore.

Charlevoix citizens should turn out en masse to hear Mr. Van Wagoner, who has contributed so much for Northern Michigan.

BASKETBALL BANQUET EVENT OF WEDNESDAY

1936-37 Team Members Guests of Pythians—Interesting Program

Over 200 local citizens paid homage to Charlevoix's outstanding 1936-37 basketball teams at a banquet sponsored last Wednesday evening by the Knights of Pythias.

A series of talks tracing the history of athletics in Charlevoix from as far back as the 80's up to the present time followed the dinner. Dr. R. B. Armstrong acted as toastmaster. He called upon Charlevoix High school alumni to illustrate the advance of athletics, presenting such speakers as Will Bellinger, Willis J. Kerns, Ralph Washburn, M. A. Levinson, Charles H. Emrey, Leo Carey, Robert Bridge, Oakley Hammond, Robert Miles and Dean Davenport. Their narratives depicted the type of athletics in their day and the changes since their time, not only in the type of sports but the improvement in facilities, the manner of instruction, etc. Many interesting incidents were brought out.

Memhers of the basketball squad who were heard included "Baldy" Neff, Ed. Radle, Robert Livingston, Harold Chew, Leslie Shapton. Coach Kipke, in a characteristic brief talk, gave credit to members of the team for their outstanding season's record, pointing to the fact that if they did not have the "stuff" in them, no coach could produce a winning team.

WINTER WEATHER RETURNS TO THIS REGION

Ten-Day Period of Thawing Weather Changed to Snow Monday

A 30 degree drop in temperature, accompanied by a heavy snowfall, brought winter back to Northern Michigan Monday.

After 10 daya of thaw which almost disposed of all snow and ice in tha city, the storm Sunday night covered the city with a clean blanket of anow.

The forecast for this region is for continued local anows. The weather prediction for the week indicated higher temperatures during the midweek perlod and a return to cold at the end.

SENATOR BISHOP INTRODUCES 100TH BILL

Following Tradition, Will Treat Colleagues As a Result

The State Senate's sit down strike which has held up introduction of new bills for more than a week was finally broken last week without the assistance of Covernor Frank Murphy.

Trndition says that the introducer of the 100th bill must stage a party for his colleagues. In recent years the custom has been expanded to include clerks, pages, newspaper-correspondents, and others.

For days the senators have refused to sponsor Bill No. 100, and dozens of bills have been held in senatorial pockets or desks.

Senator Otto W. Bishop, of Alpena, broke the strike. He offered a resolution limiting the invitation list to members of the Senate and, after it was approved, he introduced the 100th bill.

It would prohibit commercial fishing in Potagannissing Bay, between Lake Huron and St. Mary'a River.

SUNDAY IS LAST DAY FOR WINTER SPEARING

Two-Mooth Michigan Season Comes to a Close on February 28

Sunday, February 28, is the last day of the two-month ice-spearing season on the inland lakes. On that day the spear wielders who have been enjoying tbeir sport on tbe lakes where ice-spearing is allowed will have to lay away their spears until next season.

Beginning March 1, however, the spear may be used without artificial light on certain streams for the taking of carp, mullet, redhorse, suckers, dogfish and garpike. Non-trout rivers and streams not otherwise closed to spearing, as well as desiguated portions of certain streams, are open to this type of spearing to and including May 15.

MARINE CLUB NAMED OFFICERS THURSDAY

Activities for 1937 Summer Season Include Sports, Venetian Night

At a joint meeting of the Charlevoix Marine Club and the marine committee of the Board of Commerce, held Thursday evening at the council chambers, the former group elected officers for the ensuing year as follows:

Commodore, Clarence Wood; vice-commodore, Clair S. Webster; rear commodore, Ray Kipke.

The marine committee, outlining tentative plans for activities during the 1937 summer season, approved an afternoon program of water sports and a Venetian boat parade which will eclipse any previous attempt in this city.

TRAINING DOG ON GAME ILLEGAL AFTER MARCH 15

The period during whicb hunters may legally train their hunting dogs on small game birds or animals in the open is swiftly drawing to a close.

Beginning March 15, state law says, hunters are forbidden to train their dogs or permit them to run game birds or animals. This ban continues well past the nesting and breeding seasons of wildlife and into lute summer.

LICENSE BUREAU CHANGE IS MADE

SECRETARY OF STATE NAMES NEW APPOINTEE

Guy C. Eccleston Succeeds F. V. Tyler as Deputy — Office at the Charlevoix Insurance Agency

Marking the first change in the management of the Charlevoix branch office of the secretary of state in eight years, Leon D. Case hns announced the appointment of Guy C. Eccleston as deputy secretary of state for this city.

The change, taking effect on Saturday, February 20, moves the license bureau offices from the Board of Commerce information bureau to the Charlevoix Insurance Agency office, corner Bridge and Clinton streets. Whether this location will be permanent has not been ascertained.

The sale of license plates in Charlevoix since 1929 has been handled by F. V. Tyler, who combined the duties with those of secretary of the Board of Commerce. Mr. Tyler will serve in an advisory capacity until March 1, it is understood.

Coincident with the changing of local branch office manngers is the close approach of the deadline for 1936 licenses, February 28, at midnight, is the end of the legal time for use of 1936 plates. The 1937 half-year stickers, as were used last year, are now on aale.

Local officials report that there will not be any further extension of time, unless so granted by the state, and all persons found using their cars or trueks after March 1 without displaying their 1937 half-year sticker or full year's license plates will be liable to arrest. However, permission will be grnnted to any motorist to drive his vehicle to the branch office for his license, provided they have their title with them.

SPRING PRIMARY ELECTION MONOAY

WILL CLIMAX AN UNUSUALLY QUIET CAMPAIGN

Only Names of Opposed Republican Nomination Seekers on Ballot — Polls Open 7 A. M. to 6 P. M.

With three elections scheduled within the next six weeks, Charlevoix voters go to the polls on Monday, March 1, for the first, the annual city spring primary.

While competition for ward offices is perhaps keener than for several previous years, the lack of opposition for any of the city offices is quite u contrast from a year ago when there were two candidates for mayor and city clerk and no less than 10 for city treasurer.

Lack of a mayoralty contest has resulted in a quiet cumpaign, with activity centered for the most part in the three wards. Alderman F. E. Cartier, of the second precinct, is the only unopposed candidute. In the other wards either two or three-way contests exist for supervisor and alderman.

Inasmuch as contests are among those seeking Republicun nominations, only the names of cundidates of that party will appeur on the ballot and then only in cases whera there is opposition for the office.

Names appearing on the ballots will be ns follows:

First Ward

For Supervisor—Harry A. Craig, E. E. Cross.

For Alderman—*P. D. Campbell, Karl Erber.

Second Ward

For Supervisor—Darwin F. Meech, Harley I. Ochs, Glenroy Ikens.

Third Ward

For Supervisor—*George W. Weaver, D. J. Eckinger, Clarence B. Meggison.

For Alderman—*Thomas Leo Carey, Harry F. Hooker.

*Present office holder.

The polls for Monday's election will open at 7 a. m. and close at 6 p. m.

Beauties of Southland Described by Local Tourists

Galveston, New Orleans, Other Cities Visited as the Party Heads for Florida

Biloxi, Mlssissippi
February 14, 1937

Dear Folks at Home:

I last wrote you on our arrival at Galveston, Tex., several days ago, nnd since then have advanced several hundred miles on our route. Between packing up, driving n couple of hundred miles, taking in the sights, etc., I am afraid I have become a trifle lazy, and it is with some reluctance that I dig the old typewriter from under the divan and pound the keys for an hour or so. Well, Mother says I am lazy, so there must ba something to my conclusions. There are so many things of interast that I will bo compelled to just skip over milea of interesting spota and simply cover those that come first to my mind.

Galveston, a city of about 60,000, more commonly known as Treasure Island, lies off the coast of Texas in the green waters of the Gulf of Mexico. One of the finest beaches in the world borders the southern side of the island. The white sand is hard packed and tabla smooth for miles in

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS
By B. C. Mellencamp

Machinery School for Farmers Is Scheduled for Wednesday, March 10

Michigan winter sunshine cannot be used to cure hay, but it is the best kind of weather for curing some of the troubles which are sure to take place during the next harvest season if the haying equipment is not repaired and adjusted before the rush of farm work starts.

This will be the fourth demonstration that has been arranged for farmers in this county, at which a specialist in agricultural engineering from Michigan State College will show farmers how to repair and adjust a mowing machine so that it will be in first class shape for next summer's hay crop. In addition considerable time will be spent on the grain binder as well as other farm machinery. This demonstration will be held in the machinery department of the Herman Meyer store building in Boyne Falls on Wednesday, March 10, beginning promptly at 10 o'clock. The mowing machine will be torn down in the forenoon and assembled during the afternoon. It is suggested that if you cannot be present all day, come at 1:30 in the afternoon at which time a discussion of tools and equipment needed for repairs, of construction adjustment and repairs, actual replacement of parts and adjustment of the machine for repairing will take place.

Payments for Improving Established Wood Lots Will Interest Many Farmers

The announcement that four wood lot improvement demonstrations will be held next week is particularly timely as this work can still be done before spring. In the new 1937 Soil Conservation program, a new soil building payment of $2.50 per acre may be secured by farmers who will improve their wood lots by thinning, elimination of diseased trees, as well as undesirable species. To enable farmers to know what has to be done to earn this, we are very glad to announce that W. Ira Bull, extension forester of Michigan State College, has been engaged to supervise four demonstrations which will enable farmers to earn this payment by improving their wood lots.

All farmers owning woodlots are invited and urged to attend one of the following four demonstrations. Tuesday, March 2, at 9:30 a. m., Boyne Falls school forest, located one-half mile south and one mile west of the high school. Tuesday, March 2, at 1:30 p. m., Edd Swanson's woodlot, located just north of Loeb school, across from Ed. Snider's farm. Wednesday, March 3, at 9:30 a. m., at Sverke Ulvund's farm, located one and one-half miles south of East Jordan on M-66. Wednesday, March 3, at 1:30 p. m., at Eveline Orchard, five miles north and west of East Jordan on M-66.

Mr. Bull will discuss with you the main considerations to be considered in wood lot improvement programs. He will mark the trees that should be taken out. Mr. Smith, secretary of the county association, would like to have the names of any farmers who desire to improve their woodlots at once, so that he may visit the woodlot and give directions before payment may be earned. No doubt the improvement of farm woodlots, of which there are many in this county, will be one of the most important features as a long time agricultural program this year, and it is hoped that many farmers will interest themselves in this practice.

60 Farm Account Books to Be Closed Next Month

March 10, 11, 12, 13 and 15 are the dates scheduled to meet with farm account cooperators in the county for closing up their 1936 record. With some 60 books to be closed, approximately one hour and a half is to be devoted to each book. By this careful inspection, all records will be accurate and, of course, be that much more worth while to the cooperator. The work in the county has been very successful, having several who now have eight successive records.

Any farmer in the county who wants a real record of his farming operations is invited to send his name to the county agent at Boyne City. He will be glad to visit you about the first of March and get the book started properly. We can take on about 10 more, so if you are interested, please make a contact right away.

Bot Fly Campaign Has Been Completed

We are glad to announce that a larger number of horses have been treated this year than in 1936, which pretty largely indicates the attention that is being given to the control of parasites in farm animals. This campaign has reached all sections of the county, including Beaver Island, where 92 head were treated last December. This is the first time that any parasite control has been carried on, on the island, and it is hoped more will take place another year.

Dr. D. F. Newman, of Charlevoix, has done all the work in the county wide program. Fully 30 per cent of all horses in the county have been treated. It is planned to continue this work another year.

ANNOUNCEMENT

With the appointment of Guy C. Eccleston as Deputy Secretary of State, the Charlevoix Branch Office has been moved from the Information Bureau to the Charlevoix Insurance Agency office, corner Bridge and Clinton streets.

The customary services will be available at this office.

CHAPTER III

While she confusedly considered it, they had reached the gate and she was out of the car, Van making no movement to get down. Gail went about to his side of the automobile, and stood looking up at him for a moment.

"Van, I've had a perfectly delicious time."

He moved the gas control idly to and fro on the wheel.

"Sure, it was fun."

His own voice seemed flat. Gail tried desperately for the hilarity of the earlier evening.

"As for your consumption, I shan't get over that for a long time!"

"My what?" he asked dully.

"Your fake consumption."

It was no use. Perhaps they were both too tired for talk, Gail thought.

A pause, brief, but much too long. Then Gail said, "Well, good night! See you soon?"

"Oh, sure!" he said, and "Good-night!" and he was gone into the dark.

The girl made faces at herself as she went up the steps; she was conscious of a shamed sort of feeling of anti-climax. It was as if she had sold her birthright, somehow.

Actually, she had not compromised; there had not been a word or a glance all evening that might not have been exchanged by the most decorous of friends. But that was part of the trouble!

Or else she was tired; maybe that was it. The front door was open, a head of gas wavering in the hot, odorous hallway. Edith came out from her doorway like an angel, cool and fragrant from a bath. She welcomed Gail as if from the wars.

"Darling, did you have a good time?"

"It was heavenly. We drove around for awhile, and then we went down to Old Aunt Mary's."

"Gail Lawrence! Was it wild? On Sunday night!"

"No, it was as calm as a mill pond. There were two policemen there, and a lot of nice college boys. Some of the girls looked rather—well, ordinary; but it was very quiet. Nothing rough."

"I thought it was the limit!" said the usually elegant Edith.

"It didn't seem to be."

"I wonder if you'd know the limit if you saw it, Gail," the younger sister said, with a sophisticated, fond smile.

"Oh, Edith, get off your foot!" Gail wanted to say. But she could not be mean to Edith tonight, when Edith had finished up the dishes, and stayed at home. So she smiled, too, and went on with her undressing. Her mood began to change; everything was all right.

"How long was Phil gone?"

"Oh, not long. 'Bout an hour."

"He didn't—" Gail paused.

"No, he didn't have time to see anybody. I don't believe he's so crazy about Lily Cass," Edith opined.

"He and Dick had to go over to the Iron Works, didn't they?"

"Yes. And, by the way, Dick's sleeping here, because he and Phil want to get up at five and go over and see an installation—or something—at Milpitas. They're going in Dick's car."

"Dick's car! Since when has he—"

"Isn't it killing! It's quite decent-looking, too. You know old Benstein, of the second-hand place down near the hill?"

"I know the place. Yes, and I kind of know the old man, too."

"Well, two cars collided out on the highway near there about three months ago, it seems, and old Benstein bought them—they were wrecks—for about fifteen dollars apiece. So he sent for Dick, it seems, and told him if he'd put the touring car in order he could have the roadster. Dick did Benstein's first, and he's been puttering over his own for about six weeks. So last night he drove it in from Stanislaus, and put it in Joe Foster's garage, and Joe looked it over, and he says it's perfect, and he offered Dick two hundred dollars for it."

"Dick's so darn admirable," Gail said indifferently, opening her book, "that you expect him to break out and split-ting 'most any minute! I can just see him sweating over politics some day, and being on the losing side every time! 'Honest Dick Stebbins for governor!' But I like old Dick!"

"Oh, so do I," the younger sister agreed eagerly.

She went away, and Gail lay musing, her open book in her hands. The memory of her parting with Van, in the deep black night gloom at the gate, kept returning to buzz about her like a midge, and spoil all the other recollections.

She put out her light, but her thoughts milled and milled unceasingly. What had happened to the gay, companionable mood of the earlier evening? What had made the parting so labored, so artificial?

"Why is it," Gail asked herself savagely, "that I can get along so beautifully with girls, and act like such a fool with boys? If he'd been a girl, tonight, I would have gone on talking, laughing, putting off coming into the house. I would have kept saying, 'Listen, I have to go in.'

"Oh, well, what difference does it make! We'll all be dead in a hundred years!"

And so restlessly off to sleep, oddly baffled and dissatisfied after this marvelous day on which the dream had come true.

The next day she and Edith had real trouble to think about and to discuss as they walked to work.

In the first place, Sam had told them at breakfast that he, Sam, had been driving some boy's car without a license and had been fined fifteen dollars by Judge Gates.

"Oh, I'll pay it," Sam had said in his confident, little-brotherly manner.

"How could I'll pay it?"

"Oh, he worked overtime all last month, you know. He had something coming to him."

"You oughtn't to have done it, Sam. You're such a fool!" the older sister had said reproachfully, affectionately. She repeated the phrase to Phil, when he came in late to report his expedition with Dick.

"You can't say that, Gail. It's natural for a kid to want to drive a car. Most kids Sam's age," Phil had reminded her temperately, "have their own cars."

So reasonable, so generous, such a rock of strength about a thing like this, it had been staggering to his sisters to have him add, with a little self-consciousness:

"I was thinking, when we were having Dick and Van Murchison to supper last night, why not ask Lily Wilbser some time? She's an awfully sweet little thing—she's had an awfully rough deal."

Edith had felt every fiber of her being stiffen; Gail's hands had begun to tremble as she had said pleasantly, confusedly:

"Well, of course—if she'd like it, Phil."

"Why shouldn't she like it?" Phil had asked in a level, challenging voice.

"No reason why! Except—hasn't she rather young children?"

"Yep. She has three kids." Phil had been refilling his coffee cup.

"I don't think she'd come!" Gail had said, uncomfortable but determined.

"You might try!" Phil's voice had been level, composed. He had returned to his newspaper with no further reference to the subject.

His sisters, in utter consternation, had spoken since of little else.

"She's simply mesmerized him, that's all! It's just too horrible!"

"Gail, we couldn't ask her to the house!"

"I don't think we could."

They parted on the dubious note, deeply worried, as they had been worried so many, many times before about Sam, Ariel, Phil in turn, about family finances, social complications.

"Just when I was—sort of—looking forward to Sunday-night suppers," Gail offered in parting, when they came to the Calle.

"Yes, I know!" Edith answered quickly.

"What on earth can we do, Edith, if Phil says anything more?"

"Well, have her, I suppose!"

"But she's simply—she's simply not respectable!"

"I know."

"I mean, everyone knows what those Wilsons are, and the Cass boys are just gangsters!"

"I know," Edith conceded again anxiously.

They went their ways. Gail's thoughts went to Van, however, at intervals during that day and the next day. She began the girl's calendar: "It's only one full day since I saw him—it's only two full days—it's only the morning of the third day."

"I Don't Believe He's So Crazy About Lily Cass."

CHAPTER IV

It began to seem like a dream to her that he and she had been laughing over the library counter last Saturday night, and that he had come to supper with the Lawrences, and that she had gone down the highway, beyond Dumbarton bridge, to Old Aunt Mary's for a late supper and dancing.

Edith asked, delicately, lightly, if there had been any telephoning, during the day, and Gail became expert in careless replies.

And then quietly, indifferently, "Oh, yes! Van Murchison was in. It seems Mrs. Chipp is having a house party down at their place in the Santa Cruz mountains a week from this week-end, and she wants me to go!"

"What!" Edith ejaculated. Incredulous. "Oh, Gail, aren't you excited?"

Gail laughed a little protestingly.

"But yes I am," she admitted honestly, "terribly excited! But of course they only want me because Van does. He probably asked his aunt to ask me!"

"Oh, for heaven's sake!" Ariel said impatiently and unexpectedly, in her husky tones. "For heaven's sake, what would you want her to ask you for—because mamma was a church member? You know very well you're not an intimate friend of hers. Why should she ask you? I'd much rather go a place because a boy wanted me than because his mother did!"

And laughing helplessly and a little shocked, Edith and Gail admitted that there was something in this view.

"I have everything," Gail said. "I have my blue velvet; I have my Christmas slippers; I have my white hat. I'll do my old linen up myself! It'll be fine for roughing—walking or anything. And I'll wash my sweater!"

"There'll probably be tennis!" Ariel suggested.

"Oh, probably!" Gail was deep in dinner preparations; her tone sang.

"Did she come in, Gail, or did she write a note?"

An instant chill. Then Gail said casually, "Neither, my dear. She sent a message by Van."

There was a silence. Edith stood distressed and disappointed in the center of the kitchen; Ariel looked up alertly from her hook. Gail went on busily with her cooking.

"Well, she will write?" began Edith on an upward inflection.

"She may!" Gail agreed indifferently.

"Well, you won't think of accepting unless she does write, Gail?" Edith persisted unhappily.

"My dear Edith, we are living in the Twentieth century, not in the good old days of Pamela and Evelina."

"Well, I'm very much surprised at you!" Edith said, trembling. Dinner was served in a sulphurous silence.

Phil, hungry, grimy, and tired, noted at once that something was wrong, and his first question brought the whole thing down upon him in an avalanche.

MEET OLD FRIENDS THROUGH THIS NEWSPAPER!

For More Than Half a Century Charlevoix Folks Have Been Meeting Old Friends and Making New Ones Through the Columns of the Courier.

Each week subscribers read of the activities of many people, whose names are mentioned in these columns—some of them your neighbors and close friends. Others are well known by reputation through reading about them in this newspaper. "Humanity makes news." Our correspondents and news gathering facilities bring to you practically all of the news concerning the people of this community.

The Courier is a welcome visitor in hundreds of homes. It pushes no doorbell to gain entry; it brings no sigh from the busy housewife: "Well, there is another agent." It is no handbill cluttering up automobiles, nor blowing around from dooryard to dooryard. It is not a mailed circular that attracts only passing attention and is thrown aside. No husband coming in from his day's work sits down and asks his wife: "Where is the latest circular?" but hundreds of them ask, "Where is the Courier?"

That is the clientele Merchants reach when they use the Courier for advertising purposes. It is a clientele that is responsive to merchandising messages well told and backed by competitive price.

SKILLED LABOR SHORTAGE

The Department of Labor warns of a possible shortage in skilled workers. This is due to the fact that in a depression when labor is abundant occupations cease to train new workers to supply normal losses due to death, disability, etc. When business picks up it often tops its previous speed and more labor of the skilled type is in demand.

This report should be encouraging to those on relief, to those on relief jobs who are seeking better employment, and to those who are not satisfied with present jobs.

If these workers would get in touch with employment agencies they may receive aid in following employment trends and in finding where training can be had to qualify them for skilled jobs.

BEAVER MAIL PLANE FORCED DOWN HERE

Loaded with ice to the point where he was unable to maintain altitude, the pilot of the Charlevoix-Beaver Island mail plane was forced to a landing on the frozen harbor at Harbor Springs Saturday. He had encountered a heavy mist, which froze to the plane. Most of the ice cracked off when he landed, and he was able to take off in a few minutes.

The plane had an unusually heavy load of mail, he said.—Emmet County Graphic.

Social Security Forms

We have just taken over distribution of a simplified Payroll Record for keeping track of Social Security Taxes. Every employer who has ONE or more employes must deduct 1% of each employes wages and send it to the Social Security Board at Washington. When this deduction is made, he must give this employe a statement of the amount of wages earned and the deduction made. He must also keep on file a copy of this record. The form is triplicate with 55 sets in the book and two carbons. On the cover is a place for the record of the employes pay. Each book is designed to last one employe for a year, thus if a business has six employes it will need six books.

PIONEER WOMAN TAKEN BY DEATH ON TUESDAY

Pneumonia Is Fatal to Mrs. Alma O'Brien After Week's Illness

Charlevoix today mourns the death of Mrs. Alma O'Brien, 81, a pioneer of this district, who died at 12 o'clock Tuesday at the home of her son, Lige O'Brien, following a week's illness with pneumonia.

Alma VanDusen was born August 14, 1855, at Ellenburg, N. Y., the daughter of Avery and Betsy VanDusen. She came here in 1867 with her parents, pioneer settlers of Norwood township, at the age of 12 years, and had since resided here.

She was married on November 3, 1873, at Norwood, to James O'Brien, now deceased. To this union were born seven children, four of whom survive, viz.: Lige O'Brien, this city, Mrs. Mattie Parker, of Seattle, Wash., Mrs. Mary Easton, of Washington, D. C., Mrs. Belle Hartwell, this city. Surviving also is a sister, Mrs. Florence Olney, of Brule, Wis.

Mrs. O'Brien had been a member of the Baptist church for many years and, through her kindly disposition, had won a large following of friends.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon from the Baptist church, Rev. W. H. Rauch officiating.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT FIREMAN'S MASQUERADE

One Hundred Couples Enjoyed Monday Evening Party at School Gym

Around one hundred couples enjoyed the fireman's masquerade ball held Monday evening at the school gymnasium as one of several Washington's birthday events held in this city. In addition to those on the dancing floor, the balcony was filled with spectators.

Prizes for the best costumes were awarded Mr. and Mrs. Frank Olesky, representing George and Martha Washington. The prizes for comic costumes were presented Miss Betty Peterson and Bert Crandall.

OLDSMOBILE PLANT OPENED THURSDAY

Twelve Thousand Employes Back to Work in Lansing Factories

The Oldsmobile Motor Works resumed assembly line operations in its Lansing plant Thursday morning, company officials announced.

More than 12,000 Oldsmobile and Fisher Body workers, forced out of work because of the United Automobile Workers Union-General Motors controversy, were expected to be back at their jobs by the end of the week.

The Fisher plant resumed operations last Wednesday.

BILL DELAYING FORECLOSURES IS PASSED

Gov. Murphy Signs First Measure Completed by Legislature

Governor Frank Murphy's signature on the 1937 Michigan Legislature's first act Friday aided home owners.

The governor signed an act extending moratoriums on mortgages and land contracts from March 1, to November 1, 1938. He remained in his office to receive the act which had been rushed through the printers.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCHES
Charlevoix and Ironton

Sunday morning we will continue our discourses on "The True Estimate of Life" under the sub-title, "The Christian's Vocation.".

We will have the privilege of enjoying a vocal solo by Mrs. C. F. Krieghoff.

You can get the program over the radio. The frequency is changed occasionally. If you are not able to get the program at the regular place, try up and down on the dial and perhaps you will find us.

The Sunday school is looking toward Easter. The pastor is giving instruction during the worship program, helping those who are planning to unite with the church at Easter time. A large class is planning to come in at Ironton.

I. N. Mattison, of Glastonbury, Vt., holds 10 of the village's 18 governing offices.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET ENJOYABLE EVENT

Over Two Hundred Men and Boys Heard Address by Karl Detzer

Two hundred twenty-five men and boys attended the annual Father and Son banquet held in the upstairs auditorium of the Methodist church Monday evening. Much work had been done in preparation for the banquet and the new arrangement added greatly to the enjoyment of the affair.

With Dr. F. F. McMillan acting as toastmaster, the program opened with two vocal selections by Rev. John Alexander. Harley I. Ochs gave the toast to the boys and his son, Franklin, ably responded.

The speaker of the evening, Karl Detzer, held the attention of the group for over an hour. He began with his experiences in Lower California, where he is gathering material for a serial soon to appear in the Saturday Evening Post, and concluded with mention of the Coast Guard service which, with the recent explosion of the Charlevoix-Beaver Island mail boat Marold II, will provide the setting for a story to appear soon in Collier's under the title, "High Test."

Mr. Detzer's talk was romantic, humorous and inspiring.

COUNCIL VOTES EAST PARK IMPROVEMENTS

New Yacht Slips and Steel Sheet Piling Will Be Placed Soon

Water front improvements at East Park, recently acquired city property on Round Lake between Mason and Clinton streets, was assured Monday night by action of the city council in authorizing purchase of steel for sheet piling and docks.

The improvements, to provide several new yacht slips and steel sheet piling of the embankment along the lake, are included in an approved WPA project. The city's contribution for material will aggregate $2,800, it is understood. Start of work is contingent upon arrival of material and favorable weather conditions.

The council followed a precedent of previous years by approval of plans for an annual audit of city books by an expert accountant.

COUNTY ADVERTISING GROUP MEET TUESDAY

Plans Furthered on Cooperative Effort to Advertise Charlevoix Co.

Plans for advertising the resort attractions of Charlevoix county on a county-wide scale were furthered Tuesday evening at a second meeting of advertising committees from Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City at the court house.

Details of a county folder were worked out and contract signed for 16 x 30 signs to be erected not later than March 15 at the intersections of M-66 and M-75 on US-131, directing tourists to Charlevoix county. Placards advertising the Ironton ferry, made nationally famous through Ripley's "Believe It or Not," were decided upon.

The committee will meet again March 17 to complete work on the proposed county folder.

CONFIDENCE

"The grentest success," said Emerson, "is confidence, or perfect understanding between sincere people."

Our long record, of service to this community is based on this interpretation of sucess.

The personal fortunes of our officers and directors are at stake in this community. Only as it prospers does our institution prosper.

And, for the prosperity of all of us, our desire is to render the utmost in service, to continue to merit your confidence — that "perfect understanding" that Emerson talked about.

IRRIGATION PAYS IF RAIN IS SPARSE

Even in Michigan Some Cash Crops Repay Big Dividends for Labor

Although farmers in Michigan have never considered the state arid or normally lacking in sufficient rainfall, recent seasons have pointed out attractive cash returns for irrigation.

O. E. Robey of the agricultural engineering department of Michigan State College has been experimenting in laboratory and field work for several years and has watched farmers develop individual methods and equipment for irrigating strawberries, melons, orchards and truck crops.

"Unless weather conditions change suddenly," says Robey, "irrigation is going to be an important annual problem in Michigan. Porous hose, overhead sprinklers that are portable and whirling sprinklers are being used by many farmers."

Porous hose has been used successfully, but ordinarily many use too much pressure, Robey finds. Shorter lengths of hose than those used by many farmers also are suggested. Hose in 200 to 300 foot lengths means more time and equipment, but the hose lasts longer and does a better job.

Among the newer developments in irrigation is the portable overhead system. This cuts down labor and equipment. Robey has found it suitable in that one man can move the 20 foot lightweight pipes about a field and attach them to the main pipeline supplying the water.

"Developments are slow," says Robey. "All the equipment must be tested thoroughly. These methods have advantages and it is up to the individual to select the system best adapted to his pocketbook, soil, location of fields and water supply and the crops being grown."

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS
By Ann Page

Haddock, fish fillets, cod steak, swordfish and whiting are particularly good values this week along with oysters, clams, salt and smoked fish. All poultry is very reasonable. Eggs are less plentiful but still u good value. The meat picture is somewhat changed, lamb prices are higher, veal prices lower, beef a trifle lower and pork unchanged.

Grapefruit is an outstanding value though apples, oranges and bananas are moderate in price. Pineapples and strawberries, where available, are reasonable.

Although many vegetables are rather high, the usual winter standbys, beets, carrots, cabbage, onions, spinach and turnips are inexpensive.

Here are three dinners built around foods which are well distributed and moderate in price.

Low Cost Dinner
Roast Shoulder of Pork
Browned Potatoes
Creamed New Cabbage
Bread and Butter
Apple Pie Cheese
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Pot Roast of Beef New Potatoes
Carrots Onions
Bread and Butter
Caramel Cup Custards
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner
Stuffed Celery
Roast Chicken Sweet Potatoes
Cauliflower, Maitre d'hotel
Grapefruit Salad
Rolls and Butter
Floating Island
Coffee

The MARCH of POLITICS
By JOHN H. O'BRIEN

The Mrs. Simpson-King Edward "Constitutional Crisis" in England might have made more interesting newspaper copy, but it had none of the fundamental implications of the present crisis which involves the constitutional government of the United States.

The debate now raging throughout the country will have its effect upon every man, woman, and child in the nation for many decades to come, no matter how it is eventually settled. History books will dispose of the depression and similar events which we now consider of world-shaking importance in a few paragraphs; they will record the crisis now confronting us as one of the major events in the period since the "state's rights" dispute eighty years ago led to civil war.

The United States, as Adams said, is a government of laws, not of men. And the Constitution is the "law of the land." When you tamper with the fundamental law that governs the United States, you are doing more than change a body of law that a group of men like yourself originally set down. You are juggling with an instrument drawn only at the expense of blood and sacrifice. You are, no matter what your intention, opening to other men a like opportunity to twist the basic rights of all of us to fit future legislative schemes—legislation that might rapidly bring us to that tragic end suffered by every people that let loose for a single moment of its guaranteed rights. It has happened so often in the world's history that it has become a commonplace.

The President wishes this change because he wishes his legislation considered constitutional. Does he consider it worthwhile to make of the Supreme Court a servile body so that we may enjoy a revived NRA? Are we in the midst of such a crucial emergency that we should throw overboard one branch of our government in a desperate attempt to survive? Is it better to have our liberties judged by nine men of diversified viewpoint, secure from political pressure, or by an unwieldy body of elected partisans whose history of independent deliberation is none too savory? Assuming that the President's intentions are for the best for all of us, will his successors all be well-intentioned men? Does it make any real difference if he dictates constitutionally or unconstitutionally, so long as he dictates? And what is an American dictator if he is not a man who can inforce his will upon the House, the Senate, and the Supreme Court?

These are all questions that must be answered and they are only an inadequate hint as to what this proposal really means. This question absolutely has nothing to do with political parties. Any man who votes for such a proposal because he is a Democrat or who votes against it because he is a Republican, is more unworthy of American citizenship than any felon. An overwhelming defeat of it by a Congress that has shown little regard for its reputation as a deliberative body would do more to restore the belief of a thinking American in the eternal rightness of his form of government than any other possible act that we can think of. It would come like a breath of fresh air after long stagnation. It would demonstrate to the world that other citizens of other countries may yield up their hard-won liberties if they choose, but, American never. If this happens we can all be joyous that the crisis came so that for this generation, as for the generations of the past, it can be said that we held fast to our liberties. And this, in turn, will be a guidepost for the generations yet to come.

We note with pleasure that James G. Frey, secretary of the Republican State Central Committee and former representative for four terms from Calhoun county, has received the endorsement of organized labor for the office of mayor of Battle Creek. The Battle Creek Federation of Labor chose Frey to head its ticket—a ticket chosen on a non-partisan basis—because of his record as a representative and his understanding and sympathy of the problems of his constituents. His many friends throughout the state will be glad to know of the compliment paid to his ability by the Federation and will wish him well.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday morning service, 10:45.

Meets first Wednesday evening each month at 7:45 p. m.

Sunday school, 12 o'clock.

Reading room open Saturday, 3 to 5 p. m.

We cordially invite the public to our service and reading room.

"Christ Jesus" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, Februnry 28.

Among the Bible citations is the following (Matt. 4: 23): "And Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness and all manner of disease among the people."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 136): "Jesus established his church and maintained his mission on a spiritual foundation of Christ-healing."

Safe and Sane DRIVING
BY THE NATIONAL SAFETY COUNCIL
and Michigan State Safety Council

WHEN YOU SKID

Skidding is not only dangerous, but unnecessary. Engineers assert that, no matter what the road conditions, you can avoid skidding if you are careful.

Most drivers lay the fault for skidding on ice or snow or wet or oily roads, or on loose gravel, or on the other motor car driver who "did not stop in time." But if the road conditions are bad, or traffic is congested, slow down to a cautious pace, and there will be no occasion for skidding.

Tires are now made to grip the road much better than they used to. Chains are useful, too, but even chains will not keep you from skidding if you drive rashly. Keep the brakes equalized and they will not help to throw you into a skid.

If you do skid, do not instantly slam on your brakes in a panic. Release the throttle, but leave the clutch engaged so that the engine will help to slow your car. Touch the brakes lightly, alternately exerting a little pressure and releasing them. And turn the steering wheel in the direction of the skid. This will help control your direction.

City Primary Election

To the Qualified Electors of the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan.

NOTICE Is Hereby Given, That a City Primary Election will be held at the Council Rooms in the City of Charlevoix, on Monday, March 1, 1937, for the purpose of nominating candidates for the offices of Alderman, Supervisor and Constable for each ward.

Relative to Opening and Closing of the Polls. Election Revision of 1931—No. 410—Chapter VIII.

Section 1. On the day of any election polls shall be opened at seven o'clock in the forenoon, and shall be continued open until six o'clock in the afternooo and no longer: PROVIDED, That in townships the board of inspectors of election may, in its discretion, adjourn the polls at twelve o'clock noon, for one hour, and that the township board in townships and the legislative body in cities and villages may, by resolution, provide that the polls shall be opened at six o'clock in the forenoon and may also provide that the polls shall be kept open not later than eight o'clock in the evening of the same day. Every qualified elector present and in line at the polls at the hour prescribed for the closing thereof shall be allowed to vote.

Section 2. Unless otherwise specified, the hours for the opening and closing of polls and for the conducting of elections, shall be governed by Eastern Standard Time.

The Polls of said election will be open at 7 o'clock and will remain open until 6 o'clock p. m.

Dated this 8th day of February, A. D. 1937.

RAY S. HAMILTON,
7t2 City Clerk.

Notice of Mortgage Sale

Defaults having been made (and such defaults having continued for more than thirty days) in the conditions of a certain mortgage made by Joseph A. Kritcher and Rose B. Kritcher, husband and wife, to William Kritcher, Sr., dated August 31st, 1935, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix, Michigan, on September 9th, 1935, in Liber 23 of Mortgages on page 572; and said mortgagee having since died and Quinton Stone having succeeded to the title and control of said mortgage as Administrator of the Estate of William Kritcher, Sr., deceased, by and under the jurisdiction and order of the Probate Court for Emmet County, Michigan; and such Administrator having elected under the terms of said mortgage to declare the entire principal and accrued interest thereon due, which election he does hereby exercise, pursuant to which there is claimed to be due and unpaid on said mortgage at the date of this notice for principal, interest and taxes paid by the Administrator for the years of 1935 and 1936, the sum of Three Hundred Forty-Two and 96/100 ($342.96) Dollars, and no suit or proceeding at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof;

NOW, THEREFORE, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statutes of the State of Michigan in such case made and provided, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that on May 15th, 1937, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, Eastern Standard Time at the front outer door of the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, Michigan (that being the place of holding Circuit Court in said County) said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale at public auction to the highest bidder of the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount due as aforesaid, and any sum or sums which may be paid by the undersigned at or before said sale for taxes and/or insurance on said premises, and all other sums paid by the undersigned, and all legal costs, charges and expenses, including an attorney's fee, which premises are described as follows:

That certain piece or parcel of land situated in the Township of Bay in Charlevoix County and State of Michigan, more particularly described as the Northeast Quarter of the Southeast Quarter of Section Thirty-three (33), in Township Thirty-four (34) North, Range Six (6) West, containing forty acres, more or less, according to the Government survey thereof.

Gail was flushed and angry. Edith reasonable and cool. They talked at once, and Phil frowned faintly, smiled faintly, as he looked from one face to another.

"Phil, isn't it ridiculous in this day and generation to expect a person to send you an engraved invitation—"

"I didn't say an engraved invitation!"

"Because, I mean, everything's done so informally now, and people telephone invitations to weddings!"

"No, but listen, Phil! We've always held up our heads, and been known as girls who weren't cheap, who wouldn't jazz. Haven't we, Phil? It's all we have—it's us." Edith, her eyes suddenly wet with tears, went on shakily.

Phillip had championed Gail all her life, and she adored him as her unfailing authority. It was therefore like a blow in her face to have him say, judicially, over his pipe:

"I'm not so sure but what Ede's right, Gail. You aren't sure that Van Murchison—he's an awfully nice kid, and he's most amusing and all that, and he means well enough—but you aren't sure that this kid ever spoke to his aunt at all. How do you know—"

"Oh, listen, listen!" Gail said, managing a laugh, but inwardly seething with fury. "He didn't ask me to go to China! He asked me to go for two nights to Los Gatos—and I'm going! That's all there is to it!"

There was a full minute of dead silence during which her angry voice hung in the air. Then Ariel expelled a long, sighing breath, and Phil shrugged philosophically.

"You're of age," he said briefly.

Nothing more. The girls, as they cleared the table, avoided each other's eyes and presently began to talk lifelessly of other things.

Phil went out without another glance or words for his favorite sister. When Gail and Ariel chanced to be for a minute alone in the kitchen, Ariel seized the opportunity to say eagerly:

"Stick it out, Gail! If every one felt the way Edith does, no one would have any fun at all! We'd all be old maids!"

Ariel's sympathy was very sweet. But it did not have the value of Edith's approval. On the contrary, there was something disturbing in this suggestion of a general mutiny against the Lawrence way of doing things.

Ariel had arranged with a boy friend that he should call her on the telephone at eight o'clock, and she should answer his call with a pleasant, dutiful "Oh, yes, Miss Hemmet?" Miss Hemmet was her mathematics teacher. She would then say to Gail, "Gail, I'm going over to Miss Hemmett's, and then I'm going to meet the crowd at the corner and go down to Sticky Dobbins' for some ice cream. I asked Phil, and he said, 'All right.'"

It was a risky game she was playing, but after all it was a game. Edith was playing no game at all, and Gail was demonstrating more forcefully every instant how little she knew of the rules. Better anything than to spend one's evening darning the fraternal socks, as Edith was placidly preparing to do, or patiently to settle down to helping Sam with his correspondence school aviation work, like Gail.

The telephone rang.

"Take it, freshman!" Gail said to her younger sister. But Ariel needed no prompting; she was already halfway to the hall.

"Oh, thank you, Miss Hemmet. I will!" her sisters heard her say. She came back to her work with her transparent skin exquisitely flushed, and her strange eyes alight. "Gail, Miss Hemmet wants me to come over. And Phil said we could go to Dobbins' afterward."

"Oh, that's all right. Go ahead!" Gail said absently. Ariel faded from sight silently, was gone.

Later Dick Stebbins looked in at the kitchen door.

"Peanuts, anybody?"

"Phil's gone," Gail said.

"I'll follow him up." But Dick came in instead. Gail noiselessly escaped into the dining room and secured her little playing cards. She came back to the kitchen table and began to play.

Edith matched socks thoughtfully, frowning at their stripes and selvages. The gas sang, and Dick stood up and lowered it.

Gail's thoughts rocked to and fro deliciously; she was writing a story. A woman—very beautiful but entirely unprincipled—carrying on a love affair under her husband's very eyes. . . .

"Gail's going down to the Chipp place in Los Gatos next week-end," Edith said, out of a silence.

"Isn't so?" Dick asked, looking up.

"Um-hum," Gail affirmed, nodding. She was grateful to Edith for taking it as a matter settled. Dick continued to regard her with an odd, an almost contemptuous, smile.

"You like all that sort of thing, don't you?" he now asked.

"Well, I don't know that I like it especially. I don't know much about it," Gail answered, slightly nettled. "Never having been on a house party of this sort, I couldn't say I liked it or didn't like it," she went on pointedly.

"Meaning that I don't know what I'm talking about?" Dick asked, with a not-quite-good-natured laugh.

"Well—" Gail said, with a shrug which indicated that he was at liberty to put that interpretation upon her words if he would.

The man laughed, and sprawled a placating great hand across the table.

"Aw, don't be mad, Gail."

"I'm not mad."

"Yes, you are! But what do you care what I think of the Murchison outfit? They don't."

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

Used Car Titles Should Be Checked

Purchasers of used cars, especially those buying from other than dealers, are cautioned by Department of State officials to examine their titles carefully to see that serial and engine numbers and other details are verified by stampings on the cars.

Instances have been known in which neither buyer nor seller realized that a stolen car was being dealt with. In the event such cars are later traced, they are restored to their rightful owners, regardless of any transactions which may have been consummated with relation to them.

The warning was issued in face of the increase in used car sales noted in the general revival of business confidence following the successful peaceful negotiation of the General Motors "sit down" strike.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT BULLETIN

Annual Report of Your District Health Department

The chief objective of your Health Department is to prevent diseases and promote health of the entire community. The year 1936 proved very successful in calculating the services performed by the Health Department staff consisting of a district health officer, six full time nurses, a dentist and a sanitary officer.

The services accomplished by your Charlevoix county nurses, Miss Deane Rinck and Miss Mary Busser, assisted by Dr. Carleton Dean, during 1936 were as follows:

Vaccinations	255
Toxoid given under 5 years	184
Toxoid given 5 years and over	73
Total communicable disease visits	291
Tuberculosis home visits	491
Prenatal home visits	304
Postnatal visits	196
Infants examined by Dr. Dean	148
Infant home visits	592
Preschools examined by Dr. Dean	451
Preschool home visits	1283
Visits to schools	176
School children examined by Dr. Dean	1188
School home visits	464
Crippled children's visits	116
Miscellaneous home visits	450
Total all home visits	4187

The services performed by Dr. A. R. Renwick, sanitary inspector, throughout District Health Unit No. 3, constituting the counties of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego, for 1936 were as follows:

Inspections of:

School buildings	488
Milk establishments	755
Water supplies	445
Excreta disposal	529
Other inspections (including resorts)	404

In addition to routine inspection of the above-mentioned places, monthly bacterial counting of milk, over a period of three days, is carried on by our laboratory technician in conjunction with the sanitation activities. There were 415 bacterial counts taken during 1936 and 393 sediment tests on milk supplies throughout this district.

Dr. J. P. Nelson, Children's Fund dentist, with the District Health Department, carried on the dental program for three months in each of the four counties in this district. The following services were accomplished in Charlevoix county in 1936:

Total clinic visits	742
Number cases completed	43
Total extractions	618
Total fillings	519
Number prophylactic treatments	133

Already our department has launched into another year with the desire to give to the community our utmost cooperation and help in all that pertains to the health and well being of our citizens.

Firestone

Your SAFETY Often Depends on the Tires on Your Car!

Did it ever occur to you just what would happen if one of the tires on your car would suddenly blow out while you were driving along the road at "sixty per." Well, for your own safety and the safety of those who ride with you just stop and ponder for a moment. With a tire suddenly gone flat the result might be appalling, inflicting perhaps loss of life and limb, as well as a damaged and perhaps a ruined car. So with the price of a blow-out so expensive it's folly to take such chances. Examine your tires now and if you need new ones change to FIRESTONE. See if there are any worn spots in your present set of tires, see if you can find any cracks in the casing, or any blisters. Any of these is a danger sign and an indication that it's time to put on new tires.

But there's an important requirement when you change—and that is to change to a dependable tire. That's what you'll find FIRESTONE to be—giving you good dependable service until the very last. They wear smooth and are free from defects.

Visit the FIRESTONE dealer listed below. He'll be glad to check your tires and you'll find him frank to tell you if you don't need new ones. This is the time of year when it's mighty important to be driving with good "rubber" and there is still plenty of winter ahead. So assure for yourself comfortable driving during the balance of the winter by changing to FIRESTONES NOW!

Company Appreciative of Consideration Shown by Public

W. E. Holler, vice-president and general sales manager of Chevrolet, announced this week that every consideration will be given to the thousands af customers who have demonstrated their loyalty to Chevrolet by leaving their orders with dealers in spite of the fact that they did not know when they could get delivery.

In a communication to Chevrolet's 10,000 dealers, Mr. Holler requested them to extend his thanks to the thousands of purchasers who were willing to await resumption of production for delivery of their cars. He also assured dealers that new orders for Chevrolets will receive immediate attention and that deliveries will be made with the utmost rapidity.

"It is a source of deep gratification to me and to everyone in Chevrolet to notice the fine spirit of cooperation exhibited by the public," Mr. Holler declared. "We have received hundreds of letters here in Detroit from customers assuring us their willingness to take delivery as soon as we could obtain the materials which would permit us to resume production.

"Production now has been resumed, and shipments of new cars will shortly be under way. We expect to be producing at capacity within a few days in order to reward the loyalty and patience of the public with deliveries of new cars with all the speed of which we are capable."

AVERAGE SNOW MUCH LOWER THIS WINTER

Gauges Show Depth from 6 to 14 Inches Less in Upper Peninsula

Although in some places precipitation has been heavy, Northern Michigan generally hasn't as much snow as last year.

Snow gauges established at various parts of the northern counties by conservation authorities to obtain data that can be correlated with the movements of deer, revealed that on February 9 part of the Upper Peninsula was from six to 14 inches below the 1936 snow depths.

At Cusino during the middle of February, 1936, the gauges showed three and one-half feet of snow on the level; at the same time this year they showed two feet, two-tenths inches of snow.

Deer park on Lake Superior north of Newberry had 3.2 feet of snow last year; this year's reading was 2.6 feet. On Drummond Island there is much less snow this year than last, and in the northern counties of the Lower Peninsula there is little or no snow compared with from one to two feet nt some places in 1936.

BARNARD EXTENSION CLUB HELD MEETING THURSDAY

The Barnard Extension Club met at the home of Mrs. Anna Gornell on Thursday, February 18, for an all-day session.

The leaders, Mrs. Vera Smith and Mrs. Guy Stutzman, gave a demonstration on the "Use of Milk in the Home."

The next meeting will be held March 17 at the home of Mrs. Mary Wells.

EAST JORDAN PLANS FOR SMELT JAMBOREE

Committees Meeting This Week to Arrange Program Features

A men's get together dinner, sponsored by the local Chamber of Commerce, is scheduled for Tuesday, February 23, at 6:30 p. m.

The local Sportsmen's Club, who are in charge of the arrangements for the Smelt Jamboree, want to make this year's Jamboree the biggest and best yet. Wayne and means of doing so, including plans to date, will be discussed at the meeting. The Jamboree has been set for the week-end of March 20. The Sportsmen's Club wants 100 per cent support and asks all men, whether interested or not, to attend the meeting.

The committee in charge states that, after all business in connection with the Smelt Jamboree has been disposed of, the meeting will be turned over to an informal and frank discussion of civic affairs in general. Anyone with any constructive ideas will be given an opportunity to be heard. Suggestions for the improvement and advancement of our city will be solicited.

The proposed dinner meeting appears to be a step in the right direction. It should be well worth attending. Tickets are on sale at the State Bank of East Jordan. — Charlevoix County Herald.

HOUSE VOTES INCREASE FOR HUNTING LICENSES

Non-Resident Fee Would Be Set at $15 South of Townline 16

The House passed Friday a bill raising non-resident small game licenses from $5 to $15 in the area south of Townline 16, which runs approximately between Saginaw and Muskegon.

The license fees would remain at the present $5 north of that line, according to the measure, which was introduced by Rep. James I. Post, of Hillsdale, R. The bill now awaits Senate action.

The House also passed and sent to the Senate a bill to make concealing of a murder victim's body n felony.

MUCH LIVESTOCK HELD ON FARMS THIS WINTER

Number Greatest Since Year of 1924 According to Report

The number of livestock on Michigan farms, January 1, 1937, was the largest for that date of any year since 1924, according to the annual livestock report issued recently by Burr B. Lincoln, commissioner of agriculture, and Verne H. Church, senior agricultural statistician for the Michigan Cooperative Crop Reporting Service.

This is in direct contrast to the situation for the country as a whole, the United States January 1, 1937, composite estimate of livestock numbers being the smallest since 1929, largely as a result of forced marketings in western drought areas. These comparisons have been made on the basis of animal units which allow for differences in size and feed requirements of the different species.

SOUTHLAND IS DESCRIBED BY TOURISTS

front of where we were camped. The sea wall, some seven or eight miles in length, built on an average of 17 feet above sea level, protects the city from disastrous tidal waves and tropical storms such as took place in the years 1900, 1915, and 1927. The disaster of 1900 took over 22,000 lives. Was visiting a man who conducted a plumbing shop, who told me he had lived in Galveston for some 64 years. At the time of this tidal wave he was one of 17 young fellows caught near the beach, and he alone survived. In his place of business he has preserved a mark on the wall of the peak of the flood. His stories were quite interesting and hard to believe. I checked up on him and have come to the conclusion that he told the truth—as far as he went—but at that simply skimmed the surface. His mind reverted to the catastrophe in a manner that most vividly brought back to him the loss of intimate friends and relatives and at times his voice trembled as he related some of the high points of the disaster.

The wall itself, built of sand and covered with a brick pavement some 200 feet wide, is a marvel of engineering and cost near to a billion dollars. Cars by the hundreds drive its full length. On the sand beach one can drive for miles within a few feet of the waters of the gulf. We drove this stretch of sand beach nearly every day we were there, regardless of weather. Our trailer camp was right on top of the wall where the roll of the surf was in our ears day and night. It brought us nearer home than any point we have so far visited.

The town itself lies back of the wall, a city of beautiful parks and drives, mammoth year-round hotels, old early day homes, some in presentable condition, others rapidly going to ruin. Places of interest were the shipping front, where one could see ships from all points of the world. One place of unusual interest was a beautiful new marine hospital, besides numerous new government buildings. We covered practically every main street and place of interest in the town. The celebration of Mardi Gras was on, and one day we got tangled up in the parade. Beautiful floats of every description were in the parade, which was over two miles long. The streets were jammed with cars and visitors, and we were glad when we reached our trailer camp on the sea wall.

We entered Galveston from the west by a causeway over a mile in length, and left on a ferry boat across the waters of Galveston Bay to Port Bolivar, thence east to Sabine Pass and on to Port Arthur, where we stayed over night. This route covered a long stretch of road through the cattle country. Looking ahead, or on both sides of the road, all you could see were hundreds of cattle. Here, in this section, cattle men are experimenting with a breed of cattle called Brahma, native of India. They are larger, all colors, and have a hump on their back just above the shoulder. The result of the cross-breeding, according to cattle men, is sturdier stock and better beef. However, they die like flies in cold weather, and we saw hundreds of carcasses lying on the ranches. On this trip of some 80 miles we were not at any time over 30 rods from the waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

Port Arthur, the land of oil wells and huge refineries. Both sides of the road for a distance of some three miles we saw nothing else other than big deep sea oil tankers and numerous other craft. We arrived here late in the afternoon and had no time to visit the business district. We understand, however, that the world's largest asphalt plant is located here, besides being the center of lumber, wheat and other commodities. This was the only town so far on the route which was not friendly to the trailers. We left the next morning.

Lafayette, La., was our next stop. Here we picked up a bunch of long-looked for mail, and how good it seemed to hear from home. It was a very pretty town of some 17,000 inhabitants, 75 per cent French. Here we witnessed another Mardi Gras celebration. Very pretty, and the floats were very tastefully prepared. We stayed here two nights.

The trip from Lafayette to New Orleans was the most beautiful we have gone over. Beautiful old southern towns with homes hard to describe, other than to say they were of the true southern type. Streets and roadsides lined with moss covered live oak, magnolia, southern pine, tall, stately palms, flower beds of beautiful azalia in full bloom, roses and other flowering plants in profusion. It was a drive we will carry in our memories for a long time.

We were anxious to cross the Mississippi, so made few stops. A heavy truck breaking through a bridge near Houma, La., caused us to make a somewhat lengthy detour, and we picked up the Mississippi, west bank, some 25 miles up river. We followed US-90 down river until we came to the huge bridge built across the river during the Hughy Long administration. What a monument to this martyred statesman, the man who promised his state good roads, good bridges, free textbooks, better laws, and kept his word to his constituents. When this $13,000,000 structure was completed December 16, 1935, the Father of Waters got its 29th and finest bridge. It is located a mile and a half above New Orleans, a combination railroad, vehicle and pedestrian crossing, toll free. From the top of the steel super-structure to the bottom of the central pier, the bridge measures more than 400 feet high, having two railroad tracks, two 18-foot concrete roadways, and two sidewalks. With the approaches it is 4.4 miles long and extends 3,524 feet across the Mississippi at a height of 135 feet above the high water level. What a bridge! We will never forget it.

Made the crossing all right, but were compelled to drive 25 miles per hour while doing it, so had little time to take in the wonderful view, both up river and over the city, down river. Here we stayed over night in one of the best trailer camps so far on the trip. As the folks were uneasy here, we left the following morning for Biloxi, Miss., where we are laying over for several days.

In my next letter will cover the trip from New Orleans to this point. The weather is warmer and getting better every day. In our camp there are several Michigan people, who all gave us the glad hand and the Michigan salute.

In regard to Mississippi flood conditions, I do not believe New Orleans is in any danger. Flood conditions will prevail, but to no damaging effect.

NEW OFFICERS ARE NAMED IN ELECTION

CHANGES MADE IN ALL THREE OF CITY'S WARDS

Two New Aldermeo, Three New Supervisors Chosen; Exceptionally Light Vote Is Cast

New officials for all three wards of the city of Charlevoix were chosen at the annual spring primary election held Monday.

Lack of city-wide political interest, perhaps due to tha absence of a contest for mayor, is indicated by the light vote cast. A total of 615 ballots were cast; compared with 1,069 a year ago.

In the first ward, Karl Erber, a newcomer in city politics, defeated P. D. Cnmpbell for alderman by nearly a twu to one majority, and Edward E. Cross was elected supervisor over Harry A. Craig. Mr. Cross has previously served his ward as supervisor.

Darwin F. Meech, former county officer and long identified in both county and city politics, won in a three woy race for supervisor of the second ward. Alderman F. E. Cartier was nominated for re-election without opposition.

In the third ward voters elected Harry F. Hooker as alderman over Leo Carcy, the incumbent, by a margin of threo votes. Mr. Hooker has served several terms as alderman of that ward. Clarence B. Meggison, another newcomer in city politics, was elected supervisor in a three-way race, defeating D. J. Eckinger and Georga W. Weaver, the latter the incumbent.

Mayor Arthur Bergeon, City Clerk Ray S. Hamilton and City Treasurer Robert E. Rife were nominated without opposition.

Following is the complete vota:

First Ward

For Supervisor—
- E. E. Cross ..... 80—32
- H. A. Craig 48

For Alderman—
- Karl Erber ..... 78—27
- P. D. Campbell 49

For Constable—Joseph Howard

Second Ward

For Supervisor—
- D. F. Meech .....102—23
- H. I. Ochs 70
- Clenroy Ikens 75

For Constable—Don McHugh

Third Ward

For Supervisor—
- C. B. Meggison ..... 87— 9
- D. J. Ecklnger 78
- G. W. Weaver 55

For Alderman—
- Harry F. Hooker .....110— 3
- Leo Carey 107

For Constable—Clarence Cohlentz

ARRIVAL OF MARCH FIRST IS LAMBLIKE

March smiled in like tha meekost sort of lamb Monday morning and throughout the day.

Whether malice lurked behind tha smila is impossibla to tell, but the old superstition was that if March camo in lika a lamb it went out lika a lion. This, of course, can only be determined on March 31.

POSTMASTER HAS UNEMPLOYMENT FORMS

Local Merchants May Get Blanks by Applying at Post Office

Additional copies of the two report forms which every Michigan employer must file with the Michigan Unemployment Compensation Commission by March 6, were received today by Postmaster J. M. Foster for distribution to local employers.

With the deadline for filing almost here, Frank A. Picard, chairman of the commission, has urged every employer to file his reports with the commission, Fox Building, Detroit, immediately to avoid an interest penalty.

Employers who employed one or more persons at any time during 1930 must file an employer's registration report and employers who had a monthly payroll of $50 or more in at least three months during 1930, must file an employer's contribution report with the commission.

WILL BROADCAST TOURNEY CONTEST

PLAY - BY - PLAY ACCOUNT AT LOCAL GYMNASIUM

Arrangement Made for Benefit of Local Fans Who Are Unable to Go to Harbor Springs Friday

Interest in basketball for Charlevoix and Emmet county fans centers this week at Harbor Springs, where the Class C and D district tournament opens Thursday.

Charlevoix and Boyne City, who have staged a heated duel for Class C honors, resulting in two one-point victories for Charlevoix during the regular season, drew byes in the tournament first round and play at 9:30 Friday evening for a place in the finals.

Will Broadcast Game

Due to the limited capacity of the Harbor Springs gymnasium and the fact this condition will keep many fans from attending, local athletic officials have arranged to give a play-by-play account of the Charlevoix-Boyne City contest at the local gymnasium. By means of telephone connection between Charlevoix and Harbor Springs and loud speaker system with Dean Davenport and Bob Miles announcing, the game will be brought to Charlevoix fans.

In addition to broadcast of the basketball game, those present will be entertained by the American Legion German Band, a new local musical organization composed of Dr. D. C. Nettleton, Arthur Nettleton, Fenton R. Bulow, Harold Lamb and Max Smith. This group has been practicing all winter and play numbers from opera to numbers for the old German.

Inasmuch as the game at Harbor does not start until 9:30, the Charlevoix gymnasium will not open until 8:30. The music will precede the broadcast. A small charge will be made to pay for the special telephone connection.

Limited Number Reserved Seats

Supt. O. P. North has also announced that a limited number of reserved seat tickets have been sent to the Charlevoix schools for the tournament game Friday at Harbor Springs.

RAYDERS AGAIN WINNER OVER BOYNE CITY

RADLE'S GOAL IN FINAL SECOND OF PLAY PROVIDED MARGIN FOR SECOND ONE-POINT VICTORY

Reserves Winners by Single Point, 10 to 9; Victory Clinched Charlevoix's First Class C Conference Title and Gave the Varsity and Reserves Undefeated Season's Record

Charlevoix's Red Rayders clinched the Northern Michigan Class C basketball title and completed the most successful season on record here Friday night with a 26 to 25 victory over Boyne City's powerful quintet.

Also on record is the fact that Charlevoix's reserves scored their second one-point victory over Boyne reserves to complete an undefeated season. Four victories by the margin of one point may be considered quite a coincidence.

While the reserve contest lacked the color characterizing the previous game, due largely to close refereeing, the main contest was perhaps the most thrilling ever played at the local gymnasium and was attended by a record crowd, tournament attendance or otherwise, considered.

Like the game played at Boyne City, Charlevoix won in the final seconds and Radle again turned the trick. His goal, providing the winning points, reached the basket rim as the final whistle sounded. In the extreme excitement, Referee Tabraham ruled the goal out, but changed his decision after consulting the time keeper.

Radle's goal brought to a thrilling climax a game in which the advantage changed repeatedly in every period. Boyne took an early lead, scoring five points before Charlevoix counted. Three successful goals gave the Rayders a 6 to 5 advantage. The quarter ended with Charlevoix leading 8 to 6. Boyne out-scored Charlevoix seven points to six in the second quarter to trail 14 to 13 at the half, and managed five points to Charlevoix's four to gain an 18 to 18 tie at the third intermission. Charlevoix gained a lead early in the fourth period, but Kujawski crashed through to aven the count and then put his team ahead 25 to 24 with a free throw. Radle's winning goal decided the contest.

Victory Was Costly

Charlevoix's victory was costly. Carey, forward, high point man of the season, broke a small bone in his right ankle in the final moments of the game and will be lost to the team for tournament play. The accident occurred when he slipped into the crowd at the east end of the court.

EAST JORDAN READY FOR SMELT JAMBOREE

Set Saturday, March 20, As Date for National Celebration

With Saturday, March 20, already set as the date for the annual National Smelt Jamboree, the Jordan River Sportsmen's Club has various committees at work on details for this year's celebration.

The parade committee, headed by "Dinty" LaLonde, has been busy for some time and continuous entertainment is being planned for the Jamboree. Various street acts will fill tha major part of the afternoon, which is always climaxed by the coronation of the national King of Smeltium, and the smelters' parade. The coronation is set for 4:30 o'clock, with the parade following at 5 o'clock. The reign of Smeltium this post year has been in the hands of Ike Hyoms, of Cincinnati, and he is expected to be on hand to witness the coronation of the 1937 monarch.

An additional feature of this year's Jamboree will be the Newaygo Newt Spitting Contest. Various cities can select their champion and the various champs will then "spit it out" for the "National Sweepstakes." Newaygo Newt will appear in person to defend his title.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

There will be a Public Meeting at the High School Gymnasium on Tuesday evening, March 16, at 7:30 p. m. to discuss the proposed addition to the Electric Light Plant.

The bonds to be voted upon are Revenue Bonds, and will be paid out of the earnings of the Electric Light Plant.

There will be absolutely no increase in taxes, or no increase in light rates. The rates will be just the same as they are at present, and no higher. The net profits from the Light Plant will take care of all the bonds and leave a nice profit besides.

The State law provides that all bids must be competitive and no company will be given any preference over any other.

At the present time we are consuming nearly as much electricity as we can produce with all of our present equipment.

Charlevoix is in the Electric Light Business, and it is the duty of the City to be able to furnish all the electricity the people want, at all times.

The Citizens will have a chance to discuss every angle of the light question at the Public Meeting on March 16th.

This is the people's problem and it is up to the people to solve it, at the election on Friday, March 19th.

Every registered voter in Charlevoix will have a right to vote on this Revenue Bond issue.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE WILL BE HELD MARCH 11

Five Program for All-Day Meeting at East Jordan High School

The annual spring Charlevoix county Teachers' Institute will be held at the high school auditorium in East Jordan on Thursday, March 11, according to an announcement by William C. Palmer, county school commissioner.

The program will open at 9:30 a. m. and will continue throughout the morning and afternoon. A program highlight will be the appearance of Slim Williams, noted Alaskan wolf-dog musher, who is destined to go down in history as one of the great trail blazers of the North American continent. Williams drove his wolf-dog team 5,600 miles, blazing the proposed Alaska-U. S. Highway. His subject will be "Alaska — Our New Frontier." He will appear at both the morning and afternoon sessions.

Another prominent speaker listed is John R. Emens, director of certification, Department of Public Instruction. Musical selections will be given by Miss Helen Raatikainen, supervisor of vocal music in East Jordon schools, and by the East Jordon school band.

LARGE GASOLINE STORAGE PLANNED

BIGGEST PLANT IN NORTH TO BE LOCATED HERE

Charlevoix Terminal Co. Will Build Million and a Half Gallon Storage on Lake Charlevoix Site

With the acquisition of property completed and plans progressing for construction work, Charlevoix is assured the largest bulk gasoline unit in Northern Michigan.

While no official announcement has been made, it has been learned that the project mentioned is the result of organization of what will be known as the Charlevoix Terminal Company, formed by R. L. Cornell, of Grand Rapids, and his associates.

The location of the storage plant and equipment will be on a five-acre tract of land immediately south and adjacent to what is locally known as the Parmelee warehouse, situated on Lake Charlevoix. The property extends from Lake Charlevoix west across M-66 and the Pere Marquette Railway Co. tracks onto the bluff where, it is understood, storage tanks of 1,500,000 gallon capacity for gasoline will be installed. A large warehouse for storage of oils, grease and other petroleum products, is to be built west of the railroad tracks with a spur running from the railroad, it is understood.

Gasoline will be brought to the storage plant by oil tanker and a 200-foot dock will be constructed extending into Lake Charlevoix for landing purposes. Gasoline will be pumped from the tankers to storage tonks.

While no definite informotion is now available, it is understood the beginning of construction operations is contingent upon arrival of materials and favorable weather conditions.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES AT RALLY

VAN WAGONER, M'ALLISTER, ERICKSON HEARD HERE

State Highway Commissioner Says the Department Will Consider Local Highway Needs

Three of the Democratic candidates whose names will appear on the April ballot spoke before nearly 300 persons at a political rally held Thursday afternoon at the school gymnasium.

Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner, appeared on the program along with Thomas F. McAllister, Grand Rapids, candidate for justice of the supreme court, and Arthur Erickson, Ironwood, candidate for superintendent of public instruction. Robert F. Sloan, chairman of the Democratic county committee, acted as chairman.

Prior to the public meeting the speakers, together with a group of local civic leaders, were luncheon guests of Mr. Sloan at his home. At this informal gathering, local highway needs, particularly a new bridge crossing the channel on US-31, and new construction of this highway north of this city to the county line, were discussed. While Mr. Van Wagoner did not commit himself on the matter in a manner which could be construed as a promise, he did open the way for such a program by stating his department would consider any local requests for a survey of needs, of which a new bridge was admittedly the most important. There is no doubt local officials will take advantage of the avenue opened to them.

At the public meeting, Mr. Van Wagoner pointed to the record of his administration. He stressed efforts of the department to increase the tourist business by establishing scenic highways, dustless thoroughfares and tourist lodges. He stated the department has hard-surfaced 1,075 miles of highways—enough to reach from here to Florida. He declared $167,000 had been expended directly upon the highways of this county in addition to other work in a cooperative program with the WPA.

Mr. McAllister, a tall, distinguished-looking attorney from Grand Rapids, declared a new political philosophy has swept the nation, calling for moral and religious independence but social and economic interdependence. The candidate spent most of his time speaking of the record of the Democratic party in the state and the nation.

Mr. Erickson, who is superintendent of schools at Ironwood, listed the other candidates on the Democratic ticket and urged a tenure act which would place teachers under a civil service system. He also supported a more adequate pension system for teachers.

Takes Part in College Play

Miss Helen Lafreniere, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nels J. Lafreniere, of St. James, is to play the part of "Domitilla" in the annual Lenten play to be given at Nazareth College, March 21. The play, entitled "Veronica's Veil," is known as America's Passion Play.

Trip Eastward from New Orleans Told by Editor Usher

Tourists, Sojourning at Clearwater, Fla., Tell Beauties of "Old Spanish Trail"

Clearwater, Florida
February 25, 1937

Dear Ken and Folks at Homa:

Numerous happenings of more or less importance have takan placa since we left you at New Orleans, La., some 10 or 15 days ago, but the usuol changa of scenery and character of country has proven just as interesting as we drove eastward. Have little to say of New Orleans, as we only stayed there overnight. The trip nut of town was mada without trouble, regardless of the fact that we drove some six miles through both business and residential sections.

We are on US-90 now, generally known as the "Old Spanish Trail." I am under the impression that one can pick up this road in eastern Florida and continue westward to tha California coast. Tha road itself is mostly concrete, level, wide and a dream to drive. Eastward from New Orleans the road ran along the south bank of Lake Ponchartrain, a vast body of inland water and one that is used as a reservair ta take care of excess water during the almost an-

Indian Mission at Greensky Hill Gets Florida Publicity

Legend of Council Ring Among Stories of West Michigan by Publicity Expedition

The old Indian Mission at Greensky Hill, near Charlevoix, and the legend concerning the council ring there form the basis of one of the stories on West Michigan being distributed to the newspapers of Florida by the Michigan publicity expedition now touring the Sunshine State. The atory is illustrated with a picture of the old Mission.

Charlevoix also is represented on the tour in the colored motion pictures being shown to tourists and business groups. The city's golf tournaments, bathing and boating activities, fishing and its fine hotels and cottages are all pictorially portrayed.

Charlevoix folders and resort literature is being distributed at the stops made by the tour. The publicity ex-

CENTRAL LAKE

March came in kind of "lamby and liony" too, so suppose it will go out the same way.

Mr. Box, of Central Lake, as well as John Boss, merchant at Atwood, have put up ice from Torch Lake this year. Mr. Box has an ice machine for cutting the ice.

Mrs. Carpenter, of Ellsworth, has been visiting the past week at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Erickson, at Central Lake. She has left the farm which the boys are now working, and has been residing in Ellsworth.

Mrs. Glen Green, of Central Lake, was taken home from church a week ago Sunday, suffering with heart trouble. She was taken to Dr. Lashmet, Petoskey, and was told it was not so serious. She was out to church again Sunday.

Mrs. Henry Syers, who fell, breaking the lower end of her leg that was amputated last fall, is in bed, but getting better all the time. Mr. Syers had a hand amputated a few years ago, then a finger. They have had all sorts of trouble.

Mrs. Minnie Osterbaun returned from Petoskey Hospital somewhat improved, and was quite a bit encouraged by Dr. Lashmet's diagnosis of her case. She is still stopping at the home of her sister, Mrs. Kate Cornett, of Central Lake.

Miss Lucile Drew is expected to return this week from Petoskey Hospital, where she had an operation for appendicitis. Her sister, Ruby, had just returned from there, as Lucile had to go. Their brother underwent an operation for appendicitis there earlier in the fall.

Manlos McGuire and Maurice Dawson are home from Pontiac, where they went in search of work. Lester Dawson, who has been working in Detroit this winter, is home again and stopping at the Sidney Dawson home. The unemployment situation at Pontiac and Detroit is very acute again.

Rev. A. A. Wall, retired Congregational preacher, of Central Lake, has been having a serious tussle with the flu, but has been able to sit up a little. We all are hoping for his complete recovery. He and Mr. Ballard are always missed if they are not around in time to give advice on how to get out the Torch.

Ivan Morse writes home that he had his car smashed beyond hopes of repair unless nt great cost, by a man who ran the red light at Detroit. The man has promised to buy a new car for Ivan. Luckily no one was injured in either car. There were two passengers in Mr. Morse's car. He is still out of employment.

William Bowers is reported as convalescing splendidly at the home of his daughter in Three Rivers, where Mr. Bowers and wife have been spending some time while he recuperates from his recent illness. Mr. and Mrs. Bowers, were our former postmaster and postmistress here, and their work was very much appreciated.

Mr. Brnce and son, of Bay View, have finished putting in a fine heating plant at the court house, Bellaire. He is putting up ice from Torch Lake this week. The ice is said to be of fine quality, and pure enough to be used in ice water. People are coming from miles around to get ice from the head of the lake at Eastport.

There were good attendances at church nnd Sunday school last Sunday. Central Lake Pentecostal had 48 at Sunday school; Methodists had 75, and Eastport Baptist church, 40. At Eastport Baptist church, Mrs. Boice sang a very pleasing solo. At the Pentecostal Sunday school, Ruby Drew's class of little people sang a fine motion song.

Johnnie Dawson is home from Pontiac after three unsuccessful nttempts at getting employment at that place and at Detroit. He will now go to farming again. The outlook for cherries, however, appears to be rather poor, as the trees are not budded very heavily. Perhaps the difference in price may compensate for the loss in quantity.

Rev. W. H. Rauch preached an excellent sermon last Sunday at Eastport, wherein he said that schools did not open with prayer and reading of the Scriptures as much as formerly, which showed a bad retrogression. He says Mrs. Rauch is able to sit up and eat her meals since her serious operation. All will be glad to see her out to church soon.

Rev. Guy Liskum and wife attended Free Methodist services at the F. M. church in Central Lake Sunday forenoon, where Rev. Liskum had charge of the Bible class. In the afternoon, he took part in the services of the Baptist church at Eastport. Mrs. Liskum has been doing artist'a work with religious panels, of which she has disposed quite a few this season.

George Parker and family have moved from the Cameron farm, west of town, to the Wierenga farm, at Mitchell, near Ellsworth. They have purchased the farm. Arthur Russell, now on the Harry Clark farm at Bay View, will move onto the Cameron farm. Harry Clark intends to work his own farm this summer. His wife, who is teaching in Detroit, will be up here as soon as her school is closed.

Antrim county people will be sorry to lose Miss Laura Mohrman, of Bellaire, from the office as helper on the road commission, and from her work making out licenses for cars. She has served faithfully for a number of years, but will go to Ann Arbor to take up educational work, and at the same time will do part-time secretarial work there. Her sister, Alice, now has a good position there as clerk in the school. Elmer Tate has been given charge of her office, which was taken over by him March first.

We wish to thank the people who have given us words of commendation on the articles we have written upholding the Supreme Court. This is a subject that should be of vital interest to every loyal American citizen, and all regardless of party should give their support to keeping the Supreme Court as it is. If we had only a few speakers like the former superintendent of public instruction, Henry R. Pattengill, former Governor W. N. Ferris, or William Jennings Bryan, the "twilight talks," and the outbursts of Senator Joe Robinson would sink into insignificance. What we need is a lot of telegrams and letters sent in to our congressmen, telling we stand back of them. Let's do it today!

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

New Title Forms Planned by Case

Complete revision of the form of automobile titles and the mechanics of recording liens on all motor vehicles, is being studied by Leon D. Case, secretary of state, and other officials of the Department of State. A bill for presentation to the current session of the Legislature is being prepared.

The plan under consideration would completely eliminate the recording of chattel mortgages on automobiles with registers of deeds, and cause every such mortgage to be recorded only with the secretary of state. The object of the proposed plan would be to further protect all persons owning or dealing in motor vehicles.

At present, it is pointed out, there is no formal method by which the discharge of a lien on an automobile at time of purchase, may later be recorded on the original title. A new title can be issued, but almost no automobile owners avail themselves of this possibility. Further, persons claiming to have lost their titles may at present secure new ones without original liens noted on them.

Under the proposed plan, no automobile lien would be considered valid until recorded with the secretary of state, and no discharge of a lien would have legal standing without similar recording.

The form of motor vehicle titles would be changed so as to accommodate easily noted records of title transfers, liens and lien discharges, across the face thereof. All recordings of such data would be filed in the Department of State in the form photostatic copies of titles.

"Burn Witch Burn"

A thrilling, chilling, out-of-the-ordinary mystery story is "Burn Wicth Burn," now running in the Detroit Times. A story with an amazing plot, "Burn Witch Burn" tells of a series of murders, which a brain surgeon and a modern racketeer attempted to solve. What had a white-faced woman to do with this mystery? What part did a doll play in it? You will find "Burn Witch Burn," by A. Merritt, one of the most exciting mystery tales ever written.

Proved by blue prints she couldn't have been unfaithful in the yacht pilot-house. The unusual matrimonial difficulties of the pretty ex-model in The American Weekly, the magazine distributed with next Sunday's Chicago Herald and Examiner.

NO "BLANKETING IN"

Among the many excellencies of the merit system bill which has been drawn up by the Civil Service Study Commission is its specific provision that present office holders shall not be frozen into permanent tenure in the new set-up.

It is a common fault of much civil service legislation that patronage beneficiaries who hold office at the time the legislation is passed are automatically granted life tenure. This characteristic is to be criticized for a large number of reasons, two of the best of which are, one, that it retains in the public service persons not selected on the basis of merit, and two, that it unfairly gives a great slice of patronage to the party that happens to adopt the legislation.

In the bill which has been drafted by the Study Commission, this weakness is taken care of in Section XXV, which reads in part, "Persons holding positions which would come under the classified service . . . shall be deemed to be holding said positions temporarily until the Commission can by open competitive examinations provide eligible lists for all classes of positions."

Under the Michigan system, merit would hence be from the outset the sole principle in making appointments; the spoils system would die a complete death as soon as the bill went into effect.

Section XXV of the proposed bill is one more reason why government experts throughout the country are prnising it so highly, and why Democrats and Republicans alike can urge its adoption.

DRIVE A BARGAIN

"I only think, when you don't know a person, and that person has never done one thing against you—" the girl commenced stiffly.

"It's only that I get such a kick out of it," Dick murmured, subsiding.

Gail tried her best to feel sorry for him.

Later she told Edith positively that she would not go to the Chipps' house party unless she heard directly from Mrs. Chipp.

"Oh, I am so relieved, dearest!" Edith breathed, gratefully.

"No, it's not worth while," Gail said. She grew a little bitter, thinking about it. "It would be the best time I ever had, and if mamma had lived, or papa, I should take all this sort of thing as a matter of course," she said, with dignified resentment. "However, I can't—as Phil said, I can't put myself in a false position!"

"Gail, she will telephone you!" Edith predicted fervently.

"I don't know." Gail was tired and blue.

They were still talking at one o'clock when Phil came upstairs.

"I put the lights out. Everyone in?" he asked.

The sisters exchanged a look.

"Ariel must be! She went with the gang down to Dobbins' at about nine," Gail stammered. "She said you said she could, Phil!"

"I said if she'd be back early!" Phil exclaimed. He crossed the hall, opened a door, and returned with an anxious and angry face. "Where is she, d'you suppose?" he asked.

"Well, she must be—oh, this is perfectly terrible, Phil! She must be still down there. We could telephone—"

"Listen, she can't get away with this!" Phil interrupted. "It's after twelve. Dobbins' closes at midnight."

"Maybe one of the boys started to drive her home."

"Maybe she decided to stay at the Lovelaces'!"

"Tut-tut-tut-tut—" Gail began on a weary note, flinging the bedclothes aside as Phil ran downstairs to the telephone and Edith fled to her room for more clothing.

Gail was all but dressed, and Phil returning from downstairs three minutes later, when Ariel appeared in the upper hallway, clad in pajamas and an old Japanese jacket of brilliantly colored cotton, with a pillow dangling in her hand and her soft, taffy-yellow hair in confusion.

"What's the excitement?" she demanded, looking like anything in the world rather than a girl who had been tearing, scared and chilly, across open country roads in a roadster exactly three minutes before. "It was so hot I thought I'd sleep down on the side porch, on the old sofa. But it's so lumpy—"

They all broke into excited laughter, reproaches. She should have told them!

Ariel, looking sleepy, warm, bewildered, vanished into her room with a yawn. Nobody followed her to discover the clothes flung wildly here and there just as they had fallen when she had torn them off, or to kiss the cheek that was still so cold from night wind. Indeed, among the three elders in Gail's room there was even a feeling that injustice had been done little Ariel, who had run down to the drug store so innocently for a soda, after her lessons were done, and who had been home and in bed for almost three hours.

"What's the Excitement?"

Phil produced two small round well-wrapped cakes of violet soap, and presented each girl with one.

"Peace offering," he said humbly, but with a little laugh in the corner of his eyes. "I was sort of—oh, rotten, about Gail's visit!" he said. "My dear old girl, Ede and I'd trust you to go with anyone you like to China—you know that. Why, we depend on you. You're the thing that has held us together all these years. You're the guardian angel of the Lucky Lawrences!"

Gail's heart swelled to hurting; she could not speak.

She made up her mind that she would not consider the Los Gatos week-end, unless some formal recognition of the invitation came from Mrs. Chipp. But this heroic mood oozed away when Friday passed, and Saturday passed, and there was no sight of Van, and no word from him. Gail bore it as long as she could, and then telephoned suddenly, reluctantly, on Sunday morning to the Chipp house to ask for Mr. Murchison.

A woman's voice, slightly amused, slightly surprised, very sophisticated, answered her. Van Murchison was with friends in Burlingame, and who was this, please?

Gail dared not reveal her identity. It was Mrs. Chipp herself, she suspected; it might have been the solution of her whole problem if she had been able to ask, easily, cheerfully, "Are you expecting me on that house party next week, Mrs. Chipp?"

But she could not do it. Instead she mumbled something that might have been a name and might not, and hung up the telephone with her heart pounding and her cheeks red. Moving about the quiet Sunday kitchen, busy with the eternal dishes and chairs, bread box and pudding bowls, she raged at herself for her cowardice.

"You fool! How I hate you! You poor fool!"

She muttered the dishes expertly. Wandering back and forth between sink and dresser, she put them one by one into a shining line on the shelf, soliloquizing as she did so.

"Burlingame, eh? I imagine I'd hate it. How can I say that?—I don't know anything about it! But I imagine—or rather, I should think a boy would hate it. I wish I hadn't telephoned. She didn't know who I was, though!

"Well, why shouldn't I telephone her? No harm done!

"Suppose she does tell him some girl telephoned, and he suspects it's me? What of it? Everybody is telephoning everybody else all the time."

Edith came in, flushed and pretty, from church.

"It's boiling out. It's going to be a marvelous day. What a day for a picnic!" with a long sigh, as they wandered through the great dim front hallway and looked through the opened front door into the mellow greenness of the garden.

"I know." Gail sighed, too.

They were halfway upstairs, loitering. A voice spoke from the doorway behind them.

"Any awill this morning, ladies?"

And instantly the day burst into bloom. Edith tactfully retreated to the upper regions; Gail came out on the front steps, in her dark blue kitchen apron. Van stood there grinning up at her.

He seated himself on the steps; Gail, in a wicker rocker, had her elbows on her knees, her hands hooped over her face.

It was heaven, sitting out in the shade with this big, tweed-clad young man. The violence of last week's hopes and fears had all fallen away; it was enough to sit here together, without past or future.

"No golf today?"

"Oh, I could have played. But I don't play very well. The other fellers were all too good. Besides, my aunt wanted me; my cousins from Sacramento are here. It'll be rotten."

Gail laughed unsympathetically.

"We might take our supper and go up to the old dam at Cable River," she said, as unexpectedly to herself as to him.

"How d'you get there?"

"End of the trolley line. And then walk."

He stayed about an hour, and they laughed continuously. So joyous, so unrestrained, was this particular meeting that Gail presently could say, "What's this house party next week-end?"

"Oh, the usual thing!"

"Down at the Chipps' place?"

"Yep. Up in the Santa Cruz mountains, back of Los Gatos."

"How many will there be, Van?"

"Oh, about a dozen."

She couldn't—somehow—bring him to anything definite about the invitation. He seemed to feel that that was settled.

But Gail was in wild spirits when he went away, none the less. He had said, "I take you," in reference to the house party. His aunt must be perfectly cognizant of that. And she, Gail, had talked to him easily, unaffectedly, in her old gingham, and he had wanted to come and find her, and her jealousy of his Burlingame friends had been silly, and everything was all right again.

Dick Stebbins turned up with his reconstructed roadster and the picnic suddenly became a glittering reality. Edith and Gail, as they so loved to do, plunged into a glory of preparations, eggs boiling frantically; blackened old coffee pot stored with small packages of sugar, matches, mustard, pepper, and salt; cream poured back into a fat bottle, and secured with a thick cup of paper and a rubber band.

When Phil came in, the usual picnic uproar set in; they couldn't all go in Dick's car obviously, but those that rode going could walk-and-trolley back. Phil thought he might borrow Jim Blake's car—it was an awful looking old thing, but it did move.

Gail flew up and downstairs, in and out of doors, tying strings, wiping oily fingers, tying dingy old tin cups on a string. At four they were all off.

They picnicked on the grassy plateau two hundred feet from the dam, looking down at the world, listening to the ripple and chuckle of the creek hidden in the redwoods behind them. The grass smelt of dew and pungent tar-weed; the redwoods were caught in solemn shade. Gail sat with her back braced squarely against a massive oak, Phil lay stretched with his head against her knee. The others were still eating in a desultory, protestant manner.

Suddenly, from where he lay like a dead body in the grass, Saul's young boyish voice rose pure and strong:

"There's a long, long trail a-winding . . ."

They all sang, even Ariel cutting herself off in the middle of a word to join. They sang for half an hour.

And when they got back to the dark old close odorous house, at ten o'clock, there was a message pinned on the kitchen door. It read:

"Crooks? Why didn't you wait for me?"

It was signed "V. M."

So that this was one of Gail's completely happy evenings. The day had been full of pleasantness and content. Everything was exactly as it should be.

Monday passed. No word from Van. No sign of Van. Gail began to hope fervently that the week-end party would be postponed. Her brain—her heart were sick of the constant surging back and forth of hope and fear.

That night Edith asked lightly, delicately, "Any news of our swain today?" and quite suddenly Gail told the desired lie.

"Yes. He and Mrs. Chipp came in—just for a minute."

"Oh, Gail, darling!" Gail felt her heart turn a little sick as she saw her sister's generous pleasure. "Oh, that makes it all right!" said Edith. "What'd she say about the week-end?"

"Well, just—just that she expected me."

After all, they might do just exactly that thing tomorrow, Van and his aunt, Gail reflected uncomfortably. They might easily make the lie merely an—an anticipation. She tried, meanwhile, to minimize it.

"They only stayed for a second. He had probably parked the car right across the middle of the street!"

Ariel coming in, Edith instantly communicated the news, and then Gail knew it was too late to retreat. Innocent as the deception had seemed at first, it began to gather size and momentum like a rolling snowball.

She felt ashamed of herself all evening, jumpy whenever the telephone rang, nervous whenever the casual family conversation came back to her brilliant prospects for tomorrow.

The next afternoon Van stopped his flat, open, racy-looking roadster at the library at four o'clock, and Gail descended the steps. She looked charming in her old brown coat, the fox skin Mary Tevis had given Edith, her own brown hat, Ariel's best blouse with the frill, and new chamois-skin gloves charged that day at Muller's.

Van leaped out to take her suitcase; they were laughing, delighted to be together again, as they stowed it in the rumble. Then Gail was where every girl loves to be, sunk into the comfortable slanted seat beside the man she likes, off for a holiday.

One thing had especially disturbed her among many small disturbances; it had not been a happy day. There had been the consciousness of her untruth about the invitation to begin with. There had been the added disappointment of the fact that Mrs. Chipp had not neutralized the lie by coming into the library or sending a note. But these were minor considerations when compared to the disquieting effect of a conversation Ariel had had with her older sister just before Ariel had gone off to school that morning.

Ariel, after some interested questions regarding the day's plans, had said suddenly:

"Did you notice what happened to the Challenge last night?"

"No," Gail had said with a puzzled, expectant glance.

"I got rid of it!" Ariel had announced in a conspirator's tone.

"Got rid of it? What for?"

"Because," Ariel had murmured, with a cautious glance about for possible eavesdroppers, "because it said that Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chipp had gone down to their Los Gatos place on Tuesday and were opening it for the summer."

"Oh—" Gail had stammered, with a suddenly deepening color and a sickly laugh. "Oh—"

Her voice had dropped flatly. She, the mentor, the guide, the example of this little sister, had stood shamed and detected, trying to find amusing what was a most painful and humiliating moment.

"I don't blame you!" Ariel had said.

A quick protective instinct to add lie to lie had shaken Gail. But she was too unnsed to falsehood. She had stood silent, presently saying in a troubled voice:

"I was sorry to—to have to do that. But it isn't—it isn't as if Phil were my father. He has no right—and Edith has no right—"

"Neither of them," she had recommenced, with a little difficulty, "neither of them understands how much—how awfully one wants to go places—do things."

"Phil, who runs around with Lily Wilser!" Ariel had helped her scornfully. And the younger sister had given her a sudden, passionate kiss. "I love you, Gail!" Ariel had said quickly.

But this rare demonstration from cool little Ariel had brought no responsive happiness to Gail's heart. To have Ariel protecting her, shielding her in deceit, in dealing with what was not open and fair, had given her a wretched sensation that the solid ground was falling beneath her feet.

WITH YOUR ENGINE OIL-PLATED

OIL-PLATING differs widely from other forms of lubrication in this plain, understandable way: It remains lastingly fastened to the pistons, bearings and other engine parts, even when they are not in motion. This is made possible by the Germ Process—patented—which gives Conoco Germ Processed oil its strong attraction for metals, so that every working part becomes durably Oil-Plated.

Oil-Plating is not like any lubrication that merely goes on-and-off. Once Germ Processed oil covers the parts it never leaves them bare of Oil-Plating . . . Never when the pistons are racing thousands of strokes a minute . . . Never on any hills, despite any load . . . Never while you park at a dozen different stores.

So it's nothing to you, when engineers blame more than half of all engine wear on so-called "dry starting." Nor need you worry over all the rest of the annual Spring oil scare. Whether your car is new or old, you can make your longer runs . . . hit your higher speeds . . . enjoy your hotter sunshine. Oil-Plating can take it like the longest-lasting part of your engine. For Oil-Plating really becomes a long-lasting part of your engine, as you change to long-lasting Conoco Germ Processed oil. Continental Oil Company

HEALTH MEETING FOR TEACHERS SATURDAY

Miss Alice Evans, Children's Fund, to Meet Group at Local School

On Saturday, March 6, at 10 a. m., Miss Alice Evans, of the health education department of the Children's Fund of Michigan, is planning to meet a group of Charlevoix county teachers in the Charlevoix school building.

The purpose of the meeting is to discuss with those teachers who used the new outline material on health education to evaluate the outline so that Miss Evans in turn, can report to the state committee on health education.

This meeting is open to all teachers in Charlevoix county and all constructive suggestions from any teacher and school official, regardless of having this particular outline, will be greatly appreciated.

ODD FELLOWS CUT MASON'S CRIBBAGE LEAD

Out-Scored Rivals by 224 Points in Eighth Contest Monday Night

Winning the eighth contest of the winter cribbage series Monday night, the Odd Fellows clipped 224 points off the Masonic lead, leaving the Masons with an advantage of 1,050 points with two more contests to be played.

Floyd Ikens, with a score of 965, led the Odd Fellows in scoring 17,959 points. The Masons tallied 17,735 points, with Ivan Holmes turning in a card of 958 to lead the side.

The next session will take place Monday evening, March 8, at the Masonic temple.

FISHING LICENSE NEEDED FOR ALL SMELT DIPPERS

With the season for smelt dipping approaching, conservation authorities are reminding sportsmen well in advance that the 50-cent resident fishing license is required of all Michigan persons taking part in smelt runs.

The smelt begin their spawning runs up the smaller streams and creeks on a rising water temperature and are expected to appear in many of the streams the latter part of March.

TOUGH BREAK! LEW HOLIDAY REMARKS

Probably the toughest break any Northern Michigan team can record has befallen the grand Charlevoix combination on the eve of tournament strife — a broken ankle for Forward Carey, brilliant cog and high point man in Coach Kipke's Class C champion quintet. The accident occurred while Charlevoix was eking out its second one-point victory over Boyne City. But whether or not the loss kills the Charlevoix chances in the forthcoming tournaments, there is small comfort for other Class C teams in the knowledge that with Charlevoix out, the team to beat will be the powerful Boyne. To worry the Class D entries at Petoskey is St. Ann's, of Alpena, with fourteen straight victories.—Traverse City Record-Eagle.

CHARLES HENRY BIGELOW TAKEN BY SUDDEN DEATH

Well Known Marion Twp. Resident Was Spanish-American War Vet

Charles Henry Bigelow, 62, Spanish-American War veteran and well known Marion township resident, died last Wednesday at Charlevoix Hospital after a brief illness.

Mr. Bigelow, born July 4, 1874, in Wayne county, came to Marion township when a youth with his parents. He had resided in that township the last 12 years. He was a Spanish-American War veteran and member of Lombard Post, Petoskey.

Surviving are the widow and a sister, Sadie Spicer, the latter of Monroe.

Prayer service was conducted at the See funeral chapel by Rev. G. R. Parker on Thursday, following which the body was taken to Carleton, Mich., for burial.

FINE ATTENDANCE FEBRUARY MEETING TEMPERANCE UNION

There was a nice attendance at the monthly tea meeting of the W. C. T. U. held last Friday at the home of Mrs. Thomas Milner.

Mrs. George Burns, who succeeds Mrs. Harker Kirby as president, had charge of the program and gave an interesting talk on the men who have served their country in both war and peace, whose birthdays occur in February, with special emphasis on Washington and Lincoln. She called for readings about Susan B. Anthony, Thomas A. Edison and Henry W. Longfellow (also born in February) by Mesdames Kemp, Palmer and Dickie, respectively.

Mrs. B. Saltonstall presented the proposed change in the Supreme Court by adding six new justices and secured many signatures to an opposition petition.

Group No. 1 served dainty refreshments.

GASOLINE SALVAGE TRUCKER IS DROWNED

Truck Broke Through While Taking Gas from Abandoned Tanker

Sheriff William M. McCauley, of Mackinac county, is seeking legal aid to halt salvaging operations on the gasoline-filled tanker, J. Oswald Boyd after a truck laden with fuel had plunged through the ice of Lake Michigan, drowning the driver.

Death of Grant Brooks, 26, of Cedarville, Sunday brought to six the number killed in salvaging operations since the tanker was declared free booty last November. Five men aboard the Marold II lost their lives when the craft exploded early this year during attempts to remove part of the cargo.

McCauley said the almost constant stream of automobiles, trucks and sleighs from the mainland to the tanker, 10 miles out on the lake, continued despite Sunday's fatality.

Brooks' truck plunged through the ice into an estimated 150 feet of water. He was locked in his cab but a companion, George Hummel, fought his way to the surface and was rescued.

M'MILLAN-SHUPICK WEDDING DELIGHTFUL HOME AFFAIR LAST SATURDAY

At a pretty home wedding solemnized at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Miss Freda McMillan, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. F. F. McMillan, was united in marriage to Theodore Shupick, of Detroit.

Rev. John Alexander, pastor of the Methodist church, performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and a few close friends of the bridal couple. The room was tastefully decorated with cut flowers. Mrs. Walter Bergeon played Lohengrin's wedding march.

The bride wore a gown of white satin in empire style with lace yoke, and carried lilies. Her sister, Lila, was was maid of honor, wore gold satin and carried sweet peas. Joseph Arville was the best man.

Charlevoix guests included Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Armstrong, Oscar P. North, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Edwards, Mrs. John Alexander and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bergeon. Out of town guests were Mrs. Pearl Cluff, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dagwell, of Cheboygan; Harry Dagwell and Carl Dagwell, of Indian River.

Mrs. Shupick is a graduate of Charlevoix High school and University of Michigan. She obtained her teacher's life certificate from Western State Teachers' College, Kalamazoo, and is now an instructor in the local grade school. A large following of Charlevoix friends will extend the couple congratulations.

"COLONIAL TEA" A PLEASANT FUNCTION WEDNESDAY

Candle light, an old spinning wheel and an improvised fireplace gave "atmosphere" to the "Colonial Tea" sponsored by the Pilgrim Circle last Wednesday afternoon in the dining room of the Congregational church.

The program was made up of old songs, appropriate readings and charades, and the national colors dominated the tea table.

Carleton Ikens left Tuesday for an indefinite stay in Detroit.

Mrs. Ray Faulkner made a motor trip Saturday to Boyne City.

CASH WHEN YOU NEED IT!

The keeping of a balance in your bank account, equal to at least two months' income, will some time save you money.

Emergencies do arise, calling for the immediate expenditure of an unusually large amount of cash. If you have formed the habit of keeping a healthy balance at the bank, when such an emergency confronts you, you will avoid the necessity for forced sale of stocks, bonds or other securities.

And, incidentally, a large balance saves you service fees.

EDITORIAL

That we cannot let the Supreme Court of these United States to become the tool of any one man is best expressed in two paragraphs taken from the book, "The Constitution of the United States," by James M. Beck. "The Supreme Court of the United States compels the living generation, too often swept by selfish interests and frenzied passions, to respect the immutable principles of liberty and justice. The court is thus the trustee for the unborn, for it protects their heritage from spoliation in the mad excesses of party strife in living generations. Thus the court must often affront the pride of power of temporary majorities." And Mr. Beck continues along these lines, which were written in the year 1924, by saying, "The American republic has attempted for over one hundred and thirty years and on a scale unprecedentedly vast to solve the great problem of government by the people. It has been a period of fierce controversy and bitter party strife. Like the ocean, the political life of the American republic is at times placid, with hardly a ripple upon its surface, and then the furious storms of discontent lash the waters into violent and angry seas. But always the supreme court stands as a great lighthouse, and even when the waves beat upon it with terrific violence (as in the Civil War, when it was shaken to its very foundation), yet after they have spent their fury, the great lamp of the Constitution—as that of another Pharos—illumines the troubled surface of the waters with the benignant rays of those immutable principles of liberty and justice, which alone can make a nation free as well as strong."

This has been the history of our Supreme Court. Its power is now being threatened in Washington. We cannot fail in our duty to see that it shall always remain to be the lighthouse that sends forth the benignant rays of liberty. And we can best accomplish this duty by writing or wiring our congressmen today, to exert all possible influence against the President's proposed Federal Judiciary Reform Bill.

OVERLOOKING OPPORTUNITY

One of the great mysteries of life, to our way of thinking, is the spectacle of the man who goes about cussing Wall Street and then spends his money with the very fellows who will cart it east as fast as they can.

Michigan is a great place to make money. From farm to factory our people have vast opportunities, far better than the average the country over. If the profits made in Michigan were spent in Michigan or invested in Michigan, the money lenders of New York could be dismissed from our minds.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT BULLETIN

Ten Leading Causes of Death in Charlevoix County

Life has been prolonged many years within the last decade due to the sciences of chemistry and medicine working together, and which have made possible much of the safety in daily living which we now enjoy. The safeguarding of milk, water, food and drugs; the scientific disposal of sewage in our cities and villages; the protection against poisoning and other hazards given to workers in our industrial world, are due to those men who constantly seek new ways to apply the discoveries of science to the protection of mankind.

Yet there remains much to be accomplished. The secrets of our old-age diseases—heart disease and cancer—two leading causes of death, are still to be solved. Yet it is confident that the same methods which have yielded such accomplishments in the past will bring even greater successes in the future.

Heart disease was again the leading cause of death in 1936, not only in Charlevoix county, but throughout each county in District Health Unit No. 3, constituting Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties. Apoplexy was a close second in each county, and cancer was the third leading cause. Among the violent and accidental deaths, which followed cancer, we find the greatest number resulting from automobile accidents—a cause which traffic bureaus throughout the nation are trying to curb. Tuberculosis was on the increase in 1936, being listed in each county among the ten leading causes of death.

The major causes of death in Charlevoix county during 1936 were:

Heart Disease	52
Apoplexy	20
Cancer	17
Violent and Accidental	12
Pneumonia	11
Nephritis	10
Other Dis. of Circ. System	6
Premature Birth	4
Tuberculosis	3
Diabetes	2

There were no deaths resulting from diphtheria, smallpox, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, whooping cough or measles in Charlevoix county this past year. It is encouraging to know that for four successive years every county in District Health Unit No. 3 has been free from diphtheria; for five successive years we have had no cases of smallpox. Only through immunization and vaccination are we going to keep this unblemished record and eradicate this disease so that it will become as obsolete as the plague of years ago.

John M. Horan, 98-year-old boiler washer inspector of Milwaukee, has a record of 81 years of continuous service for the same railroad without an accident or loss of a day's work.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Egg prices are running an average of eight to ten cents a dozen under their price of last year at this time. Fish continues to be plentiful, particularly fillets, haddock, cod, swordfish, oysters, clams and smoked and salt fish. Canned salmon is also an economical and delicious standby for luncheons and suppers.

Poultry continues low in price. Veal is plentiful and moderately priced for the first time in months. Lamb is a little higher and beef, fresh and smoked pork about steady.

The vegetable and fruit situation has changed very little during the week, the best values being available in spinach, cabbage and the various root vegetables and in apples, bananas, grapefruit and oranges.

Here are three dinners built around foods which are well distributed and moderate in price.

Low Cost Dinner

Veal Pot Pie
Potatoes Carrots Onions
Bread and Butter
Raisin Bread Custard
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

Baked Ham Sweet Potatoes
Buttered Cauliflower
Bread and Butter
Pineapple Cream Pie
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner

Cream of Mushroom Soup
Roast Stuffed Chicken Giblet Gravy
New Potatoes Glazed Carrots
Green Salad
Rolls and Butter
Lemon Meringue Pie

The MARCH of POLITICS

By JOHN H. O'BRIEN

High tide of the Democratic Party was reached when the mandate of the people was made known on the ballots last November—and its ebb flow started when the full significance of the President's proposal to pack the Supreme Court burst upon an unsuspecting nation. The Democratic Party, or what passes for it these days, stands or falls upon the personal popular appeal of President Roosevelt—and he will never again have the respect and affection of so many Americans as he did before he set out to level the Supreme Court. The President will find that the respect the nation has for that institution outweighs the pull of his personality. The people know that Roosevelt and succeeding presidents may come and go, but the Court remains forever. They know that if a good president can pack it, so can a bad one—and there have been some bad presidents.

Roosevelt's natural optimism and confidence seems in this instance to have been inflated until he was unable to sense the heart-felt feelings of the people. He seems to have taken the support of 26,000,000 voters as a green light, allowing him to move in whatever direction and at whatever speed he desired. He will discover that he is wrong. There is the natural tendency everywhere to ask this question: if he knew he was going to propose this thing, why were we not told of it before election? Was he fearful that if his plans were known in their entirety that he would not be returned to the office he loves so well? And if he can play that sort of game once, has he not played it before? Will he not play it again? There seems little doubt that never again will the President have the full affection and respect he once enjoyed. From now on he will be increasingly suspect. His motives will be examined, his moves studied, his objectives sought. It all means that many an American has lost a hero, but they have regained a President—and Presidents serve better than heroes in the long run.

Michigan politics has been sprinkled with assorted "Murphys" the past few years—ever since the name began to take on magical elective properties in Wayne county. It is now being rivaled by the various members of the Fry family. So far the State is taking care of State Treasurer Theodore I. Fry, elected; Edward Fry, Superintendent of the Capitol and Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee; and Fred Fry, freshly appointed Deputy State Fire Marshal. Aside from the success of Theodore the name is not regarded as sure-fire politically, but it has begun to take on an increasing appointive value.

The legislative conversation regarding increases in pay or expenses or both for members of that body ended when Representative Verne Brown, of Mason, pointed out that nothing they had done since they convened January 4 entitled them to draw the pay they were getting, let alone a raise. The members sadly concurred.

If an automobile spins past you carrying the license plate letters LC, you can translate them immediately into Leon Case. Case, if you have forgotten, is the newly elected Secretary of State who broke into print on taking office with the statement that he considered the granting of low license plate numbers or special letters undemocratic and that he intended to abolish them.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday morning service, 10:45.

Meets first Wednesday evening each month at 7:45 p. m.

Sunday school, 12 o'clock.

Reading room open Saturday, 3 to 5 p. m.

We cordially invite the public to our service and reading room.

"Man" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, March 7.

Among the Bible citations is the following (Gen. 1: 26): "And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 516): "Man and woman as coexistent and eternal with God forever reflect, in glorified unity, the infinite Father-Mother God."

AT THE MOVIES

Jones Family Hits New Comedy High In "Off to the Races"

Hang on tight! That family's in again!

This time, however, it's not a private fight, for the Jones Family, in "Off to the Races," Twentieth Century-Fox hit opening March 10 at the Palace Theatre, is beset with a new complication — Uncle Slim Summerville and his horse have moved in!.

The fourth film in the popular series featuring the adventures of a typical American family retains the players who have made the Jones Family one of the country's favored households — Jed Prouty, Shirley Deane, Spring Byington, Kenneth Howell, George Ernest, June Carlson, Florence Roberts and Billy Mahan—and adds, as a new heart interest opposite Shirley Deane, personable young Russell Gleason.

When Slim Summerville shows up with a mean-tempered little niece of seven, and a horse who seems to be all appetite, the even tenor of the Jones life is thrown for a hilarious loss. Russell Gleason and Shirley Deane find their engagement prematurely announced, Mrs. Jones finds that hay and oats have become the biggest items on her marketing bills, and Mr. Jones finds himself unexpectedly tossed from a sulky.

Because he was not invited to a wedding, Fred Kynoch cut the cable supplying light to Strichen, Scotland, and plunged the town into darkness.

Safe and Sane DRIVING

BY THE NATIONAL SAFETY COUNCIL

and Michigan State Safety Council

WALKING INTO TROUBLE

Walking into trouble seems to be the chief thing that the city dweller does, for 67 per cent of all urban motor vehicle fatalities are pedestrians.

In 42 per cent of these deaths the pedestrian is crossing the street at an intersection, which may or may not place the blame on the automobile driver. In 10 per cent of the cases, however, the pedestrian is violating an official traffic signal.

In another 37 per cent of the deaths the pedestrian is also in the wrong, for he is crossing the street elsewhere than at an intersection cross-walk—plainly "jaywalking."

It is hard to convince the average person that he shouldn't exercise his God-given right to go anywhere at his own sweet will. Legs, he believes, are given for that purpose. After all, he figures, he is pretty nimble and good at dodging.

So out Peter Pedestrian goes into the multitudinous hazards of the city streets. And too often he is only a forlorn bundle of human wreckage when the nearest hospital tries to help him.

All of which does not in the least minimize the motorist's responsibility for caution at all times.

TRIP FROM NEW ORLEANS IS TOLD BY EDITOR USHER

nual flood stage of the Mississippi. High water was quite evident even at this time and hundreds of men were strengthening levees at various points under direction of government supervision. However, natives of New Orleans seemed unconcerned over the threatened danger, and there was a general atmosphere of content and safety throughout the entire district. Resentment was apparent, however, with regards to undue publicity and exaggerated stories of danger from flood waters.

At this point I will diverge a moment or so and deal with bridges of all types and structure, viaducts over lagoons from one-half mile long to four and over. Beautiful steel structures over rivers, some running in heighth from 25 to 50 feet over the stream they cross. Approaches to the bridges are the apex of landscaping, banks being lined with native foliage of all kinds, and flowering plants in profusion. Beautiful palms and live oaks line both sides of the approaches, azaliaa in full bloom by the hundreds, and we never saw so many petunias, a perfect blaze of color, intermingled with wisteria, spirea and roses. Then we cannot help but think of our native state, Michigan, being so disturbed over the erection of a bridge across the Straits from Mackinaw City and St. Ignace. Engineers operating in these southern states would plan and complete this proposed bridge and think they had been on a holiday. Actually, folks, we have crossed enough bridges, if lined up in a continuous stretch, to fully cover the distance of Michigan, north line to south, and then some to spare. And beach drives, built along the gulf and bodies of inland water, hundreds of miles, that have proven one of the greatest attractions of the Southland. Charlevoix, with its natural beaches and opportunity for drives of this kind, will do well to awaken and grasp the opportunity the great Creator has given them.

Continuing east on the "Old Spanish Trail," we pass through Bay St. Louis, Pass Christian, close to the shores of the Gulf until reaching Gulf Port, and then on to Biloxi. Words fail me to describe the drive between these two towns, but imagine, if you can, a continuous sea wall covering the entire distance. This is called the Harrison county sea wall, one of the largest and longest sea walls in the world, 27 miles long, and protects the Old Spanish Trail from the waters of the Gulf of Mexico. Along its entire length are beautiful summer homes, of magnitude in construction similar to the north end of Michigan avenue in our home town. Believe me when I state there is not a mile of undeveloped frontage along this entire route. And the road is a delight to drive, as it winds along the shores of the Gulf.

Points of interest along this drive are numerous and are living reminders of the Southland as it was during a period of a hundred years or more. One that interested us greatly was historic "Beauvoir," meaning beautiful view, located about half way between Gulfport and Biloxi, home of Jefferson Davis, and where he spent most of his declining years. The building consists of the mansion, now known as Beauvoir House, two cottages, east and west of the mansion, and a brick kitchen in the rear. The cottage to the east is where the "Rise and Fall of the Confederacy" was written by Davis. The home is now under the control of the state of Mississippi, operated by the Sons of Confederate Veterans, and is used as a refuge for remaining survivors of the War of the Confederacy, widows of deceased veterans and near dependent relatives, whose former homes were in Mississippi. Surviving members of this great struggle between the North and South number but nine, practically all blind or bed-ridden. Dependents, (widows and near relatives) number 86. They are housed in comfortable quarters and given every attention possible. We talked with an old lady, widow of a Confederate veteran, whose age was over 80 years. She was puttering in her flower garden at the rear of her quarters, and was as spry and talkative as could be. She gave us a cordial welcome and wished us God-speed on our journey. Speaking of friendliness, and courtesy, this was characteristic at every point of call. The mansion itself held a world of history. Entering a broad walk one encounters a granite boulder on which is inscribed the following words: "Last Home of Jefferson Davis." A memorial arch, erected by the Mississippi Division United Daughters of the Confederacy, and a flag pole. Upon entering the mansion from the southern front, one comes into a wide hall in which are circular lounges, cots and other furnishings as originally designed by Mrs. Davis. The leather covered trunk was one used by Mr. Davis in the Mexican War and on his travels through Europe. Could this old trunk ba given the power of speech, many are the thrilling tales it could tell of the associations of Mr. Davis with Scott, Lee, Jackson and other famous men. The first room to the right has been dedicated as a memorial to Winnie Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Davis. Second room on the right with original furnishings used in the Davis home. First room on the left—the parlor, where guests were received and entertained. Second room to the left the room of Mrs. Davis, the next the room of Mr. Davis, and the next on the same side, the library. Practically all of the furnishings were those used by the Davis family. Numerous other lovely pieces of furniture and china owned and used by the Davis family are to be found in the Museum. We found this so extremely interesting that we paid a second visit to the home. To tell the truth, we found ourselves extremely uncomfortable through lack of remembrance of early history, but put on a wise front and got away with it.

Other points of more than usual interest in this district was U. S. Veterans Hospital No. 74, where is housed hundreds of disabled and sick survivors of World War veterans. It is difficult for me to give you a pen picture of the beauties and location of these grounds. Would say, however, that every effort is being made to give them every care and comfort, and in a manner repay them for duties and service, self-sacrifice and sufferings encountered during the four years of useless struggle between the nations involved. Here also is a large hospital where are confined shell shocked and insane survivors of the World War. What a contrast between the two places, although there is little difference in architectural construction and beauties of ground and location. This entire drive described above is lined with the usual places of attraction to the winter visitor. Wonderful hotels, golf grounds, country clubs, city parks and the usual inland drives. We spent a week here and were hesitant about leaving.

In my next travelog, I will cover the country traveled through from Biloxi to Clearwater, where we are now located.

CONG. LUECKE FOR JUDICIARY CHANGE

FRANK HOOK, IRONWOOD, ALSO FAVORS PROPOSAL

Sanator Prootiss M. Brown Quoted As Bolieving Fifteen Justices Aro Too Maoy

John Luecke, of Escanaba, and Frank Hook, of Ironwood, are the only two Michigan congressmen who are unequivocally in favor of President Roosevelt's proposal to enlarge the supreme court, according to a poll taken by Marke Foote, Washington correspondent of the Booth chain of newspapers.

Senator Prentiss M. Brown, St. Ignace, hitherto a strong supporter of the president, expressed the opinion that 15 supreme court justices were "too many."

Senator Vandenberg and eight Republican members of the House, Mapes, Woodruff, Michener, Crawford, Engel, Hoffman, Dondero, are definitely against the proposal. Representative Jesse P. Wolcott could not be reached.

Some of the congressmen's comments were as follows:

Senator Brown: "Enlargement of the court to 15 would be too many, but some enlargement might be beneficial.

"I do not agree with all that is said in the President's message. But, by and large, it is a sincere effort to meet a problem that must now be solved. It opens the way to a settlement.

"I think the failure of the supreme court justices individually to subordinate their personal legal opinion is the cause of much of the present criticism. The court has often held that a federal statute should not be found to be unconstitutional if there is reasonable or fair doubt about it. When three or four judges out of nine say a law is within the constitution, then surely if the well-settled doctrine is followed, the remaining judges should subordinate their own opinions and conclude that serious doubt exists."

Representative Luecke: "I am for aynthing that will liberalize the atand of the courts in favor of progressive legislation. Whther that can be done by the steps in the President's message remains to be seen. I think tbe matter of expediting the court procedure is a good thing. While major legislation is pending three or four years in the courts, business stagnates. No one knows during that period what is going to happen. Things like that should be decided in six months."

MRS. WALTER BERGEON WAS HOSTESS AT BRIDAL SHOWER SUNDAY EVENING

Mrs. Walter Bergeon entertained a group of friends Sunday evening at her Clinton street residence at a bridal shower honoring Freda McMillan Shupick, whose wedding was an event of Saturday.

Mrs. Bergeon was assisted by Mrs. F. F. McMillan in receiving the guests, the latter presenting them to her daughter, whose marriage to many came as a surprise.

An eight o'clock dinner was followed by bridge, with honors being awarded Mrs. Shupick, Mrs. Ray Klpke and Mrs. Arthur Wexstaff. Other guests included Mesdames Lloyd Curtis, John Nordrum, Gordon Todd, Ted Cooper, Edward Golden, F. R. Bulow, Alfred Gill and Hugh Mayne, and the Misses Florence Gibson, Alice Partridge, Marie Walters, Gene Supernaw, Monica Smith, Minnie Payton and Mary Adams.

KIWANIS CLUB TO AID CRIPPLED CHILDREN

Dr. D. C. Nottleton Heads Committee Sponsoring Sale of Seals

Dr. D. C. Nettleton has been named chairman of the Kiwanis committee of Charlevoix cuunty for the 1937 Easter sale of Crippled Children Seals, sponsored by the Michigan Society for Crippled Children, Inc.

Dr. Nettleton will be assisted locally by Charles Hamlin, Dr. Carleton Dean and Rollie L. Lewis.

The society launches its fourth annual appeal for funds on March 10 and will continue until Easter Sunday, March 28. Organized in 1921, the society has continuously promoted and perfected better laws and a more complete program for the thousands of crippled children of this state. Money raised from the seals will be used to further the society's program for the care, education, vocational training and placement of every crippled child and the prevention of crippling conditions.

Most Successful Season

Friday night's game concluded the most successful season Charlevoix basketball teams have ever enjoyed. The Northern Michigan Class C conference title fell to Charlevoix for the first time since the conference was organized, and this writer does not remember a year when the teams, both varsity and reserves, went through their schedules undefeated. With exception of the two Boyne City games, Charlevoix won every contest by a lop-sided margin.

The following record shows the season's results:

Charlevoix 46, Traverse 13.
Charlevoix 28, Petoskey 9.
Charlevoix 42, Kalkaska 13.
Charlevoix 45, Petoskey 12.
Charlevoix 30, Mancelona 21.

Splondid Matorial

There has been no scarcity of team material the past and several previous years. During the season just closed, Coach Kipke has had four full teams which he alternated in practically every game. Charlevoix's prospects for next season nre good in view of this fact.

Carey Had Wondorful Record

Carey's absence from the line-up will be keenly felt during tournament play the next two weeks. Carey alone has scored 180 points during the season. His lowest for any game was four points and the highest 29. Radle, captain, has been second in scoring with a total of 104 points.

Card of Thanks

I wish to express my appreciation to the voters of the Third Ward for their support at the Primary election of March 1. D. J. Eckinger.

BOARD OF COMMERCE PROGRAM LAUNCHED

ACTIVITIES OF PROMOTIONAL GROUP GIVEN MORAL AND FINANCIAL SUPPORT OF THE CITY COUNCIL

Budget for 1937 Unanimously Passed by City Council Covering Ambitious Program of Advertising and Entertainment Activities During Approaching Summer Season

Backed by the moral as well as financial support of Charlevoix's mayor and city council, the Board of Commerce is ready to launch its 1937 resort promotional and entertainment program.

Following preparation by the several committees to meet the needs of their anticipated activities, and final approval by the board of directors, the Board of Commerce budget, aggregating $5,885, was presented to the city council by Harold Hallett, president, and was adopted by a unanimous vote.

While the budget is in excess of last year's by approximately $1,600, it also provides for a larger scope of activity. Through experience gained last year, the first for the present Board of Commerce, the amounts necessary for various promotional and entertainment events could be arrived at accurately, and with its presentation President Hallett produced statistics proving results for funds expended. The fact that Mayor Arthur Bergeon and individual members of the council as well, spoke in appreciative terms of the Board of Commerce accomplishments last season and their firm belief in future success, lent no small amount of encouragement for further effort.

The budget as drawn up allocates specified funds to certain committees for their activities as follows: Golf, $75; baseball, $100; tennis, $400; boating, $50; Venetian boat parade, $300; water sports, $100; band, $600; entertainment, $100; conservation committee, $260; advertising, $2,500; salaries, $1,400.

The allocation for golf includes purchase of tournament prizes. The baseball appropriation provides for both hard and soft ball teams, equipment, expenses, etc. The tennis appropriation goes to finance the annual Michigan Riviera championships, one of Michigan's outstanding sanctioned tournaments, as well as the annual Charlevoix open event.

Three appropriations cover boating, competitive water sports and the spectacular Venetian boat parade, one of Charlevoix's outstanding entertainment features. The band appropriation is aimed to recompense members of the city band for playing concerts and on special occasions and the aid in the purchase of instruments which individuals could not be expected to buy. The entertainment fund is provided to care for expenses incident to the visit here of cruises, etc. The conservation committee appropriation goes to assist the Charlevoix Sportsman's Club, whose activities to bring about betterment of

CHARLES M. ZIEGLER WILL SPEAK THURSDAY

Republican Candidate for Highway Commissioner to Address Meeting

Charlevoix county citizens will have an opportunity on Thursday, March 11, to hear Charles M. Ziegler, Republican candidate at the April election for state highway commissioner.

Mr. Ziegler, returning from an Upper Peninsula campaign tour, will meet leading Charlevoix county Republicans informally at noon on Thursday, and at 1 o'clock will address a public meeting to be held at the court house.

BEAVER TRAPPING TO OPEN ON MARCH 17TH

Charlevoix County Included In Open Territory for 15-Day Season

The 15-day beaver trapping season, which assumed the proportions of a $32,000 industry in Michigan last spring, will open Wednesday, March 17, in the designated areas of the Lower Peninsula.

All counties in the Lower Peninsula north of townline 16 and also the counties of Montcalm, Mecosta and Midland south of that line will be opened to beaver trapping. Townline 16 is the south line of Mason, Lake, Osceola, Clare and Gladwin counties projected to Saginaw Bay.

CAMPAIGN TO AID CRIPPLES OPENED

KIWANIS IS RESPONSIBLE FOR SEAL SALES IN CHARLEVOIX

Price of Seals Is Small, But Is the Hope of 15,000 Crippled Children for Aid

An important force in focusing public attention on the needs of handicapped youngsters is the Michigan Society for Crippled Children, Inc., whose Fourth Annual Easter Seal campaign is in progress from March 10 through Easter Sunday, March 28.

Easter Seals sell for a penny each, or $1 for a sheet of 100. The local committee handling the sale reports that every penny raised will be used to help crippled kiddies.

All pictures of crippled children do not show them to be bright and happy. Despite the advances made in treatment and care of these handicapped youngsters, many conveniences and necessities must be provided.

Need for public support is even greater. There were 286 new cases of crippling conditions in Michigan reported in the last current year. Over 26,000 crippled children in this state have been discovered in the last nine years.

At the present time there are more than 15,000 orthopedically handicapped youngsters who will need special care, special education and vocational assistance.

This campaign, part of a nation-wide appeal to give the crippled child his birthright, is conducted in this and many other states affiliated with the International Society for Crippled Children, Inc.

You can do your part by purchasing and using Easter Seals. The sale in Charlevoix is sponsored by the Kiwanis Club.

SCHOOLS CLOSE THURSDAY FOR ANNUAL INSTITUTE

Charlevoix public schools will close on Thursday, March 11, for the annual county teachers' institute to be held at East Jordan. Classes will resume again Friday morning.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

There will be a Public Meeting at the High School Gymnasium on Tuesday evening, March 16, at 7:30 p. m. to discuss the proposed addition to the Electric Light Plant.

The bonds to be voted upon are Revenue Bonds, and will be paid out of the earnings of the Electric Light Plant.

There will be absolutely no increase in taxes, or no increase in light rates. The rates will he just the same as they are at present, and no higher. The net profits from the Light Plant will take care of all the bonds and leave a nice profit besides.

The State law provides that all bids must be competitive and no company will be given any preference over any other.

At the present time we are consuming nearly as much electricity as we can produce with all of our present equipment.

Charlevoix is in the Electric Light Business, and it is the duty of the City to be able to furnish all the electricity the people want, at all times.

The Citizens will have a chance to discuss every angle of the light question at the Public Meeting on March 16th.

This is the people's problem and it is up to the people to solve it, at the election on Friday, March 19th.

Every registered voter in Charlevoix will have a right to vote on this Revenue Bond issue.

Electric Committee of City Council.

BOARD OF COMMERCE GUESTS OF KIWANIS

Plans for '37 Summer Program Outlined at Meeting Tuesday Night

Officers and directors of the Charlevoix Board of Commerce were guests of the Kiwanis at the regular meeting Tuesday evening.

Plans of the ambitious program prepared for the coming season were outlined in detail by Harold Hallett, president. Gordon Todd, director of activities, talked along similar lines and explained the details of the program. William Fessenden and Leo Carey, directors, were other speakers.

Mr. Fessenden urged Charlevoixans to display an attitude of friendliness toward tourists and summer visitors as a means of making their stay in the city more enjoyable, and Mr. Carey, who talked on past and anticipated accomplishments of the Board of Commerce, pointed out the importance of such activities and urged that all citizens of Charlevoix lend their hearty cooperation to the Board's efforts.

PLAN ST. PATRICK'S DAY DANCING PARTY

Special Feature at The Argonne Set for Wednesday, March 17

Willis J. Kerns has announced plans for a St. Patrick's dancing party to be held Wednesday evening, March 17, at The Argonne.

Stan Cole's Rhythm Four will furnish music for the party and hats and favors will be provided for those attending.

Saturday night parties continue popular at The Argonne with a large attendance from throughout the region.

PA AND MA BANQUET IS OF LOCAL INTEREST

Unique Affair, Set for April 8th, Is Sponsored by the Rebekahs

A coming event of local interest is the Rebekah sponsored Pa and Ma banquet, to be held April 8, at the I. O. O. F. hall.

Charlevoix has had its Father and Son and Mother and Daughter banquet, and this will be the second Pa and Ma affair. The Rebekahs promise an unique event, program details of which will be announced later.

"Knock Out Kollege," something new in entertainment, will be presented at high school gymnasium, Friday evening, March 19. Watch for further announcements.

ODD FELLOWS REDUCE MASON CRIBBAGE LEAD

Contest Closes Next Monday With Odd Fellows Behind 567 Points

The Odd Fellows were winners over the Masons in their annual cribbage series again Monday night and, by virtue of their margin of 379 points and an error in last week's count which gave them another 102 points, drew up within striking distance of the leaders.

With one more contest scheduled, the Masons have a lead of 569 points, according to latest tabulations. Monday night's team scores gave 18,260 for the Odd Fellows and 17,881 for the Masons. Leading the winners were Glenroy Ikens and Mat Routley with scores of 945 each. Bert Crandall was the high Mason with 948 points.

The series will be concluded on Monday evening, March 15, at the I. O. O. F. hall.

SEEK LOCAL SUPPORT IN AID OF LIBRARIES

Two Measures Introduced in Senate Are Deemed to Be Beneficial

The cooperation of local women's clubs is being sought in support of two Senate bills designed to aid public libraries of Michigan, according to Minnie E. Payton, Charlevoix librarian.

One measure, Senate Bill No. 125, would appropriate the sum of $1,250,000 each year from the general funds of the state for the purpose of aiding public libraries. If adopted, Charlevoix's library would benefit in the amount of $562 yearly, it is estimated.

The second measure, Senate Bill No. 126, would create a state board for libraries, prescribe its powers and duties, and transfer to said board the powers and duties now vested by law in the state librarian and the state board of library commissioners. The measure is aimed to take state libraries out of politics.

LEGION SPONSORS UNIQUE ENTERTAINMENT FEATURE

"Knock Out Kollege," an entertainment featuring a cast of juvenile dancers, will be presented at the high school gymnasium the evening of Friday, March 19, under auspices of the American Legion. Complete announcement will be made next week.

CHARLEVOIX OUT TOURNAMENT PLAY

DEFEATED 19 TO 9 BY BOYNE CITY IN FIRST ROUND OF DISTRICT TOURNAMENT AT HARBOR SPRINGS

Boyne City in Class C and Mackinaw City in Class D Win Way to Regional Tournament Which Opens Thursday, March 11, at Petoskey

Boyne City won the Class C, and Mackinaw City the Class D titles at the district basketball tournament Saturday at Harbor Springs and, as a result of their victories, enter competition for regional honors at Petoskey this week.

Charlevoix's Red Rayders, Northern Michigan Class C conference champions, met their first defeat of the season and were eliminated from the tournament Friday night by Boyne City, a team they had twice defeated by a one-point margin in pre-tournament play. Crippled by the loss of Carey, star forward and high point man of the season, who broke his ankle in the final scheduled contest February 26, the Rayders lost to Boyne's powerful team by a 19 to 9 score.

The defeat, climax of the most brilliant record turned in by a Charlevoix team in many years, was the result of a complete third period rout. The Rayders matched points with Boyne in the first period, each scoring a goal and free throw. Boyne's two goals and gift shot were one point better than Radle's two goals in the second quarter, and at the half the victors were leading 8 to 7. Charlevoix's offense and defense broke completely in the third quarter with the result Boyne scored nine points and Charlevoix none. Each team marked up a goal in the final period.

Charlevoix's erratic play is indicated by the number of fouls committed. Boyne had 15 chances on free shots, netting four. Charlevoix made good on one out of seven chances.

Score by quarters:

Boyne City	3	5	9	2—19
Charlevoix	3	4	0	2—9

OPEN SEASON ON QUAIL SOUGHT BY LEGISLATOR

Bill Authorizing Shooting Under a Special License Is Prepared

The State Conservation Commission would be authorized to permit hunting of quail, now protected, under a bill which was being prepared for introduction in the House by Rep. Frank N. Steele, Muskegon, D.

Steele said his measure was designed to prevent quail from dying out through too much inbreeding. He said he had conferred with conservation officials on it.

A special $3 license would be required and funds from their sale would be used to import quail to replenish the Michigan stock.

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Michigan farms and farm-homes are rapidly being "modernized" through a revolutionary change which is taking place quietly, without fanfare or ballyhoo.

In 1926 less than two per cent of the farms had electric service. In 1930 the federal census revealed 170,000 farms. Today more than one-third of these have electric service, nearly 10,000 being added last year. Encouraged by private power companies and spurred on by Washington, rural electrification is making great strides. Last week Presque Isle county farmers received federal support for a cooperative line. Governor Murphy pledged, a few days ago, his support to the Fruit Belt Rural Electrification Association, a new group affecting Allegan, Barry, Cass, Kalamazoo, Ottawa, and Van Buren counties.

Historic Fort St. Ignace

Two and a half centuries ago when Michigan was a wilderness of forests, St. Lusson took possession, in the name of the King of France and with consent of Indian tribes, of the land of the Great Lakes from the Soo to the Gulf of Mexico.

That was the historic beginning of Fort St. Ignace, a French army post fronting strategically on a high bluff. In military importance, the fort was second to none west of Montreal.

As a link to the past, Dr. C. N. Connon, former resident of St. Ignace, has just offered the site on the same bluff of land where the St. Ignace Lions Club intends to reconstruct the fort as a historic shrine.

Clearwater, Florida
Monday, March 1, 1937

Dear Ken and Folks at Home:

Camped at Clearwater Beach trailer camp, across the causeway from Clearwater proper. We are undergoing about the same kind of weather as the first days of May up in Michigan, the thermometer this morning registering 36 degrees. Exposed as we are here to the Gulf winds, we are justly entitled to complain about the southern climate we have covered so many miles to enjoy. Possibly Florida authorities should have barred us from entering the state, as we have become to believe we are harbingers of bad, disagreeable weather. We hit here the 21st of February, in one of the most terrific downpours of rain witnessed in many years. Saturday night last it rained again, practically all night, with the same intensity as the day of our arrival. We have about come to the conclusion that we will move fur-

CORRESPONDENCE

NORWOOD

Putting up ice in Norwood began this week.

James Ferris bought a new horse this week.

Mr. McKay motored to Flint Monday where he will be engaged at carpenter work.

Mr. Cole, salesman for the McNess products, was a caller in our vicinity Tuesday morning.

Rev. and Mrs. Pulsipher, of Charlevoix, called on Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Jones one day last week.

Mrs. Clarence Heise and daughter, Beth, of Charlevoix, visited Mr. and Mrs. Jones last Wednesday.

Charles Coleman, of Kewadin, visited Mrs. Coleman at Levering last Sunday. On his trip he visited Mrs. Coleman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Baumbach.

Joseph Smith and his son, Vern, are moving onto the Nixon farm at Marion Center this week. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holecheck, no doubt, will be moving onto his farm soon.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Publow and son, John, left Wednesday of last week for a combined business and pleasure trip to Lansing, Detroit and Chicago. They are expected home the latter part of this week.

Mrs. Frank Richardson was taken to the Charlevoix Hospital Wednesday of last week, where she underwent an operation for appendicitis. Mrs. Richardson is improving nicely, and Norwood friends join in wishing her a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Glenn Brennan, of Hammond, Ind., has been spending the past few days with her father, Frank Richardson, also visiting her mother, Mrs. Richardson, at intervals at the Charlevoix Hospital. Mrs. Brennan left for her home in Hammond, Monday.

Mrs. Grace Brock visited the Norwood school last Thursday afternoon, where her niece, Mrs. Ladd, is teacher, while Miss Marjorie Richardson, who is employed in Mrs. Brock's home, visited at her home in Norwood, the occasion being her birthday anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Plenny Genett visited Mr. and Mrs. Reed Genett, at Belmire, Sunday. Mrs. Reed Genett received word Saturday of the death of her sister, Mrs. Albert Holmes, in Florida, where she and Mr. Holmes were spending the winter months. Mrs. Holmes was well known in Norwood and vicinity, and her many friends regret her passing.

CENTRAL LAKE

Well, this is more like March. Two above zero Tuesday morning.

Mr. Yeoman and Guy Liskum are cutting wood for J. W. Morse this week. Mr. Yeoman expects to return to Detroit to work in about two weeks.

Harry Mason and family went over to see Rev. Harry Batterbee, at Green River, last Saturday. Mr. Batterbee had a cow slip and injure herself on the ice and it had to be killed.

Mrs. Frank Brown, of Eastport, is very ill at the present time, and is being cared for at her home. She recently returned from Petoskey Hospital, where she had an X-ray taken.

Rev. A. A. Wall, we are glad to hear, was nble to be out to Sundny school agnin last Sunday. Mr. Ballard has been helping in caring for him whlle ill.

Miss Ida Brouwer has received word that her brother, Henry Brouwer, of Zeeland, has had another stroke of paralysis. He had his first atroke nbout two years ngo.

Jake Yongedike, who lives on the Thomns farm south of town, is now transporting Snowflake pupils to Central Lnke High school, and reports that he finds some terribly bad roads southwest of town.

About 11 conversions have been made at the Pentecostal church at Centrnl Lake, and six talked in tongues. They had 60 at Sunday school last Sunday. M. E. church Sunday school had 80 people present.

H. Morse and Lyle Morse are repairing the Dr. Pecuman building next to the old post office building in Central Lake, that was recently damaged by fire from the adjoining building. The building was recently occupied hy an A & P store.

A. Snitseler and Miss Ida Brouwer left Tuesday morning for Zeeland to attend the funeral of Mr. Brant, their nephew, at that place. He was the husband of the former Anna Brouwer, sister of Minnie Brouwer Mohrmann, county clerk. Mr. Liskum is doing their chores during their absence. Mr. Liskum has had an attack of the grippe.

The Democratic caucus held at Central Lake last Saturday, with A. Snitseler as chairman, nominated the following township officers to be voted on nt the April election: Supervisor, Everett Vnndenberg; clerk, Harry Watkins; treasurer, Mrs. Johann Hodges: highway commissioner, Jess DeForest; member board of review, A. Snitseler. The Republican caucus is set for next Saturday.

The weather man certainly did do himself proud Monday hy changing the weather from balmy spring weather to snow, blizzard and cold. People were scurrying around looking up their mittens again, nnd their heavier clothing, nnd better fuel supply. It takes more thnn one crow to make n spring. And the poor crow is to be hunted again. Not so long since n mnn was arrested at East Jordan for shooting a crow. Now they expect to pay a bounty for the bird that eats the corn, and incidentally destroys a lot of bugs and worms. It's a toss-up as to whether the crow does more good than damage.

START ENROLLMENT FOR CMTC OPENING JULY 6TH

Fifteen Hundred Young Men Will Be Enrolled This Year

Enrollments for the Citizens' Military Training Camp for 1937 started March 1, it was announced by Phelps Newberry, of Detroit, Civilian Aide to the secretary of war in Michigan. This year approximately 1,500 young men from the state will be able to take advantage of a month's vacation at camp without expense.

The camp this year will open on July 6, and will continue until August 4, giving the young men whose applications are approved, four weeks of training in citizenship as well as ample opportunity for athletics, recreation and other camp activities.

Three dog heroes and what they did related in a full page illustrated article in The American Weekly, the magazine distributed with next Sunday's Chicago Herald and Examiner.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

Case Asks Police to Speed Licenses

Leon D. Case, secretary of state, has written letters to chiefs of police and sheriffs of Michigan, asking that they send to Lansing applications for operators' and chauffeurs' licenses, the same day they are approved by examining officers.

Operators and chauffeurs whose applications are approved by local examining officers, are given 20 day permits to carry until their licenses may be returned to them. Investigation of reports that applicants have waited longer than 20 days before receiving their licenses, has disclosed that much of this delay has occurred before the application reaches the Department of State.

Not longer than eight days are ordinarily required for the issuance of a license, once an application reaches the Department of State, records disclose. It is the thought of Department of State officials that police and sheriffs' departments will be glad to accommodate the motoring public by sending applications to Lansing promptly.

Even the scornful reference to Philip had alarmed her. After all, Phil was the head of the family; Phil was sacred. There was no law nor order anywhere if Phil was to be scorned.

* * * * * * *

Driving along the country roads that were smothered in spring beauty, Gail's spirits rose. Nothing could prevent her from having a week-end in a Los Gatos country house now. On Sunday evening she would join the family at the dinner table, on Monday morning she would be back at work, and everything would return to normal. But she would have this wonderful memory as so much pure gain.

She was always in a gale of high spirits when she was with Van, anyway; it was impossible to be otherwise; he was the gayest of the gay.

She questioned him as they drove along.

"Who else will be on this house party, Van?"

"On this souse party," Van responded cheerfully, "will be, first, mine host and his luxom wife, Dame Martha. They will draw the ale, heap onken logs in the great fireplaces—"

"Oh, for heaven's sake, you idiot."

His shout of joyous laughter.

"No, there'll be the Chipps," he began again seriously, "and three or four good auction players—they have to have those. They'll play all this evening, all tomorrow morning, all tomorrow night, and all day Sunday. In between games they'll eat, drink, and ask if anyone wants to swim badly enough to take the bother of undressing.

"Then there'll be Lucia Tevis; she's a cute kid; she's eighteen. She goes to Vassar next fall."

"Miss Mary Tevis' niece?"

"Yup. Then there's Mary Spence; she's from Boston, visiting Lucia; she's a keen girl, too. And Jim Speedwell and Fred Hunter—Fred's a polo man, but he broke his arm, so he's resting—and Bill Billings, and maybe his sister, and the Duchess—Lenore Phipps—Mrs. Phipps. She was Lenore Murchison."

"She's your half-sister?"

"Yep. Step-sister. My mother married her dad, when she was about—oh, well, she's a year younger than I am. But she's lived mostly with her grandmother. She's getting a divorce!"

They drove through Los Gatos, sleepy in late afternoon sun and ringed with wooded hills, and turned southwest on the boulevard that led to the ocean, twenty-six miles away. The car mounted slopes, rolled smoothly under mighty oaks, left the paved highway for a comfortable dirt road.

Few houses were visible now. But the gates bore names: "El Nido," "Hillways," "Jackson Farm Road," "Hidden Paradise Road." The gate into which Van at last turned the car was marked "Far Niente."

There were fruit trees here, scattered in among the natural forest trees; there was a tennis court, dappled with shade and light and draped in a banksia rose vine heavy with golden bloom. Flower scents were everywhere, beauty was everywhere.

Under a loaded rose vine, on one of the porches, four persons were playing bridge. Gail, as she and Van approached, recognized one of these as her hostess.

Mrs. Chipp looked up at them sharply, and without changing her position concentrated her cards in her left hand and stretched a hand toward Van.

"Oh, hello, dear! How d'you do, Miss Lawrence?" she said, in a quick aside. "Van, they're all swimming, and there's nobody here to— Excuse me just one second, Hillyer," she interrupted herself, speaking to one of the players. "Van," she went on, "I'm not sure where the Duchess has put Miss—Miss Lawrence. But you take her up to the girls' cottage and just let her park herself somewhere until the Duchess explains. Will you do that, like a darling?"

Resolutely, Gail would not let herself feel that it was rude, that it left anything unsaid, undone.

"I'll be all right!" she said, with a smile and a nod, walking off with Van. Mrs. Chipp made no answer.

Van led the way to one of the cabins, a brown, enchanting place with geraniums and lobelia in the window boxes, and a wide open door into a central sitting room.

"Take any of these rooms—gosh, they're all full of suitcases!" Van said, peering in at doorways. "Here—here's one—this must be you. Make yourself comfortable. Are you going to swim?"

"I think not. Not—well, maybe I will!"

She decided against the swimming, and walked out to meet Van, ten minutes later, looking her prettiest in a white frock, white shoes, a white hat.

The boy lingering in the garden path, waiting for her, was trim in a black bathing suit, with a towel across his shoulders.

Boys and girls, as wet and sleek as seals, were sprawled in the late sunshine on the grassy ramp beside the pool. They were drinking a pale yellow drink from tall ice-filled glasses; a cocktail shaker stood on the grass.

Gail found herself the only person who was not drinking, in the group. The circumstances seemed to alienate her from them. She listened, smiled, made herself appear at ease as a low-toned conversation that had evidently been interrupted was begun again among the girls.

The men merely rolled in the sun, yawned and exchanged monosyllables.

"You did not." "Quit that!" "Say, listen . . ." Gail heard, over and over again.

The girls, Lucia, Mary, and Lenore, murmured interestedly.

"Oh, come on," said the Duchess suddenly when there had been a good deal of this. "We'll never get dressed!"

Immediately they were all running down the path to the cabin, Gail with them. The only one who took any notice of her was the Boston girl, named Mary Spence. Mary spoke now and then kindly to Gail as they all began a flurry of dressing for dinner.

They left their bedroom doors open and ran back and forth lightly clad or not clad at all. Lenore and Lucia shed their bathing suits on the strip of lawn outside the cabin, and slipped into thin cotton kimonos, brief and almost transparent, to wander about brushing their hair, rubbing themselves with towels, and gathering garments and cosmetics.

Gail, who was not going to change, sat on the upper porch step a few feet above the path and stared at the beauty and luxury of Far Niente as it lay on the slope below her, and pretended to be satisfied and absorbed in what she saw. She knew now that all the vague, shy fears she had felt in anticipating this visit were going to be more than justified. She knew that Mrs. Chipp was not going to be nice to her, that the girls were entirely indifferent to her, and that she should not have come.

Her clothes were not right, her training was not right, her background was not right. She simply did not belong here, and they were all more or less conscious of it. This nice Mary Spence, herself a stranger in the group, was being cordial merely on general principles. It was nothing to her that these Californians had social distinctions between themselves; they were all the same to Mary Spence.

"I shall have to work!" Gail told herself grimly. She must work, talking, smiling, keeping herself occupied, for all this endless evening and all tomorrow and most of Sunday. It sounded like an eternity.

Suddenly she noted two of her companions in the cottage, Lucia and Lenore, walking with two boys named Bill and Jim, down the path to the house. They must have left the cottage by the back door, which faced toward the men's cabin. Perhaps the boys had called them.

That left only Mary in the house, and if she also slipped away Gail would have to go down to dinner, at some spot unknown, all alone. Her heart began to beat hard in nervous anticipation.

Presently a middle-aged woman came up the path toward her, and with a not unamiable half smile for Gail stood still, a few feet away, calling, "Mary!" Gail recognized her as one of the card players.

"Yes, Mrs. Billings!" Mary called, putting her head out of the porch door.

"Mary, you know what I asked you to do?" the woman said.

"Oh, yes!" Mary answered.

"Will you do it now, dear?"

"Oh, yes; instantly!" said Mary, running out of the cabin. She and Mrs. Billings, conferring, went rapidly down the path together. Gail swallowed once, with a dry throat. Then she got up and began to saunter slowly after them.

She encountered the boy named Fred Hunter in the path, and fell upon him with all the boldness of desperation. She laughed with him, narrowed her blue eyes in their thick black lashes at him, and when he said somewhat nervously that he had been going up to the cabin to wake Van, whose aunt felt sure he had fallen asleep, Gail said gaily that she would go, too.

They awakened the drowsy, surprised Van, and they all laughed together, and Gail, still holding firmly to the now manageable Fred, waited for Van on the porch of the men's cabin. She walked down to the house between the two of them, disposing of Van's good-natured attempts to shake young Mr. Hunter by a determined, if light, hold upon the latter's arm.

At dinner, which began immediately, she was between the two young men. So far so good.

But it was work. It was bitter, hard, endless work; all struggle, no relaxation anywhere. She was conscious of carrying a heavy handicap.

The girls were all against her. They ignored her; they looked bored when she spoke; they deliberately enriched the conversation into channels where she must be ill at ease and unfamiliar.

Gail fought on. Her cheeks blazed, her blue eyes shone. She lost all consciousness of Van as the man for whom she was beginning to care, of the beauty of the place and the summer night, of the novelty of dining here with these fashionable folks. It was all a blur, through which she was determined to hold her own despite them all.

When Lenore, at the end of the long meal, during which they had all eaten, drunk, and smoked too much, said provocatively to Van something about needing him to conspire with her upon something that would surprise the others, Gail countered by saying that she and Mr. Hunter wanted to get up a charade.

"That's what they call it now, is it?" one of the boys said, and Gail joined in the loud laughter. The infatuated Hunter was by this time incapable of any emotion, even surprise, and he and Gail went down to a marble bench on the lawn, where she held him as long as she could, listening to his fatuous vague words, and laughing and keeping him laughing as if it were the greatest fun in the world. Later she annexed Bill Billings, and fell into a deep-toned conference with him about airmen and air records, pretending to be so absorbed in the conversation that when Van came to get her to dance she had to call a few last words over her shoulder to Bill.

They were dancing on a sort of platform, with vines trailed up over its latticed top. The moon shone down between the leaves, the radio droned and shrieked and droned again. Gail danced well, and loved dancing, and was happy for a few minutes.

Suddenly they were all disputing as to whether they should play bridge or go down to Mackerson's. Mackerson's was a roadhouse over on the Halfmoon Bay road, sixty miles away.

"Come on, let's go dance at Mackerson's! Maybe the place'll be raided."

"I am the captain of my fate, folks, I am the master of my soul!" Van observed, rising with a wine glass in his hands. "In the fell clutch of circumstances, what d'you think I do? D'you think I wince, or cry aloud? I don't—"

He was hauled down.

"Well, do we go to Mackerson's?"

"Listen. Let's not, and say we did!"

"Well, I'll tell you a story!" Jim Speedwell said unexpectedly. He told it.

For a moment Gail could not see the point. Then it came upon her with sickening force, and she felt choked and a little nauseated. The men roared; the girls laughed briefly, and Lenore said, "Jim, don't be so revolting!"

"You low swine!" Lucia Tevis, who was eighteen years old, added affectionately.

"Well, what can you do?" Gail asked herself fiercely. She couldn't shame Van by getting up and walking away from the group. Her face burned wretchedly for half an hour. She would not give in. She slept, waked, breakfasted, went to luncheon at some club in whose chintzy dressing room the girls were notably rude to her, watched her first polo game. She would not give in.

Fight, fight, fight. She made herself pretty, she made herself amusing, she fought back the constant impulse to say, "Oh, Van, take me home!" No, no, no! This was her chance; she would not lose it. She grew almost feverish, her clear skin unusually pale, her blue eyes unusually bright, and was the prettier for it.

Van saw nothing. He was in great spirits, rushing from one thing to another—cocktails, bridge, tennis, swimming, polo, golf—at breakneck speed. By Saturday night all these were exhausted, radio and victrola had done their worst, and it was decided that Mackerson's offered the only possible amusement.

This was at about nine o'clock. Into cars they all accordingly piled, and off into the night they went. A dreary dressing room, after the cold run, and the girls powdering their noses, reddening their lips again. Another bleak-looking table with a limp spotty cloth on it. They were all so tired they almost laid their heads on the cloth, and Gail was scared when she saw the hip flasks and the red wine again. Van

KIWANIS CHARTER NIGHT, MARCH 16

The principal speaker of the evening will be the present lieutenant-governor, James Robertson, of Sault Ste. Marie. Mr. Robertson, among other things, has been a student of art, having had two hundred sketches published in "Judge." He will give his well known address, "The Prince of Humbugs," which is a friendly delineation of the personality of P. T. Barnum. This talk is illustrated with drawings during the speech.

Kiwanians are looking forward to a very pleasant evening on this second anniversary occasion.

FAMOUS PASTOR TO DISCUSS COURT PROPOSAL

President Franklin D. Roosevelt's proposal to increase membership of the United States Supreme Court will be discussed by Rev. John Haynes Holmes, pastor of the famous Community Church of New York, in a radio broadcast scheduled between 6:30 and 6:45 p. m., on Thursday, March 11, over the Columbia network.

Charlevoix citizens interested in the proposal should hear this address.

TEMPERANCE UNION TO DISCUSS LOCAL OPTION

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union meets Friday, March 12, with Mrs. Floyd Bartholomew, 112 East Hurlbut avenue.

Local option is the topic assigned for discussion. The long-heralded broadcast by the national director of alcohol education will be read at this meeting. It is designed to reach every member of the 10,000 local unions with this message during the month of March.

PERE MARQUETTE WILL AIR-CONDITION CARS

"Resort Special" Serving Charlevoix Included in Program

The biggest 1937 passenger car air-conditioning program of any railroad in Michigan was announced today by the Pere Marquette Railway.

All steel coaches on all of the railroad's main-line trains are being air-conditioned, renovated and redecorated and will be back in service before June 1, according to Vice President R. J. Bowman. The cars include all of the road's Pullman, dining salon, day coach and local sleeping cars. Among the trains to be modernized is the "Resort Special," which on June 21 will resume service to Michigan's northern resort country. Both sections of this train, from Chicago and Detroit, are being completely renovated.

Vice President Bowman also confirmed reports of the purchase of 15 locomotives which will be put into service on the line this year.

FORMER RESIDENT DEAD AT BELLINGHAM, WASH.

Tournament play brought to a close the basketball activity of the varsity squad and completion of the high school athletic careers, excepting spring track, of Ed. Radle, 1936-37 captain, and Leslie Shapton, guard. Radle leaves a brilliant athletic record in basketball, football, baseball and track, as does also Shapton. While Charlevoix loses these two stellar men from the basketball squad, returning for next year will be Gallagher, Carey and Richardson, regulars, besides a wealth of promising reserve material.

Tournament Scores

Following are the results of tournament games at Harbor Springs:

Class C

Harbor Springs 25, Pellston 23.
East Jordan 33, Harbor 17.
Boyne City 19, Charlevoix 9.
Boyne City 28, Harbor 14.

Class D

Indian River 24, Alanson 8.
Mackinaw City 44, Boyne Falls 10.
Mackinaw City 49, Indian River 12.

Regional Tourney Thursday

Play in the regional tournament will open Thursday at Petoskey, with competition for Class B, C and D district winners.

Competing in Class D will be Mackinaw City, Suttons Bay, St. Mary's of Lake Leelanau, St. Bernard's of Alpena, Roscommon and Bellaire.

Class C entrants are: Boyne City, St. Francis of Traverse City, Gaylord and Rogers City.

Class B teams are: Petoskey, Alpena, Cheboygan, Traverse City and Manistee.

Three Hundred Heard Broadcast

Around three hundred persons heard the broadcast of the Charlevoix-Boyne City game at the gymnasium Friday night. Dean Davenport called the play-by-play account from Harbor Springs, and Bob Miles did the local announcing. Several numbers by the American Legion German Band preceded the broadcast and were greatly enjoyed.

"The Cloverleaf Rolls were perfect—taste good, look good and have a fine texture. Used a coal range and burned lignite coal."

"The bread I made from Occident Flour was lovely—fine texture, crust soft. The bread is now four days old (one-half loaf left) and is moist and fresh and good."

"I cut a loaf of each batch in half and the Occident loaf had a much more pleasing fragrance. The texture of the Occident bread was much superior."

(FROM USERS' LETTERS)

Facts You Should Know About Flour

Facts were demanded by the "Farmer's Wife" magazine before awarding Occident Flour its coveted "reader-tested" Seal of Approval. As part of its service to subscribers, "The Farmer's Wife" maintains not only a testing kitchen but a large corps of selected farm women for home testing as well. Such tests really mean something... because the product must stand up under conditions where special utensils and equipment are not available.

"Bread I baked with Occident Flour was delicious and a nice even brown all over. I used a wood oven to bake it in. My family said they had never tasted such good bread."

What They Found

These farm women—all of them home bakers of long experience found that Occident Flour does produce more and better bread with better flavor, finer texture—outstandingly superior for all baking, whether it be rolls, cakes, pastries or cookies.

Most Flours Look Alike

If you are an experienced home baker, you know how much difference there can be in flour quality! Test Occident Flour in your kitchen—your way. You'll find that Occident means definite improvement in your baking, gives your baking an improved flavor, produces a surprisingly large amount of baking from a given amount of flour and prolongs freshness to a point where you won't need to bake so often. Every sack guaranteed.

MARIAN DARLINGTON NOW MRS. BROUSSARD

Ceremeny Perfermed Friday Evening at Grandparents' Heme

Mrs. Marian Darlington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred V. Tyler, of this city, and Earl E. Broussard, of Port Arthur, Tex., were married last Friday evening at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Edwards, Sr., on May street.

The couple were attended by Edward J. Edwards in the role of best man and Mrs. Helen Belding as matron of honor. Rev. W. H. Rauch, of the Baptist church, performed the ceremony in the presence of some thirty relatives and friends. Following the marriage service, the bride's cake was cut and light refreshments served.

Mrs. Broussard, who was born and received her education in this city, needs no introduction to Charlevoix people. Her husband holds a responsible position on the U. S. lighthouse tender, "Sumac." Sunday morning, the couple left in their car on a honeymoon trip to Port Arthur, Tex., to visit the groom's relatives. They will return on April 4, Mrs. Broussard remaining with her relatives here until fall, when she and her husband and infant son, John Darlington, Jr., will make their home in Milwaukee.

Traveling With New Al Pearce Show

THE Ford Mountaineers, pictured above, feature hillbilly tunes in their weekly appearsnce with Al Pearce in the series of town talent shows which are to be staged in principal Michigan cities under the sponsorship of local Ford dealers. A selected half hour of the show featuring local entertainers is heard over the Michigan Radio Network and Station WSPD, Toledo, Thursday nights at 8 o'clock.

Called "Your Stars At Home," the variety radio program under Pearce's direction presents outstanding local talent which may later soar to national fame. Al Pearce, famed radio comedian of the Ford dealers "Watch the Fun Go By" program is present in person to act as master of ceremonies for the broadcast and the stage show. The program originates from a different Michigan city each week.

The Ford Mountaineers, widely known in Michigan, are traveling with Pearce and take a prominent part in the musical festivities in connection with the broadcast.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellencamp

Emergency Crop and Feed Loans Now Available

All papers and materials necessary for crop and feed loans have been received at the county agent's office in Boyne City. These loans are made for the purpose of assisting farmers in buying seed, fertilizer, spray materials and other spring requirements. These loans when made for less than $200 will not require clearance through the Production Credit Association of Gaylord. These loans bear interest at four per cent and mature during late summer.

The applicants must agree to use seed and methods approved by the Department of Agriculture, to plant a garden for home use and to plant a sufficient acreage of feed crops to supply feed for their work stock and subsistence cattle. No loan will be made to any applicant who can obtain the credit elsewhere, who has an application for a Production Credit Association loan, who has not observed good faith in the repayment of previous emergency loans, or who has a means of livelihood other than farming.

No loans will be made out for more than $400 or less than $10, and must be in multiples of $5. If any one is interested in obtaining one of these loans, our advice is to come early and make out your application before spring arrives.

Wood Lot Demonstrations Attracted Wonderful Attendance

Without a doubt the four wood lot demonstrations conducted last week were the most successful of any carried on in the county relative to forestry projects. The four demonstrations were attended by 160 farmers who thoroughly enjoyed themselves in seeing first hand the results of good and bad wood lot practices.

The average farmer present somewhat disagreed with the wood lot practices recommended by Mr. Culver during the early stages of the meeting, but usually agreed 100 per cent as the demonstration continued. In the first place, it was agreed that it was better to leave the brush in the woods somewhat evenly distributed, than to either pile it or remove it from the woods.

The speaker made the statement that a properly managed wood lot should not have all of the new growth destroyed and look like a city park, but should have a large amount of new growth to replace the old stand as it is cut down. Considerable emphasis was placed on the question of types and species of trees to save, the elimination of badly shaped trees and the proper spacing of trees.

Very briefly, the soil conservation was explained at each meeting, especially the payments associated with wood lot improvement practices. Quite a large number of farmers made application to have their wood lot inspected by a member of the county committee, which is necessary before any one can cooperate in the program. It is felt that wood lot improvement will be one of the outstanding accomplishments of the soil conservation program. It is surprising to note the large number of farm wood lots which are badly in need of attention.

MUSIC FESTIVAL IN MAY AT EAST JORDAN

Northern Michigan Schools to Compete for Honors There

East Jordan will be a busy place on the afternoon and evening of May 20 when glee clubs and choruses of Northern Michigan will gather at our high school auditorium and sing their best songs.

There also will be ensemble groups of strings, woodwind and brass instruments.

Invitations have been sent to 32 schools and it is expected at least half of them will send one or more groups to take part.

Arrangements have been completed with William W. Norton, dean of music, director of Flint Community Music Association, and supervisor of music in Flint schools, to act as critic and conductor.

In the evening a public concert will be given at which time the combined singing groups will sing, and the best ensembles will play. This concert will be conducted by Mr. Norton.—Charlevoix County Herald.

Giving Her a Shock

"A girl of this age wouldn't faint at hearin' a risque story," observed a man, "nor at the sight of a mouse. But I reckon the sight of a sink full of unwashed dishes would make her keel over in the good old-fashioned way."

CUTOVER LANDS RETURN TO ASSET IN MICHIGAN

Jackpine Growth Found Valuable for Manufacture of Paper

The idle acres of many of Michigan's northern counties, which 20 years ago were considered as liabilities, seem to be converting themselves into actual, positive assets, said Director P. J. Hoffmaster, of the Department of Conservation, in commenting on land-use problems.

"The areas were regarded as liabilities because they had been denuded of their timber and their soil was unsuited to successful farming," Director Hoffmaster said. "They were growing up to jackpine and in many cases mixed stands of conifer and deciduous trees. No one could see any important use for them. They were considered as unproductive; as bankrupt stock."

New trends are tending to make these so-called idle areas into social and economical assets, which contribute to an annual recreational turnover which amounts to several hundred millions of dollars annually.

"Processes developed by the pulpwood industry for converting jackpine into paper stock, have created a growing demand for jackpine stands. The jackpine which was commonly considered as a scrub tree of little or no merchantable value 20 years ago, has become an asset.

"The second-growth of brushy oak and mixed stands of young jackpines and deciduous trees which are growing up where the pines once stood and even the sparsely covered openings that remain are coming to be recognized as having value as scenic wilderness or recreational assets and as game habitat and worthy of administration as such.

"What has happened is that we have outgrown the old formula by which land values once were measured. We no longer consider land as utterly useless merely because it is unsuited to agriculture.

naa driven like a crazy maa oa those steep circuitous roads comiag over; he certaialy would not be in a coadi-tioa to drive more carefully goiag back. Of course, they would get back to tha raach somehow, but it was frighten-iag.

Fuaay to think of herself as home agaia tomorrow aight, playiag soli-taire. Well, oae thing was sare; if she ever married Vaa Morchisoa or aay-one like him she would cure him of this sort of craziaess.

Mockersoa's was as dull as ditch water toaight. There were parties ia the curtaiaed alcoves, shouting and singing, but the main room was empty. A heavy fog was roiliag ia from the sea; the motor cars that weat by made a muffled souad ia the dark aight.

"You're awful cute!" Van said affec-tioaately, covering Gail's haad with his owa.

A aoisy party stumbled out of aa alcove and scattered wenrily toward dressing rooms for wraps.

"We ought to be going, too!" Leaore decided. "This is too awful!"

They stumbled up ia their turn, staggered up the smelly, unpainted stairs to the odorous, dimp, blenk dressiag room. Its window, on this raw night, wns wide opea, the salty air blowing ia deliciously cold nad fresh.

"This won't do!" Gail said, going to close it. Standing beside it, both hands rnised to the center rill, she looked down at a pool of bright light from the tnvern doorway below.

"Come here, Duchess. Thnt's the col-or hair I mean!" Lucin said suddeaiy, at Gail's elbow, also looking down. "Ash blond—and tiat's n reni oue, too. Look!"

Gnil looked, too. Looked dowa at the bareheaded, loudly laughing girl a big raccoon-coated man was helpiag iato a rosdster. She recogaized tbe ash-blond hair, the curve of soft cheek.

"Ash Blond—and That's a Real One, Look!"

It was Ariel.

CHAPTER V

Gnil had a sick momeut of vertigo, of terror. What she saw, what it sig-aified, where she was nnd where Ariel wns—everything rushed together in a complete demornliznticn of mind nnd senses.

After a while she turned and dnzed-ly reached for her browa coat nnd hut-toned its belt nbout her. She followed the other girls dowastairs, aot knowing where she wns nor what she was do-ing.

She was aext to Van oa the drive home. The cars shot away into the foggy night; the big engines throbbed oa the grade. When they resched the top of the long rise, aad the machines could run quietly, enutiously, through the enveloping thick mists, Gnil spoke for the first time.

"Vaa, you saw those men and the two girls—the ones who were making so much aoise?"

"Didn't aotice 'em specinlly—why?" Vaa shouted.

"Oh, nothing!" Gail, actually writh-ing, saying the soundless words of prayers with trembling lips, added no more. But her soul was sick.

"Ariel! Oh, my G—d—not yet eight-een!"

Then aight and fog aad the explor-ing lights of the car aad her own sick, heavy heartbests again.

It was like a horrible dream. She was miles—miles from home, from Phil aad Edith, and security and good-ness and help.

The need to be at home gnawed at her flesh like teeth; her face burned, she could aot breathe.

"Van, how far are we from home?"

"From Los Gatos? Let's see—"

"No. From Clippersville."

"Oh, Clippersville? Oh—well, about seventy miles."

THE INDIANS HAD A NAME FOR IT—A REAL TONGUE-TWISTER, TOO!

"Unka-timpe-wa-winee-pock-ich."

That's the Paiute Indian name for Bryce Canyon—"red rocks standing like men in a bowl-shaped canyon"—one of the natural wonders of Zion National Park, which will be described by Carveth Wells in the Continental Oil Company radio broadcast, "Exploring America with Conoco and Carveth Wells," over station WGN, Chicago, at 8:30 Tuesday night.

"In Zion National Park," says the internationally known explorer, "nature has done in broad daylight what man has done by night at Niagara Falls, where colored lights illuminate the sparkling waters. Mountains and canyons of southwestern Utah look as if they had been painted by some giant artist who used a rainbow for his palette."

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT BULLETIN

Functions of Your District Health Department

The broad objective of District Health Department No. 3 is to prevent disease and promote health. The services of all health departments in Michigan are entirely educational and preventive. Curative medicine is not practiced. In brief, your health department carries on the following activities:

1. Collects and analyzes information as to the health needs of the community and plans and carries on a program suited to that particular community.

2. Communicable—Disease Control: Receives reports of communicable diseases and institutes prompt control measures to prevent epidemics. Investigates suspicious cases and contacts of cases and attempts to locate sources of infection. Consults with physicians upon request in cases where diagnosis is doubtful. Investigates sources of venereal disease and works toward control.

3. Communicable Disease Prevention: Organizes campaigns to immunize infants, preschool and school children against diphtheria and smallpox. Assists in discovering cases of tuberculosis by giving tuberculin tests and arranging for X-rays for positive reactors. Cooperates with physicians and state and local tuberculosis associations in conducting clinics and hospitalizing patients.

4. Distributes biologic products (diphtherin antitoxin, toxoid, smallpox vaccine, etc.), manufactured by the Michigan Department of Health for the prevention and control of communicable diseases.

5. Advocates periodic health examinations for all ages, and cooperates in securing correction of defects of infants, preschool and school children.

6. Cooperates with Crippled Children's Commission and other agencies in giving service to crippled, afflicted, blind, deaf, epileptic and feeble-minded children.

7. Supervises water supplies and methods of waste disposal and corrects insanitary conditions which affect the public health. All resorts and schools are inspected at least once a year.

8. Supervises milk supplies which includes regular monthly bacterial counts, butterfat and sediment tests taken on milk dealers by the Health Department technician. Inspects some food handling establishments.

9. In conjunction with Miss Evans, of the Children's Fund of Michigan, extension classes are organized to aid the teachers in health education.

10. A year-round dental program is carried on, the dentist spending three months in each county doing dental corrections.

11. Every two years the Children's Fund eye doctor carries on complete visual examinations of pupils needing eye corrections and prescribing glasses for those in need of them which are provided free of charge by the Children's Fund.

12. Prominent public speakers are obtained from various agencies such as the Michigan Department of Health and the Michigan Department of Agriculture to speak before the schools.

13. Child care classes and mothers' classes are conducted in our district through the cooperation of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the Michigan Department of Health.

14. Promotes hot lunch project in the schools and method of obtaining surplus foods, when such are available.

15. In cooperation with the local county welfare department, cod liver oil is purchased in quantity lots and dispensed at the direction of the Health Department.

16. In some counties loan closets are maintained which contain necessary equipment and materials for confinement in the home.

17. Home hygiene and care of the sick classes taught periodically by staff nurses.

Every going business, small though it may be, contains the germ of a bigger business.

Safe and Sane DRIVING

BY THE NATIONAL SAFETY COUNCIL and Michigan State Safety Council

NIGHT ON THE HIGHWAY

Nearly two-thirds of the fatal motor car accidents take place between 6 p. m. and 6 a. m. Yet traffic for that 12-hour period is only about one-third of the 24-hour total.

Cool nerves are demanded for night driving. The four-lane roadway very likely means that double the usual number of flashing headlamps must be gauged and passed safely. The speed with which some of these rushing demons approach is terrifying.

Keep well to the right side of the road, and be continually on the lookout for the slow car ahead. There may be a stalled car on the pavement, and you may not have even the warning of a single small tail-light. Crashes occur from this cause all too frequently.

Look carefully also for the thoughtless rural walker, who may be tramping ahead of you down your own (which is his wrong) side of the road. You may be able to discern only the dimmest outline before you have to swerve suddenly to avoid him.

And if you have to stop for a puncture, or for any other trouble, pull entirely off the roadway if possible. There is the only safety.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday morning service, 10:45.

Meets first Wednesday evening each month at 7:45 p. m.

Sunday school, 12 o'clock.

"Substance" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, March 14.

Among the Bible citations is the following (Ps. 92: 5): "O Lord, how great are thy works! and thy thoughts are very deep."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 286): "God's thoughts are perfect and eternal, are substance and Life. Material and temporal thoughts are human, involving error, and since God, Spirit, is the only cause, they lack a divine cause."

Ottawa and Paris, the Rev. Father John T. Holland, of St. Ignace, has found the original plans of the French military fort.

From 1694 to 1701 during Antoine de la Mothe Cadillac's incumbency, the fort was the center of a community which harbored 200 soldiers and from 6,000 to 8,000 Indians, a Jesuit mission, and a flourishing colony of fur traders.

Along with Sault Ste. Marie, the post of St. Ignace were the first spots in Michigan to know bone-dry prohibition. This decree was issued by King Louis XIV of France.

Here is proof again that history DOES repeat itself.

A Growing Industry

Michigan, capital of the motor world, is the home of another thriving, growing industry — transportation by trucks. John Vanderjagt, of Grand Rapids, president of the Michigan Transporters Association, presided this week at an annual mid-year conference in Lansing. "Truckers" are interested in state legislation relating to interstate truck regulations, hours of service for employes, and highway safety.

Syphilis Control

An interesting problem in cause and effect is seen by sociologists in two recent developments:

1. Additional facilities are needed at insane hospitals to meet the rising number of cases in Michigan. Medical experts plead with legislators for state aid, citing overcrowding of wards and shortage of beds. Also more than 1,000 applications for feeble-minded care are now on file.

2. Senator Roosevelt (Detroit) sponsors Senate Bill No. 104 providing free medical treatment for indigent persons infected with syphilis and requiring investigation of all cases on record.

Syphilis, proclaimed openly today as America's No. 1 scourge, causes many cases of insanity and feeble-mindedness, according to competent authorities. Here is something to think about.

NORWOOD SCHOOL SOLD MOST CHRISTMAS SEALS

Cited by Michigan Tuberculosis Association for Fine Record

For selling more tuberculosis Christmas seals per capita than any other rural school enrollment in Charlevoix county, children at the Norwood school were this week awarded a fascinating game called "Little America," by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association. The prize was sent to the children through Charlotte Andrus, teacher at the Norwood school and under whose direction the sale was conducted.

Second place honors and a handsomely cut wall mirror were won by the children at Green Town school. Giles McCann is the teacher there who had charge of the sale.

Congratulations of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association were expressed to both Charlevoix county schools by Theodore J. Werle, executive secretary of the association. Mr. Werle declared that the part of the school children in the recent Christmas seal sale was an inspirational one.

Smelt Jamboree

Unique in fishing events the country over will be the Fifth Annual National Smelt Jamboree, Saturday, March 20, at East Jordan.

From Detroit, Lansing, Grand Rapids, Traverse City and Bellaire will come a "smelters' special" train, timed to bring fishermen for the much famed smelt run.

With Michigan's traditional flair for promotion, East Jordan will stage a parade, lumbering acts, boxing matches, . . . and as the grand climax of all, Newaygo Newt will challenge all comers in a world championship spitting contest.

You can have your choice.

The Charlevoix Courier confides that spitters may "tum-tum," "phut," "tooph," or "splat," spit through their teeth, or even through their fingers. But you must spit. Dribblers don't count.

Fishing and Stream Pollution

If the tourist industry in Michigan is worth $10,000,000 a year — and much of this business comes from the organized efforts of the four tourist associations—then isn't it logical that Michigan should protect its streams—make them habitable for fish life?

The Legislature has just been informed by the state stream control committee that Michigan was one of the worst stream-pollution offenders by dumping of brine and sewage sludge.

Miscellany

Michigan and California, both meriting distinction as tourist states, now have one thing more in common: Earthquakes.

While Washington is the arena of the supreme court tug-of-war, Michigan is having its own political battle between the Democrats, headed by Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner with a key to federal highway funds, and Republicans, led by Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, exponent of more state aid for public schools.

Political analysts are studying the possible election effects of the declaration by Governor Murphy, while vacationing in Florida, that he favored generous state aid for public schools.

BOYNE IS PREPARING FOR BIG SMELT "RUN"

March 22 Is Named Date for Eighth Annual Celebratioo

With all indications pointing toward the heaviest smelt run in Boyno City's history, final arrangements are being made to care for the mammoth crowds which will be in attendance for the annual celebration.

At a meeting of the Smelt Run committee Tuesday night it was decided that the thousands of sportsmen who have been awaiting the "go" signal be informed that Boyne City's smelt are scheduled to do their stuff during the week of March 22.

Following are but a few of the attractions already arranged to make Boyne City's celebration one of the best in the country.

A gigantic parade, with clowns, music, oversized smelt, and attractive floats is scheduled. It is reported that the committee will unleash the giant King Fish smelt which has been reared for this occasion. Rumors report the specimen to be over three feet long.

Weather conditions permitting, a fly-casting contest is planned. This event will attract many of the expert fly-fishermen in the United States and a worthwhile prize is being offered.

A chicken race will be a feature during the week—and Boyne City's "sixtuplets" are to be revealed.

fishing conditions is well known and has produced wonderful results.

The advertising budget this year will cover the expense of 20,000 resort folders and 15,000 mailing envelopes, a newspaper advertising campaign in leading southern and mid-west daily papers to promote cottage rentals, particularly in its early stages, and general promotion in midsummer. Postage is also included and membership in the West Michigan Tourist and Resort Association, and a page advertisement in the association's booklet.

The appropriation for salaries covers compensation of the director of activities nnd stenographic hire. Incidental expenses of the information bureau are cared for from membership dues and donations of local and out-of-town corporations.

The 1937 program is an ambitious one and no doubt will reflect favorably in an increase of resort and tourist business for Charlevoix.

MRS. ALBERT HOLMES IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Word Comes of Passing Friday at Winter Home in Florida

Charlevoix citizens will regret hearing of the death Friday of Mrs. Albert Holmes, who succumbed at the family winter home in Port Orange, Fla.

Details of the incident are lacking and probably will not be available until the body is brought here late this week for funeral services and burial.

TOWNSHIP POLITICS BECOME ACTIVE THIS WEEK

Township politics in precincts adjacent to Charlevoix will become active this week with the holding of annual caucus meetings.

The Eveline township caucus will be held March 15, Norwood township on March 12, Hayes township on March 12, and Marion township on March 16.

BEAVER ISLAND

Mrs. Warren Wilmott returned Tuesday, following a visit of a couple months with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Gallagher, at Charlevoix.

Mrs. J. C. MacDopald, of Charlevoix, spent a few hours here Wednesday with relatives, making the crossing by plane in the morning and returning the same afternoon.

Andrew R. Gullagher, after spending the winter with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Gallagher, has returned to Milwaukee, where he expects to obtain employment on the lakes for the season.

Miss Musette Belfy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eurl Belfy, of Gurden, Mich., and Vernon Lafreniere, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nels Lafreniere, were united in marriage at the Holy Cross church on Wednesday, March 3. Fr. Fox officiated at the ceremony, conducted in the presence of relatives and friends. The young couple departed Monday on a honeymoon visit at the home of the bride's parents. Their many local friends join in extending congratulations.

J. L. McGregor, of Mancelona, and Robert McFarlane, of Grand Rapids, were business cnllers here from Wednesday until Friday.

James Martin, accompanied by Mrs. Martin, was taken Monday to Charlevoix Hospital for medical treatment.

Mrs. Albert Kane, who has been seriously ill the past ten days, was taken Monday by Mr. Kane to Detroit for hospital treatment.

Charles Pischner returned home Monday, following a visit of several days in Charlevoix.

Joe Sendenberg left Monday for Manistique, to join his father and brother prior to opening of the commercial fishing season.

L. J. Malloy, Charles Martin, James Gallagher, Edward Burke and Jim Hunt made a trip by car and truck Friday to St. Ignace, and returned Saturday with a supply of feed.

Carl Walters returned Wednesday from Charlevoix, where he has been visiting the past week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Walters.

George Trude went Friday to Charlevoix to visit his mother, Mrs. Al Trude, who is confined at Charlevoix Hospital.

Mrs. Roland McDonough went to Charlevoix on Wednesday for a business visit of several days.

James H. Gallagher was a passenger Wednesday on the plane to Charlevoix. He expects to return Friday.

HAMMETTS, FORMER RESIDENTS, VISITED

ther south in an effort to reach the land of sunshine.

My last letter covered Biloxi and Gulfport, Miss., one of the most enjoyable weeks experienced so far on the trip, and the only place we left with regret. Starting out the morning of the 17th, we continued east on the Old Spanish Trail to Mobile, Ala., a large industrial city on Mobile Bay. Simply passing through here we continued on our way, crossing numerous bridges, one covering, with causeways, a distance of 14 miles. Here we made inquiries as to the location of Daphne, the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hammett, former Charlevoix residents. Daphne is an old southern town lying on the east shore of Mobile Bay, some five miles south off our route. But the road to this small hamlet was new asphalt, and a dream to drive. The country was quite hilly and the land covered with a dense growth of Southern pine. It was a relief from the long flat stretches of concrete we had passed over for miles. Locating the Hammett home, we pulled up on a street back of the house, and I delegated myself to make the trip to the back door to see if they were at home. Mrs. H. answered the rap on the door, and for a minute or so failed to recognize me, but finally came to realize that there was something familiar about me and finally said: "Why, Mr. Usher, what in the world are you doing way down here?" Greetings were soon extended to remaining members of our party, and we were given, using a common term, "the keys of the city." Here we stayed overnight, using our trailers as usual. Our short stay here was a delightful one. That evening we spent several hours before a warm fireplace, talking and visiting, relating this or that incident of the past, answering questions as to what had become of "so-and-so," and how did this or that terminate. Both the girls, Ruth and Bess, are now at home, and Dick, Jr., is married and lives in Gulfport. The hours were passed very quickly and we have listed them among the "sigh-spot" incidents of our trip.

Will have to relate a part of our welcome here not included among members of the Hammett family. Their colored cook, noticing the two trailers at their back door, rushed into the living room where Mrs. H. was sitting, and exclaimed in an excited manner, , "Missy Hammett, Missy Hammett, a medicine show has come to town and are camped in the street right back of our house." We got a great kick out of her remarks.

Continuing onward east the next morning, the first city of importance we came to was Pensacola, Fla., first settled in 1559 by the Spaniards. This city has experienced a stirring and turbulent history, has flown five flags and has undergone 17 changes of government. Quaint old houses, forts and dungeon passes recall conflicts between Spanish and French. Many merchant ships plying between foreign nations dock at Pensacola annually. United States Naval Air Base near the bay entrance is of great interest, as is also a naval yard and berthing equipment for battleships, cruisers and submarines. At the time of our entrance we paused along the roadside and at one time counted over 90 airplanes of every description in the air in various formations. We have been told Pensacola is a great playground for people spending the winter in the South.

We stopped that night at De Funiak Springs, an inland town of about 2500 inhabitants. No suitable trailer camp, so we pulled in behind an eating place and fruit stand owned and operated by one of the most courteous and entertaining southern gentlemen we have ever met. Nothing was too good for us, and he watched over us as if we were children.

The next stop was at Ponce de Leon, 12 miles east of De Funiak Springs. Here is claimed to be the immortal fountain of youth, whose waters will give you everlasting youth. We drank our fill, but must confess that no important change in health or disposition has to date taken place. Continuing on from here, we crossed the Swaunee River, immortalized by song and familiar to all school children. It was a beautiful, clear water stream, and a delight to anyone driving along its banks. This river had no guessing, as I carried in mind its location further west and north. Late in the afternoon we reached Tallahassee, Fla., where our route changed from the Old Spanish Trail to Florida Trunk Line 19, which runs south to Clearwater, Tampa and St. Petersburg. We spent the night in a small combination camp, located in a grove of Southern pine, about 12 miles south of Tallahassee. Next day we drove to Bronson, where we stayed over night. Continuing on south the following duy, we finally reached Clearwater, driving practically all day through one of the heaviest torrential rain and wind storms yet experienced. From here wo are undecided where to go, but will probably go on south to Sarasota for a week or so, then proceed northeast to St. Augustine and eastern coast points.

Mother and I are spending the day in camp getting caught up on our correspondence. The trailer is quite comfortable and we are quite contented, both as to location and the world in general. We eat oranges, grapefruit and everything in the vegetable line practically every meal. My next letter will be about Clearwater, its oranges and citrus groves, and hundreds of othar attractions.

Well, "Harry Back."

SPECIAL ELECTION SCHEDULED FRIDAY

REVENUE BOND ISSUE TO BE PLACED BEFORE VOTERS

Details of Proposed New Diesel Unit and Electric Light Plant Addition Told at Mass Meeting

The city council's proposal to install an 850 to 900 kilowatt diesel motor and construct an addition to the present electric light plant to house the unit, was presented to several hundred local citizens at a public meeting held Tuesday evening at the school gymnasium.

With the information gained at the meeting, Charlevoix citizens will go to the polls at a special election to be held Friday, March 19th, to vote on the issuance of $115,000 in revenue bonds to finance the project.

Mayor Arthur Bergeon presided at the meeting. Present to answer questions regarding the proposal in addition to Mayor Bergeon, was E. R. Weeber, member of the Grand Rapids engineering firm of Hamilton & Weeber, engaged by the city council to make a survey and recommendations as to the city's needs for electric production.

Mayor Bergeon, in his opening remarks, related the value of a municipally-owned electric light system, pointnig to current furnished free for porch lights, street lighting, public institutions and the city water pumping station at a value running well into five figures, as privileges the citizens of Charlevoix enjoy over cities buying current from privately owned public utilities. He pointed out that other cities must pay for these services by taxation.

He reviewed the earnings of Charlevoix's electric light system and stated that there was sufficient income to insure no increase in taxes or electric light rates if the proposal was accepted by the voters.

Other information presented, through direct remarks by the speakers and through answers to questions asked, showed that the consumption of electric current during the height of the resort season had reached within 25 kilowatts of the combined capacity of all units; that a breakdown of any single unit during the peak production period would place the city in a critical condition; that production of electric current by diesel engine was possible at a cost of three-quarters of a cent per kilowatt as compared to over three cents per kilowatt by steam; that an 850 to 900 kilowatt diesel was recommended due to the difference in economy of operation as compared to a smaller unit, considering also that the addition to the present plant for a smaller unit would necessarily be as large as for the larger unit; that the installation of a smaller unit would not remedy the pressing need for more production in case of a breakdown of one or more of the present units, and that the installation of two small units was more expensive in view of the fact two foundations would have to be built, a larger addition to the plant would be necessary and double the equipment would be needed for two units; that no public utility operates without sufficient reserve equipment capable of producing the maximum of operating units in case of break-downs.

Summed up generally, the information revealed Charlevoix to be in a precarious position with its present inadequate equipment and the necessity of some action to remedy the situation. These facts were given the citizens present and no doubt will influence their decision by ballot Friday.

GILL NET FLOAT INDUSTRY BEHIND IN ORDERS

Local Concern Running at Capacity and Unable to Supply Domand

Charlevoix has a small industry, perhaps completely unknown to many, operating at full production and unable to keep up with orders.

Located in the building on the old Oscar Mason property on Round lake, is the equipment of Fred Gotham, who is affiliated with the Miller Boat Co., manufacturing cedar gill net floats.

Two men are working full time and the plant is right now 75,000 behind in orders which are coming in at a rapid rate and may result in enlarging the plant.

BARNARD LOSES RESPECTED RESIDENT

Robert Gregory Victim of Heart Attack Thursday—Funeral Sunday

The Barnard district lost a highly respected pioneer resident last Thursday in the death of Robert Gregory, who succumbed of heart attack at 9 o'clock that evening.

Mr. Gregory was born in Chatham, Canada, December 30, 1855. He moved to Wayne county in 1866 and two years later moved to the farm home in Marion township. He married Ellen Cook in 1884. A son, Edwin, was born to this union. Mrs. Gregory died in 1888.

Mr. Gregory married Clara M. Adams, now deceased, in 1891. Three children were born to this union, viz.: Lloyd, who died February 8, 1910, Jess Gregory and Mrs. Mabel Cummings, both of Barnard. Besides the three children, all residents of the Barnard district, two brothers, William and Richard, survive, also seven grandchildren.

The funeral was conducted Sunday afternoon with brief services at the home at 2:30 o'clock, and services at the Barnard church at 3 o'clock. Rev. W. H. Rauch, of the local Baptist church, and Rev. John Cermak, of East Jordan, pastor of the Barnard church, officiated.

MORE SUNDAYS FOR FISHING THIS YEAR

SEASON OPENS EARLY AND CLOSES LATER

Unless Changed by Legislature, 1937 Trout Season Starts on Saturday, April 24

The working man will have 20 Sundays and a holiday to spend on his favorite northern streams during the four and a half month trout fishing season which opens Saturday, April 24.

There will be more if the official observance of two holidays, which fall on Sunday this year, is extended to Monday. Memorial Day, May 30, and the Fourth of July, both come on a Sunday this year.

Although much dissatisfaction was evident last season over the opening date of trout fishing, there seems slight possibility of a change this spring. The season opens, as provided by law, on the last Saturday in April. Any changes would have to be made by the Legislature and would have to be given immediate effect.

Should the season be changed back to May 1 or later, authorities point out, it doubtless would result in much confusion since the fishing law digests for 1937 specify April 24 as the opening date and many non-residents have planned trips into Michigan for that date. A change also would create a law enforcement problem, since many doubtless would insist on opening the season April 24 according to the fish-law digests.

ODD FELLOWS INITIATED EIGHT CANDIDATES

Largest Class In Years Received the Third Degree Wednesday Night

One of the largest classes in many years, eight in number, was initiated in the third degree by officers of Round Lake Lodge No. 293, I.O.O.F., last Wednesday evening.

The initiation, following a short business session, was conducted by Noble Grand Clarence Coblentz, assisted by Vice Grand Walter Yemmans, and other officers. Those receiving their degrees were Alfred Gill, Jr., Charles Tuhy, Lyman Cole, George Bergmann, A. C. Struthers, Lewis Brant, H. C. Wilson, and Elmer Ingalls.

The lodge session was followed by a lunch served by the Rebekahs, and the evening was concluded with cards.

NEW BEAUTY SHOP IS NOW OPEN AT PETOSKEY

Announcement has been made of the opening of a new beauty shop in Petoskey, known as the Vogue Beauty Shop, owned and managed by Miss Marie Bischoff, former manager of the Hollywood Beauty Shop of that city.

A suite of rooms over the Kroger store has been redecorated for the shop and the formal opening date was Saturday, March 13.

SMELT JAMBOREE OPENS SATURDAY

EAST JORDAN READY FOR BIG ANNUAL EVENT

Street Attractions, Crowning of King and Newago Newt Spitting Contest Features

With the smelt already starting their annual trek up the Jordan, everything is in readiness for the annual National Smelt Jamboree which will be held at East Jordan this Saturday, March 20th.

From the amount of inquiries received the last two weeks, indications are that all previous attendance records will be broken. All the nine previous States to be represented at the past jamborees are now on this year's inquiry record and inquiries have been received from three new states this year, viz: Pennsylvania, Colorado and Arkansas.

The celebration will get under way sharply at 1:00 p. m. and a continuous street program will be staged till time for the coronation. This program will include boxing acts, clown acts, Indian scenes and war dances. The lumbering scenes which proved so popular with the outside visitors last year, will again be repeated plus several additional interesting woodsmen feats.

Newago Newt will be there to handle his spitting contest and will also exhibit his famous spitting black cat, Tobias. Newt will also act as toastmaster at the stag banquet in the evening. A number of outdoor writers and celebrities have written, saying they will be on hand again for the affair.

The boardwalks are now completed so dippers will not need hip boots, as there is plenty of room on the walks to accommodate everybody. The dipping hours have been set up by the Jordan River Sportsmen's Club, and will be enforced by the Conservation officers. Regulations will be the same as last year: Dipping will start at 9:00 p. m. EST

FREE BAND CONCERT PROGRAM NEXT SUNDAY

Group of Nine Numbers to Be Presented in School Gym 4 p. m.

Another of the popular free band concerts will be presented under the direction of Max Smith, leader, at the high school gymnasium Sundsy afternoon.

The program, beginning at 4:00 o'clock, includes a group of nine numbers, one featuring a cornet solo by Leslie Shapton.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

KIWANIS CHARTER NIGHT OBSERVED

FINE PROGRAM ENJOYED HERE TUESDAY NIGHT

Friendly Delineation of P. T. Barnum Given by James Robertson, Kiwanis Lieut.-Gov.

Charlevoix Kiwanians observed their second anniversary of charter night Tuesday evening at the I. O. O. F. hall. It was also ladies' night and an exceptionally fine program was presented on the occasion.

Headlining the entertainment program was a friendly delineation of the personality of P. T. Barnum through the entertaining medium of a chalk talk by James Robertson of Sault Ste. Marine, Kiwanis Lieutenant-Governor.

Mr. Robertson's study of the "Prince of Humbugs," has brought him to picture Barnum as much of the gentleman, self-made and educated in a country store, but nevertheless more of the gentleman than he is pictured as a rule.

The speaker dealt with the showman's shrewd methods of bringing the public, in throngs, to his offernigs, often perpetrating a hoax yet somehow with an honesty that gave spectators the worth of their money. He told particularly of Barnum's service to the country, by the courage of his originality in such pioneering as establishing a tradition of fine music to the United States by bringing Jenny Lind here and in promoting his museum which was the forerunner of the Field Museum and the American Museum of Natural History.

Such of his offerings as Jumbo, the elephant, and Gen. Tom Thumb, have become by-words in the language, Mr. Robertson pointed out. He noted that the man who was a

LEGION WILL PRESENT "KNOCK OUT KOLLEGE"

Cast of Juvenile Stars in Production at Gym Friday Night

If advance notices and the words of those who huve seen the entertainment may be taken as an indication, Charlevoixans have a treat in store for them Friduy night.

Under auspices of the American Legion, Robinson's kiddie revue entitled "Knock Out Kollege," will be presented at the school gymnasium at 8:15 o'clock. The cast, pupils of the Robinson Danco Studio, of Traverso City, are children from three to 14 yeurs of age. The production, written and produced by Kittie and Eddie Robinson, has been shown successfully twice in Traverso City and last Friday evening at Grayling.

Among the speeial features are Gwenevere Royce, 11 years old, who tap dances on her hands and appears in an adagio number with Eddie Robinson and Don Vezina; Venina, who tap dances on stairs; GeorgeAnn Stowe, 10 years old, appesring in an oriental acrobatic number, and a Cuban dance featuring Eddie Robinson and Victoria Padoba.

Publicity notices from places where the production has been shown state that the young performers not only sing, dance und present gorgeous costumes, but they act.

ODD FELLOWS WIN CRIBBAGE HONORS

OVERCOME 569 POINT LEAD TO TAKE SERIES

First Victory for I. O. O. F. in Four Years of Play—Banquet to Be Held Next Monday Night

The lead which the Masons had held throughout the winter cribbage series with the Odd Fellows was completely overcome in the final contest Monday night, giving the series to the Odd Fellows by a margin of 202 points.

As the final session started the Masons held a lend of 569 points. The victory marked the first in four years for the Odd Fellows, as the Masons had won the series for three consecutive winters.

Monday night's team scores were 20,133 for the Odd Fellows and 19,461 for the Masons, a difference of 672 points. A committee of the two lodges tabulated the series scores Tuesday evening with the following results: Odd Fellows, 171,193 points; Masons, 170,991 points. Leaders in Monday night's scoring with Milo Todd with 951 points for the Odd Fellows, and Harold Withers with 954 points for the Masons.

The customary cribbage banquet, with the losers putting on the "feed" for the winners, will be held Monday evening, March 22nd, at the Masonic temple. The affair, winding up the winter cribbage series, will provide a program of entertainment in addition to the banquet.

NATURALIZATION EXAMINER COMING HERE ON MARCH 24

County Clerk Fenton R. Bulow has announced that a naturalization examiner will be at the court house at 3 o'clock. Wednesday afternoon, March 24th. All persons interested in matters of naturalization are invited to be present.

TOWNSHIPS NOMINATED AT CAUCUSES

SEVERAL PLACE TWO TICKETS FOR APRIL ELECTION

Nearly All Prasent Office Holders Given Favored Position on First Ticket

Indicating lively contests for offices at the April election, several townships adjacent to Charlevoix placed two tickets of Republican nominees in the field at caucuses held during the past week.

While present supervisors in practically every instance retained thoir favored positions by being placed on the first ticket, opposition was plentiful for almost every office and indicates the political interest in the townships.

Following are the results of the several caucuses:

Charlevoix Township

Ticket No. 1—Supervisor, Rudy C. Korth; clerk, Oscar Stroud; treasurer, Lota Coulter; justice of the peace, George Arnold; member board of review, Henry Stephan; highway commissioner, George Eaglcton.

Ticket No. 2—Clerk, Evn Lowis; justice of the peace, William H. Cook; member board of review, John Martin.

Norwood Township

Ticket No. 1—Supervisor, Orton VanDusen; clerk, Orville Hilton; treasurer, Harry Webster; highway commissioner, William Alward; justice of the peace, R. R. Farmer; member board of review, Ed. Gregory; constables, Alice Mayne, Hazel, Murray, Marie Hilton, Winnie VanDusen.

Hayes Township

Ticket No. 1—Supervisor, Howard Stephens; clerk, Zuls Struthers; treasurer, Hazel Evers; justice of the pence, Fred Willis; member bonrd of review, M. K. Chew.

Ticket No. 2—Supervisor, M. K. Chew; clerk, John Srigley; treasurer, David Smith; justice of the peace, T. J. Smith; member board of review, D. W. Srigley.

Marion Township

Supervisor, A. J. Bolhuis; clerk, Jay Adams; treasurer, August Cellner; highway commissioner, Sam Straw; justice of the peace, Jess Gregory; justice of the peace, Frank Matchett; member board of review, George Meggison.

STATE BAR IS AGAINST THE COURT PROPOSAL

Michigan Attorneys Vote 3 to 1 Against Supreme Court Measure

Lawyers in Michigan are opposed to President Roosevelt's plan to increase the membership of the federal supreme court by a ratio of more than three to one, according to results of the State Bar of Michigan poll.

Dean W. Kelley, of Lansing, chairman of the tellers' committee, said 3,405 ballots were marked "no" to 990 favoring the president's proposal. Soven of the 4,402 ballots returned were non-commital.

Ballots were mailed to all of the 5,838 lawyers in the state.

The question on the ballot was:

"Do you favor that portion of the president's proposal to Congress which would increase the membership of the United States supreme court?"

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

The ides of March this week, find the Michigan state legislature, much of the electorate, and thousands of industrial workers all on a "sit-down" strike.

Spring is scheduled to begin Saturday (March 20) but spring fever has already arrived.

The Legislature is still in low gear. Leaders had been hopeful that Governor Murphy's return from Florida—coincident almost with President Roosevelt's departure for the South—might open the gates for the civil service bill (Murphy's No. 1 "must").

The fresh epidemic of industrial "sit-down" strikes in Detroit and elsewhere put an end to this dreaming.

Voters "Sit Down" Too

Approach of the April elections this week found both parties—Democratic and Republican—hurrying candidates on speaking trips and pushing plans for an aggressive "get-out-the-vote" campaign.

However, a lazy indifference exists in the public mind at present, and it has Democratic chieftains frankly worried. There is no "F.D.R." to attract a big vote.

James F. Thomson, chairman of the Republican state central committee, was reported to be very pleased with prospects.

The nearest substitute for an "issue" was seen in the newly introduced appeal by Democratic candidates for election of "liberal" justices to the state supreme court so that Murphy's "Little New Deal" might not be invalidated.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Hinebauch spent Thursday evening at the Lloyd Black home.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Gebelyou visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Pagel of Petoskey Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Ingalls and son of Detroit, are spending a few days with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Cram.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Withers, Mr. and Mrs. Jule Gullds and daughter June spent Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. A. Cellner and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Withers entertained thirty of their friends to a dinner Saturday evening in honor of Mr. Withers' birthday. A good time was had by all.

Many of the people of this vicinity attended the funeral of Robert Gregory at Barnard Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. James Cook called on Mrs. Alex Holmes Sunday afternoon.

CENTRAL LAKE

Regular March weather. Sunshine, then clouds, then snow, all in one day.

We are enjoying the trip of the Ushers in the southland. Hope they won't hurry back, but take their time to it.

Miss Lucile Drew has returned to Petoskey Hospital where she underwent a successful operation for appendicitis.

The maple sugar weather has been rather discouraging thus far. Some say we will get a late season, others that we will have a short one.

James Dawson, sons Edward and John, made a business trip to Traverse City Saturday to sell vegetable oysters of which they have quite a supply.

Revival meetings are continuing at the Pentecostal church with fourteen conversions and twenty talking in tongues. There were 69 at Sunday school last Sunday.

Harry Mason and Ezra made a trip to Bellaire last Monday and got their car license of Raymond Sexton who is now license clerk. Homer Loper accompanied them.

Andy Dunsmore reports that his son Harry, who went from Howell to Ann Arbor for treatment, is improving a little again. He was ordered not to do any talking until his throat was better.

The little shingle mill north of Eastport, run by Roy Kane of Charlevoix, is being stocked up by patrons of the surrounding neighborhood and when it starts up again will finish the season's run, so everyone is hustling in their shingle timber.

Mrs. Frank Brown's relatives who came up to see her, returned last week. She had a number of cards written to her relatives Monday telling them that she was very ill. This is Mrs. Frank Brown of Eastport. She certainly has the sympathy of many here.

Mr. Patterson has a large crew of men out on the streets of Central Lake this week putting in the waterworks on the north end of town. This is a project, being partly paid by the village and partly by the government. It has been hanging fire since last summer.

The meeting of the people of this part of the county to talk over hiring a veterinary for the county, was held at Eastport Glenner hall last Monday afternoon. The plan is for each farmer to pay in about $5.50 membership fee, and a certain amount per animal, amounting in all to about $8 or $12 a year. In this way all members get four services free a year, and up to about three emergency calls. Gradually things are getting arranged for medical help for the livestock. Perhaps in a few years human beings will be given as much considerntion, and poor people will be able to get free help for medical treatment, and dentistry work done and glasses furnished. Many are losing their teeth, and many going blind for want of this help. Attorney Thomas Meggison always claimed that he thought that people should have help as well as livestock, and were due just as much considerntion. It may come to pass some day.

At the Democratic caucus, we should have said, Guy Watkins was nominated for township clerk. At the Republican township caucus held last Saturday, the following were nominated, the caucus being called by Chairmon Art Knowles: Supervisor, Huston Ruggles; clerk, Moses King; treasurer, Mrs. Ona Vandenberg; justices, Hoanog and Bob Watson; highway com., Dick DeForest; board of review member, Sydney Dawson. We wish we were as sure of the state going Republican as we are of Central Lake township.

NORWOOD

Maple syrup making will soon begin in our locality.

Harris Pierce and son Carroll made a business trip to Bellaire Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Merril Richardson and their son Milton motored to Petoskey Monday.

Joseph Faculak of Lansing, is spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Faculak.

Rev. Cermak and the presiding elder will conduct church services Sunday evening at the church in Norwood.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Publow and son John returned from a ten-day delightful vacation trip last Friday evening.

Mrs. Frank Richardson returned to her home Saturday after spending ten days at the Charlevoix Hospital where she underwent an appendix operation. She is getting along nicely.

Mrs. Plenny Genett left Saturday morning with Mr. and Mrs. Ortin Van Dusen for a two weeks' visit to Detroit. Mrs. Genett expects to visit her niece and nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Whitney and family and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Genett of Flint.

Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Baumbach entertained twelve of their relatives and friends at their home Saturday evening at a progressive pedro party. Mrs. Mart Saunders and Oscar Ward were winners of the first prize and Mrs. Krulik and I. L. Dice won the consolation prizes. The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Mart Saunders of Ironton, Mr. and Mrs. Baker of Harbor Springs, Mrs. Krulik of Charlevoix. Delightful refreshments were served by the hostess and her three daughters, Misses Beatrice, Grace and Ruth Baumbach, after which music and tap dancing was enjoyed.

BARNARD

Some of our farmers are taking logs to the Blanchard saw mill east of Phelps.

Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Paddock have moved back to the farm after having spent the winter in Charlevoix.

The Ladies' Aid meeting at the Howard Gornell home was enjoyed by the small number present. The day was spent in piecing a quilt.

The Home Economics club is meeting this week with Mrs. Norman Wells. The lesson to be presented by the leaders: "Vitamins, Vim and Vitality."

The Bay Shore play, "Down on the Farm," will be given here next week instead of this week, Thursday as formerly planned. Watch for announcements.

The sudden passing of one of our oldest residents, Robert Gregory, was a shock to all. The funeral was at Barnard and interment in the Barnard cemetery. The bereaved family have the sincere sympathy of all their friends.

Another shock to this community was the sudden death of Mrs. Albert Holmes at her winter home in Port Orange, Fla. She was a longtime resident of Barnard and will be sadly missed by all her friends who hereby extend the bereaved husband, brother and sisters their heartfelt sympathy.

ROCK ELM

Darius Shaw called on Jesse Lawton Sunday afternoon.

Those from this neighborhood who have been dipping smelt report good success.

Lawrence Jensen and Victor LaCroix have finished putting up their ice for this season.

Mrs. Norton passed away at her farm home here Saturday morning. Her death was not wholly unexpected as she had been an invalid for several years. She leaves a husband, and two daughters besides other relatives and friends who will miss her. Funeral services were conducted from Watson's funeral rooms in East Jordan at 10:30 Tuesday morning.

Removing an .... Unneeded Restraint

Congress is debating the Pettengill bill which, in substance, would permit the railroads to compete with intercoastal steamships.

The clause of the Interstate Commerce law which the bill would repeal was perhaps once beneficial, but has become restrictive.

No like prohibition governs the railroads' land, air and water competitors, and none is contemplated for them. It applies to the rails alone, with the original need for it non-existent—imposing a handicap on them while it confers advantages on their competitors.

Repeal of this clause will hurt no one; will make lower rail rates eventually not improbable; will create an additional 100,000 railroad jobs.

Nor will it reduce the ICC's powers; or enable the rails to charge rates that are unreasonable or unduly low so as to eliminate competition, or to raise rates if competition did disappear.

The bill is favored by great bodies of shippers, by trade organizations, by the railroads and railroad labor. It is opposed by steamship interests and coastal industries who would retain unfair advantages over inland competitors.

America's railroads face the most unprecedented competition in their history. Unneeded restraints, like this obsolete clause, should be removed that the lines may better be able reasonably, and legally, to compete.

Michigan, and its railroads, will benefit from the repeal. Support for the Pettengill bill should be asked of the State's delegation in Congress.

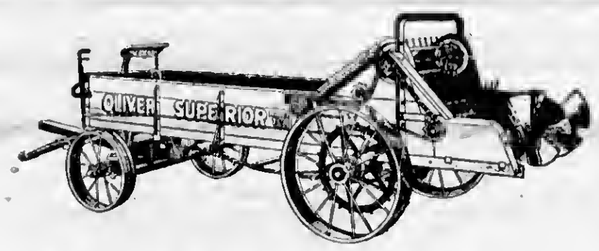
The Spreader with Seven Different Spreading Rates



4 to 28 loads per acre—that's the wide range you have with the Oliver Superior Spreader! You can change the rate of spread instantly from the driver's seat—from the lightest top dressing to the heaviest. And the manure will be finely cut and distributed evenly.

A 2-horse team pulls the 75-A Spreader easily, it turns in a 14½-foot circle, and it's built low. It is handy to get in and out of barns or sheds, close to manure piles, and to make sharp turns through gates.

An Oliver will do your spreading job more handily and at a smaller cost. It's long-lived too, because it is spring hung and straight steel sills keep all parts properly aligned.

Seventy miles! They seemed to fall on her heart like so many separate blows. Was somebody driving Ariel seventy miles home tonight? What was she doing away from home? Where did Phil and Edith think she was? Perhaps Phil and Edith were dead. . . .

Perhaps they were scouring the town for Ariel, telephoning Dorothy, telephoning the Lovelaces! And she not there!

"Pupa told us to take care of the children! And little Ariel, that Mother only stayed with four days—!

"And what does Ariel know about danger? Nothing. She's a baby. Men think she's pretty, and it amuses her. She never dreams. . . .

"Oh, my G—d! Where is she now?"

It was impossible that 12 hours must pass before she could be home again and know the worst. Hours—hours! They proved to be the longest through which she had ever lived.

Vaguely, secondary things penetrated the flaming wall of thought that shut her in. She realized, alone in her comfortable cabin room, that she was not going to sleep.

Ariel! Ariel! Ariel!

She walked out under the redwoods just as dawn began to paint the western face of the canyon with streaks of vermillion.

Then she must have gone back and flung herself on her bed and fallen asleep, for she was awakened by the other girls' laughter and voices at ten, and roused herself, stiff and half sick, with heavy eyes and chilled wet feet. She crept down to the main cabin for breakfast only anxious to avoid notice, to secure the earliest possible escape for home.

They were all going up to San Mateo, for it appeared that Van was to take the place of a missing polo player; every one was very much excited about the game.

But she was in a fever to get home. Van's arguments, his pleading, fell on deaf ears. Ariel perhaps murdered, Phil and Edith crushed with terror and doubt, and they wanted her to go to San Mateo and applaud the chukkers of a polo game!

In the end she had her way, and was established in the roomy empty back of a big closed car. Van saw her off reproachfully.

"You piker!"

"I know it." She smiled a sickly smile at the handsome boy.

"Why don't you stay and swim, anyway. It's noon; you'll cook—driving home through the valley!"

"I can't. I promised Ariel—"

"Oh, Ariel nothing! Listen, I got one good look at your little sister, and I want to tell you something! She can manage her own affairs."

Her face, already pale with heat and emotion, grew whiter.

"How d'you mean you—you saw Ariel?"

"Why—" He looked at her in puzzled surprise. "Why, she was at your house that Sunday night, two weeks ago."

He had not seen her at Mockerson's then! Gail sank back.

"Come on, have a change of heart, and let's swim! And then we'll go up to San Mateo."

His laughter, the grip of his big brown hand, would have been irresistible twenty-four hours ago. But Gail was hardly conscious of them now. Absently, apologetically, she persisted, said her farewells.

The world that was all pleasure—swimming, bridge, polo, tennis, frocks, trips—closed behind her as a pool closes over a stone.

She would be home before three o'clock. She must be patient. She would be rushing into the old house—and what a haven of rest and coolness and ease it would be!—at three o'clock. She would find Phil there, haggard and wild, Edith stricken, Sam making frightful suggestions about dragging the river and notifying the police.

"We Lawrences can never hold up our heads after this again," she thought. Not that it mattered, if Ariel, frightened and sobered, were home, were safe!

Thirty miles more! Her face was burned by the hot wind, and her head splitting. Twenty miles—ten miles. The big gas tank came into view, the red mills, the canneries, and finally the swimming treetops of Clippersville, from which dazzling lines arose like hairs of white fire.

Gail's heart was suffocating her. She said only incoherent farewells, as she descended from the back seat into the heavenly green shadiness of the old garden, and catching up her heavy suitcase ran for the side door.

On the threshold of the quiet, shaded kitchen she stopped short. Edith was sharing a light refection of artichokes and bread pudding with a book, "Martin Chuzzlewit." Ariel, dainty and cool, was sitting at the other end of the kitchen table, cleaning gloves in gasoline.

For a moment revulsion of feeling made Gail feel actually dizzy and weak. But if Ariel saw anything amiss her smile of surprise and welcome gave no sign of it, and Edith's delight covered all other emotions for a space.

"Oh, Gail, we didn't expect you until suppertime! Oh, darling, did you have a good time? Was it fun? I've been thinking and thinking—but you've not had lunch!"

Edith was in her arms, was racing about the kitchen eagerly, mixing iced tea, taking rolls from the old black Japanned bread box. Ariel got up from the table to come and bestow one of her strange kisses. Gail, seated, her hat pushed off her damp, pale forehead, felt that she was still in the dream, and that things had shifted themselves about on all sides, strangely, as they did in dreams.

"But tell us, tell us, tell us!" Edith pleaded.

"And what'd you do last night?" Gail could finally ask, when the swimming pool, the frocks, and the general excitement of Far Niente had been pretty generally reviewed.

"Ariel was with Dorothy Camp. So the boys and I had to console each other!"

Gail gave Ariel her big sisterly, sympathetic smile.

"Was that fun?" she asked, feeling that it was somebody else talking, that it was all a part in a play—in one of their Sunday night charades.

"Fun! They stayed at the Fairmont," said the eager Edith.

"Oh, did you, baby?"

"We went to a movie," Ariel supplied.

Then—then the girl at Mockerson's wasn't Ariel? Or else . . . Gail's first impulse to tell her sisters of her sickness and fright died away. She dared not risk that yet.

Peace and shadiness held the kitchen. Ariel was expecting some boy friend for supper; Edith was going to walk over to Mrs. Appleby's at five o'clock to ask about the fiesta dresses; Sam was working; Phil had said that he must go to the office.

"Which I shrewdly suspect is Thomas Street hill!" Edith confessed ruefully.

Home. The infinite peacefulness of it! Gail, looking at Ariel, could not believe that her feverish, frightened suspicions of last night had any basis whatever. This was all reassuring, all soothing.

It was not believable that this innocent child of seventeen, in the blue organdy, had upon her mind any secret as disgraceful as a midnight escapade at Mockerson's.

But as soon as they had an opportunity to speak to each other alone, Gail went straight to the point.

"Ariel, did you ever hear of a road-house called Mackerson's?"

The blond head, with its drift of fly-away gold hair, came up like a flash. And Gail knew.

Ariel shrugged slightly, wary eyes on Gail's face.

"Yep," she admitted briefly.

Then there was a long silence. Ariel's eyes met her sister's.

"Some of us went over from the Chipp ranch," Gail said, returning the steady gaze. "What were you doing there, Ariel?"

The tone was dispassionate, quiet. But Gail's breast rose and fell once, on a heavy sigh.

"What—what you were, if you were there and saw me, I suppose!" Ariel blurted, in a tone that was meant to be bold and turned out merely trembling and frightened.

Gail took the shock without a sign, going on patiently.

"Who were you with, dear?"

"Oh, don't dear me!" protested Ariel, in sudden ugliness. "You know you think I'm a lost soul, and you're going to tell Phil, and stir up all sorts of trouble."

She stopped fiercely, as Gail merely sat, silent. From vague worry and apprehension about Ariel, suddenly the whole fearful danger had sprung upon her. This morning it had been no more than fear; now it was full knowledge.

"You weren't in San Francisco with the Camps, then?"

"Oh, yes, I was! We went down from there."

"Where was Mrs. Camp?"

"She had to go to San Rafael. She left us at the Fairmont."

"Just you two girls? Did she know you went out that night?"

"We didn't tell her—no."

There was a pause. Then Gail said, "Ariel, I can't believe it!"

"You were there," Ariel offered accusingly.

"Oh, I know it!" Gail covered her face with her hands.

For the first time the younger sister seemed a little impressed, and she spoke in a lower tone, a tone that had some hint of huskiness or of apology in it.

"If it makes it any—better, we all thought that was a horrible place and that we'd never go there again!"

"You haven't been there before?" Ariel could even laugh.

"Oh, goodness, no! We just happened, we happened— Here, I'll tell you how it was!" She leaned forward, locking her hands about her knees. "Mrs. Camp and Dorothy were going in to the city on the ten o'clock yesterday morning, to do some shopping and stay overnight, because Mrs. Camp wanted to hear some one preaching at church this morning. See? So they asked me to go, and Mrs. Camp was going to see her aunt in San Rafael, so she said that Dot and I could have lunch together, and go see a movie. Well, at about five we were back at the hotel cleaning up, and she telephoned and said that her aunt was so sick she was going to stay in San Rafael, and we could get four Orpheum seats and ask two boys to go with us. So we were sort of telephoning around for boys, and we got Buddy Raisch and his roadster. Well, that was about all there was to it! Buddy said we could get a grand shore dinner at Mockerson's about ten, if we went to the movie first. But I didn't realize it was forty miles away, and that it would be so foggy."

The horror that had held Gail in a vise since midnight of the night before began to loosen and fade; she could breathe again.

"So you went back to the Fairmont?"

"Certainly we did!"

"What time did you get there?"

"About one."

Gail reflected a few minutes, the heavy dark Lawrence brows drawn together in a frown.

"Ariel, you're only seventeen. Do you think men respect a girl who goes about with them at all hours of night, unchaperoned, to places like that? Don't you want men to respect you?" she asked.

"I want to have a good time," Ariel said simply. "Men aren't looking for good, pure, womanly women these days, and don't you fool yourself that they are, Gail! Men want girls to run around with them, and not to be afraid of being kissed—"

"Stop, you make me sick!" the older sister said sharply.

"Well, it's true. How many men do you know who are going after girls like Ede—paying calls, discussing Ideals? Not one!"

"And you think," Gail began, warming, "you think you can build a lovely, dignified married life on running around to places like Mockerson's?"

"No, I don't," Ariel responded promptly, in the pause. "But I say it's the only way you can have a good time, and I want to live, while I'm young!"

"Just the same, you're not right, Ariel," Gail persisted. "Honor is what—well, what it always was—and dignity and self-control. If we turn ourselves into animals, we only have to work our way back to decency, sooner or later. Gluttony in food isn't any more expensive than—than developing appetites for—for—other things—"

"I know what you mean," Ariel relieved her briefly.

COMMUNICATION

Dear Mr. Usher:

Because of the fact that several persons have not been certified for N. Y. A. employment by the relief office I believe it will be well if you could arrange to publish the present rules for N. Y. A. certification and the connection which the relief office has with N. Y. A. activities.

To begin with the relief office has no connection with N. Y. A. except as the persons to work on N. Y. A. must be certified by the relief office. Several weeks ago an instruction letter came through which made it possible to certify persons for this work who are not on relief, and in order to provide employment for as many as possible certifications were made in several instances where no relief need was apparent.

This has resulted in some criticism because some persons were working and some others were not, and in order to straighten the matter out definitely the W. P. A. office in Cheboygan was asked to give us a definite recommendation to be used in Charlevoix county.

The employment manager of the W. P. A. office in Cheboygan has recomended to the writer that no persons be certified for N. Y. A. employment unless they are from families on relief. This, of course, will result in quite a few cancellations of persons already certified. These cancellations are being sent to the W. P. A. office today. It will be necessary for any person desiring N. Y. A. employment to apply for relief and be declared eligible after a regular relief investigation.

Yours very truly,
Charlevoix County Emergency Relief Administration, Harold F. Lamb, Administrator.

The monthly tea meeting of the Pilgrim Circle of the Congregational Ladies'Aid Society will be held Friday, March 12, at the home of Mrs. James McGeagh on Dixon avenue. The date has been advanced because the usual date comes during Holy Week.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church meets at the home of Mrs. Ed. Burns, 503 Alice street, on Tuesday, March 23. A potluck dinner will be served at one o'clock. The meeting is scheduled ns an important one and all members are urged to be present.

Mrs. Ed. Davey was honored with a handkerchief shower on the occasion of her birthday anniversary Saturday. The guests included Mesdames John Bugbee, J. Prevost, Henry Wagner, Harry Powers, R. J. Nowland, Miles Olmstead, Edmond Bogart, Claude Davey, Snm King, N. Shores, Conrad Sternberg and Garnell, also Miss Virginia Bogart. Cards were enjoyed and prizes were won by Mrs. Harry Powers, Miss Bogart and Mrs. N. Shores.

The young people's group of the Congregational church entertained a similar group from the Presbyterian church at East Jrodan last Sunday evening. After a half hour of devotional service, the entire group of about sixty went to the dining room for a short social period. Following refreshments, Earl A. Young showed motion pictures of his recent trip to California. Rev. Sidebotham, pastor of the East Jordan church, and Mrs. Sidebotham accompanied the young people. The tima was very profitably spent and it is hoped thnt more of these meetings can be held.

One major party is reported to be spending $16,000 on billboards for the spring political campaign.

The Senate highways committee, headed by Senator George W. Weadock, reported favorably the Lamoreaux billboard restriction bill, sponsored by the Federation of Michigan Garden Clubs. The state would assess a tax of $5 for each billboard erected in Michigan.

Cherry Crop

A favorable spring may make the cherry crop in Michigan one of the biggest in years, so say the horticulturists. There was no large carryover of canned goods for the coming year, and with food prices already spiraling, the outlook is encournging.

Price Fixing

Fixed commodity prices through contract agreements between wholesalers and manufacturers and retailers would be legalized in Michigan, if a bill introduced by Representative Mervin W. Tomlin, of Port Huron, becomes a law. The measure was reported favornbly by the House state affairs committee.

Designed after a fair trade law now effective in California and held constitutional by the United States supreme court, the Michigan bill would destroy much of the existing competition between retailers in the sale of any article which bears the name or brand of the producer.

Farm Federation Opposes

At Washington a similar measure known nt the Tydings bill, would loosen the anti-trust laws by legalizing price-fixing of goods in interstate commerce.

The Farm Bureau Federation opposes the Tydings bill . . . declaring that farmers are denied price fixing for their products.

Ever since the NRA days of price control, groups of business men have hankered for its return, while farmers have consistently opposed it. Michigan's Tomlin bill faces a real legislative buttle.

Curdled by Neglect

The traditional milk of human kindness becomes curdled at times by petty neglect.

Outrnged by a farmer's ndmitted cruelty to animals, a justice at Coopersville recently assessed a fine of $10 and costs of $13. The defendnnt, William Dubois, permitted a cow to freeze to death. Two horses, another cow nnd some chickens nlso suffered from the cold at his fnrm.

In Detroit a judge senteneed Morris Wolfe, 70, to 15 days in jail or pay n fine of $30 following testimony he permitted a horse to languish near death on a floor of a garage with neither bedding nor attention for 56 hours.

What Price Cruelty?

We eonsider such treatment of dumb animals to be brutal . . . sbocking.

Yet weigh Michigan's welfare treatment of old people, as recently brought to the attention of the State Legislature by Representative Elton Eaton, of Plymouth.

To qualify for an old uge pension, aged people are compelled under the present law to make this choice: "Mortgage your homestead . . . deed it over to the state . . . or starve!"

When old age pensions become a right rather than a privilege, this practice will be stopped.

Booming, Lusty Trailer

A new offshoot of the automobile industry in Michigan is the booming, lusty trailer business. Throughout the state fuetories are humming. Babson's prediction of America living on wheels is apparently "en route."

Detroit health authorities are perturbed, however, over the development of "trailer colonies" — yearround camps in which entire families live, eat and sleep. Trailer dwellers have formed a Mobile Home Owners' Association . . . are insisting upon their rights.

Last week, just east of Paw Paw on US-12, Bert M. Smith, of Goodrich, was driving Florida-bound with a trailer in tow. Fire started in an overheated stove. State troopers pulled the trailer into a nearby field where it burned.

Insurance men will see new sales possibilities in this minor incident. The traller is bringing both problems and opportunities.

Winter Bathing Suit?

Fashion controversy.

In Munising an enterprising committee publicized its winter queen decked out in a summer bathing suit. The result was a catchy photograph, for the girl was very attractive (figuratively speaking).

At Gladstone the editor of the Delta Reporter raises the question. "It's admittedly none of our business," says Joe Sturgeon, "but you can't enjoy winter sports unless you're decked out for comfort and that bathing suit just don't 'fit' in Munising or anywhere else in this great north country."

Pruning Demonstration aod Fruit Meeting Will Interest Local Fruit Men

All fruit men will be glad of the opportunity to spend a little time in studying the fruit situation. Each year attention should be given to the proper care of the orchard. The damage from the very severe winter some three years ago are still apparent in every orchard. Many fruit men nre somewhat uncertnin as to the proper treatment of many trees.

Two pruning demonstrations have been arranged for Thursday, March 25. The first will be held at the farm of Lawrence Jensen on Thursday morning at 10:00 a. m. The second will be at Frank Wangeman's on Thursday afternoon, Mureh 25, at 1:30 p. m. In addition to these two demonstrations an evening meeting will be held in the basement of the East Jordan library on Wednesday night, March 24. This meeting hns been especially developed to diseuss the price situation, the matter of spraying, and cultural practices fnr best results. Also, if you have any particular problems regarding your fruit progress, be sure to bring them up. Attention will be given to small frults such as raspberries and strawberries, so whatever your interests are it will pay you to attend this meeting as well as your nearest pruning demonstration.

How these Scotch stories do persist. We heard about a citizen of the he-land cnlling at a store recently and buying a small traveling case.

"Shall I wrap it up?" asked the clerk.

"Nae, just put the paper and string inside," was the immediate answer.

STRIKES AND SPARES

By Lyle Miles

The Troyer team was in for a little surprise Monday night. The Chamber of Commerce team gave them a nice licking. Some fun—I'll say! George Glados and "Doc" Todd both reached the 100's. Did George chew his elgar! After losing two out of three games to "Buck" Seymour, "Shorty" Sternberg was heard to say he was satisfied but not contented. I wonder what he meant. Speaking of Buck, he has slipped back to his old "nine a frame" habit again. Methinks he'll take a bite out of one of the balls if he doesn't get a mark once in u while. Our "200" club is increasing. Warren Phillips and "Shorty" Sternberg have moved in with the big shots. "Tat" McCall and Gene Supernaw come in for a "throwing bee" every now and then. They can knock down the pins too. By the way, girls, when nre you going to take a good healthy crack at the women's alley record? The present one's been up there too long.

Here's one I heard the other day: When Dr. Saltonstall bowls he glares knives at the pins and then cuts loose. What an operation!

I think I'd better do somo cutting myself, so I'll cut this short. G'by now.

"Under the Knife," a new murder-mystery story which introduces a new kind of interesting character, a girl detective - reporter, starts in next Sunday's Detroit News. Be sure to read this thriller by the famous Erle Stanley Gardner, outstanding author of mystery fiction, in This Week the magazine with the Sunday Detroit News.

Ford V-8 Stake Truck Popular

ONE of the most widely used Ford V-8 truck units is the 157-inch Stake Truck. The 1937 unit, powered with the improved 85 horsepower V-8 engine, is shown above. It has a load space 142 inches long and 82 inches wide. Stake sections, held rigidly together with interlocking plates, may be quickly and easily removed. The hinged center sections can be swung out for side loading. Name panels are carried on the forward sections. The all-steel cab with steel top is equipped with safety glass and fitted with clear-vision ventilation, cowl ventilator and windsbield that opens. Interleaf spring lubrication, full floating rear axle and deep rugged frame are chassis features. Low first cost, economy on gasoline and oil, and minimum cost for repairs and depreciation make this a popular unit for all types of hauling.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT BULLETIN

Personal Health

Personal health lags behind community health. The individual is by no means as efficient in running his own health department as the city service is in running the community health department.

There are a number of factors in personal hygiene which much serve as guideposts to the individual who desires to run an efficient machine. The University of Michigan health service has outlined a number of such personal health factors which it thought of sufficient importance to call to the attention of entering students. These are regarded as essential factors of the personal health.

The Health Service suggests that healthy, long-lived ancestors should concern young people in mate selection. For this purpose it is important to exercise the intelligence as well as the emotions when it comes to the question of mate selection.

Nutrition should always be generous, emphasis being put on the use of milk, leafy vegetables and fruits. For the best interest of the infant the mother should give the baby breast feeding as it is of very great importance and never should be neglected unless death or the illness of the mother prevents. A daily bowel movement without the use of drugs or unnatural methods is desirable.

The individual should get vigorous, outdoor exercise daily, preferably in the sunshine. He should sleep about nine hours daily in a cool, ventilated room. Indoor conditions generally should provide n temperature of 68 degrees Fahrenheit and plenty of light.

Everyone should demand of himself a high standard of cleanliness—cleanliness of the skin, the hair, the nails and the clothes. Baths should be taken often but prolonged hot baths are objectionable. Individual towels nnd individual drinking cups will help prevent the spread of disense.

Frequent cleaning, dental inspection and a diet of milk, vegetables and fruit are the means necessary to regulate the condition of the teeth. Dead teeth are often dangerous and a person with n dead tooth in his mouth should have X-ray assurance thnt there is no infection. Milk, vegetables nnd fruit in the mother's diet before childbirth influence for the better the kind of teeth the child will have.

In case of sickness, the consideration of the other people justifies one's isolation as the excretions spread by careless coughing, sneezing and spitting can thus be controlled. As a preventive measure the discreet person is immunized against such diseases as diphtheria, scarlet fever, smallpox and typhoid.

The periodic health examination is the best check a person has on his health. Such an examination with careful attention to defects offers a most hopeful means of promoting and preserving health.

"Occident Flour makes a very good bread dough and easy to handle. The bread was tasty and had a nice rich crust. My family certainly likes it."

"Used the straight dough method when making white bread with Occident Flour. It had a very fine texture, good crust, and golden brown color."

"Bread I baked with Occident Flour was delicious and a nice even brown all over. I used a wood oven to bake it in . . . never tasted such good bread."

(FROM USERS' LETTERS)

"It's so easy to bake fine bread and rolls with Occident. I never made so many kinds of bread in so short a time and all of such uniform quality. My family remarked about the exceptionally good flavor and the lightness of the bread and rolls."

GET CHANGED TO OIL-PLATING

Spring's here, but let's not put any loud "new suits" on all the old oil bogeymen. After all, botherless engine lubrication gets down to a few calm facts that are facts.

No. 1 . . . You want to be certain that your engine doesn't grind every time you start, while oil is "coming up" from below. Oil-Plating, produced only by Conoco Germ Processed oil, can never lose time "coming up," because it's already there! For the patented Germ Process creates such a powerful attraction between oil and metal that the inside of your engine becomes Oil-Plated. And you know that platings aren't runny, but stay up in place. That's the way Oil-Plating will stay up to ward off all the worst starting wear you ever heard of.

And No. 2 . . . Whether you've got a "good old car" or the latest thing, you want to make any driving schedule without being nervous about the heat indicator and the oil level. You can easily keep them where they belong. This is exactly why: the Germ Process creates a far stronger normal type of oil film and then checks friction still further by means of modern Oil-Plating—entirely extra . . . exclusive to Conoco Germ Processed oil. MRS. ALBERT HOLMES FUNERAL ON SATURDAY

Services 2 p. m. from Congregational Church—Burial at Barnard

Funeral services for Mrs. Albert Holmes, who died suddenly at her winter home in Port Orange, Fla., on Friday, March 5th, after an illness of a few hours, will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Congregational church.

Rev. G. R. Parker will officiate and interment will be at Barnard cemetery.

Mabel Steveas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Stevens, was born August 28, 1881, at their farm home in Marion township, now known as the H. L. Francisco farm. Here she spent her entire early life.

On October 10, 1912, she was united in marriage to Anthony B. Clark, also of Marion township. They resided upon their farm until his death on January 5, 1929. At that time she disposed of her farm and made her home with her sisters.

In September 1933, she married Albert Holmes of this city. Since that time they had spent their summers at their Clinton street residence and winters in Port Orange, Fla.

For many years Mrs. Holmes was a member of the Methodist church at Barnard and took an active part in all the church organizations. She and her husband were always responsible for the musical part of the church work and were also called upon from surrounding communities to furnish music.

Upon her marriage to Mr. Holmes, she joined, with her husband and family, the Congregational church. Her Christianity was evidenced not alone in church membership, but in a life of service in whatever community she was making her home.

Surviving besides her husband are sisters, Mrs. Nellie McElroy and Mrs. Reed Genett of Bellaire, Mrs. Rolland Maddock of East Jordan, Miss Lela Stevens of Marion township; a brother, Charles H. Stevens of Marion; a stepson, Ivan Holmes, this city; also twelve nieces and nephews.

Card of Thanks

I wish to express my sincere appreciation to friends, also the nurses at Charlevoix Hospital, for the kindnesses shown during my illness and confinement at Charlevoix Hospital. Mrs. Frank Richardson, Charlevoix, Route 1.—Adv. 11t1pd.

CONSERVATION CAMP ENROLLMENT APRIL 1

Interested Youths Should Contact ERA Office in Charlevoix

Harold Lamb, administrator of the Charlevoix County Welfare Commission, has announced that there will be a general enrollment for CCC camp about April 1, or shortly thereafter.

The rules for eligibility are briefly: a boy must be single, in good health, between the ages of 17 and 28 and from a needy family. Boys who have been in CCC camp before are eligible for enrollment providing they received an honorable discharge and have been out for one year or more.

Any boys interested in going to CCC camp should get in touch with the Charlevoix ERA office as soon as possible.

EARLY BIRDS LAY PROFITABLE EGGS

It's going to be the early bird or baby chick this year that is going to lay the most profitable eggs, if a look at egg prices, egg storage figures and dressed poultry storages and prices offers any reliable indications.

lecturer on temperance and on the art of making money, was also "the greatest showman the world has known" and a leader in the industry of amusement on which the American public spent 20 billion dollars, even in the depression years.

Carl Spitler, superintendent of Petoskey schols, who was lieutenant governor when the Charlevoix club was formed, spoke briefly, and excellent musical numbers were given by Rev. John Alexander and Max Smith, the latter school band director.

Coach Ray Kipke and members of Charlevoix's basketball teams were guests of the evening. They were presented by Robert Bridge.

The program will go down on the records as one of the most enjoyable local Kiwanians have had.

each evening and will be at fifteen-minute intervals continuous throughout the night. The 9:00 o'clock dipping hour should enable the smelt to get well into the river before the opening gun. Long-handled wire nets are of a necessity because of the depth of water and the strong current of the Jordan. Nets can be rented there at a minimum charge, with the usual deposit fee to cover cost in case of losing net.

With warmer weather due, the run should increase to its full strength by Saturday. The Jordan run usually lasts about a month. Last year the first smelt were dipped March 18th and the last were dipped April 20th.

KEY TO DAIRYING IN WISE FEEDING

Eleven years of records on the cost of feeding cows summer and winter to produce 100 pounds of milk has convinced A. C. Baltzer, extension dairyman at Michigan State College, that a six months pasture program and a system of low cost winter feeding is a necessary background for dairy profits in Michigan.

BOARD COMMERCE PROGRAM STARTED

NEWSPAPER CAMPAIGN BRINGING FINE RESULTS

Visit Here in July of Lake Michigan Yachting Assn. Cruiser Fleet Assured in Chicago

Definite steps in its program of activities for 1937 have already been taken by the Charlevoix Board of Commerce, and as definite results achieved.

On Saturday evening of last week, President Harold Hollett, of the Board, and Clair Webster, vice commodore of the Charlevoix Marine Club, attended a meeting and banquet of the cruise committee of the Lake Michigan Yachting Association at the rooms of the Chicago Sportsmen's Club in that city. Both local men addressed the meeting, at which some 75 representative yachtsmen were present, and extended to the members of the association a cordial invitation to make Charlevoix the terminal port for their annual summer cruise.

This invitation was gladly accepted by the committee, who were largely influenced by the fact that answers to questionnaires sent out by it to member yachtsmen indicated a preference for Charlevoix over four other competing ports. It might be explained that each year the association sponsors a cruise, taking a different route and establishing a different terminus for the cruise each time. This year, some 40 vessels will come direct to Charlevoix across the lake from Green Bay. They should arrive here at some time during the week of July 24.

The Charlevoix representatives told the committeemen about the new mooring slips planned to be built this spring in Round Lake, and presented the advantages and facilities of the city's natural harbor. They also invited members of the cruise to take part in the Venetian Night parade, the date of which will be set to suit the convenience of the visitors. More details regarding this cruise will be available when the plans of the Yachting Association's committee are formulated and the Board of Commerce receives its advices.

Advertisements of Charlevoix, placed by the advertising committee of the Board of Commerce, appeared in newspapers of Chicago, Cincinnati, Toledo, Kansas City, Detroit, Louisville, St. Louis and Indianapolis last week and the week before. During the past week, some 40 inquiries directly traceable to these advertisements have been received by Gordon Todd, activities director of the Board, from persons desiring accommodations at Charlevoix during the summer months. Mr. Todd reports the purchase of 20,000 new descriptive folders for 1937, and some 3,000 of these have already been sent out to lists of selected names and in answer to inquiries. He also asks Charlevoix people who have cottages or rooms to rent this summer, to list them at the information bureau, as has been the custom in years past. Complete, detailed information regarding these will enable the activities director and his assistant to establish contact between owner and renter.

JERSEY BREEDERS WILL MEET HERE MARCH 29TH

American Jersey Cattle Club Representative at Local Court House

Breeders of Jersey cattle in this section of the state are invited to attend an all-day meeting to be held at the court house here at 10 o'clock on Monday, March 29.

H. E. Dennison, field man for the American Jersey Cattle Club, will be present to discuss a program for the year. Through Mr. Dennison's efforts, five very successful Jersey Parish shows have been held in Michigan. Such a plan is to be proposed here.

Each exhibitor, according to the plan, must have a good production record back of their stock before they can be shown. Each county in the district is eligible to make a display and to compete with other counties. The premiums are pro-rated back equally, based on the distance to the show. This idea has been very favorably received by producers.

It is hoped and desired that all Jersey breeders in this section will attend the meeting.

CRIBBAGE BANQUET ENJOYABLE AFFAIR

WINNING ODD FELLOWS FETED MONDAY EVENING

Prizes Awarded for High and Low Score; Officers and Leaders Are Named for 1938 Series

The annual Masonic-Odd Fellow cribbage banquet, held Monday evening at the Masonic temple, proved a pleasant aftermath to a winter of enjoyable competition.

The Odd Fellows, victors in the winter cribbage series which closed a week ago Monday night, were given a fine "feed" by the vanquished Masons. The occasion was made more enjoyable by the presence of Dr. W. R. Barney, potentate of Saladin Shrine, Grand Rapids, and a past master of the Charlevoix Masonic order, who acted as toastmaster. His conduct of the program was highly praised.

The awarding of prizes for high and low score was made in the customary manner, and officers of both lodges for the winter cribbage series of 1938 were named.

In the Odd Fellow order, Sheriff Floyd Ikens, who scored 9,258 points during the series, won the prize for high score, while Ed. Goldstick won the award for low score of 8,729 points. The Masonic high honor went to B. Nickerson with 9,058 points, and award for low score to Rollie Williams with 8,735.

S. O. Sorenson was named secretary for the 1938 series, a position he has held several years. Leaders named were: Masons: B. Nickerson, leader; Rollio Williams, assistant; Odd Fellows: Ed. Goldstick, leader; Alfred Gill, assistant.

UNION SERVICES FOR GOOD FRIDAY

WILL BE HELD HERE AT M. E. CHURCH ON MARCH 26

Pastors of Local Churches and Two from Boyne City Will Speak During Two Hour Program

Good Friday will be observed in Charlevoix with a special union service at the Methodist church, beginning at 12:45 p. m., Friday afternoon and continuing until 3 p. m. The pastors of the various churches of the city and two visiting pastors from Boyne City will take part in the service. Both Boyne City and East Jordan are carrying on the same program, making the service a county-wide observance. There will be an exchange of speakers to fit into the correct time for the various services.

Those who cannot come for the beginning of the service will have the opportunity to enter on the quarter hour. The pastors and people of the churches wish to express their thanks to the business men of Charlevoix for agreeing to close their places of business during the hours of the service.

The program will be as follows:

12:45 p. m.—Quiet music.

1 p. m.—Opening devotions, Rev. Alexander.

1:15 p. m.—Subject, "Father Forgive Them," Rev. W. H. Rauch.

1:30 p. m.—Subject, "Today Thou Shalt Be with Me in Paradise," Rev. C. W. Sidebotham.

1:45 p. m.—Subject, "Woman, Behold Thy Son," Rev. G. R. Parker.

2 p. m.—Subject, "My God, My God, Why Hast Thou Forsaken Me?" Rev. H. J. Pulsipher.

2:15 p. m.—Subject, "I Thirst," Rev. O. M. Bailey.

2:30 p. m.—Subject, "It Is Finished," Rev. R. C. Miller.

2:45 p. m.—Subject, "Father, Into Thy Hands I Commit My Spirit," Rev. Glenn Frye.

CHARLEVOIX-DETROIT CLUB PARTY APRIL 17

William A. Carey Makes Announcement for Annual Get-Together

An announcement comes from William A. Carey, of Detroit, that the Charlevoix-Detroit Club will hold its annual party on Saturday, April 17, in the Highland Park branch of the Y. W. C. A. building, 13130 Woodward avenue, corner Winona avenue.

Complete announcement of program will be made later and invitations will be mailed to all whose names and addresses are on file. Charlevoixans are requested to pass the good word on to their friends and to make plans to meet them at the party.

The Charlevoix Courier will make further announcements when details are available.

DIESEL PROPOSAL DEFEATED FRIDAY

FELL SHORT OF REQUIRED MAJORITY FOR APPROVAL

Less Than Half a Normal Vote Was Cast at Special Election—Future Course Undecided

Charlevoix voters, balloting at a special election on Friday, March 19, defeated a city council proposal to issue revenue bonds in the sum of $115,000 to finance purchase of a Diesel engine and necessary extension to the municipal electric light plant to install the unit.

The proposal, requiring a three-fifths majority of the vote cast, lost by a wide margin and, despite the importance of the issue as a matter of civic welfare, less than half of a normal vote was polled. A total of 507 citizens cast their ballot, 257 in favor of the proposal, and 250 against. The tabulations show that both the first and third wards were against the proposition, with the second ward casting a favorable majority.

That opposition to the proposal was wide-spread is indicated in its defeat, also by the appearance the night before the election of a circular, signed by "Citizens Committee," outlining objections to the council plan.

While the special election vote was canvassed by the city council at Monday night's regular session, no intimation came from the meeting in regards to what future action, if any, might be taken.

GIRL SCOUT JUBILEE PROGRAM SET FOR 31ST

Members of Local Troop Will Have a Part in Dramatics and Music

Members of Troop One, Charlevoix Girl Scouts, are presenting a program on Wednesday, March 31, in the high school gymnasium. The program, which is to begin at 7:30 p. m., consists of dramatic and musical numbers by members of the troop and is in celebration of the Silver Jubilee of girl scouting.

Twenty-five years ago this month, Juliette Low founded the Girl Scout organization in the United States. Charlevoix girl scouts were organized in 1935 and the work has been carried on under the very capable leadership of Mrs. H. Ladd.

"How the Story Grew" is a novelty one act entertainment and "After the Game" is a college comedy in two acts. These plays are being directed by the Misses Geraldine Millar and Marie Walters, and the members taking part are Margery Edwards, Martha Craig, Phyllis and Murielle VanAilsburg, Marjorie Wood, Frances Meggison, Betty McFarland, Vernice Holland, Louise Young, Roberta Seymour, Peggy McGhan, Signe Isaksen, Alma Radle, Barbara Bradley, Ardis Usher, Jean Smith, Patricia Hyers, Clara Hosler, Estella Livingston, Anna McHugh, and Mary Zeitler.

TWO PIONEERS OF BARNARD ARE DEAD

COMMUNITY MOURNS LOSS OF OLD RESIDENTS

Mrs. Eliza Jane Willis and John Smith, Early Settlers of Rural District, Succumbed

Charlevoix and the Barnard district lost another much loved member of the fast-diminishing group of pioneer residents in the passing of Mrs. Eliza Ager Willis, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Effie Sharrow, on Thursday, March 18, at 6 a. m., following two weeks of illness. She had but recently reached her 81st birthday anniversory.

Eliza Ager was born on March 12, 1856. She came to Michigan from Trumble, O., when a small child and, in 1885, was united in marriage to James Willis, who preceded her in death a little over a year ago, and with whom she resided in the Barnard district until 1921, when they moved to Charlevoix.

To this union were born three children: Mrs. Effie Sharrow, Mrs. Anna O'Brien and George Willis, all of this city, who survive her. Also 12 grandchildren and a host of friends and neighbors mourn her passing.

Funeral services were held last Sunday at 1:30 p. m. at the Methodist church, where she was a member for many years, Rev. John Alexander officiating. Interment was in Brookside cemetery.

John Smith, a pioneer resident of Barnard, died Saturday, March 20, at the home of his son, Clyde Smith. He had been ill but a short time.

Prizes were awarded Mr. and Mrs. Sternberg and Mr. and Mrs. Gebeau.

COUNCIL APPROVES GOLF COURSE PLAN

WILL OPERATE CHARLEVOIX CLUB COURSE THIS SUMMER

Vote Water Front Improvements — Reject Proposal to Hire New Superintendent of Utilities

Continued operation of the 18-hole Charlevoix Golf Club course as a municipal course was assured Monday night by the city council, along with the approval of several civic improvements and transaction of routine business.

By unanimous vote, councilmen approved the golf budget for 1937 as submitted by representatives of the citizens' golf committee and, as a measure of confidence in the work of this group, Mayor Arthur Bergeon re-appointed the five men who served last year and an additional member. The old committee members are Robert Bridge, Charles Hamlin, Leo Carey, H. A. Craig and O. J. Hammond. Gordon Todd was named as new member. As the result of Monday night's action, steps already under way will be carried through to obtain a deed to the golf club property in accordance with the original agreement entered into a year ago. The course will then become city property, it is understood, subject to certain stipulations as to use.

Application of Walter F. Conklin for permission to build a dock on the south shore of Round Lake as the part of a building project started last fall, was approved.

Continuance of improvements in East Park, lake front property acquired by the city between Clinton and Mason streets, was assured through a council authorization for the mayor and clerk to purchase necessary material for revetment and dock. Steel for sheet piling has been ordered and work of constructing yacht slips will be started upon arrival of material. The project has WPA approval and is sponsored by the city.

Construction of a warehouse at the new municipal dock, the former Wilbur property, was revived by council instructions to City Engineer Robert F. Sloan to re-submit the project to the Works Progress Administration.

The regular payroll, aggregating $3,915.71, included the retirement of $1,615 in local improvement bonds and interest.

A motion offered by Alderman Campbell to hire a new superintendent of utilities having a technical school diploma and experience in the operation of steam, hydraulic and Diesel electric generation units, was defeated by a three to two vote. Aldermen Campbell and Carey supported the motion, while Alderman Cartier, Hallett and Kibbe voted against it.

"Clara, Lou and Em" Conversations in Trailer Camp Cover Multitude of Subjects

Sarasota, Florida,
March 17, 1937

Dear Ken and Folks at Home:

It's been over two weeks since we have limbered up the old Corona for our weekly letter, and in doing so this morning, we had to use considerable will power to overcome a growing tendency to loaf all day — simply do nothing other than lie around in the sun and gossip with our neighbors. As I sit here in the trailer trying to make the opening chapter of interest to readers of the Courier and yourself, a mingling of voices is heard coming from all directions. To the north of our present location is a bunch of women discussing the merits of various kinds of washing powder, each vigorously claiming her favorite brand is the best. To the east a bunch of fellows are discussing where to fish, bait to use, each claiming his recent catch held the camp record. Another bunch, both men and women, are discussing the annual shuffle board tournament which started this morning, and as far as I can determine this subject seems to hold the edge. Still another bunch, baseball fans mostly, are discussing past records of both National and American leagues. Each seems to have his or her favorite team or individual player, and

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Aimed to check the flow of erring youth into Michigan's prisons and hospitals is the Orr plan for prevention of juvenile delinquency, now before the State Legislature.

Not in farm counties does this problem exist, but rather in industrial centers like Detroit where the likelihood of a boy or girl getting into trouble with the law is 18 per cent above the state average.

A master clinic would be established to furnish scientific service for juvenile courts. The state would provide aid to schools in establishing child guidance clinics.

The Orr plan is sponsored by Senator Flynn, Republican, of Cadillac, and Senator Palmer, Democrat, of Flint. It is known as Senate Bill No. 149.

"Santa Returns"

When the cook at the Boys' Vocational School in Lansing served roast pork and potatoes and the storekeeper issued new clothing, the youngsters at the state institution thought at first that Santa Claus had returned.

The occasion, however — at least, according to dissatisfied members of the school staff — was a scheduled visit of inspection of two legislative committees.

Staff members ask increase in their pay and better and more food for their charges.

Downstate and Upstate

A proposed referendum in 1938 on a constitutional convention was defeated the other day by the Legislature, after a heated discussion over the need for liberalizing of the state's charter had simmered down to an old-fashioned downstate-upstate debate.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS
By B. C. Mellencamp

Second Series of Educational Meetings In Soil Conservation Program Announced

The 1937 Soil Conservation program is progressing as rapidly as the directions from Lansing are received. At the present time the matter of establishing bases has taken the entire time of the county and township committees. Within the next few days announcements will be sent out to each farmer showing the crop acres and the soil depleting base.

Inasmuch as it is very near the first of April and all farmers are extremely anxious to secure all the facts, it is felt that it would be deeply appreciated if another series of meetings could be held to more or less review the program and to somewhat definitely inform you of what your base will be for this year. We are sure that it will be to your advantage to spend another half day with us and again go through the various features of the program, as we want every farmer to get what is possible.

The following schedule will announce the meeting for your community:

Wednesday, March 24—9:30 a. m., Horton Bay I. O. O. F. hall; 1:30 p. m., Boyne River Grange hall.

Thursday, March 25—9:30 a. m., Marion Center Grange hall; 1:30 p. m., Hayes town hall.

Friday, March 26—0:30 a. m., Evelina town hall; 1:30 p. m., Walloon Lake community hall.

Saturday, March 27—9:30 a. m., South Arm town hall; 1:30 p. m., Wilson town hall.

We are also glad to announce that the following two days after each of these meetings your community committee will be at the same location to go over your farm with you, and to help you arrange your farm plans so as to obtain the maximum payment. We strongly urge you to talk things over with your community committee so that no one will miss securing payments because of wrong interpretations and lack of knowledge as to how the program works out. Remember once again that your community committee will devote two days' time in conferring with you at exactly the same place as the above schedule indicates.

Production of Canning Factory Crops Will Be Discussed at East Jordan Friday Afternoon, April 2

Before we know it, spring will be here and the busiest time of the year for farmers. Considerable activity has been shown in contracting with canning factories for string beans, beets, carrots, etc.

As a result of many inquiries relative to the proper care and management of these crops, a meeting will be held in the East Jordan community hall Friday afternoon, April 2, at 1:30 p. m., to present the latest information.

Mr. Mahoney, specialist from the Michigan State College, will be present to discuss in detail the best ways to obtain maximum results. Along other topics the subject of commercial fertilizers as well as the cultural methods to use.

Farmers Interested in Muck Soils to Meet Wednesday, March 31

In order to be of service to the many farmers in this county who have areas of muck soil that is being used for crop production, or capable of being used for crop production, an all day session will be held in the Boyne City library on Wednesday, March 31, beginning promptly at 10 and continuing on through the afternoon.

A feature of the forenoon session will be the opportunity given farmers to bring in samples of muck soil to be tested for mineral content.

Shortly after 1 o'clock slides will be shown which will emphasize the various points that should be considered in the profitable use of muck soils.

HOUSE MEASURE SEEKS SIX STATE TRAPPERS

Would Provide Appropriation for Campaign Against Predators

A bill to provide for at least six state trappers for coyotes and wolves was introduced in the House Friday.

A $150,000 appropriation for the biennium was proposed to finance bounties to cut down the predatory animals. Trappers would receive $15 for each male and $20 for each female coyote or wolf killed.

"Wings of the Morning" Brings Radiant Color and a New Star

Brought to the screen in all the lifelike beauty of natural Technicolor, "Wings of the Morning," the flaming romance of a lovely fugitive fleeing from strife-torn Spain, opens Wednesday, March 31, at the Palace Theatre. Annabella, a new and alluring sensation of the screen, is starred with Henry Fonda and Leslie Banks in the film, which presents the world-famous tenor, John McCormack.

A thrilling mixture of drama, spectacle and surprise, the Twentieth Century-Fox release achieves remarkable effects through its natural, perfected Technicolor, so lifelike and beautiful that you'll think you've never seen color on the screen before.

MANY FORMER CHARLEVOIXANS IN FLORIDA

they are not in the least backward in expressing their likes and dislikes. This camp is located alongside the Boston Red Sox winter training quarters. Practice hours are from 10 a. m. to the noon hour or later, and the bleachers are usually filled with admiring fans. Today they are playing their opening game, the Cincinnati Reds being their opponents. Believe me, this camp life is great, and many leading questions of the day have been definitely decided here, but I get the greatest kick from the "Clara, Em and Lou" conversations heard on all sides.

Will start in with a brief description of Clearwater, a city of about 8,000 population, lying on the west coast of Florida, about half way down the Gulf to the south. Clearwater has an elevation of 72 feet above sea level, the highest of any point in the state. The town is nicely laid out, wide streets and avenues, all of course lined with the ever-present palm and live oak. One of the wisest and most appreciated stunts of these Floridians is their ever prominent display of tropical plants and flowers. It appears to us that each individual is trying to outdo his neighbor in this respect. Clearwater is rightly called the "Spring Time City," and is a fine place to find old friends and make new ones. Here we met the Butlers—Fred and Mrs. B. and Leo, wife and daughter; Lee Smith and his family, Mr. Miller and his family, Mrs. Lou Smith and Jack Wagner, all former residents of Charlevoix. Also William Kibbe and wife, George Jardine and wife, Earl Herrington, wife and son, Dallas Henry and family, Gordon Bartlett, Junior Heise, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Trimble and daughter, who are spending the winter here. We also spent an enjoyable hour visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Carl Steiner and Mrs. Steiner's sister. You will recall that the Steiners have charge of the Belvedere Hotel at Charlevoix, during our resort season.

I will not attempt to describe our first visit to Clearwater's numerous orange and citrus groves. I am willing to go on record that we were about as well informed on this subject as was Colon McKenzie on traffic laws when he made his first trip to the city. Mr. Butler accompanied us on our first trip through the groves and furnished us the necessary information. We ate oranges, tangerines, kumquat and numerous fruits which I am unable to recall their names. Groves visited varied in size from an acre to 60 acres. Some were yearling trees and others five to 10 years old. This trip, our first contact with orange and citrus groves, has left an everlasting impression on our minds.

Listed among "Things to See" while in Clearwater are: Alligator Farm and Zoo, City Recreation Park, grapefruit canning plants, gladiola fields, kapok tree, Municipal Auditorium, Memorial Causeway, Sunken Gardens, U. S. Veterans Hospital. These are but a few of the many attractions. Leading hotels are: Belleview-Biltmore, largest collection of wooden buildings in the United States, Hotel Fort Harrison, Clearwater Beach Hotel, West Coast Hotel and many others.

Our entrance into west coast resort territory was at New Port Richey, about 20 miles north of Clearwater. From there south to Tarpon Springs, whose chief attractions are its sponge fisheries, one of the largest centers of this kind in the world. Tarpon Springs has a distinctive Mediterranean air imparted by the colorful boats and their owners, largely of Greek descent. From here to Clearwater our route carried us through large citrus and orange groves.

When moving from city to city, our first point of call is at headquarters of the Chamber of Commerce. Here we find all necessary information and the usual question, "Where are you from?" Maps and folders from every important resort city in the U. S. are here available. Imagine, if you can, how disappointed we were to pick up a nine-year-old folder of Charlevoix-the-Beautiful in Clearwater. The only up-to-date literature from our home town was found in folders put out by the West Michigan Tourist and Resort Association. I do not want to be critical or fault-finding, but when I found the same condition at St. Petersburg and Sarasota, one cannot help but feel that our home town has extended its winter's sleep into the remaining months of the year. It is indeed gratifying to read in the last issue of the Courier of the close cooperation and friendly feeling between the Chamber of Commerce and city council. Neither body can get by unless they work together. The closest cooperation is necessary. So far on our trip, covering some 4,000 miles, we have yet to find a place that has more scenic attractions — and that Nature has done more for — than Michigan, especially the northern half. We are proud of MICHIGAN, and all she has to offer. Let's tell the world about it through our advertising.

Clearwater is using very effectively a post card which shows two scenes, one of an orange grove, the other a ski slide: one is described "Picking Luscious Golden Oranges in Beautiful Florida," and the other "While You Play with Silvery Snow in the North," and the following verse is printed on the back:

When wintry winds begin to blow
And Northern lands are wrapped in snow
Leave sleet and chilling winds behind,
And hie to Florida to find
Bright sunny days and magic nights,
Where never any snowstorm blights,
Where birds pour out their roundelay
And flowers blossom every day.

We have reached the southerly turning point of our trip and from now on will work gradually north. Ten days spent in Clearwater, a week in St. Petersburg are among pleasant memories of the past. We have been here at Sarasota a week, and may remain here for several days longer. Every time you have a spell of cold weather in Michigan we feel the effects of it here. We are all acquiring a real tan, and one more deep sea fishing trip will complete the transformation. Will tell you about this fishing trip in a forthcoming letter.

Well, "Hurry Back."

Shoveling Coal!

Shoveling ten tons of coal into a furnace would be quite a job if it had to be done at one time, but when moved a few shovels each day over a period of months it is not much of a task.

Saving money is much the same. It is difficult to save a substantial sum in one week or one month, but if a little is saved regularly, the task is not difficult and yet the results over a period of years are amazing.

"Surely—surely no sane girl could think that the sort of marriage that goes on now, with jazzing and fighting and divorce—" Gail began eloquently. "Surely no girl thinks that is worth while! Why, girls like that are burned out at twenty. Their lives are over! They're lit for nothing! They go on for a few years . . . Ariel, at your age, to go on as you are going on, is simple ruin."

"And if I sit down at home, then what is it? Why, Gail," Ariel said, in a confident voice, "I'm no fool! I'm not taking any chances."

"Taking any chances!" Gail echoed, rolling up her eyes. There was a pause.

"Now, listen, Gail," Ariel began again, in deadly earnest. "You had to lie, to get off on this Chipp party, didn't you?".

Gail was checked.

"I'm not proud of it," she said presently, in a shamed voice.

"Why shouldn't you be proud of it? There was nothing wrong in that party. Only you found out that if it depended upon a formal invitation from Mrs. Chipp you simply wouldn't go. Didn't you? Didn't you?"

"Phil isn't my father, after all," Gail offered hesitatingly, unwillingly.

"Nor mine! But Gail," Ariel went on, more confidently, aware that she was gaining ground, "we can't get away from it, we can't have any fun here unless we take chances! Nobody could get away with anything in this town! Just as soon as I can I'm going to get out, and I advise you to! Why, what does it matter," she rushed on—"what does it matter what Van Murchison wants—how much he wants to fool around, how young a kid he is? He's rich, he's going to take his wife East, and abroad. What do you care about the rest? You don't want to change him, you want to marry him. Let him be giddy—Phil said he was giddy. Let him be wasteful and frivolous if he wants to be! What is it to you? He gets you out of Clippersville, and away from these gossiping old busy bodies!"

The river of words dazed and terrified Gail. This could not be delicate, ethereal Ariel, pouring out this coarse and dangerous philosophy of life or of death! Ariel, whom they had all thought young, innocent, protected, confessing her determination to grab the first man she could, and escape—escape from Clippersville.

Most terrible of all to Gail was her little sister's easy air of conspiracy, her casual quick assumption that they were both in the same boat. Gail was frantic with alarm. If she told Philip there would be domestic pandemonium, and if she did not, she herself must assume a most appalling responsibility.

Perhaps if she could get Ariel to promise—to swear . . .

In the end there were no reproaches, no threats. She slid to her knees beside Ariel's bed, and locked Ariel's hand in her own and, after a long and solemn talk, they promised each other that there should be no more deceiving, no more clandestine parties, everything open and above board, between the two of them at least.

Gail felt oddly old, exhausted with emotion, tired from the confused impressions of these last brilliant, novel days, weak from the reaction from Ariel's revelations—yet she was strangely, deeply happy, too. Somehow, in the confession of their mutual adventures, the acknowledgment of their mutual desires, and dreams, she seemed to have come very close to Ariel today. The sense of her responsibility as Ariel's senior, of her big-sistership, was solemn upon her. She loved its weight.

"Not one of them—Edith, Gail, Ariel, Sam — is really self-supporting," thought Phil. "And Cass sends Lily nothing; she doesn't even know where he is! Lily and the three kids—Wuffy and Miles and Daniel. If she came here—if we were married—that'd mean there were nine of us here, eating three meals a day. Twenty-seven meals a day—G—d! Gail might raise the roof, too. She might get Edith and Ariel to fight. But what could they do?"

Ariel was not thinking. But her mind was washing idly about among the memories of the last 24 hours, and Buddy Raisch and his nerve, and that horrid, hard kiss that had been plastered against her delicate mouth when she had gotten out of the car at the Fairmont in the drifting, silent fogs of one o'clock this morning. She determined to have nothing more to do with him, roadster or no roadster. But she could not go on living in Clippersville. She hated this jay town and these jay people and this old house with a bitter hatred. There must be a way out!

Edith told herself complacently that all this was very nice. Here was Phil home at a time when he might have been with Lily Cass, which proved that his affair with her was over. Gail was getting on splendidly with her new and wealthy friends, and would undoubtedly marry Van Murchison. Ariel had had a lovely little-girl time with Dorothy. Everything was going beautifully.

"Ariel is smart about boys," Gail was thinking. Her cheek flushed as she remembered what Ariel had said. Gail herself had vaguely observed some lack—some essential thing missing in her friendship with Van. But it had been left for Ariel to put it into merciless words.

Was it true? Well, no, not entirely. There was some truth in it, of course. But if Van Murchison happened to be a light-hearted, unthinking, fun-loving boy, young for his years, and if Gail Lawrence was developed beyond hers, matured by responsibility and experience, that did not mean that they could not fall in love with each other. How could she demand more of him than he naturally gave? What attitude on her part would create in him a soberer, a more dependable mood, on which a woman might base real hopes and plans?

Thinking these thoughts, she did not feel quite the usual thrill when he came into the library a day or two later and stood, as he often did, with an elbow on the high desk, watching her unmindedly as she stamped and scribbled in the shabby old books.

"Have you a good reference book on the diseases of hawk parasites?" the ringing voice said joyfully when she was free. There was no change in Gail's manner as she touched his big brown hand, but deep underneath she was conscious of change in herself.

This man was far from thoughts of marriage. By what twist, she wondered, did a girl bring her man from such irresponsible gaiety as this to the definiteness of an engagement?

An engagement began to seem to her an achievement, something quite extraordinary—a triumph. What a thing a girl accomplished when she could simply, complacently tell her friends that she and Tom So-and-so were going to be married!

Van wanted Gail to lunch with him today, and she reached for the telephone extension and told Edith that she would not come home as usual. It meant a pang to Edith, but it could not be helped.

But immediately after this Van suddenly turned scowling and gloomy and said that, no, hang it, he could not lunch with her after all.

"I'll tell you," he said, with his characteristic chuckle. "I promised a man at Bercsford that I'd go and look at a puppy!"

Gail did not know quite what to say, feeling as she did a little dashed and perplexed by the sudden change of plan. She tried to feel fondly indulgent; he was only a boy, after all. But she had a sense of futility; there seemed no way of catching the slippery substance of him in her fingers.

"I'm sorry," he said.

"Oh, that's all right!"

"Say, let's go over and have lunch at Santa Cruz some Sunday, and swim? Can you swim?"

"I love it. Yes, we all swim." Mention of Santa Cruz reminded her of Mackerson's, and she wondered what Van would do if she told him her anxieties about Ariel. Would it develop anything new in him, responsibility, gravity? She could not do it now, but she liked to think about it.

He was gone. He was hunting amusement somewhere; that was all he wanted. Van was like a child looking for some one with whom to play.

Her thoughts were following him into the sunshiny June day. What fun in his Mrs. Murchison, white and cool and at leisure, there on the tilted leather seat beside him, and go and have lunch at the country club, and watch tennis, or perhaps play golf.

Anyway — anyway, she reflected, walking home to lunch, she was a good deal nearer to that envied position than any other girl in Clippersville! She had proved herself on that grilling week-end visit to Los Gatos quite the match of the women of Van's set; she had won them, in spite of themselves.

Edith was in the kitchen, ecstatic over Gail's unexpected appearance, and the addition of strawberries to her humble little meal.

They laughed together, gathering the dishes, cups, spoons into the dishpan, brushing crumbs, drawing shades.

"Did you make any date with him, Gail?"

"Nothing definite."

But nothing could be more satisfying outwardly than his pursuit of her, and Gail had to be content with that for awhile.

In a half-hearted, highly unsatisfactory sort of way Mrs. Chipp had asked Gail to Far Niente again, and this time everything had gone gloriously — breathlessly. There had been charades built on the Lawrence formula, there had been a hysterical game of Sardines that left even the grown-ups spent and agonized with laughter; some of these demigods had gone so far as to remember Van's little friend from the library in Clippersville, and had been gracious to her.

Best of all had been the morning after a dance, when, waking in the big hotel on the hilltop, Gail had breakfasted in pajamas—the silk pajamas Edith had won when she won the Hope Chest at the Catholic fair last year.

After breakfast the party had split and scattered, Gail going off with Van in the roadster.

They had gone to the Cliff house and apostrophized the seals that were barking harshly on the rocks behind the drifts of fog; they had had tintypes taken on the board walk, and had tried all the swings and chutes. They had come downtown again and lunched on a roof above old Chinatown; hearing the cars honking in the streets below and the fishmen crying their wares. They had bought ginger and lichee nuts, had lingered long at the theater doorway, studying the cheap little photographs, bursting into fresh laughter as they pretended to translate the chieroglyphics to one another.

An idiot—yes, but Van was a most lovable idiot, the ideal idiot with whom one's senses were still dreamy and dulled with the excitement of a gala night, and when one had him to oneself—not showing off, not given any chance to be drawn away, innocently to hurt one's feelings. This day in Chinatown was one to be marked with a white stone for Gail.

At four they had known they must start for home. It would take almost two hours to drive to Clippersville; Gail had not dared prolong the fun too far. Van had landed her safely at her own gate at six o'clock, and she had gone into the dim old brooding house, that was close and dark tonight, with a sudden realization of the limitations of the place—the stupidness of home.

"I've had the best time I ever had in my life!" she could tell them over and over again, exhausted by sheer felicity. She told them the jokes, the situations, the events, in an inconsequential jumble. Edith had listened eagerly, sympathetically; Phil was not at home. Ariel had listened, too, but with a difference.

"Ariel had an experience last night. She went out for a casual drive with the Camps after the movie," Edith had said, "and they broke a spring, and it was nearly midnight when she got in! Phil and I were terribly frightened."

Gail's eyes and Ariel's had flashed together. But even when they were alone Ariel had not been communicative.

"You run your affairs and let me run mine!" she had said, not rudely, very simply.

"But it wasn't a broken spring, Ariel?"

"I say it was."

Gail had been too anxious to get back to her own dreams and memories to worry, even about Ariel.

The day had had its marvelous moment. It had come at four o'clock, when she and Van, laughing over the purchase of dragons, bowls, candlesticks, and charms in the sandal-scented, opium-scented interior of a dark little Chinatown shop, had been reluctantly forced to a consideration of the flying time.

"Yep, that's so, we can't stay in town—we ain't married yet!" Van had said, with his wild laugh.

It wasn't much. But it was enough for her to remember happily now; it showed that he did think of it, that it was in his mind.

"We ain't married yet!" It would have been a little better if he had not put it in the vernacular. Still . . . it was sweet.

She went to sleep dreaming of the newspapers of a few years hence. Her heart was very tender toward Van tonight. He had been a charming companion today, this big tweed-clad man with the well-filled wallet and the shining open car. Gail liked the memory of his smiling lean face grinning at her. She liked his clothes, his speech; she liked his references to places and things that belonged to a world of leisure and luxury that she did not know.

Almost every week-end was spent at the ranch in Los Gatos now, and between the Mondays and Fridays Gail lived in but a dreamy half-consciousness of what went on at home. The women of Van's set had taken her up, and when the Chipps were back at home, as they frequently were in midweek, Mary Spence or Lucia would come to Clippersville to stay with Lenore, and they would all straggle into the library during the dull forenoons to report their shopping expeditions, or to try to coax Gail to come off with them to a country club luncheon.

Life, at this accelerated pace, fairly burned her up. The new pleasures enchanted her, but never satisfied, leaving her always straining for more; which indeed was the position of them all—Lenore, Mary, Van, Fred, to say nothing of their elders. They went everywhere, anywhere, they did anything and everything that might promise fun. Breakfast on the Macclesfields' yacht, for example; life on the Macclesfields' yacht had nothing to do with sailing or the water. The yacht might as well have been moored ten feet underground in a coal mine, for all its gay party ever saw of the sea. Yet there was something distinguished about being asked to spend a week-end on a real yacht!

The Charlevoix Courier
Telephone No. 2

Ready—If Disaster Strikes
"The message must get through". Again this spirit guided the telephone companies and telephone people during the recent heavy floods. Again emergency found the Bell System prepared.
From warehouses and factories of the Western Electric Company . . . manufacturing and supply department of the Bell System . . . great quantities of telephone material were rushed to the Ohio and Mississippi valleys. Wherever it was used, it was familiar to all workers, and scientifically correct. It was Bell System equipment!
And from wherever they gathered for the emergency . . . volunteer operators from Michigan assisting operators in Ohio; linemen from Illinois working shoulder to shoulder with crews from Tennessee . . . all workers spoke the common language of a job thoroughly understood. In emergencies, when telephone service is hard to maintain, is when that service is needed most.
But the successful meeting of this and other emergencies cannot be laid entirely to the forethought, the engineering experience, or the manufacturing facilities of this unified telephone system. It results, also, from the devotion of every telephone man and woman to the job. Trained to meet the unexpected, it is all in the day's work to them. They stick to their tasks. EASTER SEALS HELP PROVIDE HOSPITALS

Campaign by Local Kiwanis Comes to a Close on March 28

Of growing importance as a means of making possible ultra-modern hospitals in which crippled youngsters receive expert medical attention are Easter Seals for Crippled Children, on sale until March 28, under sponsorship of the Michigan Society for Crippled Children.

The seals sell for one penny each, or a dollar for a sheet of 100. A contribution, however small, makes the contributor feel that he is a party to a great humanitarian movement. Won't you help some kiddie receive a more joyous life? The seal sale in Charlevoix is sponsored by the Kiwanis Club. Seals may be obtained at both drug stores.

EAST JORDAN LAWYER DIED LAST SATURDAY

E. N. Clink, Former Prosecutor, Died at Petoskey Hospital

Elisha N. Clink, 77, widely-known East Jordan attorney and former prosecutor of Charlevoix county, died Saturday in Lockwood Hospital, Petoskey.

He was born in Canada in June, 1859, coming to East Jordan in 1875. He married Miss Alice Walterhouse at East Jordan in 1880. Mr. and Mrs. Clink would have celebrated their 57th wedding anniversary next Saturday.

Mr. Clink was at one time on the staff of the East Jordan Enterprise. He was a former school teacher of this region and was also a former postmaster there.

Active in the practice of law until his last illness, he was senior member of the firm, Clink & Reuling.

Surviving are the widow; a son, Archie, of Oakland, Calif.; and a daughter, Lelia M., of East Jordan.

CHARLEVOIX MAN MADE COUNTY CMTC CHAIRMAN

Robert F. Sloan Appointed to Receive Enlistments in County

Phelps Newberry, of Detroit, civilian aide to the secretary of war for Michigan, has announced the appointment of Robert F. Sloan, of the Charlevoix Abstract & Engineering Co., as Charlevoix county chairman in the enrollment for the 1937 citizens' military training camps.

Enrollment of young men between the ages of 17 and 24 for camp service this summer is now under way throughout Michigan. Any young man who does not find it convenient to see the county chairman, may obtain full information by writing Phelps Newberry, 2161 Penobscot Building, Detroit.

What was the first riddle? A college professor studies puzzles, the world over—and some of the best are printed in The American Weekly, the magazine distributed with next Sunday's Chicago Herald and Examiner.

TWENTY THOUSAND FARMS ARE SEEKING ELECTRICITY

Prediction that more than 20,000 farms will receive high line electric service in 1937 is made by D. G. Ebinger, rural electrification specialist at Michigan State College. This figure represents an even greater annual advance than that made in the last six consecutive years during which Michigan has led all other states in farms electrified each year.

More than 30 per cent, or more than 60,000 Michigan farms now have central station electric service.

TWO PIONEERS OF BARNARD ARE DEAD

Mr. Smith was born in Brantford, Canada, on June 4, 1858, and came with his parents to Norwood in 1870. When a young man he bought a farm in Barnard, where he had since made his home.

Mr. Smith was married to Mary Bennett, of Eastport, in 1884. To this union were born seven children, six of whom survive, viz.: Clyde and Frank, of Barnard; Mrs. Blanche Behrendt, Mrs. Jennie Ritter, Mrs. Isabelle Stinson and Mrs. Marguerite Frankle, all of Detroit. A daughter, Mrs. Eva Aymer, died in 1924. Surviving also are 17 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. John Cermak from the Barnard Methodist church on Tuesday. Burial was at Barnard cemetery.

COMING ON APRIL 6TH

REV. F. G. SMITH, D. D.

Rev. F. G. Smith, D. D., of Akron, O., will be in Charlevoix on April 6, to start a two weeks meeting at the Church of God.

Nationally known author and lecturer, the Rev. Dr. Smith has travelled extensively for many years in many parts of the world. He is an authority on the Book of Revelations and will lecture on this book for the first six nights, using charts to illustrate its meaning. During his second week here, he will devote himself to evangelistic messages. He is well educated, forceful, and a pleasant speaker.

The public is invited to these meetings and urged to bring their Bibles. Those who attend are assured of an unusually interesting experience.

A special meeting of Charlevoix Chapter No. 72, O. E. S., will be held Wednesday evening, March 31, for school of instruction. The grand worthy matron and other grand chapter officers will be present.

Robert Emrey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Emrey, is home following recovery at East Lansing from a recent major operation. He will resume his studies at Michigan State College with the opening of the next semester.

Miss Mary Margaret Orlowski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Orlowski, and Miss Helen Lafreniere, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nels J. Lafreniere, both students at Nazareth College, near Kalamazoo, return Thursday for the spring vacation.

Mrs. Milo Todd entertained members of the W. R. C. at her home Thursday afternoon. Those present included Mesdames John Bugbee, Harry Powers, Mary Blissett, Thomas Taylor, Perl Johnson, Mary Prevost, William Taylor and Dan Himebaugh.

Mrs. William H. Wallace and Mrs. George Glados have gone to Chicago for a visit with relatives. The two ladies fortunately escaped injury when their car was side-swiped and badly wrecked by a truck near Munton, from which point they continued their trip by train.

Dr. and Mrs. William H. Barney, of Grand Rapids, are visiting several days with Mrs. Barney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Bedford, also her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bedford. Mr. and Mrs. George Stickney, also of Grand Rapids, who came north with them, returned home Monday.

A very enjoyable family reunion was held Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Davey, in observance of their 46th wedding anniversary. Present on the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. James Bogart, of Mancelona; Mr. and Mrs. William Bogart and Henry Bogart, of Boyne City; Mr. and Mrs. John Bugbee, Mr. and Mrs. Sam King and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Claude Davey, of Charlevoix.

Miss Gene Supernaw entertained a group of friends at a potluck dinner last Thursday evening at the home of her parents. Guests included Mesdames Stewart Coleman, Edward Behrens, Edward Soblesky, Louis Ketchman, Edward Golden, Theodore Cooper and Bob Miles, and the Misses Edna Himebaugh, Doris Solomon, Ruth Ann Bedford, Evelyn Seymour and Helen Mary Campbell.

Mrs. Ralph Hamilton entertained at her home Saturday afternoon in honor of her son, Sammy, who was four years old. Those present were: Sally Shopton, Vane and Virginia Smith, Tommy Hamlin, Patsy Hamilton, Fritz Curtis, Jacky Cooper, Jacky Cross, Sally and Janet King, Robert Seymour, Larry Peterson, and Sarah Coleman. Games were played after which luncheon was served at one large table which was beautifully decorated in Easter colorings.

Charlevoix public schools close at noon on Thursday, March 25, for the spring vacation period. Classes will be resumed the following Tuesday. Teachers leaving for vacations are: Miss Violet Bush to Detroit; Miss Bea Ferneau to Sparta; Mrs. Ray Elizabeth Sawyer to Detroit; Miss Helen Anthony to East Lansing; Frank Olesky to Mancelona; H. E. Bingham to Gobles; H. M. Oakley to Lakeview; Miss Geraldine Millar to Petoskey; Mrs. Gertrude Dick to Grand Rapids and Holland; Max Smith to Sandusky; Miss Frances Milner to Detroit; Miss Clara Dittmer to Scottville.

PICKLE GROWERS GET FREE SUGAR

Company Raises Prices, Gives Free Seed, Valuable Prizes, and Sugar

The Charlevoix Pickle & Produce Company, operating nine pickle stations in this northern area, has just announced some very unusual benefits for all its pickle growers.

Effective as of March 8, the prices on all contracts were raised to $2.50 for No. 1 grade, $1 for No. 2 grade, and also $1 for No. 3 grade pickles. These higher prices will also apply to all the company's contracts written previously, for the 1937 season, and they will be the same at all the company's stations (Boyne City, Brutus, Central Lake, Charlevoix, East Jordan, Ellsworth, Harbor Springs, Mancelona and Petoskey). The price increases amount to an average of more than 23 per cent over last year's contract prices.

In addition to the free seed, the guaranteed markets, the guaranteed prices, and the spot-cash pay at every delivery that the company assures their growers by contract, they will again offer the same excellent ten yearly magazine subscriptions at each station, as prizes, that were given last year. These will go to the ten highest cash-yield-per-acre growers at each station. Right now, the 90 magazine subscription prizes of last year are bringing cheer, happiness, and good reading into 90 prize-winners' homes, and these same prizes are offered again for 1937. They are: 1st, The National Geographic Magazine; 2nd, Popular Mechanics Magazine; 3rd and 4th, The Saturday Evening Post; 5th, Popular Science Monthly; 6th, Better Homes and Gardens; 7th, American Boy Magazine; 8th, 9th and 10th, The Michigan Farmer. These 90 yearly subscriptions represent an outlay of almost $150 that the company gives in good reading matter, as prizes to its growers.

And in addition to all the benefits already mentioned, the company now brings forward some news that will be welcomed by every farmer, and every farmer's wife. They will give their growers free sugar, and estimate the total will range between $900 and $1700 worth of sugar on an average crop. If a bumper crop of pickles is harvested this year, the total of course will be much larger, for it is given on a percentage basis of five of each grower's pickle checks. In other words, approximately nine to 17 tons of sugar will be given absolutely free to pickle growers of the Charlevoix Pickle & Produce Company this year. The best part of it is that there are no restrictions as to amounts or grades of pickles delivered. The distribution of this sugar will not depend on the percentage of No. 1 or No. 2 or No. 3 grade pickles at all, (for in that way it would be restrictive to only the better growers), but it will be given exactly the same to every grower, as follows: The company will issue sugar coupons extra to the amount of 10 per cent of the 4th, 8th, 12th, 16th and 20th checks paid each grower. These coupons will be cashable for sugar at the local grocery stores in each community. Naturally, the larger the amount of each of these five pickle checks, the larger will be the sugar coupons.

The company estimates, on the basis of last year's deliveries, and coupled now with this year's higher prices for pickles, that a single acre of good pickles can easily bring in from $3 to $6 worth of this free sugar. This will come in mighty handy this Fall and Winter in every farmer's home. Naturally, a person having one and one-half or two acres will receive larger pickle checks and also larger sugar coupons for the five deliveries named.

Contracts are coming in rapidly, with several stations already having many more acres contracted now than last year at this time. Some stations reached the full acreage quota last season, after which requests for acreage naturally were refused. It is planned to increase quotas only about 10 per cent for 1937, and so farmers not yet having their contracts are urged to get them without delay. They should secure them either of the field men, who are now out in the various farming areas, or they should mail a postal card or letter direct to the headquarters of the company at Charlevoix, Michigan.

BOYNE CITY AWAITING SMELT "RUN" OPENING

Revelry Affair Is Set for Saturday, March 27—Big Program

The general committee on the smelt run is getting affairs in shape to celebrate the eighth annual smelt run in Boyne City.

The date of the Smelt Revelry has been fixed for Saturday, March 27, when a self-serve smelt supper will be conducted at the Dilworth Hotel. The musical program will include solo and group dancing numbers by local talent and others from nearby cities.

The dipping period as heretofore, will be under supervision of the conservation department. Advance notices of the affair will be broadcast from several stations, and negotiations are being made to repeat the broadcast of last year from the river while the run is on. The official opening date will be announced 24 hours in advance by wire, cards and press.

The committee already is receiving reservations for accommodations. More restaurants and lodgings will be available to take care of the peak crowds.

FAVORS LOWER FERRY RATES AT MACKINAC

Candidate for Highway Commissioner Seeks Better Tourist Service

Reduced ferry charges across the Straits between Mackinaw City and St. Ignace means increased traffic into the Upper Peninsula and additional income to all of Michigan, Charles M. Ziegler, Republican candidate for state highway commissioner, said today.

"The State should immediately reduce the fares charged to a point where they would be just sufficient to cover the operating cost of the ferries," Ziegler said. "Additional service should be provided to reduce delays and congestion of traffic."

Ziegler is advocating improved transportation into the resort section of the northland and believes that reduced ferry rates with improved schedule across the Straits will go a long way at this time toward aiding the tourist and resort industry of the State.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

Case Cracks Down on Used Car 'Gyp'

Revocation of the licenses of two used car dealers in the Wayne county area for the sale of re-built automobiles under the representation that they were new, has been ordered by Leon D. Case, secretary of state.

All such dealers are licensed by the secretary of state, by law. Case has notified all second hand car dealers of the state of the recent revocation orders, with the caution that all complaints against any licensees will be fully investigated by the Department of State.

Any complaint of alleged illegal practices on the part of any used car dealer will result in a request that the licensee show cause why his license should not be revoked, Case has advised all concerned.

Investigation of the recent complaints was made by Joseph Charnoske, Detroit legal counsel for the Department of State. It is Case's belief that not only will the public benefit from such a policy, but that the vast majority of the some 2,700 used car dealers in the state will welcome any move which will enforce ethical and legal practices upon those few of their number who might indulge in them.

Accused of tearing down a church and selling the lumber, Levi Daugherty, Negro, was arrested in Edwardsville, Ill.

BILL WOULD PROHIBIT ALL SUNDAY HUNTING

Measure Now Before House of Representatives at Lansing

A bill to prohibit all Sunday hunting in all Michigan counties awaits action in the House of Representatives.

The measure was introduced by Rep. Michael J. Clancy, Detroit, D.

Recent legislatures have passed measures permitting a ban of Sunday hunting in individual counties, and the current session has placed referendums on Sunday hunting before voters in Branch, Livingston, Huron and Jackson counties.

BOUNTY TRAPPERS HAVE GOOD FEBRUARY TAKE

Nearly Hundred and Fifty Predators Removed During Past Month

Nearly 150 coyotes, bobcats and wolves were killed by bounty hunters during February, reports to conservation authorities show.

The catch, which totalled 147 for the month and was 10 under the January kill, consisted of 77 bobcats, 69 coyotes and one female wolf. Cost of predatory animal control during the month amounted to $1,144.42.

Guard Against Road Mishaps --- Install New Tires

And When You Make The Change Be Sure And Get Firestones! . . . .

FIRESTONE TIRES STOP YOUR CAR 15% TO 25% Quicker

Don't run the risk of a sudden blowout on the road—one that may quickly hurl your car against a tree or into the ditch. That is what often happens when blow-outs occur and hardly a day goes by but someone experiences just such a catastrophe. You can guard against these mishaps through the installation of new tires — tires that you can depend on to carry your car over the road at all rates of speed with safety. That's the protection that FIRESTONE offers—high grade tires that withstand the toughest kind of wear, tires that will carry you over all kinds of roads—with utmost safety.

FIRESTONE tires are dependable, because of the high quality of material and the high quality of workmanship that combine to manufacture these famous tires. Every cotton cord in every strand is soaked in liquid rubber to guarantee an insulation in the strands of Firestone tires that are your guarantee for long wear and long life. The manufacturers of Fireatone are satiafied with nothing less than the best — and the result is that when you buy Firestone tires you buy tires that are certain to render complete satisfaction.

No doubt you recall that outstanding drivers on the race track and in various endurance tests use Firestone tires. They use Firestones because they have given them a thorough inspection and are satisfied that here is the tire on which they can depend. If Firestones are selected by these champion drivers, that alone is assurance enough that any driver will get months of continuous service from them. But in addition to that, there are also the records that are being turned out every day by satisfied FIRESTONE tire users throughout the nation. Thousands of other motorists are enjoying complete satisfaction by using Firestone tires every day. You can too, if you will but install them on your car and give them an opportunity to demonstrate to you how well they can serve you.

ALL GAS TAKEN OFF ABANDONED TANKER

Salvagers Have Removed Last of the J. Oswald Boyd's Cargo

Salvagers recently emptied the huge tanks of tha freighter, J. Oswald Boyd, which carried 900,000 gallons of high test gasoline when it was wrecked on Simmons Reef in upper Lake Michigan last November.

The hazardous task of taking gasoline off the boat, transporting it over the rough 15-mile ice trail nearly claimed another life when the rear wheels of a gasoline-laden truck broke through the ice. Other trucks, with the aid of long tow ropes, pulled the vehicle to safety.

Grand Brooks, truck driver, was drowned when his truck dropped through the ice and sank in 125 feet of water. The body of Brooks, the sixth to die in the unscheduled salvaging operations, has been recovered. Five members of the crew of the salvaging tug Marold II were killed New Year's Day when their craft was torn apart by an explosion which set fire to the Boyd.

Marine men expressed the opinion that after the tanker's gasoline was taken off the fire-blackened hull could be raised and towed ashore for disposal as scrap metal. The vessel belongs to 14 insurance companies who paid loss claims after it was abandoned.

ARCHERS WANT AREA FOR THE BOW HUNTER

Will Ask Legislature to Set Aside Special Hunting Grounds

A special area to be set aside only for bow-and-arrow hunters is being asked of the State Legislature by members of the Michigan Archers' Association.

William Loomis, Sr., Newaygo archer and member of the association's committee working for the bill, points out that the neighboring states of Indiana, Ohio and Wisconsin have set aside special areas for bow-and-arrow hunting.

The Michigan group believes that something of that kind should be done in Michigan so that archery enthusiasts of this state may enjoy their favorite type of hunting during a limited season without competition of gun shooting.

STREAMS SPEARING IS LEGAL MAR. 1 TO MAY 15

Sportsmen Advised to Consult Officer Regarding Streams Open

Practically every county in Michigan has one or more streams or portions of streams in which spring spearing for noxious fish is permitted by law—without artificial light.

Sportsmen who would like to take a whirl at this type of sport would do well to consult their county conservation officers to learn which stream waters are legally open. The officers' first admonition probably would be tn keep away from trout streams since all are closed to spring spearing and—to be sure to have a fishing license.

Spearing for non-game fish became legal March 1 and continues legal to and including May 15.

Enormous Oil Production

LIGHT MAPLE SYRUP PRODUCTION IS PREDICTION

Michigan's maple syrup crop in 1937 is going to reflect the winter, those versed in syrup making report.

Not only will there be a light flow of sap, it is predicted, but it will be uncertain in starting to flow, will not flow in quantity and production of a quality syrup will be correspondingly difficult. Earliest runs of sap are sweetest, while towards the last of syrup making the sap may have a tendency to be somewhat bitter.

Safe and Sane DRIVING
BY THE NATIONAL SAFETY COUNCIL
and Michigan State Safety Coucil

COSTLY INATTENTION

A cat may look at a king, it is said. Yes, and perhaps, pity him for his misfortunes.

King Leopold took his eyes off the curving road merely to glance at a map beside him; but it was time enough for the powerful car to dash off the pavement and overturn, with fatal consequences. The life of the Queen of Belgium, who was sitting beside him, was sacrificed.

There are a thousand things to distract the attention from careful driving. You may be listening to the chatter of friends in the back seat. You may think the scenery more interesting than the traffic that may appear at the next corner. You may even try to steer while reaching for a package back of your seat.

But a moment of sanity will show you the foolhardiness of inattention. In a single second, at only 30 miles an hour, your car will travel 44 feet. Would you drive it BLIND that far?

There is only one safe way. Keep your eyes and your attention strictly on the serious business of driving.

A new short, short, crime story with an amazing ending appears in This Week, the colorgravure magazine with next Sunday's Detroit News. Don't fail to read this exciting thriller by Matt Taylor.

URGE LANDOWNERS BURN ALL MARSH AREA EARLY

Action Before Game Nesting Season Will Save Much Wildlife

Landowners of Michigan who must burn their fields or marshes this spring may help save wildlife by doing it as early as weather conditions permit.

If the field or marsh is to be burned the best time to do it, as far as wildlife is concerned, is right after the snow leaves the ground. This will give the vegetation a chance to "come back" in time to furnish food and cover for birds and small mammals.

If landowners wait until nesting time to burn, authorities say, there is a likelihood that the nests of birds and animals will be destroyed and that some forms of wildlife will be burned.

TOTAL SALE 1936 DEER LICENSES ON INCREASE

Latest Figures Show 133,116 Resident and 816 Non-Resident Sold

The sales records of Michigan's 1936 deer-hunting licenses are still soaring. Settlements with state license dealers compiled up to February 28 involved 133,116 resident deer licenses and 816 non-resident licenses.

These totals may be increased slightly as additional license dealers complete their settlements. The highest previous total sales of deer licenses were for 1935 when approximately 94,000 resident licenses and 636 non-resident licenses were sold.

A "boom" year has been reported by Michigan fur-trappers due to the increase in prices for raw pelts. Prices on some furs during the past season have been the highest since the depression.

Muskrat pelts more than doubled in value over last year and higher quotations have been offered on beaver pelts.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY NOTES 20 YEARS OF LAND BANK SERVICE

Charlevoix county farmers have outstanding $427,200 in loans on their farms as the result of organization of the Federal Land Bank of St. Paul 20 years ago March 17. The bank's charter was granted March 17, 1917, following many years of study of country life and rural credit problems in this country and Europe. The farm loan act creating the land banks was approved on July 17, 1916.

The basis for this volume of loans is chiefly the national farm loan associations through which land bank loans are made. However, in order to meet the emergency of 1933, Congress that year provided for "commissioner" loans by which additional credit could be extended to farmers. The land bank acts as agent of the commissioner in making such loans, the local association assisting.

In this county there are 258 farmers who have financed their farms with one or both these types of loan, of whom 169 are association members. Of the total volume of credit shown above, $143,100 comprises commissioner loans, and $284,100 land bank loans to members of associations.

Among the Bible citations is the following (Ps. 40: 5): "Many, O Lord, my God, are thy wonderful works which thou hast done, and thy thoughts which are to us-ward: they cannot be reckoned up in order unto thee; if I would declare and speak of them, they are more than can be numbered."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 151): "All that really exists is the divine Mind and its idea, and in this Mind the entire being is found harmonious and eternal."

MILD WINTER A BOON TO NORTHERN TROUT

Merganser Ducks Kept to Open Lakes and Deserted Rivers

The mild winter in Michigan has saved the lives of thousands of trout in all the larger northern streams by causing American mergansers to do their hunting in other places.

Flocks of the voracious predators, which in some past winters were forced to find a living on trout streams because ice covered their favorite hunting grounds on the Great Lakes, have been almost entirely absent from whole sections of some of the rivers this winter. American mergansers are among the most expert of fishermen and sometimes devour trout 14 inches and more in length.

THE OLIVER ROW-CROP "70"

Just a light touch on the steering wheel turns the new Row Crop "70" completely around. It's the easiest tractor to operate you ever saw. Every control's right at your finger tips—and you have steering and gear shifting like an automobile.

This is Oliver's new 6-cylinder Tractor that has caused so much talk. There are two "70's"—one designed solely for regular gasoline—and the other to get the utmost fuel economy out of kerosene or distillate.

With either one you'll get unusually great power with light weight—and great speed. Under ordinary soil conditions, you can plow with two 14-inch bases at over 4 miles an hour! That gets the work done quicker and gives more spare time for other things.

The Row Crop "70" comes from the tractor factory of the founders of the tractor industry. You'll want to see this latest, modern tractor at once—with its complete line of mounted listing, busting, planting and cultivating equipment.

Woodlot Improvement Is Receiving Considerable Attention In Soil Conservation Program

While in some respects the progress in the 1937 Soil Conserving Program has not been as rapid as was anticipated, everything is being done as fast as approval arrives from the Lansing headquarters. Already the establishment of Crop Farm Depletion bases are being made and will be announced as soon as completed. On Monday, March 15, Vern Spencer, of the State Committee, conferred with the county committee in getting this phase of the program completed.

During the last two weeks, most of the activity has been devoted to the inspections of woodlots, for the purpose of obtaining soil building payments. It is very gratifying to note the great interest being manifested throughout the county in the improvement of farm woodlots varying in size from two or three acres up to 30. Farmers should, in all cases, remember that soil conserving bases determine the amount of payments made, and one should not attempt to earn too large a proportion by improving woodlots in one year. The reason is that every farmer should seed down sufficiently to produce the proper quantity of roughage, and the woodlot improvement program should be a long-time program and not merely a one-year means of obtaining maximum payments at the expense of other practices on the balance of the farm.

In all cases, before any attention can be devoted to woodlot improvement, it is necessary to officially apply for the inspection to the secretary of the county organization at Boyne City. In order to give farmers the opportunity of seeing a woodlot properly improved, already four demonstration areas are being worked on. On the Harrison Smith farm located in Bay township, four miles northeast of Horton's Bay, five acres have been completed by a crew of boys from Camp Wolverine, under the direction of L. B. Culver, federal forester. Later on, during the month, five acres in each of the following woodlots will receive the same attention in the same manner:

Sverke Ulvund, East Jordan.
Frank Wangeman, East Jordan.
Eveline Orchards, East Jordan.
Boyne Falls School Forest, Boyne Falls.

When these demonstrations have been completed, meetings will be held at two of them as a means of showing farmers what the woodlot looked like before and after the improvement program had been completed.

This information should be carefully noted by all farmers who expect to buy seed for their spring seedings. The notice from Washington is worded as follows: "Land will not be classified as soil conserving in the north central region which includes Michigan, if it is seeded to any imported seed (except Canadian) or unadapted domestic mixtures containing these seeds." This means that if any imported seed except from Canada or unadapted domestic seed is used, there will not be any soil building payment or soil conserving payment made. Therefore, be on the safe side and see your local dealer and talk it over with him, making sure your seed will be favorably approved for soil building payments.

Now remember that it is possible for farmers to really receive a good payment for doing the job well. For example: Payments may be made on the use of fertilizer, limestone, and, of course, for the use of good seed. Here is one example showing what might be accomplished just on one acre, all of which should, more or less, guarantee good stand.

Cost of seed, 12 lbs. of (adapted) Alfalfa, per A.	$ 4.00
Cost of fertilizer, 250 lbs. of 0-20-20	6.11
Cost of limestone, 2 tons at Petoskey plant	2.00
2 tons laid down at Boyne City	3.72
2 tons laid down at Boyne Falls, average	3.40
2 tons laid down at Charlevoix	3.08
Total cost would be	$13.51
You will get back for soil building payments for a good stand of Alfalfa	$ 2.50
Use of fertilizer	2.80
Use of limestone	2.50
Total	$ 7.80
Total cost	$13.51
Payment	7.80
Final cost	$ 5.71

This makes a final cost of $5.71 per acre. Why not use this type of program to increase your opportunities for securing a good stand of alfalfa?

Fifty-Two Farm Account Books Checked In Last Week

The Farm Account Project in this county has been very successful for several years, however, the year 1936 has been the banner year with approximately 55 books ready for summary. Specialists May and O'Dell, of the Farm Management Department, spent five days in having appointments with each of the cooperators for 1936. On Wednesday, March 10, six books were checked in at the Charlevoix court house, with 14 more on Thursday. Friday, March 12, at East Jordan, 13 books were checked in with the balance checked over in Boyne City.

Without a doubt these 55 books from this county will be the largest number being kept in the state. More and more farmers appreciate the information secured from these Farm Account Records. In fact, there are 11 farmers who now have eight years participation to their credit, with six more having seven consecutive years.

For the year 1937 the following farmers have started keeping records in this project for the first time: George Parsons, Charlevoix; Clyde Warner, Charlevoix; Frank Nachazel, East Jordan; Hugh Graham, East Jordan; Frank Rohloff, East Jordan, and Hitchcock, stock farmer, East Jordan. It is expected that two more names will be added to this increasing list during the week, so that there will be at least 60 cooperators for the new fiscal year.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT BULLETIN

The Letter of the Law in Scarlet Fever

The importance of maintaining scarlet fever quarantine, not only until 21 days from the onset of the disease, but also until recovery is complete and all abnormal discharges from the nose and ears have ceased was demonstrated very forcibly in Health District No. 7 last winter. The rules and regulations of the Michigan Department of Health specifically state that scarlet fever cases "shall be quarantined until recovery is complete and all abnormal discharges from the nose, ears and broken down glands have ceased, provided, that quarantine shall not cease until 21 days from the onset of the disease," but too often lay health officers are prone to ignore the former part of the regulation and release all cases at the end of the third week.

Dr. E. V. Thiehoff, director of District Health Department No. 7, of Gladwin, states the incident: "A child in the northern part of the state had scarlet fever and was released from quarantine at the end of the three weeks' period in spite of a profuse nasal discharge. After they were released from quarantine, the mother brought the child to Clare county for a visit with relatives. Here the child came in contact with four cousins in three different families, all of whom developed scarlet fever. The two children in the third family were in a hospital with severe nephritis. While they were in the early stages of the disease, they were in contact with a cousin who lived across the road. He contracted the disease. No physician was called in this latter case and no diagnosis was made until the child who was seen on the 20th day of the disease by myself. At that time recovery was complete. Since the case was not quarantined, a neighbor woman came in to call, bringing her six-year-old son. This boy developed the typical symptoms of sudden onset headache, sore throat, rise in temperature and vomiting. This occurred in the school he attended and so all the children in this school were exposed. The boy died of scarlet fever and his brother also contracted the disease.

"We thus see that as a result of one child with scarlet fever being released while still having a discharging nose, seven children developed the disease with one death and two children were in a hospital with acute nephritis not to mention an entire rural school being exposed. It has been interesting to follow these cases and it makes one realize the importance and seriousness of enforcing to the fullest extent the state regulations for the quarantine of scarlet fever."

This problem of highway safety would be quickly solved if you could convince motorists that the car to watch is the one behind the car ahead.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

March 22, 1937

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date with Mayor Bergeon presiding.

Present: Aldermen Campbell, Cartier, Hallett and Kibbe.

Absent: Aldermen Carey and Ranger.

Minutes of previous meeting were read and approved.

Moved by Alderman Cartier, seconded by Alderman Campbell, that the estimated budget submitted by the Golf Committee be accepted. Motion carried by the following Yea and Nay vote: Yeas: Aldermen Campbell, Cartier, Hallett and Kibbe. Nays: None.

Mayor Bergeon appointed Robert Bridge, Charles Hamlin, H. A. Craig, Leo Carey, Gordon Todd and Oakley Hammond as members of the Golf Committee for the ensuing year.

Enter Alderman Carey.

The Council proceeded to canvass the vote cast at the Special Election held on Friday, March 19, 1937, for the purpose of voting upon the following proposal:

"Shall the City of Charlevoix, for the purpose of defraying the cost of the installation of an 850 to 900 K.W. Diesel engine and to defray the cost of an extension and addition to the present Electric Light Plant necessary for such installation, issue Revenue Bonds of the Electric Light System in the sum of $115,000.00, the principal sum to be payable serially with interest at not to exceed four per cent per annum, payable semi-annually."

We hereby certify that the number of ballots cast at said election was 507, of which 257 were in favor of said proposal and 250 were against said proposal.

We further certify that such proposal did not receive the affirmative vote of three-fifths of the electors of the City of Charlevoix voting thereon at said Special Election, as required by Section 25 of Act VIII of the Constitution of the State of Michigan.

Moved by Alderman Cartier, seconded by Alderman Campbell, that the canvass of the votes of the Special Election held March 19, 1937, be approved. Motion carried by the following Yea and Nay vote: Yeas: Aldermen Campbell, Carey, Cartier, Hallett and Kibbe. Nays: None.

The Finance Committee having examined the following bills aggregating $3,915.71, find them correct and recommend they be allowed.

MICHIGAN STATE COLLEGE BULLETIN

Low Oven Heat Best for Roast

Juicy roasts showing the least amount of shrinkage come out of an oven after a constant but comparatively low temperature.

Oven tests recently conducted in kitchens at Michigan State College refute the old supposition that the heat must be juggled during meat roasting in order to sear and then roast at high temperature.

Recommeadations are simple, says Miss Alberta Young, instructor in foods at the college. A constant low temperature of 300 degrees Fahrenheit for the entire period in the oven did a far superior job than was evidenced in a similar piece of meat that was given a 450 degree roasting.

The two roasts were practically identical before they went into the oven. One weighed 10 pounds, two ounces, received the 450 degree treatment until a scientific meat thermometer pronounced it done in two hours, 54 minutes. It came out of the oven weighing seven pounds and five ounces, n roasting loss of two pounds and 13 ounces.

The other roast weighed 10 pounds and one ounce but lost only one pound and two ounces in roasting three hours. The first roast lost 27 per. cent of its weight, the second only 11 per cent.

Additional pointers suggested by Miss Young include preparation of the meat for the oven. Roasts should be cleaned with a damp cloth and placed on a rack in a roaster with the fat side up. None should be covered except a roast of veal, and no water need be added.

EDITORIAL

RECOGNIZING ABILITY

Corporations are very particular in the selection of men to fill managerial positions or head important departments. When those who are known to have the education, character and experience, have given satisfactory service to the corporation which employs them, they are not dismissed after a fixed period of time and replaced by others whose capacity to adequately fill these positions is not known. Men who have rendered effective service are retained and promoted and their successors in each capacity nre selected with the utmost care.

This principle should apply in the April election when two judges of the supreme court are to be elected. The work of this great tribunal is not in nny sense political.

The most responsible positions in Michigan government are those held by the judges of our courts, especially the highest court in the state. When men of character, experience and ability are occupying these places they should not be dislodged on election day by others whose fitness for the bench is not known. There is nothing to be gained by a change in the membership of the supreme court this spring. And the people of the state may suffer a great loss by the election of untried men.

There is much being said about civil service for the hundreds of minor positions in the state government. Both parties are committed to the principle of the merit system in the selection of state employes. This is good as far as it goes. But if those occupying minor positions are to be selected and retained because of their ability and fitness for the places they occupy, how much more important it is to continue in office the two judges whose terms expire this year.

Justices Louis Fead and Walter H. North, who are candidates for reelection, have served on the supreme bench for about ten years. Before being elevated to this high tribunal, they served with distinction for a number of years as circuit judges in their respective districts. Both have been distinguished for their ability as jurists and their work has been instrumental in keeping the Michigan supreme court on an exceptionally high standard.

It is refreshing that there is a statewide non-partisan movement to return Justices Fead and North to the supreme bench without regard to partisan considerations.

NOT A POLITICAL OFFICE

The five hundred school men assemhled in Lansing recently gave impetus to the suggestion of Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, superintendent of public instruction, that his office be removed from politics and that the superintendent be appointed by the State Board of Education. The school system is in no sense political and should not be subjected to political influence.

Much of the state's school program is a continuing one. Changes in the educational system cannot he made abruptly but often require several years. Frequently the public must be educated to the necessity for advanced or progressive policies and this may take a long period of time. The state superintendent should not be prompted in the choice of educational policy by the fact that he must submit himself to the electorate every two years for their approval or rejection. If he is to he freed from all political connections and if he is to he permitted to do his work without fear of extraneous pressure, he should receive his office from a nonpolitical body and his tenure should cover a period of several years.

Dr. Elliott is giving splendid service as head of the state's educational department. He is not a politician and the thought of politics does not enter into the conduct of his office. He served with distinction in this department under Dr. Paul Voelker, his predecessor, who was a Democrat, and was appointed to the office by Gov. Fitzgerald because he was the most competent educator available for the place. Democrats and Republicans alike admit that he is doing a splendid job and it is unfortunate that a man of his ability should have to run for re-election on a party ticket this spring. But until the constitution is changed, this will be necessary.

For the good of the state's educational system Dr. Elliott should be re-elected so that the policies of his department may continue without interruption or change. While his name will appear on the Republican ballot, his re-election should not be determined by political considerations. It is time to take Michigan's educational system out of politics.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Turkeys and hams are attractively priced for Easter dinner tables. Veal too, is moderate, but beef and lamb are high. All poultry continues reasonable though fowl is a little high compared to frying and roasting chickens. Egg retails are very close to the wholesale level but are several cents higher than last year. Butter prices have continued to rise.

All vegetables except green and lima beans and green peas are moderate in price. Even asparagus prices have dropped to a level where it can be served.

Wayne county is resentful over its failure to gain adeqaate constitutional representation in the present Legislature. A constitutional convention, if called, would be dominated by upstate interests, so Wayne leaders maintain.

A Republican representative from the Detroit district advocated the referendum as a chance to obtain more legislators, and a Democratic representative from Escanaba voiced vigorous opposition.

The vote was 36 yes and 57 no.

Dog Racing Again

Twice the House of Representatives has passed a bill to legalize dog races, and twice the Senate has rejected it.

With rumors flying that Gov. Murphy would undoubtedly veto it, even if the Senate pronounced its blessing, Floyd FitzSimmons' 1937 measure went sailing through the House a few days ago. Lobbyist FitzSimmons enjoys favor as a "square-shooter." The statehouse story is that the House passed his bill as a personal favor—probably feeling that the Senate would kill it anyway. Among its supporters in the House were the Rev. James W. Hailwood, of Kent county, and Mrs. Elizabeth L. Belen, of Ingham county.

Murphy to Sit Down?

The approach of the spring election and the spread of industrial labor strife has presented a nent problem to the state administration. "Sit-down" fever has been threatening to become an epidemic. Like the Michigan bank moratorium, it has been getting rapidly out of bounds.

"Murphy is going to sit down on the sit downers" was the whispered prediction in capitol cloak rooms.

Senator William Palmer, Democratic floor leader, introduced companion bills to make sit-down occupancy of plants a felony and to prescribe stiff penalties for refusal on the part of either labor or employers, to negotiate.

Liquor Advertising

Rep. Nelson A. Miles, of Holland, is sponsor of a bill to ban beer and liquor advertising in Michigan. In the Senate a committee on liquor control, headed by Senator Joseph Roosevelt, of Detroit, voted not to report any bills now before it until one of the two major liquor control bills in the House reaches the Senate.

Farm Product Advertising

In the states of Wisconsin and New York the state appropriates funds to stimulate the sale of farm products through advertising campaigns. Apparently taking a tip from the success experienced in these states, Senator Earl L. Burhans, of Paw Paw, has latroduced a bill to appropriate $30,000 annually for the next two years.

The state would pay half the expense of advertising "major" farm products of the state.

Civil Service Stalled

Chances of action in the House on the civil service bill passed by the Senate grow less daily in proportion to the approach of the spring election.

Politicians are not anxious to "stick their heads out."

Rated highest by the Civil Service Study Commission are the state conservation department and the state police department, both of which operate on an informal merit system.

With retirement on April 1 of three Republican members — Harry H. Whiteley, of Dowagine, Philip K. Fletcher, of Alpena, and M. J. Fox, of Iron Monntain—certain Democrats view the prospect of a new crop of plums, bill or no bill.

And jobs look mighty good to politicians, regardless of their party.

BIG SMELT JAMBOREE DREW MANY THOUSANDS

Jack VanCoevering, Detroit Outdoor Writer, Crowned New King

A crowd of more than 3,000 persons were on hand at East Jordan's national smelt jamboree, Saturday afternoon, to witness the crowning of Jack VanCoevering, outdoor editor of the Detroit Free Press, as the 1937 national king of smeltium.

Rev. John Cermak as lord high chamberlain officiated at the ceremony, which presented a colorful picture. As VanCoevering took the oath which made him "king Jacob the First of Smeltium," he solemnly swore to protect the interests of his subjects, both on the land and in the river, and that he would strive to prevent sitdown strikes, never think of abdicating, and to carry on with the ancient battlecry of "bigger and better smelt." He succeeds Ike Hyams, of Cincinnati, the 1936 king.

Various street acts filled the earlier part of the afternoon. One of the main features was Newnygo Newt's national spitting contest. Kenneth Usher, of Charlevoix, and Dr. W. R. Barney, potentate of Saladin Shrine, Grand Rapids, divided the honors, the former winning the distance title and the latter the accuracy championship.

More than 250 persons attended the stag banquet in the evening with Ernest Jack Sharpe acting as toastmaster.

When fireworks heralded the "charge of the night brigade," more than 4,000 enthusiastic dippers treked to the river.

CITY AND STATE ELECTION MONDAY

CITY REPUBLICAN TICKET IS WITHOUT OPPOSITION

State Election of Major Importance With Contests Between Republicans and Democrats

Next Monday, April 5, brings the biennial state spring election and the annual general city election. Voters will be confronted with three ballots —the state, city and an amendment ballot.

With a slate of uncontested Republican candidates, the city election is shoved into the background by the contests for state offices. From a political viewpoint, and an important one too, the state election will decide whether or not the Democratic landslide which swept the entire ticket into office last November is to be repeated.

Political observers also expect Monday's election to offer some reflection of popular reaction to President Roosevelt's proposal to enlarge membership of the Federal Supreme Court. A repetition of the Democratic landslide of last fall would be taken as another "vote of confidence" for the President and his program. More specifically, voting for justices of the state supreme court is expected to be a good indication of the Michigan voters' ideas on high court membership. Defeat of the two Republican incumbents, Justices Walter H. North and Louis H. Fead, who have served a combined total of 19 years on the Michigan supreme bench would be an indication of popular trend toward a more liberal court.

Republicans now hold all but one office to be voted upon Monday. Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner, serving his first four-year term, is a Democrat.

SUMAC IN PORT, SETTING A NAVIGATION RECORD

Made Round Lake Harbor Wednesday After 24-Hour Battle In Ice

All records for early opening of navigation were shattered at noon here Wednesday when the U. S. lighthouse tender Sumac entered port.

The vessel arrived off the pier heads at noon Tuesday and 24 hours was required to work through ice floes filling the bay between North and South Points. Drift ice 20 feet deep was encountered.

The early arrival, first ever recorded in March, was necessary to take workmen and supplies to the new Gray's Reef lighthouse, to be placed in commission this year. With Gray's Reef lightship dismantled, the new lighthouse must be completed for the opening of navigation April 15. Whether the Sumac will be able to reach Gray's Reef, located in the ice-jammed Straits, is a matter af conjecture.

Arrival of the Sumac opened the way for several local commercial fishing craft, bottled up in ports south for several weeks, to make port.

STATE FERRY IS NOW ON REGULAR SCHEDULE

Return of Car Ferry Wawatam Released Boat for Service

State ferry service has been resumed on a normal plane, as result of the return of the train ferry Chief Wawatam from drydock, enabling the Ste. Mario to concentrate work on ferrying autos and passengers between Mackinaw City and St. Ignace. The Ste. Marie is under lease to the State Highway Department to carry autos and passengers this winter, but it also had to transport trains while the Wawatam was away. The Ste. Marie now makes five round trips a day.

The Ste. Marie's schedule includes departures from Mackinaw City at 7 a. m., 10:30 a. m., 1:30 p. m., 4:30 p. m., and 7:30 p. m.

ALL-CONFERENCE CAGE TEAM NAMED

CHARLEVOIX AND BOYNE GET ALL FIVE POSITIONS

Other Conference Schools Are Given Places on Second Team—Class Tourney Now Under Way

The Northern Michigan "Little Eight" Class C conference all-star basketball team, named by officials of the conference, has been announced.

Charlevoix, the conference champions, placed three players on the mythical all-star squad, while Boyne City, the conference runner-up and district and regional champions, placed two players on the first squad. Boyne City, Grayling, Mancelona, East Jardan and Gaylord placed one man each on the second honor team.

The members of the all-stur team are: Carey, Charlevoix, rf; Radle, Charlevoix, lf; Kujnwski, Boyne City, c; Gallagher, Charlevoix, rg; and Hausler, Boyne City, lg. Those named on the second team were: Kanipe, Boyne City, rf; Chalker, Grayling, lf; B. Smith, Mancelonn, c; Sommerville, East Jordan, rg, and Knicely, Gaylord, lg.

Those given honorable mention were; Brower, Harbor Springs; Nelson and Fillmore, Kalkaska; Simmons, Gaylord; Flannery and Ring, Mancelona, and Richardson, Charlevoix.

Class Tourney Started

The annual inter-class tournament, which got under way last week, will wind up basketball activity in Charlevoix High school for 1937.

Twelve teams are competing in three divisions, Classes A, B and C. In Class A are the seniors, junior first and second team, sophomore and freshman first teams. In Class B are the sophomore and freshman second teams, eighth and seventh grade first teams. Class C is composed of the sixth grade first team, seventh and eighth grade second teams, and freshman third team.

Coach Kipke expects competition in Class A to be completed this week in order to release players for track and baseball practice. Charlevoix will compete in both of these sports this spring in competition with other schools of the Northern Michigan "Little Eight" Class C conference. A meeting has been called for Saturday, April 10, at Boyne City, to arrange track and baseball schedules, as well as basketball schedules for 1937-38.

MAIL TO BEAVERS DELIVERED BY FISH TUG

Tug Edna Landed at Beaver Head Tuesday—Resume Plane Service

With airmail service between Charlevoix and Beaver Island temporarily suspended during the absence of Pilot Russell Carnes, a mail delivery was made to the island Tuesday by Carl Left with the Cross fish tug Edna.

Mail was transferred across the ice to the boat lying at the edge of open water off this harbor and was picked up in a similar manner off Beaver Island head. St. James harbor is still ice-locked.

Mail deliveries by plane will be made over the coming week-end, it is understood.

Council Answers Critics On Electric Light Proposition

The following letter received from one of our prominent summer citizens gives his reaction on the electric light situation here. Mr. Balch is president of the Belvedere Club, which carries one of the largest assessed valuations in the city.

March 26, 1937

Hon. Arthur Bergeon,
Mayor of Charlevoix,
Charlevoix, Michigan

Dear Mayor Bergeon:

I am informed that the City Council proposal of $115,000 to finance the extension of your Municipal Electric Light Plant was defeated.

I am sure you are aware that I have no desire or intention to interfere with Charlevoix politics, however, during the past thirty-five years I have been spending considerable time at Charlevoix and I am familiar with the situation that confronts your Municipal Electric Plant and have realized for a long time that you have practically reached your capacity at the height of your season.

There are other great difficulties confronting this subject, viz.: Should you meet with any mishap with your present equipment, it would prove embarrassing and you would be unable to furnish enough power to meet the ordinary requirements of your citizens. As I understand the proposition submitted to your voters was to be a lien on the utility only and the improvement was to be paid for out of the earnings of your plant. As I view it, it would have been a profitable investment and at the same time insuring the successful operation of your utility, preparatory for the future growth of Charlevoix.

Charlevoix stands out in a class by itself; it has no competitor. Your climate in July and August is the finest to be found in the country; its beauty and nature advantages are becoming better known each year.

I am enclosing you Public Ownership Bulletin of Public Utilities for February, and I call your attention to the Diesel Powered Municipal Plant.

With kind regards and best wishes,
Sincerely yours,
JAMES B. BALCH.

At the recent election the bond issue to add extra equipment to Charlevoix's electric utilities and provide service for its increasing demands was defeated, lacking a two-thirds majority. An anonymous letter filled with misleading statements by a "Citizens Committee" which was circulated after dark the night before the election and too late to be answered, possibly influenced many voters who had taken only a casual interest in the proposition. However, the situation remains unchanged. All agree, including the "committee" that more current is necessary if the city is to meet the increasing demand for electricity which has averaged 50 K.W. per year and is made up for the most part by users of power. It is self evident that something should be done soon or the city MUST curtail on the sale of power.

The council in an effort to ascertain what was best for our needs em-

MANY ATTENDED GOOD FRIDAY SERVICE HERE

Union Service at Methodist Church Held As Local Observance

When union Good Friday services commemorating the death of Christ on the Cross opened at the First Methodist church at noon on Friday, the church was comfortably filled with worshipers.

Throughout the service additional persons entered while some of those who attended the opening of the program left. Many remained throughout the three hours of worship which ended at three o'clock.

Business places of the city closed at noon and remained closed for three hours in recognition of the various Good Friday services being held in churches throughout the city.

WILLIAM SHAPTON, BARNARD PIONEER, IS DEAD

Former Well Known Dairyman Succumbed to Illness Tuesday Night

William Shapton, 81, one of the first pioneers of the Barnard district, died at 12 o'clock Tuesday night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George Block, following an extended illness.

Mr. Shapton was born August 16, 1856, at Stratford, Ontario, Canada, the son of John and Sarah Shapton. He came to Michigan at the age of 21 years, settling on a farm in Marion township, first clearing only sufficient land for buildings. He had since resided there.

Mr. Shapton was married December 25, 1883, to Nettie Bowdish. To this union were born six children, five of whom survive besides the widow. They are Mrs. Gertrude Block, Earl J., Louis W., and Lee Sargent, of Charlevoix, and Mrs. Maude Couse of Chicago. A daughter, Myrtle, died in infancy. Other survivors include two brothers, Richard, of Charlevoix, and Thomas, of Flint; also nine grandchildren.

Mr. Shapton for many years conducted a dairy business and was widely known.

Mr. Shapton's body will lie in state at the George Block residence until Sunday. A prayer service will be conducted at the home at 1 o'clock and funeral services held at the Methodist church at 1:30 o'clock, Rev. John Alexander officiating.

MRS. DORA RICKERD IS TAKEN BY DEATH TUESDAY

Mrs. Dora Rickerd, 72, well known local woman, died at 7 o'clock Tuesday morning at her residence on Green street.

Funeral services will be conducted by Rev. H. J. Pulsipher from the home at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon. Burial will be at Kalkaska.

WILLIAM PEARL, PIONEER RESIDENT, DEAD

Funeral Services Conducted Last Monday from Church of God

Funeral services were conducted last Monday for William Pearl, longtime resident of this city, whose death occurred March 18.

Services were held at the Church of God with Rev. H. J. Pulsipher officiating, and burial was at Brookside cemetery.

Mr. Pearl, who was 85 years old at his death, was born in New York state, December 9, 1852. He moved with his parents to Antrim county. His father and mother died when he was a child.

Mr. Pearl was married in 1882 to Miss Lucy Cools. To this union the following surviving children were born: Mrs. Henry Herrington, of Detroit, and Mrs. William Bogart and Reuben Pearl, both of Charlevoix. He also leaves eight grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

ZIEGLER WOULD FINISH THE TRUNKLINES

SAYS PRESENT ROUTES SHOULD COME BEFORE NEW ONES

Charlevoix County Specifically Mentioned by Republican Candidate for Highway Commissioner

Immediate completion of all state trunk line highways through Charlevoix county should be undertaken before new routes are started, Charles M. Ziegler, Republican candidate for state highway commissioner declared today. Ziegler is winding up his campaign in preparation for the election next Monday, having visited every county in the state.

"Let's complete existing routes before starting new ones," Ziegler declared. "The piecemeal fashion the State Highway Department has operated its program during the past three years has resulted in completion of few of the many routes instituted years ago."

Ziegler's platform calls for all state trunk line maintennnce work to be done by county road commissions. The present highway department, Ziegler says, is gradually taking over this work, and in the end if successful, will have one of the biggest political organizations ever created in the state. Fifty per cent of the state roads are now maintained by the county road commissions and Ziegler believes that all the work could be done by these groups who have efficient organizations with ample equipment to do the work, which of course would be financed by the state.

"I believe the people in every county should have a voice in selecting road locations," Ziegler declared. "This will avoid serious difficulties throughout the state that have resulted in much ill feeling in the past few years."

Ziegler has charged repeatedly that too much money has been diverted from construction and maintenance funds to build up a strong political organization in the State Highway Department.

"For the present highway commissioner to bluntly state during the campaign that the day of the political highway is a thing of the past, is to me rather silly when we know how vast and extensive the present political setup really is."

NEW LIGHTHOUSE ON GRAY'S REEF

REPLACES LIGHTSHIP NOW BEING DISMANTLED HERE

Crew of Lightship Will Man New Lighthouse — Gray's Reef Last Lightship In Commission

A familiar scene will not take place in Charlevoix this spring—the departure of lightships to take up their vigil of marking dangerous shoal waters in upper Lake Michigan. There will be no departure signals, no tooting of whistle, nor crowds at the pier to bid farewell to the staunch little vessels and their crews.

Gray's Reef lightship, solo survivor of a fleet which has diminished year by year as concrete lighthouses have been built to replace them, is being dismantled after 22 years of service. The sturdy ship, built for her job of riding the restless waters of Lake Michigan for months at a time, will be offered for sale, discarded to make way for the advance of more modern devices.

This season will find a lighthouse flashing its warning to ships plying the Straits of Mackinac. Gray's Reef lighthouse, the sixth of such modern structures, is located one and one-quarter miles from the previous lightship anchorage and will mark the west side of a new 3,000-foot steamship channel dredged during the past summer by the U. S. Engineering Department. It is at the westerly end of the Straits and midway between White Shoals and Isle aux Galets.

The foundation, a crib 64 x 64 feet in dimensions and 27 feet high, was built at St. Ignace, towed to Gray's Reef and sunk in 26 feet of water. Tons and tons of rock and concrete were used as ballast. Upon this crib is a six-foot slab of concrete from which rises the structure itself, built of steel and housing the crew's quarters, mechanism, etc. Atop the house is an 82-foot tower with the light in its peak and above that a radio antenae, making a total height of 130 feet above the water.

Mechanism, the most modern yet devised, includes electric generators, air compressors, etc., together with oil storage and the like. The light-

DETROITER IS KILLED IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

Fatal Accident Near Boyne Falls at 2 A. M., Sunday Morning

Dr. Norman F. Thompson, of Detroit, was killed on M-75 between Boyne City and Boyne Falls at 2 a. m., Sunday, when he was struck by a car driven by S. Gettle, of Roscommon.

The Detroit dentist was said to have been removing a spare tire from the rear of the car when he halted Gettle's automobile, coming from behind. He was struck, causing fatal injuries.

Karl Legg, also of Detroit, who was aiding Thompson, was hit also and suffered fractures of the legs and pelvis. He is in Petoskey Hospital. George L. McCain, the driver, who was sitting in the car, suffered only minor injuries.

A coroner's jury was impanelled in Boyne City to hear the inquest into Dr. Thompson's death. The inquest will probably be held today at the Stackus funeral home in Boyne City.

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

"Let Lansing do it" is still the popular cry in Michigan.

It is being heard daily as the State Legislature in session receives appeals from organized "pressure groups" to obtain state aid for their pet measures. If a group of voters back home wants more township roads, more library books, more school facilities, more welfare funds, more this and that, it is not long before someone proclaims: "Let's ask our state representative or senator to introduce a bill."

Just as Michigan and the other 47 states have turned to Washington for help in feeding their unemployed and in solving their other depression problems, so Michigan groups are turning to Lansing for a helping hand.

Deserving Projects

It is very natural that, after years of depression and an accompanying dearth of tax revenues, that many tax-supported services should be in need of rehabilitation . . . modernization.

Sponsored by sincere and conscientious citizens, all anxious to see these projects receive special favor, are the following projects:

Junior colleges are worth while; sponsors ask state aid of $2,000 annually for each college and $60 annually for each student.

Libraries need books and communities lack libraries; $1,250,000 annual state aid is asked.

Modern schools are needed in many parts of the state; educators seek to increase the present state aid from $38,000,000 to $45,000,000.

Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Mower, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Dissette, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Price and Mr. and Mrs. Don Stelle were dinner guests Friday evening of Mr. and Mrs. John Porter in East Jordan.

The home talent play, "That Old Sweetheart of Mine," put on by our local group at the Grange hall last Tuesday evening, was well attended and very much enjoyed. There has been four dramatic clubs under the supervision of A. C. Belding, organized in the county. This Monday evening, Bay Shore will give their play in the hall and it is hoped that everyone will come who can. This leaves the Barnard group, who will be here in two weeks. The Walloon club was here two weeks ago and they did very well. This has been very interesting and instructive for all those who have taken part. This is a WPA project and with the help of our local leader, Mr. Thomson, Mr. Belding has made an interesting project for the clubs.

Last Sunday morning, Easter services were held in our church with a large attendance. Mrs. J. C. Dissette and Nancy Price played a very nice piano duet. The girls' class sang nicely, and the local quartet sang an Easter hymn. A group of 20 united with us as members: Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Dissette and son, James, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Arlo Wickersham, Clyde Cunningham, Raymond Cunninghnm, Stanley Dean, Florence White, Clair Williams, Nancy Price, Gwendolyn Thomson, Marion Jackson, Jr., Albert Jackson; Mrs. Albert Carlson, and there was also a group of three generations, which is the first to join during Rev. Parker's ministry. These were Sam Alexander, Sr., Ross Alexander, Sam Alexander, Jr., and Jane Ann Alexander. Beautiful floral offerings of red tulips and Easter lilies were given by Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Mower. This was a very happy and pleasant Easter service for all who attended.

"You're certainly lucky," continued the boss, "it's a wonder they didn't kill you."

Tests to Show How Old You Really Are

In The American Weekly, with the April 4 issue of The Detroit Sunday Times, you will find an article revealing that the years you have lived don't count; science measures your age by what you can taste and hear, decay of the nervous fibres, how thick your blood is, and in other ways.

Empty deeds require big trumpets.

THE GRAIN DRILL THAT'S REGULAR AS CLOCKWORK

Tick-Tock! Tick-Tock! Tick-Tock! Up or down hill—or on the level—an Oliver Superior Drill sows grain accurately and dependably. The Superior Variable Speed Disc Drive positively regulates the sowing speed.

The amount of grain is then correctly measured by the Superior Double-Run Force Feed. There can be no missing, bunching or skipping. Single disc, double disc, or hoe opener equipment prepares the seed trench properly. Your grain has the best possible chance to germinate. You can get bigger yields at a smaller cost.

There's truth in the old Biblical saying "As Ye Sow So Shall Ye Reap." With the clockwork precision of an Oliver you are sure that your grain won't be wasted—and that it will be sown so as to reap the largest possible yield. Oliver Superior Drills have many unusual improvements. Ask us to show you!

CHAPTER V

The glory sureqd far ahead of it, and far behiud it. Gail saw her name in the Clippersville Challenge more than once during thia amazing summer, listed amsng the guests at affairs whsse distinction a few months back was beyond her wildest dreams.

She had a feverish feeling sometimes nf having isst Edith, lost Phil and Sam and Ariel, lost touch with her wurk at the library and her duties at hsme—one could not live two lives, after nll, and Van's very exactions were a delight, an nnswer to her wild young ardent prayers of last spring. Nothing mattered hut that she should please him, should keep close to him. She grew wittier, quicker, gayer as the weeks went by; their tnlk together wns merely a quick cross-fire of repartee.

One uight in late August she and Van walked home from a movie in Clippersville. The night was insufferably hot, and the audience was glad euough to straggle out into the black darkness of the Calle, where the air was some degrees couler.

"Whew! That was frightful," Gail hrenthed, turning her bared head up to the stars, shaking back her tnwny mane.

"This is a snorter!" Van commented. "Los Gatos tomorrow, hey? And into the pool."

The moon had not yet risen, but there wns an odd light in the world, at nlue o'clock; whitewnshed surfaces and the ndohe walls of the oldest buildiugs wore nn odd pale glimmer of white. The upper branches of the great trees uver the Calle rustled wenrily in a hot wind.

"Maybe we'll go over to the beach Sunday," Van said.

"I wish we were there now!"

"Take you in a minute!" he offered eugerly. The girl laughed.

"A hundred miles," she said drily. "And we'd get so hot going over, and be so tired coming back, that we wouldn't gain much."

"Ice creaia at Dobbins'?" he suggested.

"Kind of mussy." But she lurned toward the drug store none the less; the opporiunity to be seen by all the town, having soda at Dobbins' with Van Murchison, must not be overlnokgd.

All Clippersville came in and out of Dohbins' on a hot summer evening, and she kept wheeling nbout on her high stool to greet library acquaintnnces and neighbors and friends.

"How-do, Miss Lawrence." "Hello, Gail." "How-do, Gail." "Good evening, Miss Lawrence!"

They nll saw that she was with Van Murchison.

Ariel came in and put her slim arms about Gail from behind and kissed the bright wave of tawny hair over Gail's ear.

"Take our places," Gail said, getting dowa. "We're done!"

Sho walked alung beside Vnn silently in the street. The man kept up his regular stream nf chatter for n minate; somehow it jarred tonight. Gail broke across it suddenly.

"The reason I wanted to come away was—my brother Phil was in Dohhins', there."

"Your brother Phil was!"

"Yes. 'Wny over ia the corner, in nne of the twosomes."

"Why didn't we yell at him?" Van asked simply.

She had to have sympathy; she had to test him. With a sudden letting down of the hars she said, "Because his girl was with him."

"And don't you like her?" Van demanded, with his delighted air of diacovering something amusing.

"I despise her!" Gail answered somberly.

"Not renlly!" he oxclaimed ecstatlcnlly. "What? Phil's girl?"

"She's not a girl, renlly, and it's very serious," Gail said, determined to sober him. "She's a divorced woman, nnd she has three little hoys nbout three and two and one—"

"Oh, I love it!" Van said with relish. "Phil! Old sober-sides! I adore it! I'm crazy nbout it!"

"Vnn, how can you say so!" Gail reproached him, hurt. "She's n terrible girl; she comes from Thomns Street Hill; she was one of the Wibsers."

"Oh, I think it's perfectly grand!" Van said, with his raw, joynus laugh. "Think of the trouhlo and expense saved—hia family all ready-made!"

But suddenly perceiving that she was not amused, and that a genuine mood of anger and disappointment was keeping her silent, he changed his tone and said rallyingly, lightly:

"Why, what do you carc who your brother marries! You don't have to marry her! It's his funersl."

"I suppose so," Gail conceded after a moment, wenrily.

"Want to jump into the car and rush off somewhere and get cool?"

"It would take too long, and I'm too tired, and I promised Edith to he home early. She gets nervous."

The car was parked a hundred feet from the Lawrence gate. Gail went to the fence that had nnce heen their meadow fence, and leaned on the bsrs and ntared into the night that was now lighted by the moon.

"Phil's marrying would simply wreck our lnme," she said, reverting to the topic deliberately, desperately.

"Oh, forget it! He won't marry her," Van assured her easily.

"I think," she begsn, a little thickly—"I think what worries me is Ariel. She's proud, she's so sensitive—"

"Shucks! She isn't any prouder ur moro sensitive than you are!" Van said unsympathetically. He hated to he serinus, Gail knew. He was hating it now.

"The thing about Ariel is," Gail pursued resolutely, "that she is running around with that Buddy Raisch crowd—of course they may he a perfectly decent crowd underneath—"

"Why, she'a nothing bnt a school child!" Van said, in distaste aud displeasure.

"Well, she's not such a school child hut what she lets Buddy Raisch take her out in his roadster—"

"Oh, I love it! I think it's priceless!" Van exclaimed, laughing, as Gail's troubled voice fell still.

"I don't know what to do about it," Gail hegan again. "I was wondering," she added timidly, "what you would think I ought to do, Van?"

He was interested now, hut in nn annoyed, reluctsnt sort of way. He said quickly:

"I? For heaven's sake, what should I know about it? It seems to me if she's such a fool she likes to run 'round with a hnunder like that, why, let her do it!"

"But you don't understsnd, Van," Gail said patiently. "She's only seventeen—she won't he eighteen until next Christmns."

"Thnt wasn't no hindrance to the late Miss Juliet Capulet!" Van remlnded her joyously.

Gail laughed faintly, and was silent.

"I'll come for you early tomorrow," Van presently said. "How'a nine o'clock? That gets us to the ranch at noou, easy."

The girl felt eold, unresponsive, henvy.

They were standing close together nt the old fence rail; he might easily

He Might Easily Have Put His Arm About Her.

havu put his arm about her. But he never sttempted that sort of thing; Gail wondered sometimes if it were some queer luck in her that prevented him, or some missing quality in him.

Going into the hnuse she determined that she would not go down to Los Gatos at all tomorrow, and felt a great relief in the thought. If they wanted her they could make a special overture next week.

She wandered nway to her own room, returned in pajsmas, brushing her thick mop of tawny-gold hair.

"Phil was at Dohbias' tonight," she said suddenly, "with Lily."

Edith opened her lips to speak, made no aonnd. They stared at each other.

"He wasn't!" Edith whispered after awhile.

"He was."

"At Dobbins!"

"In one of the twosomes . . . alcoves."

"Oh, Gail!" Edith wailed.

"I know. It's awful."

"He'a crazy," the yonnger sister said darkly. They brooded upon it in silence.

Gail felt tired and blue; discouragod about Phil, about Ariel, about her nwn hopes and plans concerning Van. A nense of futility, of helplessness, was heavy upon her as nhe went slowly downstairs and slowly moved about the kitchen, pressing her white linen, freshening her printed chiffon.

"I may he engaged to be married this time tomorrow night," she thought, when she wns in bed, reading. "There's a momest when one isn't, and then suddenly—one is. That's all there is to it. Girls do get engaged; almost every girl gets engaged."

Shs thougbt of the Fosters and the Delshantys. Three, busy, hosely usmarried sisters in each family. Two in the post office, two teaching school, one in the library, one a stenographer. Gail's heart failed her.

It was nst fair thnt some girls should travel, go places, do fascinating things, and that other girls shsuld drudge away at the library, year after year, while hope died and youth faded and esthusiasms were spent—like the Fosters' and the Delshantys' enthusiasms—upon church fairs and preserving fruit.

"It's not right," Gail said solemnly to the shabby old sileat room, through whose windsws the hot smell of pear trees and burned grsss was penetrating from the dark night outside. "There's nothing in character, if it only gets you what the Fosters and the Delshantys hsve got!

"I'm nut sure," she decided darkly, "hut whst Ariel's in the right! I'll bet she gets to Londoa before I do!"

CHAPTER VI

The next day she rose unrefreshed and dissatisfied, and dragged heavily through her preparations to go to Los Gatos, as if the prospect were anything but inviting.

It would have filled her with ecstasy a year ago; she felt dull and doubtful about it now.

Ariel, all helpful sympathy, came out to the gate when Van parked there, honking wildly, at ten oclock.

"Here," he said, leaping out, "I'll take that!" He stowed Gail's suitcase in the rumble. The three atood smiling and gossiping in the soft foggy morning.

"I wish I were going with you!" Ariel sst.i frankly.

"Well, why don't you come!" Van exclaimed, suddenly fired.

"Oh, no, I couldn't. I've got a date with the crowd tuuight," Ariel protested, "nnd I couldn't anyway, I'm not dressed! Aad I couldn't anyway."

For an instnnt the matter hung fire, and Gail did not know whether or not in that instant Ariel sent her a glsnce of wild hope. Immediately the younger girl settled the mnlter, and wns running back into the house shouting, "Have a good time!"

Despite her sister's protests, Gail felt like a murderer as Van's car shot away across the long bare ruad, away from dusty, dull Clippersville intu the beauty and shade and coulness of Far Niente. The thought of thst quick, hopeful glance of Ariel's—that glance thst might not over even have been sent or heen thought nf—haunted her.

Not that Ariel could have come, nu. Obviously thst would have been a mistake.

But Gail kept wishing that she, Gail, hnd urged it, had impulsively, ridiculously, pressed it. It would have made no difference in the outcome, for even little Ariel knew that she mustn't expect to go places just because Gail did. Sbs wouldn't have come. She would know that they might anub her.

And yet the memory of the little dying pink figure and the shouted "Have a good time!" in Ariel's oddly deep voice would not let her be at peace. She was gnawed by hunger for Ariel, incessant and deep.

Van's mother proved to be a thin, dark, smart woman in a beautiful transparent gown nf orsngs and black. She greeted her son with a fretful "Van, I suppose you know your father's furious at you, and making life simply wretched for ms?" and gave to Gail only an abstracted frown.

"I think you were in school with my mother, Editha Petrie, in San Francisco?" Gail said, trying to seem at ease.

* OF INTEREST TO FARMERS * By B. C. Mellencamp *

Second Series of Educational Meetings Regarding Soil Conservation Program Completed

The officers in charge of the Soil Conservation prsgram were highly gratified to note the interest of farmers in the new 1937 soil conservation program. At each meeting County Agent B. C. Mellencamp briefly analyzed the main features and discussed the soil building practicea which are worthy of payment. Also George A. Nelson, president of the county organization, was present and discussed some nf the administrative problems. These meetings proved to he very helpful in clearing up asme of the uncertainties. It is hoped that more farmers will participate than last year.

Immediately after the educational meeting, the community committeemen spent two days in discussing the program with individual farmers who might be somewhat uncertain as to how they should handle their individual farms. The bases having been set, it is possible to announee these to the individual farmer. As a result of this activity, the officers feel that farmers will be in a better position to partlcipate than ever befsre.

Within a very few days letters will be sent to each farmer annsuncing the bases, which will enable them to immedlately make rather definite plans to eooperate in the program.

County 4-H Club Council Meets

On last Tuesday night, the five members selected as a 4-H club council met in Boyne City and discussed plans for Achievement Day. The Achievement Day will be held on April 20 and this year can be seen in the Boyne City gymnasium.

This winter we have a larger number of finishers than ever before in the county, all of which will make the Achievement Day an occasion that you will not want to miss. From 10 to 12 n'clock free movies will be enjuyed by those in attendance. During the noun hour, ice cream will be contributed to make the noun day lunch somewhat more attractive. The feature of the afternoon prugram will be a dress revue, participated in by each one of the clothing club members. Also, A. G. Kettunen, state club leader, will speak briefly, as well as a representative of the girls' section.

The following delegates were present at this discussion: Mrs. Juanita Erber, Bsyne City; Mrs. Sally Blake, Charlevoix; Mrs. Addie March, Bay Shore; Melvin Somerville, Boyne City, and Lester Walcutt, East Jordan.

A esrdial invitation is extended to business and professianal men, as well as all parents of club children and pupils of all schools in the county who would like to enjoy this big

JOSEPH SEYMOUR, PIONEER RESIDENT, DEAD

Funeral Services Conducted Monday From St. Mary's Church

Fr. Neubecker conducted funeral services at 9 o'clock Monday morning from St. Mary's church for Joseph Seymour, pioneer resident of this district, who died Tuesday evening, March 23, at the home of his son, Raymond.

Mr. Seymour was born in Canada in 1851 and was 86 years of age at his death. He went to Ellenburg, N. Y., with his parents at the age of 11 years, and at the age of 18 was married to Angeline Supernaw, whose death occurred in 1916.

After their marriage, the couple moved onto a farm near Atwood and resided there until 24 years ago, then moving to this city.

Surviving are six children: Mrs. Emma Hebert, Mrs. Winnie Waffle, William and Raymond, of Charlevoix; Mrs. Inez Bacot and Mrs. Lillian Lawrence, of Flint; two sisters, Linda Seymour and Delia Soymour, of Ellenburg, N. Y.; three brothers, Adolphus and John, of Flint; and Fred, of Plattsburg, N. Y.; also 25 grandchildren and 36 great-grandchildren, and one great-great-grandchild. A son, Elmer, died in 1923, and a brother, Medrick, in 1933.

FORMER LOCAL WOMAN IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Mrs. Josephine Smith Died at Chicago—Funeral Held Here Friday

Mrs. Josephine Smith, 83, former well known local woman, died Monday, March 22, in Chicago, at the home of her son, Capt. Ava Smith.

Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon from the Congregational church, Rev. G. R. Parker officiating. Burial at Brookside cemetery.

Josephine Martin was born at Cleveland, O., April 7, 1854. She came here with her parents when a child and made Charlevoix county her home most of her life. She was married in 1870 to Ava Smith, now deceased. Since about 1908 she had been residing with her children at various points.

Surviving are four daughters, Mrs. Mahalah Magee, of Boyne Falls, Mrs. Anna Dell, of Granite Falls, Wash., Mrs. Laura Scott, of Holbrook, Ariz., Mrs. Sadie Gaylord, of Hollywood, Calif.; two sons, Capt. Ava Smith, of Chicago, and Perry, of Charlevoix. A son, Ira, died in Charlevoix. A sister, Mrs. Sarah Blackman, of Traverse City, and a brother, John Martin, of Charlevoix, survive also.

FRANKLIN SEARS HEADS TRAVERSE COAL CONCERN

Construction work will start within the next ten days on a new dock on the west shore of West Bay, immediately north of the Rennie Oil Dock, by the West Bay Coal Company, it has been announced by Franklin Sears, president and owner of the Sears Dock and Dredge Company, who will continue on in the capacity of manager of the concern after his company has accepted construction of the dock.—Traverse City Record-Eagle.

CHARLEVOIX TERMINAL COMPANY STARTS WORK

Grading, Excavating for Huge Bulk Plant Started This Week

The recently organized Charlevoix Terminal Co., Northern Michigan distributors of D-X gasoline and petroleum products, has started preliminary work on their huge bulk plant.

Under the supervision of J. D. Leddy, of Saginaw, and Ray Cornell, of Grand Rapids, members of the organization, a crew of 14 men are clearing, grading, excavating, etc., at the plant site, located adjacent to what is known as the Parmelee warehouse on Lake Charlevoix.

Mr. Leddy, interviewed Wednesday by a Courier representative, stated that construction of a warehouse, to be located between the lake and Ferry avenue, would be started at once. Excavation for one of the storage tanks, to be of 1,600,000 gallon capacity and located west of the Pere Marquette tracks, is under way. Mr. Leddy stated this huge tank would be installed April 17. Other construction is contingent upon the arrival of materials, it is understood.

Work on a large T-shaped dock, providing a wharf for lake tankers to be employed in the shipment of gasoline to the bulk plant, will be started when ice conditions permit.

More details regarding the project will be available as work advances.

CELLNER-O'DELL WEDDING SATURDAY EVENT

Popular Marion Center Couple Will Reside at Pontiac

At a pretty wedding solemnized Saturday evening by Rev. G. R. Parker at the Congregational parsonage, Miss Irene Cellner and Robert O'Dell, well known Marion township young couple, were united in marriage.

At 8 o'clock, following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Marion Center Grange hall, where 50 friends of the couple gathered to extend their congratulations. The bride received many beautiful gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Dell left Sunday for Pontiac, where they will make their home.

DON'T FORGET TO VOTE APRIL 5TH

It is your duty to vote April 5.

In the midst of the grave issues now confronting the public, the Spring election has been somewhat overlooked, yet the duties to be performed by the officials to be elected touch the citizens of Michigan oftener than any national issue does.

The officials will be on our Supreme Court, they will have our state educational system in charge, they will control our state university and college, they will run our highway department.

Impartial justice, sound government of our educational institutions, and better, safer highways are of vast importance to every citizen of Michigan. These can be preserved and improved only by electing qualified candidates. Do your part by voting April 5.

TOWNSEND CLUB MEETING THURSDAY NIGHT

The regular meeting of the Charlevoix Townsend Club will be held Thursday evening, April 1, at 7:45 o'clock, at the court house.

A special feature for the evening will be the appearance of the "Hill Billie" band. Visitors are invited to attend.

Honored at Central State

MONEY MAKES MONEY

This is an old adage which has often proved to be true.

Money is a commodity which credit will buy. To those who are entitled to credit, this bank is glad to furnish funds for a sound purpose.

We shall be glad to discuss with you your plans and your credit needs.

NOTICE TO VOTERS

As I believe that an urgent need has arisen, since the primaries, for a change in the office of City Treasurer, I am presenting myself as a candidate for the office at the spring election, April 5, 1937,—running on slips against Robert E. Rife, the present incumbent.

An effort is being made to provide all of you with my slips.

Should you desire to vote a straight ticket, please paste the slip bearing my name over the name, "Robert E. Rife," on the local ballot, so as to cover it. Then mark a cross in the circle at the top of the column. Nothing more need be done.

If you wish to vote for me, but there is a candidate for some office other than that of City Treasurer for whom you do not wish to vote, leave out the cross in the circle at the head of the column and mark a cross opposite the names of the candidates for whom you wish to vote. Paste my slip on the ballot in the same way as previously described, but mark a cross in the square provided for "Treasurer."

If, for any reason, you do not have one of my slips when you enter the voting booth, you may cross out the name of "Robert E. Rife" with a pencil and write my name in the blank space to the right of the square opposite "Treasurer." In all other respects, the procedure is the same as above outlined.

I am qualified, as you doubtless know, by training and experience for this office, and will greatly appreciate your support.

LANSING LETTER

local residents; the $4,500,000 state aid to township roads would he increased to $6,500,000.

Old age pensions are recognized as meeting a modern need; the $2,000,000 state aid would be increased to $12,000,000.

Unemployed residents are a local problem; boost the state's share of direct relief from $9,000,000 to $12,000,000.

And so, on and on.

State's Own Problems

With organized pressure groups besieging representatives and senators for immediate state aid, it is apparent that the state's present $100,000,000 budget can easily become unbalanced if the Legislature complies to such requests. The financial picture is already beclouded due to the strike situation that has added millions to the welfare load and has curtailed sales tax revenue.

In the meantime, what about the state's own exclusive responsibility? This is everybody's business, of course, and consequently is often taken for granted.

Sub-Normals

Newspapers frequently carry news stories of outrages committed by sub-normals . . . morons . . . mental defectives.

Approximately 2,500 persons, who have been determined by the courts to be deserving of mental hospitalization and treatment, are at liberty in Michigan today. State institutions are overcrowded; facilities are lacking to care for more inmates.

During the past 10 years the state has postponed action in providing new buildings. Repairs have been few.

Fire Hazards?

At the state's home and training school at Lapeer for feeble-minded persons, hundreds of inmates are being housed in antiquated wooden structures, alleged to have fire hazards of the worst type, according to a report announced recently by Rep. Ezra Aldrich's committee.

This institution houses 4,300 persons. It is the largest of its kind in the world.

Yet the waiting list numbers 1,279.

Higher Education

Among the items of "everybody's business" is that of higher education. The University of Michigan and the Michigan State College are dependent on the state for operating revenue.

The "growing pains" of the Michigan State College are causing administrative heads to grow grayer. Student enrollment has increased from 3,100 to 5,100 in two years; the 1935-36 biennial appropriation per student was $181; the student enrollment is 87 per cent Michigan's own sons and daughters.

The college bill, mindful of the 2,000 additional students, seeks to step up annual appropriations from $1,700,000 to $2,633,000.

The university bill asks for an increase from $4,060,000 to $4,670,000 for each year of the next biennium. This is an increase of about 15 per cent, justified by a regular enrollment of around 10,000 students as compared with 9,572 two years ago.

Other State Institutions

On the list of "everybody's business" are other institutions, such as the Michigan College of Mines and Technology at Houghton, seeking $372,000 as compared with $316,000 at present; Michigan State Teachers' College at Ypsilanti, asking $703,930 as compared with $554,000; Central State Teachers' College at Mt. Pleasant, $325,000 as compared with $215,000; Western State Teachers' College at Kalamazoo, $678,000 as compared with $542,000; Northern State Teachers' College at Marquette, $235,000 as compared with $169,000.

These are actual items taken from legislative bills.

Sit Downers Stand Up

"Michigan Mirror" presented a forecast last week, as whispered in capitol lobbies, that Gov. Frank Murphy was going to "sit down on the sit downers."

While official confirmation is lacking that it was Murphy who persuaded the beetled browed Lewis to change his mind, the Lansing State Journal at the capitol city made this interesting observation of facial expressions on the three conferees as they emerged before press representatives.

Chrysler—Happy, jubilant, grinning.

Lewis—Belligerent and "mad."

Murphy—Weary.

You can roll your own, mister.

Election Neat Monday

With March's blizzard apparently out of the way and the sit-down epidemic waning slowly, Michigan voters are turning their attention again to the popular indoor sport of politics.

Next Monday brings an election at which those voters who go to the polls will elect two justices to the state supreme court, a superintendent of public instruction, a highway commissioner, and a handful of members for the university and state college boards.

The real interest in Monday's vote for most of Michigan citizens is the township election. That is a local affair. Lack of real issues in the state fight has made politicians apprehensive. And that goes for both parties, too.

URGE PROMOTION OF MICHIGAN'S APPLES

Michigan Apple Institute Is Formed Among Growers In State

Members of the Michigan Legislature became "apple minded" on March 17 when the State Senate and House of Representatives committees on Horticulture held an apple pie festival as an inducement to other members to support one of several legislative proposals designed to provide a state appropriation for the promotion of Michigan apples and other agricultural products.

Already the Michigan Apple Institute has been organized among apple growers of the state. It is headed by R. J. Martin, of Bangor, who is devoting his sole time to the work. The Institute is already running a test campaign to determine the possibilities of further apple promotion in the state. Larger consuming centers will be approached if the Legislature sees fit to aid the growers.

At the legislative festival, a representative of the Atlantic & Pacific Food Stores and other large grocery organizations pledged the support of those companies toward aiding Michigan farmers in marketing their products. The grocery company recently played a major part in helping California citrus growers with a similar problem.

ARMY OFFERS OPENING FOR MANY YOUNG MEN

Enlistment with Wide Variety of Training Now Available

Major T. C. Beck, Infantry, U. S. Army Recruiting Officer for the State of Michigan, announces several vacancies are available for ambitious young men who desire to secure the benefits of Army training. A few men can be sent to historic Fort Brady, located at Sault Ste. Marie, and several to Fort Wayne, located in metropolitan Detroit.

The famous Second Regiment of United States Infantry has one of its battallons stationed at each of those places, where a wide variety of training in special subjects is conducted in unit and troop schools.

A few high school graduates can be sent to Selfridge Field, near Mount Clemens, Mich., for training in the Air Corps.

For men who are qualified as clerks and typists there are several choice assignments available for duty with the Quartermaster Corps, the service which handles the supply and business problems of the United States Army.

There are also several openings for radio telegraph operators, and telephone maintenance men for training in the Signal Corps.

Several trap drummers, trombone and piccolo players can receive training with the Second Infantry band at Fort Wayne.

event. Further details will be announced next week.

Canning Factory Crops Will Be Subject of Discussion at East Jordan Friday Afternoon, April 2

All farmers who are raising crops for the canning factory are invited and urged to attend a meeting to be held in the East Jordan community rooms at 1:30 p. m., Friday, April 2. C. H. Mahoney, specialist in hort, has been scheduled to present the latest information relative to the proper handling of canning factory crops for best results.

It is a well known fact that the type of soil is very important to consider, as well as the proper type of fertilizer to use. Previous to the meeting, Mr. Mahoney will spend a half day in visiting farms and making an analysis of their mineral content so that Friday afternoon we will be in a good position to know the exact facts.

If you have any individual problems, be sure to bring them with you.

CARBON MONOXIDE—THE KILLER

Each year carbon monoxide takes an increasing number of lives. The deadly gas pours in volumes from every motor car exhaust. It is colorless, tasteless, without odor, and therefore strikes without warning. Only a few minutes, under proper conditions, are sufficient to cause unconsciousness, followed by death.

Most common, perhaps, is the case of the thoughtless driver who warms his car up of a cold morning with the doors and windows of his garage tightly closed. Seldom is rescue effected in time.

Other fatalities have occurred on the open road to unwary drivers in tightly closed cars. Carbon monoxide, escaping from a defective exhaust system has seeped between the floor-boards in sufficient quantity to kill.

But there is another hazard of this insidious gas. One of its symptoms is a tendency to drowsiness. It is probably a factor in many traffic accidents, a very small quantity being enough to destroy alertness and confuse that nice driving judgment necessary in avoiding sudden dangers.

Leave a window open while you drive. Swing the garage doors wide before you start your engine. Fresh air, and plenty of it, is the one sure protection against carbon monoxide.

WEAK BEAN SEEDS A THREAT TO FARMERS

Heavier Plantings Advised in View of Poor Seed Tests

There is going to be a few navy beans missing from soup kettles and baked bean pots this spring and summer in order to let Michigan farmers sow extra seed to insure a normal crop.

From more than 100 samples collected from 12 leading bean producing counties in the state, Michigan State College laboratories have discovered the beans are the poorest in germination in several years. Heavy September rainfall caused the poor quality seed.

Instead of plantings of 40 to 45 pounds of seed to the acre, farmers are being advised to plant 50 to 55 pounds. Although 90 per cent germination is sought in normal years, much of the seed supply this year will be below that figure. In the 100 samples the average was 67 per cent and only one sample indicated above 90 per cent.

ANSWERS CRITICS ON LIGHT PROPOSITION

ployed the firm of Hamilton & Weeber, consulting engineers, Grand Rapids. This firm had the endorsement of the General Electric Co. and were recommended by the following cities in Western Michigan that had found their services satisfactory: Holland, Grand Rapids, Muskegon, Lowell, Grand Haven, Traverse City and South Haven. Their letters were received in reply to inquiries sent by the city clerk and are on file for inspection.

For those who did not receive a copy of the circular: Its reproduction with answers follows:

1. A new engine of 900 K.W. according to the engineers, can NOT be installed ready for this season's use, so why start paying interest on this huge bond issue a year ahead of time?

Ans. This is unquestionably true. The council had been working on this proposition since last October but action was delayed to humor the dilatory whims of two retiring aldermen, also a wait of eight weeks was made to accommodate one of the aldermen who had a proposition from the Michigan Public Service, a 10 year contract at $6,000 per year as a standby charge and the construction of a sub-station on Central Lake costing $15,000. In the 10 years Charlevoix would have paid out $75,000.

2. The hydro plant at Bellaire and the steam plant here can be made to produce much more current than they did last year. Both plants have been sadly neglected.

3. A new steam boiler can be installed at very little comparative cost which will put both good steam engines working during the four or five weeks peak load demand. That is all we need extra power for.

Answer to 2 and 3. The efficiency of a hydro plant depends entirely on the water available and the height of the water at Bellaire has been set by the State Supreme Court. The efficiency of the steam plant might be raised with new boilers but are limited to their capacity which would be about 350 K.W. or possibly 100 K.W. more than they now produce. The operating costs with coal is estimated at three cents per K.W. which is the price received for power purposes at present.

4. For 10½ months in the year we now have ample power to produce nearly double the current we need. Our present units, with good care and proper overhauling, are good property, so don't be led to believe that we are loaded up with a bunch of useless junk. Let's use what we have with expert supervision.

Ans. No. 4. This is true, but the two months summer season is when we need the extra current. The city records show that more revenue is taken in during the two months of July and August than in the other 10 months.

It has never been intimated by any one that the present equipment was a "bunch of junk."

5. Charlevoix is in debt around $100,000, so why take on this $115,000 or probably more plus $35,000 interest, when we know it can be avoided.

Ans. 5. It is true Charlevoix's bonded debt is around $100,000. This is made up for the greater part by sewage disposal bonds that are being paid for by revenues of that utility. The interest on $215,000 at four per cent is $8,600, not $35,000. This error was due either to design or haste. The interest on the bond issue at four per cent, which is the usual rate and was specified on the ballot, is $4,600.

The earning of the light plant is around $22,000 to $24,000 annually, 80 per cent of which is received during the summer season.

6. We are now using every bit of our present income to keep the city going. A bond issue of such magnitude means that taxes and light rates will have to be skyrocketed, or else the laboring man will suffer because the money now earned by the light plant is used mostly to employ men on street and road work, snow removal, sewers, parks and other city labor. Charlevoix can not afford to blindly spend this money now.

Ans. No. 6. Taxes and light rates would remain the same. The claims that snow removal, road work, sewers, etc., is maintained by electric light earnings is pure bunk, befogging the issue and without foundation.

7. We can get along with our present units stepped up to where they belong, for a few years, then if more power is needed, we feel that an engine of about 350 or 400 K.W. will be the best to put in at about half the cost of the one the ENGINE SALESMEN want to sell us now.

Ans. 7. Since it has been voted down, we probably will have to. As to a 350 or 400 K.W. unit. The recommendation of two competent engineers advised after checking the situation over, that 750 to 900 K.W. engine would serve our purposes best from all engineering angles. Mr. Weeber, who advised the council, is not "an engine salesman" or salesman for any commodity, beyond professional services.

8. Serious consideration has been given this bond issue, and this committee of citizens composed of representative men about town as well as members of the present council with years of experience in business, engineering and financial affairs, who are making this appeal to you, Mr. and Mrs. Taxpayer, feel that the only wise thing to do is to vote NO. It is hoped that you will help stop this, the largest bond issue ever brought before the people, with so little constructive thinking back of it.

Charlevoix has now over a quarter of a million dollars invested in utilities plants and should hire a Superintendent Engineer to handle these plants the way they should be.

Ans. 8. The letter being unsigned we are making no comments. The gentlemen speak for themselves and who they are. One guess is as good as another.

Regarding the last paragraph. We had a "Superintendent Engineer" with complete authority for three years and four months prior to last June, when Mr. Plum took charge. It seems most singular that everything should become so depleted and dilapidated at once. As a matter of fact, since Mr. Plum took charge several uncompleted jobs were finished and the electric service has been maintained without interruption. While Mr. Plum is not a graduate engineer his practical experience with the city and the Bellaire plant for the past 16 years makes him a valuable asset to the city.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT BULLETIN

Prevalence of Tuberculosis in Youth

"The tubercle bacillus is so small that 850,000,000 of them occupy a space no larger than a postage stamp." This astounding fact was revealed at the tuberculosis traveling exhibit displayed at the Emmet County Fair last August, sponsored by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association. Our conception of pulmonary tuberculosis has changed in recent years. Formerly it was considered a disease of adults. Now it is properly recognized as one of the diseases of childhood. This is because we have learned to recognize it in an earlier form.

Tuberculosis kills more children under 20 than any other communicable disease. It is the greatest cause of death among school children between the ages of five and 20, except accidents. This is because the disease in the primary form produces no characteristic symptoms by which it can be recognized or even suspected, and the changes in the lung are so slight that a physician cannot detect the disease by the usual methods of physical examination. This is the reason that the childhood type of tuberculosis has been permitted to smolder away unsuspected until such symptoms of illness as weakness, cough, fever, or loss of weight become evident.

No matter how the tubercle bacillus enter the body, the fact remains that they do so after birth; and for that reason, tuberculosis cannot be called a hereditary disease. According to Dr. Herbert Herschensohn in the Hygeia, over 90 per cent of the human race harbor the baccili somewhere in their bodies, yet only a small proportion show any evidence of the infection.

The family is the most important unit from which tuberculosis spreads. Family epidemics, which tend to pass from one generation to another gradually spread into the community through personal contact. Children under nine years of age who are in contact with sputum-positive persons are five times more liable to get active tuberculosis within a 12-year period dating from first exposure than are children in contact with sputum-negative persons. One-fifth of the children in the 10 to 14 age group who are exposed to open tuberculosis acquire the disease within 14 years of the beginning of the exposure.

Tuberculosis costs every taxpayer money whether he has tuberculosis in his family or not. The annual cost of tuberculosis to the people in the United States has been divided into three divisions as follows:

For loss of life .....$	525,000,000
Lost in wages	328,000,000
Cost of treatment	164,000,000
Annual cost of tuberculosis to the people in the U. S. .....$	1,017,000,000

Or an average cost of $13.94 per every person over 20 years of age.

The District Health Department, including the counties of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego, reported 27 new adult pulmonary type cases and three childhood type cases during 1936. Some of these new discoveries were the result of the extensive tuberculin testing and X-raying conducted in the counties in April and May of last year. Others were reported by positive-sputum reports from physicians. In sub-dividing these pulmonary cases into age-groups, we found the younger groups by far the greater victims:

15-20 years	6 cases
20-30 years	8 cases
30-40 years	4 cases
40-50 years	4 cases
50 years and over	5 cases

It is through the concentrated tuberculosis program, including the annual tuberculin testing campaign and X-ray, that it will be possible to eradicate this disease. It may seem that this disease is on the increase; in reality it is on the decline, but until recently with the positive methods to discover tuberculosis, many slow-developing cases escaped unnoticed, leaving their trail behind them.

WOMEN'S FEDERATION FETE HARBOR SPRINGS

Annual Masquerade Carnival Scheduled for Friday, April 2

The gayest masquerade carnival ever staged in Harbor Springs will take place in the high school on Friday evening, April 2, the date set for the annual Federation of Women's club party.

The carnival will open with an auditorium program in charge of Mrs. Albert Zuber. The program will begin at 8 p. m., with musical numbers by the Oklahoma Outlaws (Mrs. Audrey Holmberg, of Petoskey, Ray Freeland, William H. Maeser and Frank Pfister, all of Harbor Springs). Following, Mrs. Harold Myers, Mrs. John Silhavy and Miss Hazel Terpening will present the play, "A Seat In the Park."

Members of the high school commercial department, directed by Miss Lewise Keeler, will do the minuet, and the Presbyterian male quartet, consisting of N. A. Rockwell, William H. Maeser, August Schwerdtfeger and Kenneth Ketchman, will sing "The Tale of a Whale" and "Anchors Aweigh."

A second one-act play, "Truant Husbands," will be presented by Miss Terpening and Mrs. Silhavy. The closing number will be tap dances by a group of girls under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Olmstead, director of physical education in the Harbor Springs school.

Mrs. Allan Angell and Stanley Wager are co-chairmen of the masquerade dance to take place in the high school gymnasium following the auditorium entertainment. There will be a full evening of round and square dancing and all guests are urged to come in costume. Six costume prizes will be awarded to the best and to the funniest costumes in the women's, men's and juveniles' groups.

Plans are being completed for many concessions. There will be hot dog, coffee and coca cola stands, a fish pond, a fortune telling booth and many other entertaining features.

Music for round dancing will be furnished by Eddie Clark's orchestra, of Cheboygan, and John Petoskey and his boys, of Harbor Springs, will play for square dancing.

Costume judges will be Mrs. Albert Heath, of Chicago and Harbor Springs, E. C. Matthews, mayor, and Dave King, city manager.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

DEER KILL LAST FALL ESTIMATED AT 51,000

Conservative Figures Taken from License Stubs Last Three Years

An estimate made by state game authorities set the legal kill of buck deer during the open season last fall at about 51,000.

The estimate was conservatively made on the basis of reports by deer hunters themselves for the seasons of 1932, 1933 and 1934. The stubs of deer licenses sold show that in 1932 there was a kill of 20,716 legal buck deer; in 1933 the kill was 25,862 and in 1934, 27,359.

License stub data for the 1935 deer season have not yet been compiled but game men estimated the kill for that season at around 37,000 legal deer. This would give a total of nearly 90,000 deer killed in Michigan during the past two open deer seasons.

The estimates are likely to be too high or too low for the past two sensons, but the true kill can be determined when license stubs for these two seasons are available for checking. CCC help has been made available to do the checking.

Several Bushels Dipped by Local Sportsmen This Week

Smelt dipping, so far this spring confined to the Jordan and Boyne rivers, has opened in streams adjacent to Charlevoix.

Stover Creek, scene of the first Charlevoix county smelt "run" several years ago, is providing good dipping, as is also Loeb and other smaller nearby streams emptying into Lake Charlevoix.

Local sportsmen report dipping several bushels of smelt from both Stover and Loeb Creeks Monday and Tuesday nights. The "run" in these smaller streams should last a week or more.

which is a small broadcasting station house is equipped with a radio beacon that sends out the code letter of the station continuously during foggy weather, and for periods of half hour each, four times each day during fair weather. Ships equipped with receiving sets may pick up the station for hundreds of miles. It is possible with such equipment to determine the direction of the sending stations and also the distance of the ship from the station. Before the radio beacon was developed, code signals were sent by underwater bell, upon the principle that sound travels better through water than air. All submarine bells have now been replaced by radio beacons.

Built of reinforced concrete, the walls of the new lighthouse are protected by half-inch steel four feet above and six feet below the water level as a precaution against ice. The lighthouse is sound-proof and November storms, sending mountainous waves crashing against it, will be unheard by the crew snugly housed in comfortable quarters within. The lighthouse is equipped with a winter light.

The crew of Gray's Reef lightship will man the new lighthouse, and in all likelihood, even after years on the lake, will lose their "sea legs." The crew will be composed of Capt. Harry McRae, Peter Callagher, who was first mate; Angus Phillips, chief engineer, and Philip Sharkey, assistant engineer. They are now awaiting arrival of the U. S. Sumac, government lighthouse supply ship, to transfer them with the opening of navigation.

Construction of the lighthouse was superintended by Lou H. Comfort, well known in this city, and several local men were employed in the work last summer.

A CONFESSION

¶ People write and tell us that they like SCHMIDT'S better than any other beer . . . they stop us on the street and tell us how right we were in making beer without sugar, without glucose and without fattening syrups added . . . dealers, too, tell us how this new type beer has increased their sales.

¶ We blush.

¶ We must confess that the idea of making Schmidt's a natural brew was not our idea at all but YOUR IDEA! Yes, we found out by asking hundreds of folks what they wanted and expected of beer. You told us you wanted a beer you could drink safely, as regularly as you wished . . . and so we gave you Schmidt's . . . without sugar, without glucose, without fattening syrups being added. Because you wanted a beer flavor that was not bitter and not too sweet—we use only purest, finest, natural ingredients in a perfect blend.

¶ The truth is now known. We did not just trust to luck. We knew you would like Schmidt's because it was brewed to the specifications YOU gave us. We made a modern brew for modern tastes. Schmidt's, today's most talked about beer, owes its great popularity to the fact that it IS different and IS the kind of beer you want. Order Schmidt's today—try it—you'll like it!

Cross, succeeding Donald Swinton in Charlevoix first ward; Frank Nackerman, succeeding William M. Green in Peaine township; James McCann, winner over James H. Gallagher in St. James township; William H. Webster, successor to W. R. Barnett in East Jordan third ward.

Supervisors Cross and Webster have previously served terms on the board. The defeat of James H. Gallagher, veteran St. James township supervisor, removes from county politics a family which has had members on the board for a matter of probably 50 years. W. R. Barnett, of East Jordan, was another veteran, meeting defeat by William H. Webster, running on the Democratic ticket.

The board of supervisors roster for 1937-38 will be as follows: Charles N. Smith, Bay township; Joseph Topolinski, Boyne Valley; John Howard, Chandler; R. C. Korth, Charlevoix; Clyde Clute, Evangeline; William M. Sanderson, Eveline; Howard C. Stephens, Hayes; Louis Sevinski, Hudson; A. J. Bolhuis, Marion; Daniel Buckley, Melrose; Orton VanDusen, Norwood; Frank Nackerman, Peaine; James McCann, St. James; Calvin Bennett, South Arm; Claude Pearsall, Wilson; E. E. Cross, Darwin F. Meech, Clarence B. Meggison, Charlevoix city; Mrs. Agnes Lorch, James Dean, John Parker, Harold Saffron, Boyne City; William F. Bashaw, Barney Milstein, William H. Webster, East Jordan.

Tuesday's session will be for organization following the election. A chairman will be appointed and committees for the year named. Orton VanDusen, Norwood township, is the present chairmnn.

BAPTISTS EXTENDED CALL TO REV. RAUCH

Acceptance by Present Pastor Will Make His Ninth Year Here

At a meeting of members of the Baptist church last Thursday evening, a unanimous call was extended to Rev. W. H. Rauch to remain as pastor of the church another year.

If the call is accepted, Rev. Rauch will begin on May 1 his ninth year as pastor of the church.

CORRECTION

The Courier stands corrected in an article appearing in the March 31 issue. The article, "Council Answers Critica of Electric Light Proposition," was incorrectly headed. It appears that the article was not sanctioned by the council as a body, nor was discussed at any official meeting, but rather was submitted by the Utilities Committee.

TEMPERANCE COUNCIL SPONSORS FREE MOVIE

"The Beneficent Reprobate" Is to Be Shown at School on April 9

The Youth Temperance Council, with the cooperation of Supt. O. P. North, will sponsor a free movie, "The Beneficent Reprobate," in the high school assembly, Friday, April 9.

This will be given in the morning for the high school students, in the afternoon for grade children, and in the evening at 7:30 for adults.

"The Beneficent Reprobate" is an "up-to-the-minute" film in which this "technical subject (alcohol) has been made into an intriguing sound film—that begins with an atmosphere of mystery in the laboratory of an ancient alchemist, carries through various aspects of modern life in the most alluring motion picture fashion, and ends up on the romantic note of the torch runner at the Olympic Gamea—it certainly is 'smooth and easy' to enjoy. As the name suggests, the film cleverly reveals the Dr. Jekyll-and-Mr. Hyde nature of ethyl alcohol."

Come and see this marvelous modern production filmed to educate the modern generation against a very unmodern evil which is threatening and scoffing at young and old alike.

THIRD MAROLD VICTIM MAY BE FOUND

SEEK IDENTIFICATION OF ARTICLES FOUND ON TANKER

Discovery Recently by Cheboygan Men Starts Investigation to Establish Identity

Discovery of a key and remains of a body on the deck of the abandoned tanker J. Oswald Boyd, at Simmons Reef, has been reported.

Dr. F. F. McMillan, Charlevoix county coroner, stated Wednesday that the articles which might prove identification of the body have been sent to Beaver Island for this purpose. The investigation, yet unfinished, may prove the identity of a third victim of an explosion which took the lives of five men New Year's Day.

The discovery was made March 27 by Carl Gustafson, Theodore Gustafson and Harry Lawson, of Cheboygan. They found, according to reports, a key, strip of clothing resembling parts of underwear, trousers, garters and suspenders together with several metal buckles used on overshoes and part of the body.

The discovery was made near a forward hatch on the vessel's deck. Carl Gustafson, it is reported by the Cheboygan Observer, said that the clothing and remains were covered by snow and ice and had been trampled during the feverish rush for the gas cargo of the tanker in which hundreds joined for several weeks this winter.

F. V. TYLER NAMED AS CITY TREASURER

DEFEATED ROBERT E. RIFE, INCUMBENT, ON SLIPS AT MONDAY GENERAL ELECTION

Four Republicans Retain Offices on State Ticket; Van Wagoner Leads Dems

Three incumbents appeared on Wednesday to have survived contests in the biennial spring election which has developed into one of the closest contests in state history.

Returns from 3,392 of the state's 3,480 precincts shows that Democrats fell short of the mark they established in the landslide victory in the presidential election last fall, but seemed destined to win six of the nine offices.

Democratic Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner is in the clear with a margin of 91,383 votes over Charles M. Ziegler.

Places on the state supreme court bench apparently will be divided among the Democratic and Republican candidates, with Thomas L. McAllister, of Grand Rapids, leading in the four-way battle by a margin of 5,749 votes. He is followed by Republican Justice Walter H. North. Walter I. McKenzie, Detroit Democrat, has a slight lead for third place, while Louis H. Fead, of Lansing, other Republican incumbent, is trailing.

Republican Superintendent of Public Instruction Eugene B. Elliott is leading Arthur E. Erickson, of Iron Mountain, by 5,266 votes, while Frank Cody, Detroit, Republican incumbent for member of the state board of education, is leading Charles Novak, Democrat, by 15,508 votes.

It is apparent that both regents of the University of Michigan will be Democrats, as Edmond C. Shields, Lansing, and John D. Lynch, Detroit, have commanding leads over their Republican opponents. Likewise, Democrats appear to have won membership to the state board of agriculture, with James K. Jakway, Benton Harbor, and Lavina Masselink leading.

That Monday's election was not the landslide of last fall and the fact that six out of eight industrial counties which went Democratic last fall returned to the Republican fold this spring, will provide considerable satisfaction to Michigan Republicans.

Three New Supervisors and Two New Aldermen Were Elected Without Contest

Continuing an unbroken tradition at the polls, Charlevoix voters Monday placed a slate of Republican nominees into city and ward offices at the spring election.

With but one local contest to arouse voter-interest other than the contests for state officers, a two-thirds normal vote, distinctly higher than the county and state average, was cast.

In the only contest, Fred V. Tyler, a sticker candidate, defeated Robert E. Rife, the incumbent, for the office of city treasurer. Tyler carried every ward for a total majority of 150 votes. The total vote cast was 723.

As the result of Monday's election, five new ward officers, all uncontested, were named. They are E. E. Cross and Karl Erber, supervisor and alderman, respectively, in the first ward; Darwin F. Meech, second ward supervisor, and Clarence B. Meggison, supervisor, and Harry F. Hooker, alderman in the third ward.

Uncontested officers on the city ticket were Arthur Bergeon for mayor and Ray S. Hamilton for clerk. In the first ward, Joseph Howard for constable; second ward, Fred E. Cartier for alderman and Don McHugh for constable; third ward, Meggison for supervisor, Hooker for alderman, Clarence Coblentz for constable.

Voting on the state ticket, Charlevoix electors, led by the staunch second ward, cast a Republican majority of 310 votes, lacking only 45 of the total majority received by the leading Republican candidate over his Democratic opponent in the county. It is significant that a larger percentage of Democratic votes were cast in the county than at any previous election.

Following is the vote for treasurer:

Tyler	83—46
Rife	37

Second Ward

Tyler	174—40

COAST GUARD CUTTER HEADING FOR STRAITS

Reached Lansing Shoals Monday In Effort to Open Navigation

Reports reaching here Tuesday revealed that the coast guard cutter Escanaba, sent to the Straits of Mackinac to break ice, reached Lansing Shoals late Monday night.

The vessel, when last reported, was making slow progress towards the Straits. The U. S. lighthouse tender Sumac, here awaiting favorable conditions to go to Gray's Reef, has received an order to stand by to offer the Escanaba any needed assistance.

Will Open Straits

The Chief Wawatam, giant car ferry operating in the Straits of Mackinac, began Monday to break ice in the Straits in preparation for the opening of the navigation season. Lake Carriers' Association leased the giant vessel to speed an early season openiag.

BUILDING HUGE DOCK NEAR TRAVERSE CITY

Local Firm to Construct Coal Station for Cleveland Concern

The Sears Marine Construction Co., headed by Franklin C. Sears, will build the largest dock on upper Lake Michigan near Traverse City this summer as a coal station for the Cleveland Cliffs corporation, of Cleveland.

The dock will be constructed near Greilickville, on the west shore of Grand Traverse Bay, about one mile north of Traverse City. Negotiations between the coal company and the construction company and several outside financial interests have been under way for more than two months.

The Cleveland Cliffs corporation operates one of the largest fleets on inland waters and plans to make the dock the center of its coal business in Northwestern Michigan.

The dock will be large, and deep enough to accommodate any vessel plying the Great Lakes. It will add to Traverse City's importance as a lake port. It will be located close to the Rennie Oil Co. dock, which already accounts for eight or ten vessels a season.

Work will be started as soon as ice conditions permit.

WILLIAM L. COWAN IS TAKEN BY DEATH

BELOVED CHARACTER VICTIM OF HEART ATTACK

Had Resided at Norwood and Charlevoix 63 Years—Funeral Services Friday Afternoon

Charlevoix lost a beloved character in the death at 11:30 Tuesday evening of William L. (Billy) Cowan. While in failing health for two years, Mr. Cowan had been active daily and was down town twice Tuesday. His sudden death was a shock to his family and many friends.

Mr. Cowan was born June 11, 1857 in Brantford, Ontario, Canada, and was 79 years of age at his death. He came to Norwood when 16 years old, residing with his grandmother, Mrs. Miurhead. He worked as a lumber scaler at the Nash saw mill at Norwood, and held a similar position with the Charlevoix Lumber Company until it ceased operation many years after he came to Charlevoix to reside. He was caretaker of city parks until two years ago.

Mr. Cowan was married at Norwood on May 4, 1887, to Mary Moore, who preceded him in death nine years ago. A daughter, Mrs. Erma Hanna, born to this union, survives, besides a grandson, Billy, and a brother, Robert, residing at Keyport, N. J.

Mr. Cowan had been active in fraternal circles during his residence here. He was a member of the Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias.

Members of the Odd Fellow order will have charge of funeral services to be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon from the Congregational church, Rev. G. R. Parker officiating. Knights of Pythias will also attend in a body.

SPEECH CONTESTS TO BE HELD HERE

SUB - DISTRICT COMPETITION TUESDAY EVENING

Seven Northern Michigan Schools Represented in Oratory, Declamation, Extempore Speaking

Winners in seven Northern Michigan schools will gather here next Tuesday, April 13, for the sub-district contest in oratory, declamations and extempore speaking, to be held at 7:30 in the school gymnasium.

Besides Charlevoix, winners from Bellaire, East Jordan, Gaylord, Harbor Springs, Mancelona and Petoskey will compete.

The contestants and titles of orations in oratory are: Don Angus, Petoskey, "Forgotten Men"; David Burton, Harbor Springs, "Communism in America"; Alice McHugh, Charlevoix, "The Nation's Mission"; Perry Mills, Bellaire, "Vanishing Americanism"; Doris Taylor, Mancelona, "Communism."

Those giving declamations are: Janet Chattaway, Petoskey, "The Qualities That Win"; Irene Epperson, Mancelona, "The South and Her Problems"; Lucille Lessard, Bellaire, "To the Boys and Girls of Michigan"; Frances Meggison, Charlevoix, "The American Pioneer"; Verva Reis, Harbor Springs, "Washington's Birthday"; Ruth Slate, East Jordan, "Lincoln, A Man Called of God"; Keith Smith, Gaylord, "Toussaint L'Overture."

Vernon Kemp, of Petoskey, will give an extempore speech.

An oration represents original writing based on various readings, and an oral interpretation of the result. The declaimer is expected to give an oral interpretation of a public speech written and delivered by another person. The extempore speaker has to be well prepared on topics of public interest. A short time before the contest he secures his topic and then has the task of organizing ideas around the selection.

Gladwin H. Lewis, connected with the Traverse City Business College, will act as judge of the contests.

Leslie Shapton, giving a cornet solo, and Phyllis and Marielle VanAllsburg, in a piano duet, will add interest to the evening's program, to which the public is invited. A small admission fee will be charged.

PROMINENT KIWANIS SPEAKER ON TUESDAY

Merle S. Ward, Ferris Institute President, Will Appear Here

Kiwanians are looking forward to the appearance here next Tuesday evening of Merle S. Ward, president of Ferris Institute, Big Rapids.

Mr. Ward, educator, editor and lecturer, will address the regular Kiwanis meeting, as well as appear before the student body of Charlevoix schools at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Even a casual glance at Mr. Ward's educational attainment, the fact he has traveled widely through the United States, Canada and Europe, his fraternal affiliations and business attainments, give promise of a most interesting and entertaining program for those who will be privileged to hear him.

Beauties of Florida Cities Enumerated by Charlevoixans

200 Pounds of Groupers and Grunts Taken In a Single Day's Fishing

Lakeland, Florida
March 30, 1937

Dear Ken and Folks at Home:

We are all on a "sit-down" strike today, occasioned by a heavy rain storm, which started early this morning, and the outlook is that it will last all day. And as a rule when it rains in Florida, it makes a real issue of it. We made the drive from Sarasota to Lakeland, our present location, on Friday last, by a circuitous route, stopping three days at Lake Wales en route. The entire drive, some 108 miles (Sarasota to Lake Wales) was to the north and east and took us through a different type of country than we had previously driven, but will cover this mileage more thoroughly as we progress with this letter.

My remembrance of our last letter was that we covered Clearwater and previous places. From Clearwater we moved to St. Petersburg, the largest city on the west coast of Florida. St. Petersburg, present population of some 46,000, dates its first settlement back as far as 1539, when a party of Spanish voyageurs, in charge of that famous explorer Hernando de Soto,

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Developments of the "sit-down" strikes in Michigan, which have plagued Governor Murphy since the inaugural last January, are beginning to shape definitely in legislative halls at the state capitol.

The developments are being speeded by recent historical rulings of the United States Supreme Court, ending the so-called judicial "no man's land" between federal and state governments.

Washington's court openings have opened the gate in Michigan to the following New Deal measures:

1. Minimum wages and maximum hours for labor. Several bills are now pending in committees which would invest the state government with wide powers to determine fair wages and hours. The federal court ruling, upholding the Washington state minimum wage law, prompted a nation-wide movement to have such social legislation enacted by states. In Nevada the governor signed a bill setting an $18 weekly wage for women.

Strike Regulation Next?

That the state government will adopt regulations restricting or outlawing strikes is seen as another likely outcome.

Governor Murphy has announced that University of Michigan experts are now busy drafting labor arbitration measures.

Has the state of Michigan such authority?

Study the following declaration, contained in the supreme court's ruling:

"In dealing with the relation of employer and employe, the Legislature has necessarily a wide field of discretion in order that there may be

FARMERS FIND BEANS ARE A CHEAP MILK PRODUCER

Hundreds of dairy herds in the state are eating up cull beans cooked to their taste by enterprising dairymen who found that the beans could be purchased at a lower cost than nther protein feeds.

In fact the adverse weather that prevailed last fall when Michigan bean fields were being stacked with pods has helped make milk more economically. Dairy cows, it is estimated by A. C. Baltzer, extension dairyman at Michigan State College, will have consumed more than 12,000 tons of the beans before posture season arrives.

CHAPTER VI

"I was in school with nobody's mother, and I won't be incriminated, and I

"I Was In School With Nobody's Mother!"

nm praying the Lord to grunt me a long and prosperous thirty-one!" Mrs. Murchison said, to the company at large rather than to Gail.

"She'll never forgive you that as long as you live, Gail!" Van exclaimed in the laughter that followed. Gail laughed, too, hut she felt hot and uncomfortable.

In all it was an uncomfortable visit; the lenst happy she had ever had at Far Nleute, even including the first, with its nervousness and shyness. Three men Gail had never seen before were absorbed in the topic of the golf tournament at Del Monte, and for a little while on Saturday afternoon Gail was excited by the possibility of their all going down to Monterey to try a day's preliminary playing.

But in the end it was decided that the three men and Van should leave before breakfast and go there alone.

"That is, I would," Van said, "if I didn't feel it would leave Gail in the lurch!"

"We'll take care of Gail," Mrs. Chipp said.

"We were going up to lunch with Ethel and play bridge," Mrs. Murchison reminded her in a light, droning voice not intended for Gail's ear.

"Oh, well, that's all right!" said Mrs. Chipp, who liked Gail, pleasnatly. "We'll just leave her here to amuse herself, and the boys will be back for dinner, und we'll all go home Monday afternoon."

Gail had to protest; her library job would stand no more trifling. She must he back Snnday afternoon, positively.

Mason was going back, with fruit and vegetables. Gail leaped at the opportunity to go home with him.

It was arranged. The bridge players plunged back gladly into the mysteries of vulnerability and redoubling. The young men played tennis and Gail watched and laughed and applauded.

Later, going to the cabin to dress, she heard Mrs. Chipp good-naturedly reproaching somebody for something. The voices came from behind a screen of shrubs and tall flowers, whore the hammocks were.

". . . . it was dreadful. . . I mean it was unmistnkable. . . . I mean it was enough to make him furious," said Mrs. Chipp's amused, indifferent voice.

Another woman's voice spoke quickly in answer, laughingly and indifferently, too, hut with more vigor. Mrs. Murchison's voice.

Gail could not hear the first dozen words. But the last trailed through her consciousness as she escaped, scarlet-cheeked, out of hearing.

". . . . with a Clippersville girl!"

The tone, the emphasis of the voice, interpreted the whole to her perfectly. Van's father would he furious with him, going with a Clippersville girl. It served him perfectly right, wasting his time with a Clippersville girl. It did not matter whose feelings were hurt or were not hurt; it was only a Clippersville girl!

Her face blazed, her throat was thick and dry. She walked slowly up to the cabin, entered into its peace and shadiness quietly, and began her preparation for dinner in the brown-walled, chintz-curtained little room that was familiar now.

All the time her heart seethed like a boiling pot, and her thoughts went round and round dizzily. Her hands felt cold, and she was shaking.

"I'll be home this time tomorrow," said Gail, aloud, more than once.

What did it matter what that vulgar, smart, ronged, thin, dark woman said or thought! It did not affect Gail Lawrence; it did not affect Van Murchison.

It did affect Van, of course.

Wandering about the room in a thin cotton kimono, she addressed herself, aloud.

"You poor fool! You thought you might be engaged tonight!

"Well—you may be.

"I'd like to be, just to get even with her! I'd like to be so stunning, so smart, so popular that she was wiped right out of sight . . .

"I hate her. . . . No, I don't suppose I hate her. . . . Yes, I do.

"I despise her! I'd like her to break her leg. I would. I wouldn't want her to get a cancer exactly. But I'd like something to happen to her!"

The childishness of her own monologue made her begin suddenly to laugh, and she found tears in her eyes.

This wouldn't do. There was nothing to do but go through with the evening's program with what dignity she could muster; the boys seemed to her very noisy, very much unsorbed in their own affairs, at dinner, and after dinner there was a half-hearted game of roulette, in which Lenore and Mab Whiting won everything, while Gail lost quarters and dimes to a painful degree.

It then appeared that the four boys were going over to Del Monte that night, so as to play the Pebble Beach course early in the morning. Gail was careful not to let anyone suspect that it made any difference to her. But she felt hurt and sore. At half-past nine o'clock the roadster with the shouting boys in it departed on its seventy-mile run, and Gail found herself quietly in bed, reading again.

After awhile she let the book drop and lay thinking, staring into the dim cabin room with far-away, serious eyes, and with the bushy Lawrence eyebrows drawn together.

She felt very homesick. She wanted Sam and Ariel and Phil. Above all she wanted Edith, sensible, loving, loyal, thoughtful. She was torn with pangs of anxiety for them all.

"A Clippersville girl!" she said to herself in the night stillness. "Well, that's what I am. I don't know why that should make me mad."

Shamed, courageous thoughts possessed her; she plunged into them as into a river. Despite responsibility and precocious cares, she had done little philosophical thinking in her twenty-three years; she deliberately faced the situation now, faced her own soul.

The next morning she slipped away from Fur Nleute before any member of the family was astir. And with every mile of the home trip her heart grew lighter and her mind steadier and her quiet determination greater.

At two o'clock, cool and trim and sympathetic, she was back at her post in the library. She felt wearied, subdued, yet oddly content. This was duller than death but it was peace. No one would hurt here her, humiliate her here; she belonged. She was not only in her proper place, but she was doing a fellow creature a service. No animal creeping back into the safety of its lair ever felt a deeper sense of gratitude.

And then—as always on library Sundays—Edith was there, slipping about the alcoves, coming up to the desk to beam, to whisper to her big sister.

"Ariel home?"

"No," Edith explained too cheerfully, too naturally; "Dot Camp telephoned to the Greeley's to say that they might not be back until after dinner."

"But why didn't Dot or Ariel telephone us?"

"Lou said she said she thought our line was out of order—it never answered."

The sisters exchanged a level, expressionless look.

"That's a new one," Gail pressntly murmured drily.

"Well, that's what I thought," Edith agreed reluctantly.

"Where do you suppose they are?"

"Oh, just on one of those Sunday runs, when they eat greasy fried chicken off dirty board tables, and think they're having a wonderful time!" Edith said impatiently.

At six Dora Foster came in, and Edith and Gail could walk home through the drowsing late afternoon.

"Let's not have supper until seven. And let's get everything ready and then take baths and be beautiful!" Gail suggested. They fussed away in the shady kitchen together; Edith straining tea into tall glasses, Gail assembling the materials for one of her famous salads; chives, lettuce, enormous firm cold tomatoes, cucumbers sliced as fine as tissue paper.

They set the table out under the big oak in the side yard, close to the house so that the smaller furnishings could be passed through the wide-open kitchen window.

Dick and Phil arrived. They all sat about the table, while the last of the hot twilight died into a hot dusk, talking, murmuring, passing back and forth the old Brazilian silver salad bowl that Grandfather Lawrence had brought to Yerba Buena on that long-ago wedding journey.

The moon had risen and the strengthening silver light was beginning to drip down through the branches of the great trees that roofed the dooryard.

"Where is that naughty Ariel?" Edith had asked drowsily, affectionately, and Gail, listening to the strokes of the cuckoo clock in the hall, had answered more reassuringly than she felt, "Only nine, that's not late!" when suddenly there was a stranger in the garden.

A stranger. At the first glimpse of him Gail's heart stood still, and her mouth filled with water. Horror. Horror. They were all lost.

The moonlight touched the star on his breast. Dick was the first to speak, in a quick, authoritative voice.

"What is it, Officer?"

"There's been a bad accident up near the cement works. A little girl has been killed—" the man began.

Gail was beside him, fingers gripping his arm.

"My sister!"

"No, ma'am, it wasn't your sister. She was mixed up in it; I brought her over here to see your brother. She ain't hurt," he said, answering the wild question in Gail's eyes, "She's just run upstairs inside; I'm waiting for her, I seen you out here, so I came over."

"What happened, Officer?" Dick's voice asked. The others were stricken dumb.

"She was driving a car, sir, and another automobile hit her. She didn't have a license, and she's booked for that, and also on a charge of manslaughter. In the mixup, a little girl in a third car was thrown out on her head and killed."

"She's here now? My sister, I mean?" Phil asked, in a dead, awful silence.

"Yes—she just now run in the house to find you."

"After her, Phil! She may kill herself!" Gail said sharply, in a whisper. Edith put her hands over her face for a moment, praying, before they all ran together toward the kitchen door.

In the icy grip of horror and fear they all ran together up the kitchen steps, across the dark porch.

Ariel opened the door of the inner passage as the others rushed in from the porch, and stood at bay, facing them. She spoke impatiently, a note of reproach and complaint in her voice.

"Where were you, Gail? I've been hunting—I've been all over everywhere!"

"You're hurt!" Gail whispered, beside her.

"No, I'm not hurt at all, and for heaven's sake don't make such a fuss!" Ariel said quickly.

"Oh, it's you, Fargo?" Dick said to the policeman. "I didn't recognize you out there. Been an accident, eh?"

"Hello, Mr. Stebbins," the policeman said with a sort of deliberate solemnity. "Yes, sir. There's been a bad smash. There was a little girl killed, Mr. Lawrence. They took her to the hospital, but later we heard she—" The officer coughed respectfully. "She passed out on the way," he finished simply. "Miss Lawrence and the feller that was driving the other car are booked on a charge of manslaughter, Mr. Stebbins. The judge is going to see them in the morning. I presume—" He cleared his throat. "I presume for an investigation," he added mildly. "It was a question of bail."

"I see," Dick said. "I'll be right down. I'll take care of everything. I'll be right over."

"Why, take your time, take your time," the officer, departing, said in a faintly protesting note.

"Manslaughter," Phil said slowly, in the dead silence that followed his going. "What happened?" he demanded, sitting down heavily in the old kitchen rocker, his eyes never leaving Ariel's.

WITH YOUR ENGINE OIL-PLATED

You can laugh off your old doubts about warm-weather engine oiling, because Oil-Plating is so terribly hard to rub off, scrape off or burn off. Here's one form of lubrication which is not a mere shifting temporary oil-film. For in addition to the normal moving type of film, vastly strengthened, Conoco Germ Processed oil forms a stationary Oil-Plating.

The explanation is that patented Germ Processing makes this oil really plant itself on bearings, shafts, and upright surfaces too, such as cylinder walls. Not even the good old Law of Gravity can make Oil-Plating drain down. It's always up there all the while your car is parked, or showing its heels in the open. None of that much-mentioned starting risk for you . . . No anxious eye on the heat indicator . . . Lots longer between drinks of oil, in your old or new car, with its engine lastingly Oil-Plated by Conoco Germ Processed Oil. Continental Oil Company

COTTAGE ROBBERY SUSPECT FOUND IN TEXAS

Morris Allen, Identified by Finger Prints at El Paso, Texas

Morris Allen, a suspect in the robbery last summer of the McDonald cottage on Park avenue, is being held at El Paso, Tex., for local officers.

Allen, it is understood, was apprehended by El Paso officers when finger prints taken there corresponded with finger prints taken by state police here and filed in Washington.

Sheriff Floyd Ikens left Tuesday after Allen who, it is understood, has waived extradition and will be brought here for questioning. This is the first time Allen has been located since he disappeared following questioning two years ago.

ST. PETERSBURG, FLORIDA, COUNTRY'S SUNNIEST SPOT

Harvard meteorologists proclaimed St. Petersburg, Fla., America's sunniest spot today ending the age-long controversy between Florida and California.

St. Petersburg averages fewer than five sunless days a year, the Harvard group found in completing with government scientists the first "encyclopedia" ever made of climatic conditions in North America and the West Indies.

Next sunniest spot is the California-Arizona borderland with more than 300 clear days a year.

Friends of Harry Glossenger, former local resident, now living at York, Pa., will regret hearing of his injury in February. As the result of burns received from contact with a high tension wire, Mr. Glossenger lost two fingers on his left hand and received serious burns on his chest. He is being treated at West Side Sanitarium, York, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Glossenger plan to come to Charlevoix late in April for a vacation during his recuperation.

Mrs. Ernest Staley has received word from her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh King, of St. Louis, Mo., that her grandson, Dickie, who is attending Central Institute for the Deaf, is making unbelievable progress. Dr. Goldstein, famous scientist and founder of the school, says that in a very short time Dickie's hearing and speech will be the same as any normal child's—that his trouble is more psychological than physical. When Dickie entered the school he did not say any words. Now he not only says words plainly but is beginning to form sentences without the aid of his teachers. Mrs. Wiel, of Chicago, one of our summer residents made it possible by her kindness and generosity, for Dickie to attend this marvelous school, which is the only one of its kind in the United States.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE NEWS BULLETIN

New Receipt Form Devised by Case

A time and labor saver for the motoring public in its relations with the Department of State has been put into effect by Leun D. Case, secretary of state.

In the past, when applications for license plates, operators' licenses or titles were incorrect or incomplete when received, they were returned with departmental checks for the sums sent.

Under the new system, every application will bear a cash register stamp as soon as received in Lansing, showing the amount of money enclosed. In the event any application must be returned to its maker, the receipt and acknowledgment of the fee is stamped on its face in non-negotiable form.

When the application has been corrected or a new one executed and returned along with the original one, the transaction is then completed, thus avoiding the possibility of money or checks being mislaid, or the applicant called upon to pay a duplicate fee.

BEAUTIES OF FLORIDA CITIES ENUMERATED

in five ships sailed through the mouth of what is now known as Tampa Bay and landed on the present site of St. Petersburg. For 300 years after DeSoto's landing, no white men are known to have settled there. The real establishment of the present city took place in 1843, and continued on intermittently until the year 1857. After the Civil War its population began to grow. In the year 1873, a doctor bought 600 acres at 25 cents an acre and built a home. The city had its real beginning in 1875, when Gen. John C. Williams, of Detroit, Mich., and several other northerners, located there. Since then it has slowly developed itself into the present beautiful city.

St. Petersburg has so many outstanding features that I hardly know where to start. Beautiful streets and avenues, parks, excellent schools and public buildings, scenic drives, a million dollar Municipal Recreation Pier, yacht basin, swimming pools, public recreation grounds containing tennis courts, shuffle boards by the dozen, quoit pitching grounds, tables for the checker or chess player, and comfortable seats where one can loaf and watch the various activities. Here gather thousands daily, mostly elderly people of both sexes. Band concerts are scheduled nearly every night along with other entertaining features, and if you are a baseball fan you simply have to walk a few hundred feet to the winter training quarters of the Boston Bees of the National League and New York Yankees of the American League.

A feature that interested the writer more than anything else was the Municipal Yacht Basin. It is divided into three divisions, the home of fishing guides, sight-seeing party boats, private yachts and the local yacht club. Here are private yachts and pleasure boats from all sea ports east and north and west across the Gulf. Charlevoix may never have a million dollar pavilion, but it is possible to have one of the best yacht basins of any port on the Great Lakes. Our present facilities are inadequate and should be immediately enlarged until they cover the entire west shore of Round Lake. We have the inland harbor, depth of water and beautiful surroundings, so why not develop it as it should be. Our experience with water craft last season should act as an impetus toward this end. This is one of the reasons why the coast line cities of Florida are attractive and popular and they have not failed to take every advantage of it.

On our travels we were told this and that about places on our schedule and advised where to go and where not to go. One well meaning individual advised us to keep away from Miami. The reason: "You're too old. Just the millionaire and sports visit that place." At the same time we were told to keep away from St. Petersburg. Reason: "We were too young." This remark was occasioned by St. Petersburg's famous green benches, where lonely hearts meet and the weary sit down to rest. Many a romance has ripened here. Concerning these green benches: St. Petersburg has over 3500 scattered throughout the city, of which 1200 belong to the city and the remaining number owned by merchants. You can sit down anywhere the notion prompts you, and stay as long as you want to. Here is where lonely hearts meet, and the hospitality of the city is shown.

While at St. Petersburg, we made arrangements to do a little deep sea fishing. Accompanied by a family of four from Monticello, Ind., Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton and Mrs. Usher and the writer, we chartered a boat for our first deep sea fishing. After a 16-mile run out onto the Gulf, the skipper told us to get busy with poles and lines, as the fish were down in the water some 60 feet waiting to be hauled aboard. And they were, too, groupers and grunts and a few other scattering varieties. Well, we caught fish until we experienced no thrill when we got a bite. The day was exceptionally clear, no sea, and the run out onto the bay would have repaid us had we returned empty handed. Believe it or not, our day's catch amounted to over 200 pounds. I have pictures of the party and catch to prove my statements.

We stayed in St. Petersburg a week, leaving by ferry boat across the bay to Bradenton and Sarasota. Here is located the largest trailer camp in Florida, municipally owned and operated. At the time we arrived, the camp contained over 500 trailer cars. Occupants from nearly every state in the union, and including Ontario and British Columbia. At one time during the height of the season there were over 1000 cars, and during the "tin can" convention held in February, the camp registered over 1600 trailers. Sarasota is the same type of a city as Clearwater and St. Pete. It is peculiarly laid out as to streets and avenues, all starting from what is known as five points, and is the second city we have encountered on the trip where we had difficulty in finding out way about. We would start east and find ourselves going north, and west to south. But we soon became accustomed to it, and after two weeks' stay could find our way about without trouble. Here we met Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Francis, of Charlevoix, Mrs. Helen Privett (formerly Helen Mason), and Mason Rose. Among tourists, Michigan stood fourth in number, New York leading, with New Jersey a close second. During the T. C. T. convention, Michigan stood first in representation.

Among Sarasota's many points of interest are: Ringling Brothers circus winter quarters and training camp, Ringling Museum of Art, world's largest nursery, aviation field, Boston Red Sox training quarters, beautiful causeways and bridges, tennis courts and golf grounds. During our stay the temperature ranged from 70 degrees to 84 degrees, with the ever prevailing cool night breeze. Seemed strange to read in the last issue of the Courier where bills for snow-plowing were allowed at the recent council meeting, and in Michigan daily newspapers of temperatures as low as 14 to 22 degrees. We are down to our summer underwear, and at times this is too much.

We have met a number of strange people having peculiar ideas. Their remarks about certain things are quite humorous. One lady from Minnesota related the yarn of the opinion of some of Florida's natives as to the benefit of the trailers in general. She said they came down from the north with one clean shirt and a ten dollar bill and had not changed either one of them to date. But regardless of these opinions thus expressed, Florida has had the largest influx of tourists, all kinds, in its history and is making extensive plans for the winter season of 1937-38.

Will cover our trip from Sarasota to our present location in my next letter. We are in the heart of the orange and citrus belt now, and in a few days will go to Orlando and Daytona Beach.

Well, "Hurry Back."

suitable protection of health and safety, and that peace and good order may be promoted through regulations designed to insure wholesome conditions of work and freedom from oppression."

The language appears to be clear, say the experts who declare that Michigan could outlaw sit-down strikes by legislative decree and make it stick.

State's Rights

It is the State Legislature, rather than Congress at Washington, that bears close watching in the enactment of laws affecting Michigan labor and industry. The court ruling also upheld a Virginia law fixing arbitrary minimum prices of milk as a matter of public policy.

In Detroit the price of milk has just been increased one cent a quart, after producers had threatened to invoke a farmers' strike.

If minimum wages and hours can be determined by the Legislature, you may be sure that the farmers will ask for similar benefits in the matter of farm prices. Minimum wages for school teachers is proposed by Representative Peter R. Legg, of Escanaba.

Militant "Bloc"

In the House a militant representative, Philip Rahoi, Democrat, of Iron Mountain, has focused attention on old age pensions and unemployment relief. Taking the general stand that he will vote against any appropriation bill until the pension and relief welfare bills are passed by the House, Rahoi has become the leader of a so-called "progressive bloc."

The Rahoi group want the following:

1. An increase from $2,000,000 to $12,000,000 state appropriation for old age pensions.

2. An increase from $9,000,000 to $12,000,000 state appropriation for the state's share in direct relief.

Relief Costs Very

While the cost of unemployment relief has been increased sharply due to the epidemic of "sit-down" strikes, legislators are trying again to solve the complicated and perplexing problem of how to distribute funds.

If relief funds were handed down on a basis of population, you would run into the situation where it costs $18.43 a month in Schoolcraft county to maintain a family and $43.99 for the same family in Wayne county. Then, too, only four out of every 100 persons in Clinton and Livingston counties are dependent on relief. In Roscommon county this proportion is 54 out of 100.

Motor-Minded Legislators

Since Michigan is the world capital for the manufacture of motor vehicles, it is only logical that its legislators are "motor-wise." There are 49 bills in the House and 14 in the Senate directly related to the state's number one industry and its many ramifications.

Everything from prohibiting hitchhiking to compulsory insurance for all automobiles has been proposed. One bill now before the Senate would require motorists to stop and render aid if a dog is run over on the highway. Another which has passed the Senate would make drunk-driving a felony.

The bills are so numerous that the major portion of the army of Lansing lobbyists are kept busy watching their progress.

Miscellany

Farm cooperatives would be permitted to make and sell wine, according to a bill passed by the Senate and now before the House.

The civil service bill, passed by the Senate, is expected to come before the House soon. It was confined in committee due to the election.

Garden clubs have launched a move to rescue the billboard bill from oblivion. This measure, affecting billboards outside city limits, is believed to be constitutional in view of recent federal and state supreme court rulings. The bill would license billboards . . . and hence would not prevent further commercialization of scenic views.

Township fire departments would be possible as a special assessment district under House Bill 309 now before the Senate.

Sidney-Fonda Teamed Again In New Film

As a result of hundreds of fan letters received by the studio, Sylvia Sidney and Henry Fonda, the screen sweethearts of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," will be seen together again in "You Only Live Once," the new Walter Wanger production which begins a two day engagement at the Palace Theatre on Saturday, April 10.

"Bump Men" of Hollywood No Punch-Pullers

They play rough, those thick-muscled acrobatic thespians who come under the motion-picture category of "bump men." Fifty of them put some hectic excitement into the big prison break which is a feature of "Nancy Steele Is Missing," the Twentieth Century-Fox drama starring Victor McLaglen, Walter Connolly and Peter Lorre, and featuring June Lang and Robert Kent, which opens Wednesday, April 14, at the Palace Theatre.

SOCIAL SECURITY BRIEFS

Once a worker establishes eligibility to receive old-age benefits under the Social Security Act, it cannot be taken from him.

Employe's applications for account numbers—Form SS-5—are available upon request at local post offices, at field offices of the Social Security Board, and at the office of the Board in Washington. They may be returned to the local post offices through the employer, through a labor organization, or by mail or personal delivery.

To qualify for a monthly retirement benefit under the old-age benefits program of the Social Security Board, a worker must be 65 years of age, he must have been employed in an included industry at least one day in five different calendar years after December 31, 1936, and his total wages from this covered employment must be not less than $2,000.

The old-age benefits program of the Social Security Board is directed toward three primary objectives: (1) payment of benefits to qualified persons as a matter of right rather than on the basis of need; (2) budgeting of the cost of old-age annuities to millions of persons according to an orderly plan which will effect a wise distribution between present and future payments; (3) provisions of larger and more stable incomes in old age for many individuals who have had little economic security in the past.

BEAVER HAVE RESISTED COMMERCIAL RAISING

Beaver to date have successfully resisted all attempts by fur farmers to breed them for large-scale production. Muskrats, mink, red fox and various other forms of fur-bearers are bred profitably; but all commercial attempts to produce beaver have failed. An experimental project in beaver breeding is being conducted at Michigan State College to learn more of the breeding habits of this animal.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT BULLETIN

Smallpox Outbreak in Dundee

One of the most widespread outbreaks of smallpox in this state in recent years came to light recently when investigators from the Michigan Department of Health discovered 20 known cases of the disease and several more suspected cases at Dundee, in Monroe county, according to Dr. C. C. Slemons, state health commissioner.

"There are more cases of true smallpox in Dundee than I have seen in five years," reported Dr. C. D. Barrett, in charge of communicable disease control for the department, upon his return. "There are 20 persons now infected with smallpox and eight others have been isolated under observation. It is significant that not one of the 20 persons has ever had a successful smallpox vaccination."

"No person among the 1,300 population of Dundee can be sure he has not been exposed to smallpox," warned Dr. Barrett as local health officers and physicians organized a vaccination campaign for the entire village. The campaign will start in the schools on Monday, and all adults have been requested to report to their own physicians if they have not had a successful vaccination within five years. Regulations require that children who are not vaccinated must remain at home until 17 days after possible exposure to smallpox.

Source of the Dundee smallpox outbreak has not definitely been determined, according to Dr. Barrett, but there is a strong possibility that it was first brought into the community by a visitor from a western state where smallpox is very prevalent. This visitor arrived with what had been diagnosed as a case of chickenpox, a disease often mistaken for a mild case of smallpox.

Michigan has not had a serious outbreak of smallpox since 1924, when 4,527 cases and 226 deaths occurred. Only 16 cases were reported for the entire state in 1935, and 33 cases in 1936. No deaths have been reported since 1932, but Dr. Slemons warned that the only prevention against this disease is a successful smallpox vaccination.

Just a light touch on the steering wheel turns the new Row Crop "70" completely around. It's the easiest tractor to operate you ever saw. Every control's right at your finger tips—and you have steering and gear shifting like an automobile.

This is Oliver's new 6-cylinder Tractor that has caused so much talk. There are two "70's"—one designed solely for regular gasoline—and the other to get the utmost fuel economy out of kerosene or distillate.

With either one you'll get unusually great power with light weight—and great speed. Under ordinary soil conditions, you can plow with two 14-inch bases at over 4 miles an hour! That gets the work done quicker and gives more spare time for other things.

The Row Crop "70" comes from the tractor factory of the founders of the tractor industry. You'll want to see this latest, modern tractor at once—with its complete line of mounted listing, busting, planting and cultivating equipment.

Safe and Sane DRIVING
BY THE NATIONAL SAFETY COUNCIL and Michigan State Safety Council

MANY ARE COLLISIONS

More than one-third of all motor car fatalities result from collisions. About 17 per cent of the deaths are from collisions between two cars; 20 per cent are collisions between a motor vehicle and some fixed object.

When one automobile meets another head-on, or when an automobile crashes into a tree or a concrete under-pass, the cars do not disintegrate and disappear as gas. There is wreckage left. But often this wreckage is of very little mechanical value.

And as for the people who ride in the cars, the law of physics tells us the probability of death increases in proportion to the impact. Too often there is nobody left alive to tell how it happened.

Why it happened is of value only as a record. Unfortunately, comparatively few people are shocked by the wreckage. The trouble is that the kind of driver who ought to be influenced by such an object lesson seldom sees it. Some traffic judges are sending reckless drivers to visit the morgue. It is a suitable place to ponder on the consequences of accidents.

Their first child, a son, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kempton, of Belfast, 40 years after their marriage.

TELEPHONE COMPANY GIVES NEW SERVICE

Beginning April 10, Will Give Time of Day to All Inquirers

If, on Saturday, April 10, or at any time thereafter, you want to ascertain the timeof-day, just lift your telephone receiver and ask "centrnl" —she will tell you. For on April 10, the Michigan Bell Telephone Company will inaugurate 24-hour a day time-of-day service in all its exchanges, statewide, according to C. L. Johnson, manager for the company in this area.

Establishment of statewide time-of-day service is in line with the policy of the Michigan Bell Company of broadening and improving telephone service in the continuing development and introduction of improved equipment and methods of operation, the speeding of the service, and the reduction of various local and long distance rates and connection and otber charges, Mr. Johnson states. Officials of the company believe that, inasmuch as in most communities there has been no point from which the time-of-day could be obtained by telephone, the time announcements will prove an appreciated addition to the service the company supplies.

4-H CLUBS TO AID IN STATE CONSERVATION

Boys and Girls Numbering 40,000 to Take Part in 1937 Program

If many of the 40,000 boys and girls enrolled in 1937 4-H club work in Michigan have their will, the state is to get a substantial contribution this year in its effort to conserve and increase natural resources and wild life.

As a new project in this type of work the boys and girls in clubs in 83 counties are to be enrolled in 4-H ranger stations, fire prevention, soil conservation and 4-H pheasant propagation projects. The program is not entirely new but is greatly expanded this year, says A. G. Kettunen, state club leader, and Michigan will be one of 25 states conducting such work. Sixty activities in conservation also are available to club members enrolled primarily in other 4-H club projects.

F. V. TYLER NAMED AS CITY TREASURER

Charlevoix county gave a Republican majority for all state offices, although the smallest on record. Eugene Elliott, Republican candidate for superintendent of public instruction, received the highest margin, 355 votes, which is practically the Republican majority voted in the city of Charlevoix. Boyne Valley, Chandler, Peaine, St. James and Wilson townships were Democratic, as were the first and second wards of East Jordan and the first ward in Boyne City. Norwood township gave 14 votes for each party, and several other townships gave but a few votes majority in either direction.

Following is the county vote:

SPRING ATHLETICS PROGRAM PLANNED

CLASS C BASEBALL AND TRACK SCHEDULES OUTLINED

Stewart Coleman Named President of "Little Eight" Conference; Practice Is Under Way Here

At a meeting held Saturday, April 10, at Boyne City, officials of the Northern Michigan "Little Eight" Class C conference elected officers for the ensuing year and arranged baseball and track schedules for spring.

Officers named for 1937-38 were: President, Stewart Coleman, Charlevoix; vice-president, James Quinn, Rogers City; secretary-treasurer, Principal Camburn, Boyne City.

The conference schools were divided into two sections for the spring baseball schedule, with Charlevoix, Harbor Springs, Boyne City and East Jordan in the western division, and Rogers City, Gaylord, Kalkaska and Grayling in the eastern division.

Each team in the western division will play six games, and Charlevoix's schedule follows: April 29, East Jordan at Charlevoix; May 7, Boyne City at Boyne; May 11, Harbor Springs at Charlevoix; May 14, Harbor Springs at Harbor; May 18, Boyne City at Charlevoix; May 20, East Jordan at East Jordan.

Winners in the two divisions will play off for the conference championship at a date to be set.

Conference schools will participate in six track meets during the spring season. The first meet will be a dual affair between Mancelona and Charlevoix at Mancelona on April 23. On April 30, track teams from Boyne City and Charlevoix will take part in an invitational meet at East Jordan. The annual invitational meet at Petoskey is scheduled for May 8, the regional at Cadillac on May 15, and the state meet at East Lansing on May 22.

The annual Northern Michigan Class C track meet will be held in Charlevoix on Saturday, May 29, with at least six conference schools participating. Local athletic officials are making extensive preparations for this event, the first track meet held in Charlevoix in many years.

Practice for baseball and track is already under way here although, due to cold weather, little outdoor activity has been possible.

The track squad of 30, the largest in many years, indicated the interest manifest. The team representing Charlevoix High school will be built around Edward Radle, 1936 state Class C champion in the mile, and Leslie Shapton, quarter-miler, Clement Olach, half-miler, and Richard Bergmann in the high jump, all of whom placed in the state meet last year.

In baseball, Charlevoix will have the services of such 1936 veterans as "Chick" Gallagher and Frank Kulpa, who shared the hurling duties last year, as well as Elmer Crain, Eddie Gengle, Ira Smith, Louis Brown, Leslie Shapton, and Fred Ager, all of whom played a year ago.

Boyne is the defending conference baseball champion, and East Jordan defending champion in track.

ENORMOUS MAIL VOLUME AT CHEVROLET OFFICES

ANDREW M'CALL, JR., IS TAKEN BY SUDDEN DEATH

Succumbed Monday Evening at Home Following Brief Illness

Andrew McCull, Jr., 54, practically a life-long resident of this city, died at 9:25 Monday evening at his home on East Hurlbut avenue, following a brief illness. His sudden passing was a shock to his family and many friends.

Mr. McCall was born April 13, 1883, at Alpena, the son of Andrew and Douglas McCall. He came here with his parents when a child and had since made his home in this city. Mr. McCall took up the printing trade when a youth and followed the occupation until recent years. He was an employe for many years of the Charlevoix Sentinel and the Charlevoix Courier.

Mr. McCall was married on January 21, 1911, to Marie Blosdale, who survives in addition to a daughter, Kathleen, his father, Andrew McCall, two grandchildren, Virginia Shumsky, of Detroit, and Norman Kent Ketchman, this city; also a sister, Mrs. James True, Detroit, and two brothers, Jack, of Traverse City, and Harrison, of Detroit. A nephew, Robert McCnll, of Detroit, survives also.

Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon from the Congregational church, Rev. G. R. Parker officiating. Mr. McCall was a member of the Masonic lodge and members of this order attended the services in a body.

PETITIONS URGE PARKING PROGRAM

THREE PRESENTED CITY COUNCIL MONDAY NIGHT

One Hundred Forty-Five Taxpayers Express Favor of Plan to Park East Side of Bridge Street

Public reaction to the city's program of parking Round Lake frontage on the east side of Bridge street was indicated through three petitions presented the city council Monday night.

Containing the names of 145 signers, all property owners and taxpayers, the petitions requested the council to acquire for park purposes the Goldstick, Wilkins, Meyer and Merians properties, which would give the city the entire block between Clinton and Mason streets with the exception of the Ayres Bond building, occupied by the Min-Evn Restaurant, and the Milton Block property.

Previous petitions sponsored by local civic groups have been presented the council expressing a similar attitude, indicating that a representative part of Charlevoix's citizens favor continuance of the parking plan.

An extensive improvement program on the property between Clinton and Mason streets already owned by the city is contemplated. Work on new yacht slips, a WPA project, is about to be started, and the council has plans for recreational facilities which include tennis courts, shuffle board courts and installation of playground equipment. A portion of the material for the lake front improvements has been procured.

Such expressions of moral support as embodied in the petitions already presented the council will no doubt have considerable bearing on future plans regarding the park program.

SPORTSMEN'S CLUB PLAN IMPROVEMENTS

Concrete Sides and Clear Bottom of Stover Creek Rearing Ponds

The Charlevoix Sportsmen's Club is planning an extensive improvement program at its Stover Creek rearing ponds in preparation for the 1937 season.

Through a WPA project under sponsorship of the city council, but supervised and with the assistance of club members, sides of the ponds will be covered with concrete and the creek bottom cleared completely. This improvement will allow thorough netting and separation of fingerlings according to size during the rearing season, thus eliminating a tendency toward cannibalism among the trout which has caused heavy loss in previous years.

The club has promise of larger consignments of steelhead, brook and German brown trout than in previous years, and plan one of the best seasons in its history.

Pertinent Facts Regarding Social Security Regulations

Mr. Employer and All Employes:

Do you know that the Social Security Act compels all employers of one or more employes to register and that all employes must file for Social Security numbers with but few exceptions?

That every employer is held responsible for collecting the employe's tax and remitting the same, plus an equal amount to the Collector of Internal Revenue at Detroit, once a month?

That you are held responsible to see that your employes have registered? That they have a number?

That you must collect the tax from your employes? To account for tax; to keep records; to file returns as is required by Regulations No. 91, Title VIII, of the Social Security Act?

Read what the regulations call for. Follow instructions and you will save Penalties and Assessments and Possible Fines.

1. The Social Security Act is a Federal Law.

2. All employers of one or more persons and all employes are affected by this law, as provided under Old Age Benefit Provisions.

3. Every employer is made responsible for recording and remitting to the Government a tax that he must deduct from each employe's pay each pay day.

4. Every employer must also pay a tax based on the compensation that he pays to each employe.

5. Every employer is required to report each quarter the amount of gross earnings of each employe and the amount of tax deducted from each employe for that period.

6. Every employer (in addition) will be required to make tax reports and remittances each month, throughout each calendar year to designated government offices. (You must make all returns from this point to the Collector of Internal Revenue at Detroit, Michigan.)

7. Every employer must have available for government inspection at all times, records that will support his reports to the government.

SCHOLARSHIP AWARDS ANNOUNCED FOR C.H.S.

Marjorie Falting Is Valedictorian; Marjorie Miller Salutatorian

Scholarship awards for the 1936 graduating class of Charlevoix High school have been announced by Harry E. Bingham, high school principal.

Miss Marjorie Falting, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Falting, of Marion township, has won the privilege of presenting the class valedictory with a splendid record of 96.86 during the four high school years.

Miss Marjorie Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Miller, this city, won the salutatorian honors with an average of 96.61.

Neither student confined herself to academic work alone, but has shown interest in the extra-curricular activities such as athletics, the Girls' League, school paper, "The Crimson Flash," and the senior play.

Classmates whose records bring them within the circle of the first ten of the fifty seniors are Harold Chew, Alice Ecklund, Esther Lou Fochtman, Anna Higman, Leslie Shapton, Louie Sharrow, Mildred Withers and Marguerite Young.

Fourteen seniors will show you how Friday, April 23, in the senior class play, "It Won't Be Long Now," under the direction of Miss Helen Anthony.

PATROL BOAT SEIZES ILLEGAL CHUB NETS

Twenty-Four Boxes Taken Sunday Off Entrance of Green Bay

Returning to port here Monday night, Capt. Charles Allers, commander of Michigan Patrol Boat No. 1, reported the seizure of 24 boxes of chub nets off the entrance of Green Bay.

The nets, of illegal size mesh, it is understood, contained several hundred pounds of fish. The seizure was the first activity of the patrol boat since navigation opened several days ago.

CHARLEVOIX-DETROIT CLUB PARTY APRIL 17

Plans for Get-Together Next Saturday Are Announced

A communication from William A. Carey, of Detroit, outlines tentative plans for the sixth annual potluck dinner and party of the Charlevoix-Detroit Club, to be held April 17 at Detroit.

The party, as previously announced, will be held at the Highland Park branch of Y. W. C. A., located at 13130 Woodward avenue, corner of Winona avenue.

Those attending are requested to bring baskets with sandwiches, cake, salads and a hot dish to pass. Hot coffee will be served.

The entertainment program includes movies of Charlevoix as one feature, and for the young folks a radio dance program.

In order that the committee may make adequate arrangements, it is requested those planning to attend either phone or write Dr. E. H. Wicks, 841 David Whitney B., phone Randolph 7677, or William Archie Carey, 7103 Tuxedo avenue, phone Dav. 0041.

SPRING WORK STARTED AT TWO SUMMER CLUBS

Crews Now at Work at Belvedere Club and the Chicago Club

E. J. Edwards and Otto Krueger, caretakers of the Belvedere Club and Chicago Club grounds, respectively, have placed crews at work on the annual spring program of preparations for the summer season.

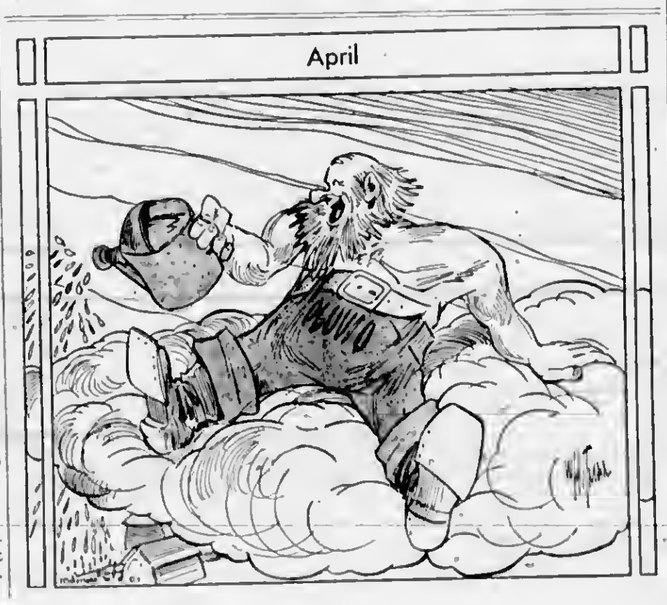
Several weeks will be occupied in raking, caring for shrubbery, flower gardens, etc., on these large grounds, as well as new terracing and other details incident to opening of the many cottages for the summer months.

THREE-NIGHT SCHEDULE POPULAR AT ARGONNE

Large Crowds At Parties Wednesday, Saturday, Sunday Nights

Judging from attendance, the new Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday dance schedule at The Argonne is proving popular.

The entire Northern Michigan region has been well represented at this popular amusement place since the new schedule started. Stan Cole's Rhythm Four is furnishing music for the parties.



FISH TUG, DISABLED IN ICE, TOWED TO HARBOR

Coast Guards Brought Hendrickson Tug, Lucille H., in Friday

Charlevoix coast guards towed the Hendrickson tug Lucille H. into port here Friday morning after the craft had become disabled by a broken propeller, sheared off in the ice.

The tug, en route from winter quarters at Manistee to its home port, was disabled while attempting to work through ice floes between north and south points. Coast guards under Capt. Oscar Smith remained out all night in their attempt to reach the tug and made the harbor Friday morning after the lighthouse tender Sumac, leaving port here, opened a channel to the boats.

SMALL DOCKS NOT TO BE USED FOR FREIGHT

Council Takes Steps to Regulate Use of Smaller City Docks

As a means of protecting the city against liability in case of personal injury or property damage resultant from commercial use of smaller municipal docks, the council has voted to post signs warning against such practices.

The action, aimed particularly at the smaller Clinton and Mason street dock, has resulted from persistent use for freight transfer in which heavily loaded trucks are driven upon them.

CITY GIVEN DEED TO GOLF COURSE

TRANSFER CHARLEVOIX GOLF ASS'N MADE TUESDAY

Title to Property Includes 18-Hole Course, Buildings and Equipment Owned by Association

By affixing their signatures Tuesday to a deed, Mayor Arthur Bergeon and City Clerk Ray S. Hamilton completed the legal formality making the city of Charlevoix owner of the Charlevoix Golf Association property.

The transfer of title culminates a most generous offer by the association, whose members are long-time summer residents of the Chicago Club of Charlevoix, whereby the city, after operation of the 18-hole course for a year under an agreement entered into in the spring of 1936, was offered the privilege of accepting deed to the property.

Thus for the consideration of one dollar, Charlevoix is the owner of what has been known the past year as the Charlevoix municipal golf course, which was the first and for many years the only 18-hole course in Northern Michigan. The splendid property lies in the townships of Charlevoix and Hayes and the city of Charlevoix. The deed gives the city title to the grounds, buildings and all equipment.

Under conditions of the deed, the city must operate a public golf course for a period of 10 years, as well as restriction of the property to park and recreational purposes. A provision prohibits its use for certain amusements.

During the past year the course was under the management of a committee composed of Robert Bridge, Oakley J. Hammond, Charles Hamlin, Harry A. Craig and Leo Carey. This committee was recently reappointed by Mayor Arthur Bergeon, and Gordon B. Todd was added as a sixth member. This group is in charge of operation for 1937.

Charlevoix is deeply indebted to members of the Charlevoix Golf Association for their generosity, and The Courier management takes this opportunity of extending its appreciation.

MODEL HOME LAUNDRY MAKING IMPROVEMENTS

Install New Hot Water Tank, Add Washing Machine to Equipment

Making preparations for the 1937 summer season, the Model Home Laundry, owned by Sorensen & Holmes, is making several improvements.

In an enclosure built on top the south end of the laundry building, a wooden tank for hot water is being installed, replacing the galvanized tanks located beneath the structure. A new washing machine is also being added to the equipment to increase capacity of output.

Several other improvements are anticipated for the coming season.

Office supplies of any description may be obtained quickly through this office. Charlevoix Courier.—Adv3tf

Safe and Sane DRIVING
BY THE NATIONAL SAFETY COUNCIL and Michigan State Safety Council

CAN YOU STOP IN TIME?

Ask ten good drivers what they consider the most important safety factor of their automobiles, and at least nine of them will answer "Good brakes." Yet faulty brakes are a daily cause of accidents.

The annual car inspection campaign in Delaware in 1935 showed 46 per cent of all cars examined with defective brakes. Similar reports from Virginia gave 39.5 per cent. In Connecticut one-half of all cars rejected in the 1935 semi-annunl inspection were rejected for defective brakes.

One of the first things a good driver does when he leaves his garage of a morning is to test out his brakes. If they work instantly and smoothly, his mind is at rest for the balanee of thnt day. He knows he can stop in time.

But if your brakes are slow in action, if your car jerks about as you apply pressure, showing that you have uneven braking power and ure likely to skid dangerously, better drive into a garage nnd have your brakes adjusted.

There is no more helpless and terrifying sensation than to find suddenly thnt your brakes are useless and cannot stop you from sliding into a smash-up, or perhaps striking some innocent bystander.

ODEN HATCHERY HAS A UNIQUE WATER SYSTEM

Underground Artesian Wells Supply Water for Large Hatchery

The state fish hatchery at Oden has an unique water-supply system. Pools nnd troughs in which thousands of trout are reared for planting are supplied largely by water from deep under ground through nrtesian wells.

In n project recently completed by CCC workers, 21 new wells have been driven to ground water tables as deep as 108 feet. These wells flow from natural pressure and are expected to produce as much as 560 gallons of water n minute. Water supplies of other state hatcheries are derived from surfaee streams and springs.

- GOOD TIRES When the Safety-Tested tag on a used car carries a check before "Tires", you know that we have examined the tires carefully, and, if necessary, conditioned or replaced them to provide several thousand miles of service.
- EQUALIZED BRAKES Many of our Safety-Tested Used Cars have modern hydraulic brakes. But whether the brakes are hydraulic or mechanical, a check mark means they have been inspected and equalized.
- TRUE STEERING A check mark before "Steering" on the Safety-Tested tag indicates that we have tested and adjusted the steering mechanism of the used car and have reconditioned it, if necessary, to assure easy driving.
- DEPENDABLE ELECTRICAL SYSTEM When we check "Electrical System" on the Safety-Tested tag, it means that lights, horn, ignition and battery have been examined and, if not satisfactory, restored to dependable condition.
- TUNED-UP ENGINE Safe driving demands a responsive and smooth-running motor. A check before "Engine" on the Used Car Safety-Tested tag indicates that the engine has been tuned up to deliver quick-acting power.

CHAPTER VI

"Why, just this," Ariel began, in a voice she tried to make sound easy and natural. "A drunken idiot drove his car out into the middle of the traffic and forced our car over against the other side of the road, and we hit the car this little girl was in. That's all.

"I had no more to do with it than—well, Sam, here! This man—he was drunk—cut in from behind a bus, and came straight at us. They said he was going fifty an hour. He headed right at us and we swerved to the right, do you see?—and this child was in the car we hit. It sort of swung 'round, and all the cars jammed, and every one shouted."

Dick, who had followed the policeman out of the room for a few private words, had returned to the kitchen.

"It looks to me, from what Fargo says, as if it was up to the other fellow," Dick said now, sitting down beside Gail on the end of the table.

"Whose child was it, Dick?"

"Moss. A little girl named Janet Moss. Five years old."

"Five years old. My G—d!"

"I don't know why you all look at me. I agree with you that it's simply terrible!" Ariel said quickly and hotly. "But you don't think I'm—I'm enjoying it?"

"Oh, shut up," Phil commanded her, brushing the little spurt of temper aside, his dark look not brightening.

"But—but Ariel wasn't to blame, Phil! It wasn't her fault, Dick. Why—why should they—why should they want to take her to jail?" Gail demanded, turning from one of the men to the other.

"It's what they call a technical charge. Now, let's keep cool, everybody," Dick said, "and find out just where we stand. In the first place, what time was this, Ariel?"

"Ten minutes to six."

"And you and Buddy Raisch and the Barchi boy were in the car?"

"In Buddy's roadster."

"Was Dorothy Camp there?"

"No. Not then."

"Where was she?"

"She'd left us."

"Left you!"

"If you'll give me a chance," Ariel interrupted the interrogation with bitter patience, "I'll try to tell you. But I can't get anywhere if you keep looking as if I'd done all this as a joke!"

There was no answer to this. But Phil said drily, as if thinking aloud, "God knows it's no joke!"

"You weren't driving, Ariel?" Gail asked in a sick tone.

"Yes, I was."

"You don't know how to drive!"

"Oh, yes, I do."

"Good G—d!" Phil whispered under his breath.

"Ariel—not when it happened—you weren't driving then?"

"I say I was, Gail." Ariel's weary, colorless face cracked with an unnatural smile; she looked about the circle scornfully, almost sneeringly.

"You all look so funny!" she gasped, shaking, trying to laugh, "You all take—things—so d—n seriously!"

Gail tightened an arm about her shoulders.

"Pull yourself together, Ariel!" she said sharply. "You've gotten us all into horrible trouble, and been partly responsible for a little girl's death, and if you can't take it seriously, why, we can, that's all. What were you doing driving Buddy Raisch's car? Are you crazy?"

"I've told you what I was doing. We were coming back from Monterey, and Buddy was sleepy, and so was Larry, and I was driving. We were in the middle lane, where you have a perfect right to be on that hill, and the bus was coming up—and I saw it perfectly well, and I knew the line on the right was where it was, and I was driving along, about twenty-five, I guess, when this drunk came lunging out from behind the bus, straight into my face, and of course I had to jerk right—I couldn't jerk left into the bus, and I couldn't stop because of the cars behind me. The car—the car this drunk Miller was driving—came head on, and hit our guards and smashed the headlights. They said it was badly smashed, but the man wasn't hurt, and at first I don't think they thought anyone was hurt. And then they saw this little girl on the grass."

"Why wasn't Buddy driving, Ariel?" Gail asked, very gently, in silence.

"He was sleepy, I told you. We were all up late last night, dancing. We were over at Monterey. We just went there for dinner, Buddy and Larry and Dorothy and I. And then we stayed and danced. We were going to come home last night, but it was too late, so we stayed. Buddy felt sort of sick, anyway. He had some oysters or something."

"After Gail went to Los Gatos you said you were going to Santa Cruz to have lunch on somebody's yacht, and stay with Dot over night," Edith put in, anxiously accusing.

"Yes. Well, we did; we had lunch on the Howards' yacht, in Santa Cruz. We were coming right back, and then afterward, when we were starting home, we saw the sign at Soquel—'Del Monte 38 miles'—and Larry said he dared us to go down there and have dinner and dance. We started for Del Monte but then we thought that was too smart—we weren't exactly dressed for it—so we went to a place in Monterey, a nice place, too, and we all wandered up and down the street, and bought things and had fun."

She fell silent on the word.

"Go on!" Phil said.

"Well, then we cleaned up for dinner, and dressed—our suitcases were in the car—and we went over to the hotel and had dinner, and fooled around. But then the boys got sort of—silly," Ariel explained, scowling, "and we didn't know what to do with them. Then Buddy said that if we'd go over to Del Monte and dance he'd rush us home right after, so we agreed. But at the hotel he disappeared, and I didn't know where he was. Dorothy was dancing with Larry—I think they're engaged, Gail."

The forlorn attempt at diversion fell flat. Gail's face was stern.

"I don't know what I would have done," Ariel went on, "if Van Murchison hadn't come up. Of course he said that I oughtn't to be there so late, and that you and Ede would be wild, and we went out and sat on the porch waiting for Buddy to show up. Van took me home about half-past one, to the Monterey hotel," Ariel said, "and Dorothy was there."

"And what had happened to Buddy?"

"Well, he'd eaten these oysters, Phil, and he felt sick."

"And then, Ariel?"

"Dorothy and I were so scared we cried, and she was going to telephone her mother. But we thought that wouldn't do. So we locked our door and went to bed. Dorothy and I went to sleep; I don't know when the boys got in; they were on another floor, anyway. We got up early this morning, and walked around Monterey. And we met the boys—they were all shaved and dressed and sober, of course, and they felt so sorry that we sort of forgave them, and we all went to breakfast, and then we were coming straight home. We packed and we got started at about eleven, but we stopped at the Del Monte links to see some of the golf.

"We had some sandwiches at Los Gatos, at about three, and we came on over the Dumbarton bridge, and Buddy kept feeling sicker and sicker, and Larry was half asleep. Finally Dorothy said to stop the car for a minute, and she jumped out and said she was going to take a bus. She said the way Larry was driving we'd have an accident.

"No bus goes by there, anyway. But after a few minutes Dorothy signaled a car with a man and woman in it, and got in—I didn't think she really meant to, and Larry didn't, and it made us pretty mad."

"You were alone with the two boys, then, Ariel?"

"Yes, and Larry kept getting sleepier and sleepier."

"Then what happened?"

"Then Larry asked me to take the wheel, and said he'd sit right beside me and help me out if I got into a jam. I've had the wheel lots of times. So we changed places. We were only seven miles out, and all I wanted to do—"

Her voice thickened, stopped.

"All I wanted to do was get home," she said. "I drove along—you couldn't go fast in that traffic—just keeping my place in the line, when the car ahead of me jumped forward and got clear, and this crazy drunk lunged up in front of me.

"There was the—most—awful—crashing of glass and wood," she whispered, putting her head back, closing her eyes. "Every one began to shout and scream. They saw the little girl, and a man asked me if my car had hit her, and I said—I said I didn't know. I saw a man pick her up, and her hat sort of drop back. . . ."

"Oh, my G—d!" Edith whispered in the pause.

"My car was jammed against theirs," Ariel said. "But there didn't seem to be much harm done. The police came up and they asked to see my license, and Buddy said that it was at home. But afterward at the station I told them I didn't have any. That was right, wasn't it, Dick?" Ariel asked with an appealing look.

"Well, of course!" Dick answered impatiently.

"They held us on a manslaughter charge," the innocent, hoarse young voice went on. "They wanted me to telephone home, but I wouldn't."

The recital was over. There was silence in the kitchen; no Lawrence could speak.

"I'll go right around," Dick said, glancing at his wrist. "Now, don't take this too hard. It happens all the time. If they can hang it on him that he was drunk and that Ariel had the right of way they'll not hold her."

Gail's heart went to him, the big, homely, gentle, adequate friend and champion of the family, with so passionate a rush that she felt an emotion like a physical pain in her breast.

Ariel came, white and weary and young, and stood before Dick and put her hands on his shoulders.

"Will you get me out, Dick?" she faltered.

"Why, sure I will!" he said, a little gruffly, smiling down at her as a big dog might look down on a puppy.

"I didn't mean to do it!" she whispered, her mouth trembling, her face crinkling into tears. And then in sudden irritation and disgust she exclaimed, "Gail, Gail, I'm going to be sick!"

"I thought so!" Gail sprang across the room. She and Edith had an arm apiece about the convulsed, slender little figure as they rushed it to the familiar sanctuary of the upper rooms.

Ten minutes later Gail went with Dick to the police station.

"I think it would look—better, to have one of you girls along," Dick suggested. Sam was left with Ariel; Edith and Phil went to call at the stricken home of the dead child.

"I'm—I'm terribly sorry about this," Dick presently admitted reluctantly. "I ought to warn you. This Miller, the man who was driving the other car, might ask for a jury trial."

"Oh, Dick, no!" Her voice was weak with terror.

"He might. If he can exonerate himself, or prove that Ariel was even partly in the wrong."

Her heart pounded, raced—pounded again. They were getting out of Dick's car now at the City hall.

"Dick, will they find out that she was at Monterey with those boys?"

ANNOUNCE INCREASE IN PRICE ON BREAD

Higher Cost of Materials and Labor Explained As Reasons Advance

Due to the higher costs of materials and labor, bread prices were advanced at Detroit on Monday, April 12. Increases will largely be about one cent per loaf.

This advance will be certain to affect the state generally, but, withal, Michigan bread prices remain the lowest of any state in the country.

Already bread prices have gone up in Chicago, Cincinnati, and Toledo.

In Northern Michigan localities, and in Bay City and Saginaw, a boost in the price of bread became effective a week ago, it was disclosed by bakers there.

Bakers in general have increased wages and there has been a marked increase in the price of bread ingredients such as flour, shortening, sugar, malt, yeast, etc.

WEEK OF APRIL 11TH TO BE HUMANE WEEK

Gov. Frank Murphy Saturday issued a proclamation designating the week starting April 11 as Humane Week.

The proclamation urged churches, schools, civic organizations and parents "to inculcate in the minds and hearts of the young a love of justice and fair play, and develop the importance of kindness and protection for underprivileged children and the dumb animals which are the faithful friends of mankind."

ALLEGAN BUCK DEER FAIL TO SHED HORNS

A wildlife rarity has been observed this spring in the 35,000-acre Allegan game project, sponsored by the federal resettlement administration. Fifteen adult deer, still carrying their 1936 antlers, have been observed at various points in the area.

COUNCIL VOTES ADOPTION ONE METER PLAN

Engage Engineers to Set Up Graduating Scale Electric Rates

The city council has taken preliminary steps toward the introduction of a "one meter" system for electric current users in Charlevoix.

The Grand Rapids engineering firm of Hamilton & Weeber have been engaged to set up a schedule of rates and recommendations for council approval and it is the aim to have the new system in force before the summer season.

The city council has considered taking this step for some time, first, as an economy measure to eliminate the ever-increase investment in meters, and secondly, to provide a more equitable rate for the larger users of illuminating and power current, through a graduated charge depending upon electric consumption.

At the present time, Charlevoix is one of few municipalities using a "two meter" system.

FINE KIWANIS PROGRAM HEARD TUESDAY EVENING

Merle S. Ward, Ferris Institute President, Among Four Speakers

One of the most inspiring talks heard here in some time was given before the Kiwanis Club Tuesday evening by Merle S. Ward, president of Ferris Institute, Big Rapids.

The Kiwanians also enjoyed talks by Lieutenant-Governor James Robinson, and Adjutant Shane, of Sault Ste. Marie, and by Lewis C. Reimann, director of Camp Charlevoix. The latter imparted a bit of gladdening information with the announcement that the camp has 118 pre-season enrollments for 1937, the largest in the camp's history.

SPRING BAND FESTIVAL WILL BE AT PETOSKEY

Eight Northern Michigan Bands Will Gather There April 24

The bands of eight Northern Michigan high schools will gather in Petoskey on April 24 for the Third Annual Northern Michigan Band and Orchestra Festival.

The day's program will include a parade, individual concert appearances by the bands and orchestras, and a concert in the evening by the massed bands.

The afternoon concerts will be open to the public without charge. The PTA is sponsoring the sale of tickets for the evening concert.

ADVANCE PAYMENT SAVE MONEY FOR BORROWERS

Payment of $100 in advance on a federal land bank loan that has run six years will save the borrower $266 in interest and cut down the total payment time from 34½ years to 28½ years, says H. C. Bedell, secretary-treasurer of national farm loan associations with group headquarters at Boyne City, Mich.

DOES OWN ELECTRIC WIRING, GETS FINED

Eveline Township Man First Violating of New State Ruling

The first arrest under the charge of illegal wiring was made last week by Victor Ulrich, of Petoskey, district electrical inspector.

The victim was Vaughan Orvis, of Eveline township, Charlevoix county, who was given the alternative of $10 fine and $3.35 costs or 10 days in jail.

The warrant charged Mr. Orvis with "unlawfully installing electric wiring and devices within and on a milk house in said township without first being duly licensed and examined by the State of Michigan as an electrician and/or electrical contract, and without first having secured a permit therefor from the electrical administrative board, a municipal authority, a local authority designated by the said board, or a licensed inspector—."

Horace R. Fowler, justice, presided over the case.

FUNERAL HELD TUESDAY FOR MRS. MAMIE EATON

Her Death Ended Long Illness at Patterson Home Sunday

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Pulsipher from the Church of God at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning for Mrs. Minnie Eaton, 47, who died Sunday, April 11, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Patterson, who reside in Banks township.

Mamie Patterson was born October 10, 1889, at Battle Creek, spending her early life there. She was married in Colorado to Albert Harrison, who died in 1910. She returned to Battle Creek and married her present husband in 1912.

Surviving besides the husband are two daughters, Mrs. Opal Carter, of Battle Creek, and Mrs. Viola Smith, of Jackson; her parents, also two sisters and a brother.

Mrs. Eaton's death culminated an illness of several years. She had been with her parents the past six weeks.

ALICE M'HUGH WINNER OF ORATIONS CONTEST

Frances Meggison Placed Second in Declamations Here Tuesday Night

Alice McHugh, of Charlevoix High school, won first place in orations at the sub-district contest held here Tuesday evening. Her victory qualifies her to compete in the Northern Michigan district contest against champions of other sub-districts in this area.

Miss McHugh is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don T. McHugh.

Second place in orations went to Don Angus, of Petoskey.

In declamations, Keith Smith, of Gaylord, placed first, and second place was awarded Miss Frances Meggison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Meggison, this city.

First and second awards in extempore speaking were won by Vernon Kemp, of Petoskey, and Arthur Cronin, of East Jordan, respectively.

WINTER WHEAT CROP IS BELOW AVERAGE

Michigan winter wheat prospects on April 1 were given a condition rating of 72 per cent of normal by crop correspondents of the Michigan Cooperative Crop Reporting Service. This is 10 points below the 10-year (1923-32) average and reflects the slight growth and retarded development during March which was unusually cold and dry. While there was very little snow covering during the winter, the mild weather is believed to have prevented serious injury to the crop prior to March.

* * * * * * * * * * * *

Next Sunday we will observe the fifth annual Sportsmen's Sunday. Back in 1933, the Sportsmen's Club of this city was invited as guests to our regular morning service. The Club came in a body and afterward decided to make the event an annual affair. The Club has chosen the Sunday before the trout season opens, and has journeyed to the church each Sunday since with the exception of 1936, when the pastor was out of the city. The church enjoys this activity and feels that it is right to recognize this group of men who have done so much in the last few years to make fishing better and thus interest fishermen from all over the United States in Charlevoix as a summer place.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE NEWS BULLETIN

Case and Governor Strangers to Some

The capitol, its officials, and affairs of state generally, touch but lightly upon thousands of Michigan's residents, Leon D. Case, secretary of state, is finding out.

The department's mailing division has reported to him that letters addressed to previous secretaries of state who held office as long as 20 years and more ago, are still being received. While old forms and printed envelopes mailed from out-state points explain some of these oddities, the majority of the letters are hand-addressed and mailed in Michigan.

The late Coleman C. Vaughan, secretary of state from 1915 to 1920, is still addressed from time to time on official, routine matters. An average of five letters a day are received for Charles J. DeLand, who occupied that office from 1921 to 1926. John S. Haggerty, in office from 1927 to 1930, is still in office in the minds of some, and his successors prior to Mr. Case, hold over for others, letters indicate.

Such experience is not new for state departments, but even the Governor doesn't entirely escape. A record of some kind was recently established by a Michigan resident who sent a letter to Gov. Chase S. Osborn, who held that office from 1911 to 1913. It was examined by Gov. Frank Murphy's executive staff with considerable interest.

This lack of interest or attention to public matters and officials, is not confined to older people. During the recent Chrysler strike negotiations, some students from a Michigan institution of higher education toured the capitol and heard, for the first time, of the strike parley and the sit-down strike which had brought it on.

Touching Off the Crazy Streak In People

Professor Donald A. Laird, of Colgate University, explains, in The American Weekly, with the April 18 issue of The Detroit Sunday Times, how trivialities may arouse hidden manias in apparently normal people, driving them to irrational and often cruel acts.

U. S. SOCIAL SECURITY ACT

8. Every employer must furnish a written statement to the employe showing the amount of employe's tax deducted from his wages each time he is paid. (Notice—Do not be confused! It is the employers' excise tax for unemployment insurance that accepts employers having less than eight employes.)

The following are paragraphs from Regulations 91 under Title VIII of the Social Security Act:

Article II—Employment

All services performed within the United States by an employe for his employer, unless specifically excepted by Section 811 (B) of the Act, or Section 11 of the Carriers' Taxing Act. To constitute an employment, the legal relationship of employer and employe must exist between the person for whom the services are performed and the individual who performs them, and the services involved must be performed within the United States.

Article III—Who Are Employes

Every individual is an employe within the meaning of Title VIII of the Act, if he performs services in an employment as defined in Section 811 (B).

Section 811—Excepted Services

(b) The term employment means any service of whatever nature performed within the United States by an employe for his employer, except: (1) Agricultural labor. (2) Domestic service in a private home. (3) Casual labor not in the course of the employer's trade or business. (4) Service performed by an individual who has attained the age of 65. (5) Service performed as an officer or member of the crew of a vessel documented under the laws of the United States or of any foreign country. (6) Service performed in the employ of the United States government or of an instrumentality of the United States. (7) Service performed in the employ of a state, a political sub-division thereof, or an instrumentality of one or more states or political sub-divisions. (8) Service performed in the employ of a corporation, community chest fund, or foundation, organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children, or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual. Editor's Note—(If you are in doubt as to your particular status, write to the Social Security Board, Baltimore, Maryland.)

Article IV—Who Are Employers

Every person is an employer who employs one or more individuals in an employment that is for performance within the United States of services not specifically excepted. The number of individuals employed by the employer and the period during which any such individual is so employed is immaterial. (By Editor—Part time help, whether for one day or longer, is not considered as excepted services and thereby comes under the Act.)

Article XIV—Wages

The term wages means all remuneration for employment. The medium in which the remuneration is paid is also immaterial. It may be paid in cash, or in something other than cash such as goods, lodging, food, and clothing. (Editor's Note—In case of restaurants, hotels, or any place where meals or lodging are considered part of wages, wages paid in this manner are also taxable. You will follow your state regulations on that in computing the total earned wages of employes, which are the following:

Full board and room, per week	$7.00
Meals (without lodging), per week	4.50
Meals (without lodging), per day	.75
Meals (without lodging), per meal	.25
Lodging (without meals), per week	2.50
Lodging (without meals), per day	.40

Article XVI—Items Included As Wages

(a) General—Wages paid with respect to employment during any calendar year include items paid in money and the fair value, at the time of payment, of all items other than money.

Article 204—Collection Of, and Liability For, Employes' Tax

The employer shall collect from each of his employes the employe's tax with respect to wages for employment performed for the employer by the employe. The employer shall make the collection by deducting or causing to be deducted, the amount of employe's tax from such wages as and when paid, either actually or constructively the employer is required to collect the tax notwithstanding the wages are paid in something other than money. (For example, wages paid in stock, board, lodging, etc.) and to pay the tax to the Collector in money. In collecting employe's tax the employer shall disregard any fractional part of a cent of such tax unless it amounts to one-half cent or more, in which case it shall be increased to one cent. The employer is liable for the employe's tax on all wages paid by him to each of his employes, whether or not it is collected from the employe. If, for example, the employer deducts less than the correct amount of tax, or if he fails to deduct any part of the tax, he is nevertheless liable for the correct amount of the tax. Until collected from him the employe is also liable for the employe's tax with respect to all wages received by him. Any employe's tax collected by or on behalf of an employer is a special fund in trust for the United States. The employer is indemnified against the claims and demands of any person for the amount of any payment of such tax made by the employer to the collector.

Section 1114 of Revenue Act of 1926 provides severe penalties for willful failure to collect or truthfully to account for any pay over the employe's tax. Or for a willful attempt in any manner to evade or defeat the tax. Such penalties may be incurred by any person including the employer and any officer or employe of a corporate employer, or member or employe of any other employer who as such employer, officer, employe or member, is under duty to perform the Act in respect of which the violation occurs.

Editor's Note—Question: What is the penalty if an employer does not comply with the Social Security Act?

Answer—It is assumed that the question means in what trouble will an employer find himself if he does not do as the law requires. The worst thing that can happen to him is to pay fines up to $10,000, and receive a penitentiary sentence up to five years. The very least that can happen is a series of interest additions to his tax and penalties that will soon convince him that compliance with the law is the better part of valor.

Article 206—Statements of Tax Deductions to Be Furnished to Employes

At the time each payment of wages is made to an employe, his employer shall furnish a written statement to the employe, showing the amount of employe's tax deducted from such wages. No form is prescribed for such statement. (Editor's Note—This means that the government furnishes none.) The employer may use any means suitable for the purpose which provides the employe at the time of payment with information in writing of the amount which constitutes the deduction on account of tax imposed by Section 801 of the Social Security Act, as distinguished from any other deductions.

Article 412—Record of Employers

Every employer liable for tax shall keep accurate records of all remuneration paid to his employes after December 31, 1936, for services performed for him after such date. Such records shall show with respect to each employe: (1) The name and address of the employe, and the account number assigned the employe under the Act; (2) The occupation of the employe; (3) The total amount (including any sum withheld therefrom as tax, or for any other reason) and the date of each remuneration payment, and the period of services covered by such payment; (4) The amount of such remuneration payment which constitutes wages subject to tax; (5) The amount of employa's tax withheld or collected with respect to such payment, and if collected at a time other than the time such payment was made, the date collected.

(c) Place and Period for Keeping Records

All records required by these regulations shall be kept, by the person required to keep them, at some convenient and safe location accessible to Internal Revenue Officers. Such records shall at all times be open for inspection by such officers. Records required by sub-divisions (a) and (c) of this article shall be maintained for a period of at least four years after the date the tax to which they relate becomes due, or the date the tax is paid, whichever is the latter.

Editor's Note—(Due to Articles 401 and 402, you must keep accurate records on every employe, in order that you may make your monthly tax returns and your quarterly information returns.)

Article 401—Monthly Tax Returns

Every employer shall make a monthly tax return in quadruplicate, on form SS-1 for each calendar month beginning with January, 1937.

Editor's Note — (The following forms may be had by applying to the Collector of Internal Revenue at Detroit, Michigan, asking for same.)

Article 402—Initial and Quarterly Information Returns

(a) General Requirements—Every employer is required periodically to make an information return, (1) Containing a summary of taxable wages paid to his employes and of the taxes with respect to such wages, and (2) reporting the taxable wages paid to each of his employes. The period to be covered by each such return is set forth in sub-divisions (b) and (c) of this article. Form SS-2 is prescribed for reporting the summary information and form SS-2A is prescribed for reporting the wages of individual employes. The employer shall prepare and attach to form SS-2 a separate form SS-2A for each of his employes who received taxable wages during the period covered by the return. Form SS-2 shall be filed in duplicate, but only one original copy of Form SS-2A shall be filed for each employe. Such forms together constitute an information return under this article.

(b) Initial Information Return — Every employer shall make an information return on forms SS-2 and SS-2A for the period January 1, 1937, to June 30, 1937, both dates inclusive.

(c) Quarterly Information Returns —Every employer shall make an information return on Forms SS-2 and SS-2A for the period July 1, 1937, to September 30, 1937, both dates inclusive, and for each subsequent period ending December 31, March 31, June 30, and September 30.

Editor's Note—(For the convenience of employers, it pleases the editor of this paper to inform you that it is not necessary for you to get a headache or rack your brain, or worry about the proper method of handling these reports and keeping these records as required by law. We now have on hand a supply of simplified Payroll Records that meet the requirements of the Social Security Act. These records are so simple that a 12-year-old child can keep them absolutely accurate. They give the employer his Payroll Copy and proof of transaction with the employe; they issue the employa's statement in writing, and keep your permanent record from which you make your summary of returns. We invite you to call at this office. We will gladly instruct you how to fill out the reports, how they are to be filed, etc.)

METHODS EXPLAINED HALT CABBAGE WORM

Michigan State College Expert Gives Formula for Treatment

It only takes a lowly worm to make Michigan's kingly crop of cabbage bow down, yet wise growers whether in commercial production or just trying to make a few heads burst into size in a backyard garden can take steps to cut down the cabbage maggot population and insure a crop.

Two methods are suggested. One commonly used in field production is to treat both seedbed and also treat plants at transplanting time with a corrosive sublimate solution. One ounce in eight gallons of water poured on the ground in a seedbed every seven days is suggested by C. B. Dibble, extension entomologist of Michigan State College.

PLAN TO INSPECT BOOKS OF STATE'S EMPLOYERS

Frank A. Picard, chairman of the state unemployment compensation commission has dispatched field representatives to begin an examination of books of employers who may have been making contributions on 1936 payrolls.

Picard said all employers who have been in error would be permitted to make amended returns. The field workers first will cover Wayne county and then will move through other counties throughout the state.

UNCLE SAM CLAMPS DOWN ON LIQUOR ADVS THAT PROMISE GLOWING HEALTH

Those who favor temperance education have recently received help from an unexpected source.

March 18, distillers, rectifiers, importers and wholesalers of distilled spirits received from the Federal Alcohol Administrator a sharp warning that advertisements claiming for their liquors "results beneficial to health" are forbidden by federal regulations. Future advertisements are to be carefully scrutinized and penalties imposed for violations.

While all advertisements which give misleading impressions violate the regulations, the Federal Alcohol Administrator, W. C. Alexander, in his statement before a called meeting of distillers, rectifiers and importers declared that "of all the different types of such advertisements, the kind which claims health benefits, or which implies that no harmful results will follow the consumption of liquor is by far the most objectionable."

Mr. Alexander further said: "It is the administrator's opinion that any advertisement which creates the impression that the consumption of distilled spirits will contribute to the mental or physical well being of the consumer, or that spirits can be taken in even moderate quantities without any detrimental effects is prohibited by the requirements of Article VI of Regulation No. 5."

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

Quick Auto Record Check Now Offered

In order to cooperate fully with all police officers seeking hit and run drivers, bandits, kidnapers, or criminals of any kind, Leon D. Case, secretary of state, has instituted 24 hour service during which records of this department will be available.

Complete state files of all license numbers, operators' licenses, motor and serial numbers, reports of cars stolen or abandoned, will be available to police officials and others concerned, at any hour of the day or night, as the result of the extended service. All police officials, including sheriff's officers, state police and all peace officers, will have ready an immediate emergency access to these records, by telephone from any part of the state.

Two years ago this service was available, at the request of the Michigan State Police, until 1 o'clock each morning. Results have been so satisfactory and worthwhile, that the complete "around the clock" service has been decided upon by Case.

Luke Barker Says:

Leap year comes once in ever' four years. But then thars people thet jist ain't got autobyles that keep lenpin' through ever' year.

Pokey Spriggs sez, th' Baker may kneed dough, but so does ever' buddy else need it.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT BULLETIN

Milk Must Be Clean

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, H. V. Noyes, chairman of the executive committee, made the following statement about the relations between milk producers and health officials. It is pretty good advice. Dairymen are often rightly irritated by impractical regulations which add to the cost of producing the milk without adding to its sanitary value. But most of the regulations are necessary and in the end they add to the sales value of the milk. The best way to handle the rules and regulations that are not so good is to cooperate with the health official in an effort to show him that he is wrong. Here's what Mr. Noyes said about this important subject:

"In regard to health officers, both state and city, it should be said that fundamentally a good, conscientious, high-minded health officer is of the greatest importance to the milk industry in general. Practically all milk which goes into any of our cities at the present time is as good in sanitary quality as certified milk was 15 or 20 years ago. It is through the conscientious work of health officers that this has been brought about, so that all milk going into any city markets nowadays bears the stamp of official approval and the public accepts it as to sanitary quality without question. This is a very great gain for the milk industry in general. It is also my belief that health officers as a class are high-minded, intelligent men, and perhaps freer from political control than any other class of public officials. I think it is a very great mistake for those who may be working for the interest of the Holstein milk producers to assume an antagonistic attitude toward health officers because of some local regulation which seems to be against our interest; in most cases the right sort of negotiation with such health officer will disclose that he is simply following out what he believes to be for the best interests of his citizens. Of course there are exceptions to this general rule, but I am wholly convinced that a good health officer is an important asset to the industry in general and also to the Holstein producers. In carrying on negotiations with these health officers, we should never by any possibility do so in a belligerent or hostile attitude; nothing can be accomplished in that way and it is the wrong attitude anyway. I am inclined to think that in every locality where Holstein milk is marketed it would be very good business for those who are locally concerned with that market to cultivate and establish cordial relations with the local health officer and to encourage all local Holstein men to cooperate with him in every way."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday morning service, 10:45.

Meets first Wednesday evening each month at 7:45 p. m.

Sunday school, 12 o'clock.

Reading room open Saturday, 3 to 5 p. m.

"Doctrine of Atonement" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, April 18.

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Ps. 51: 17): "The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit: a broken and contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 5): "Sorrow for wrongdoing is but one step towards reform and the very easiest step. The next and great step required by wisdom is the test of our sincerity.—namely, reformation."

MORE ROADSIDE PICNIC TABLES COMING SUMMER

State Highway Department to Enlarge Convenience for Tourists

Plans for the expansion of the roadside picnic table service along trunkline highways were announced this week by the State Highway Department.

State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner announced that more than 500 additional rustic tables are now in process of construction for use during the coming season. More than 900 of these tables were in use last summer, bringing the total to be placed along the highways this year to nearly 1,500.

MICHIGAN STATE SUMMER SCHOOL OPENS ON JUNE 21

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Bananas are a good fruit to use freely at this season when winter fruits are disappearing and spring fruits just beginning. Oranges, grapefruit, strawberries, pineapple and rhubarb are other choices.

Butter is again reasonable and eggs are slightly cheaper. Fish is abundant and prices are attractive. Forequarter cuts of beef and veal, pork and poultry continue the best buys. Fowl is a specially good value this week.

In general vegetables are more plentiful and cheaper. Lettuce is again a good value.

Here are three dinner menus planned at three different cost levels.

Low Cost Dinner

Meat Loaf Scalloped Potatoes
Sweet-sour Beets
Bread and Butter
Orange Gelatin with Bananas
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

Boiled Beef Tongue
Parsley Potatoes
Spinach Vinaigrette
Bread and Butter
Banana Shortcake
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner

Cream of Mushroom Soup
Roast Chicken Giblet Gravy
New Potatoes Braised Celery
Green Salad
Rolls and Butter
Frozen Orange Custard Wafers
Coffee

MEGGISON JERSEYS LEAD ASSOCIATION

High Milk and Butterfat Producers In Northwestern Michigan

George Meggison's herd of purebred Jerseys was high in production among the herds in the Northwestern Dairy Herd Improvement Association last month. Average production per cow in the herd was 673 pounds of milk (testing 5.73 per cent) and 38.5 pounds butterfat.

All 28 herds on test during March averaged 508 pounds of milk and 22.2 pounds of butterfat per cow. Thirteen cows in the various herds produced over 50 pounds of butterfat apiece.

Norman Thompson, association tester, reports hay supplies seem to be plentiful for this time of year, with top price of around $12 a ton for loose hay and $15 for baled alfalfa. The winter season was reported as unusual in the respect that hay prices did not advance as dairymen expected, even though grains were scarce and costly.

Since 1922 Victor Pustarfi, of Brooklyn, N. Y., has donated blood to hospital patients on 748 occasions and has gained 40 pounds.

Spirit of Service
A SERVICE that is vital to public welfare puts a special responsibility on those who supply it. Many workers recognize such an obligation. And they include the 8500 men and women behind your telephone in Michigan.
Time and again telephone employees have shown self-sacrifice in the public interest, have faced danger with courage and perseverance. The operator choosing to stay at her switchboard during fire or flood; the Plant man maintaining circuits in a heavy storm—their devotion to duty has become a tradition.
Emergencies bring them to your attention, but their spirit of service is in effect day and night, week in and week out. They know the public importance of their work. And they do it well—with skill, promptness and courtesy.
Without that spirit, Michigan would not have the kind of service it is getting today—as fine telephone service as there is available anywhere in the world.

FOR A RAINY DAY

Extravagant expenditure is n poor policy. It is a poor policy for n government, for n corporation, and for an individunl. We know that lean years follow fat years. We know that in time of pleaty we must save for years of scarcity. We know, also, that corporations have grown and provided employment by using some af their enrnings to pay for new buildings, new machinery, and new goods. We know that if these savings are effectunlly forbidden by the law the historic springs of growth and progress will be cut off.—From Collier's.

Honesty is the best policy, but a lot of people refuse to accept it as n working principle.

AT THE MOVIES

Threefold Thrill In Gay Triangle

Although the newspapers themselves have proved it time and again, Tyrone Power, Loretta Young and Don Ameche are the thrilling threesome who step out in modern streamline style to demonstrate that "Love Is News," in the Twentieth Century-Fox gay romance of that title, opening Saturday, April 17, at the Palace Theatre.

Screen Gangster Goes For A Ride

When the show must go on, an actor will take any means to get to work on time, but Douglas Fowley's face is still red from the ribbing he took on that score during the filming of "Time Out for Romance," Twentieth Century-Fox hit opening on Wednesday, April 21, nt the Palace Theatre, in which he is featured with Claire Trevor, Michael Whalen, Joan Davis and Bennie Bartlett.

WORTH TRYING

Just a little flight of the imagination.—We see governments taking the billions of dollars they planned to spend on armament and buying instead ice-boxes, radios and house paint to distribute through the land. Then, in our mental picture, we visualize a great spread of happiness along with the spread of comfort. We see men living a little better and enjoying life n little more.

But this is all fnacy, a folly of the brain, for who could convince a government that an ice-box is n safer investment than a machine gun?

PHYSICAL EDUCATION DEPARTMENT DEMONSTRATION THURSDAY

The physical education department will have a demonstration Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock in the gymnasium. The program is not an exhibition, but samples of the work that is being done with the different age groups each day.

The kindergarten will be included this year. The program will last approximately one hour and forty-five minutes, with the kindergarten demonstration first so they may be taken home if desired.

Following is the program:

Kindergarten—Free play, Brownie Rhythm; Fifth and Sixth girls — Dutch Fold Dance, game, Flying Dutchman; Second grade — Circus with rhythms; Third grade—Boys, Kick baseball, girls (I See You), (Jolly Is Miller); Fifth and Sixth boys—Game, Marching Bear, relays; First grade—Rhythms, Ducks, Airplanes, Shoemakers Folk Dance; Fourth grade — Girls, Jump Jim Crow, Center Base, Boys, Mat work: Elephant Walk, Indian Wrestle, Eskimo Roll; Seventh girls—Pirates, character dance, game; Seventh boys—Tumbling and Pyramids, Basketball.

It is hoped that as large a group of parents and others will attend as did last year.

GIRLS' MUSICAL GROUP PLAY AT ENTERTAINMENT

The Melodiers, Comprised of Five Local Girls, Are Highly Praised

The Melodiers, an ensemble organized by a group of girls in this city, helped provide the music for the home talent play which was presented at Ironton Grange hall Monday evening and at Walloon Lake community hall Friday evening.

They will also assist with the music when the play is given at the Barnard Methodist church, April 12, and the Bay Shore church, April 15.

The Melodiers, who have appeared on programs of various Charlevoix clubs include: Evelyn Alexander, first violin; Estella Livingston, second violin; Margaret Lamb, first clarinet; Phyllis VanAllsburg, second clarinet; and Murielle VanAllsburg, pianist.

ANNUAL DICKENS CLUB PARTY DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR TUESDAY EVENING

The early part of last October, the Charles Dickens Club sailed forth on a mythical cruise which carried the members to the Hawaiian Islands, Mexico, Alaska, and interesting parts of Canada.

While aboard ship, the party was entertained with some interesting book reviews, highlights were given of some of our national parks and forests, two very interesting Dickens plays were given by various members, in costume, as well as studies of the American Indian and the Negro. The party returned to shore and spent two very happy afternoons with the Shakespeare Study Club in the study and appreciation of music.

In order to bring this mythical cruise to a happy close, the club members chartered the "Isabel-Fielding," the palatial yacht of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Sloan, and Monday evening, April 12, sailed forth on a calm sea, with their husbands and one friend as their guests.

A most elaborate banquet was served in the "Mess Hall," by the daughters of the club members. The tables were decorated with bouquets of pussy-willows and palm like grasses, typical of the countries studied. Interspersed among these and shedding their soft glow, were many varicolored "Bokay-Tapers." At strategic points along the banquet tables were lovely sailing vessels anchored calmly on reflecting blue mirrors. Places were marked with a combined place card and nut cup, perfect replicas of the one time, much loved, three masted schooners.

At the close of the sumptuous banquet, the searchlight was thrown on the upper deck where all repaired to be well entertained for quite some time by the "deck hands and gobs."

After the deck had been cleared, eight rollicking sailors appeared, dancing the sailors' hornpipe and singing the opening chorus from H. M. S. Pinafore by Gilbert and Sullivan. It was very difficult for those on board to recognize those "tars" with their eye-patches, whiskers and toothless smiles, but a close examination showed them to be: Don Campbell, Galo Hinds, Charles Emrey, Clarence Wood, Archie Livingston, Henry Partridge, Harley Ochs and Clair Webster.

They were hailed by a charming little lady, named Buttercup, who sold them her wares when she heard they had just received their pay. Mrs. Archie Livingston, taking this part, in her usual pleasing manner, sang Buttercup's solo to the sailors, also from Pinafore.

We were then shown the front porch of the Widow Ducket's home. There, sitting, smoking their pipes, were four elderly mariners, each trying to impress Mrs. Ducket and her companion, Dorcas Networthy, with their, shall we say "questionable" "true" stories. The widow put them all to shame with her tall tale and they left abruptly very much chagrined. The widow's part was very cleverly enacted by Mrs. Ray Faulkner, and Dorcas was capably performed by Mrs. Floyd Fessenden. The captains were Henry Partridge, Clarence Wood, Don Campbell and Clair Webster.

The eight jolly sailors appeared "on board" again singing "Sailing." In their mad capers on deck, one mate fell overboard but a life line was thrown to him and he was quickly hauled in. Various methods of resuscitation were used, some of which we are sure have never been heard of before. The sailor, being properly revived, came up smiling and was able to join in singing the closing song, "Anchors Aweigh," with the rest of those swashbuckling, boisterous seamen.

Thus ended a most enjoyable cruise and a very pleasant year of study together with our Captain "Enid" at the helm.—Contributed.

SENIOR CLASS PLAY ON FRIOAY EVENING

PRESENT "IT WON'T BE LONG NOW" AT GYM

Esther Lou Fochtman and Harold Chew Play Leading Roles, Heading the Cast of Sixteen

Following a custom of many years, the senior class of Charlevoix High school will present the play, "It Won't Be Long Now," at the school gymnasium Friday evening, April 23, at 8 o'clock.

Harold Chew will portray the leading role of Robert Preston, a young, aggressive business man, whose sole ambition in life is to make more money and achieve great success, until Esther Lou Fochtman, in the supporting role of Ann Winston, devises a fantastic scheme to prove to Robert that it isn't money that counts in life, but the service one can do for others. The play is definitely meant to be amusing, but yet has enough of a plot to keep the audience guessing as to the possible outcome.

Other leading characters are the lisping Vivian Darrell (the little hair fixther) played by Alice Meyer; Charles Dobsnn, a cheap political grafter, taken by Leslie Shapton, and Dr. Talley, physician and close friend of Robert Preston, played by Jim Hiller.

Following is the complete cast of characters: William Meek, a clerk, Ormiston Bergeon; Beansy Blake, an office boy, Frederick Ager; Thomas, a hutler, Edward Radle; Robert Preston, a successful young business man, Harold Chew; Miss Wilkes, his stenographer, Mildred Withers; Charles Dobson, a political ward healer, Leslie Shupton; Dr. Walter Talley, a physician of 45, Jim Hiller; Ann Winston, an attractive girl of 20, Esther Lou Fochtman; Vivian Darrell, a flapper who lisps, Alice Meyer; Rev. Dr. Loring, of the playground center, Edward Hansen; A Policeman, Irish of course, Robert Neff; Frank Cullen, of the People's Party, Emil Olach; Olga, a Swedish cook, Alice Ecklund; Frances, a maid, Frances Withers; two photographers, Louis Orlowski and Robert Livingston.

Two special entertainment features have been arranged, a specialty tap dance by Bette Ross, and music by the high school band.

Miss Helen Anthony is directing the play, nssisted by Marjorie Miller. Ralph Shapton is stage electrician, and stage settings are in charge of Louis Orlowski and Edward Radle. Miss Marjorie Falting is acting as prompter. The advertising committee consists of Billie Smith, Marguerite Young, Anna Higman, Franklin Ochs and Jim Shaw, and the ticket committee is composed of Lucella Cunningham, June Kibbe, Marjorie Falting and Robert Neff.

WORK PROGRESSING ON BIG BULK PLANT

EXPECT TO COMPLETE WORK BY 30TH OF JUNE

Warehouse Now Under Construction, Start Erection of Large Storage Tank This Week

Rapid progress is being made by the Charlevoix Terminal Co. on the construction of their huge D-X bulk plant.

A crew of 16 men, three teams and trucks are working under the supervision of R. L. Cornell, of Grand Rapids, who, together with Joseph Leddy and R. M. Hill, are owners of the new business locating here.

A combination office building and warehouse 36x60 feet is under construction. The conduit for pipe line from docks to the huge storage tank has been installed under Ferry avenue and the Pere Marquette tracks.

Four carloads of steel weighing 95 tons, a part of the 135 tons of steel which will go into the huge 1,600,000 gallon storage tank, has been unloaded, and it is expected the Chicago Bridge & Iron Co., who have the contract for erection of the bulk tank, will have a crew here Wednesday to start construction. Grading for the tank has been completed and a dike which surrounds it and is designed to hold the capacity of the tank in case of leakage, is now being built.

Work on a loading dock on Lake Charlevoix will be started within a very short time.

The Charlevoix Terminal Co. has the distribution of D-X gasoline and petroleum products, furnished by the Mid-Continent Petroleum Co., of Tulsa, Okla., which covers 19 states and is the largest independent refinery in the country, in the territory north of M-55, a seetion of Michigan north of a line between Mnuistee and Tawas City. A service station, to be known as the Charlevoix Terminal Co. station, is to be built soon at Cadillac, and other outlets will follow in the territory.

Completion of work is expected by June 30.

Citizens' Delegation Oppose Standard Oil Company Move

Expressions of Opinion on Proposal and Question of Further Parking Is Sought

Sentiment in opposition to a reported move by the Standard Oil Company to acquire property for the supposed purpose of building a service station on the east side of Bridge street in the block between Mason and Antrim streets crystallized at a meeting of a delegation of eitizens with the city council Monday night.

A group of around 40 persons, both men and women, and representing such civie organizations as the Kiwanis Club, Board of Commerce, Shakespeare and Charles Dickens Clubs, expressed their adverse opinions in no uncertain manner. Indlvidually nnd collectively they urged the mayor and councilmen not to grant a permit for such a proposal, and implored they take steps to continue, to the extent of their means, the parking of Round Lake frontage on the east side of Bridge street.

The delegation was informed hy Mayor Arthur Bergeon and by the council as a body, that the Standard Oil Company had not applied for a building permit. Mayor Bergeon also promised that this particular delegation, or any other citizens, would he given a chance to be heard in event the council is requested to grant a permit.

Several communications read before the council and delegation, reveal that the spirit of alarm is not confined wholly with local citizens, but has spread to our summer residents. Letters tersely in opposition to the Standard Oil Company move from such prominent summer residents as J. P. Wilson, John Stuart and William M. Mcllvaine, members, and the latter president of the Chieago Club, as well as from Harry Lesser, St. Louis, Mo., and Frederic Feiehheimer, Chicago, were read and, as an indication of the tone of these communications, we quote the following from Mr. Mcllvaine:

"On behalf of the Chicago Club at Charlevoix and its members, I strongly protest the issuance of a building permit to the Standard Oil Company for an oil station adjacent to the new lake front park on Round Lake.

"Wo are all heartily in sympathy with the action of the city in its efforts to secure this property for park purposes. It seems to us that the aetion of the Standard Oil Company in seeking to erect a filling station on this property is short-sighted and against the best interests of the city and of the people interested in its progress."

The following eommunication in the form of u telegram from J. P. Wilson, was also read:

"I have just learned that the Standard Oil Company is planning to put un oil station next to the city park on Round Lake. I sincerely hope that a license will not be issued for any such purpose as the Chicago Club will consider that very detrimental to Charlevoix and to the Club's best interests."

It is an important fact that the Chicago Club as a whole, is the second largest taxpayer on the city tax rolls.

Having stated the facts as pertaining to Monday night's council meeting, we will continue to explain that the purpose of this article is to feel out public opinion generally in regard to two matters, viz.; "Are the citizens of Charlevoix, both local and summer residents, in favor of oil stations being constructed on Bridge street?"; "Do they favor n continuance of the present parking plan to

OFFICIAL COUNT OF ELECTION REVEALED

SIX DEMOCRATS, THREE REPUBLICANS ELECTED

Exceptionally Close Contests Uncovered as Tabulations Confirm Results of Unofficial Reports

Official tabulations confirmed Monday the results shown by unofficial returns from the closely contested April election.

Democrats won six of the nine offices at stake and Republicans three. In some instances the margins were narrow. Walter I. McKenzie, Democrat, was defeated by Justice Walter North, Republican, for one of the places on the supreme bench by slightly more than 2,200 votes. Similar small leads were held by Democratic winners for the state board of agriculture.

Eugene B. Elliott, Republican state superintendent of public instruction, won over Arthur E. Erickson, Democrat, by slightly less than 7,000 votes.

The officinl vote was:

Justices of the supreme court — McAllister (D) 398,587, North (R) 394,439, McKenzie (D) 392,274, Fead (R) 391,355.

State highway commissioner—Van Wagoner (D) 448,886, Ziegler (R) 355,707.

Superintendent of pnblic instruction—Elliott (R) 395,278, Erickson (D) 388,518.

Regents of the university—Shields (D) 396,242, Lynch (D) 391,222, Murfin (R) 379,976, Smith (R) 381,588.

State board of education—Cody (R) 404,784, Novak (D) 386,224.

State board of agriculture—Jakway (D) 384,743, Masselink (D) 384,302, Daane (R) 382,432, Wilson (R) 379,631.

DEAN DAVENPORT RE-APPOINTED COMMISSIONER

Heads Softball Assnciation Work in Northern Michigan District

At a recent meeting of the Michigan Softball Association at Lansing, Dean Davenport, of Charlevoix, was re-appointed commissioner of District 15, with Floyd Rose, of Petoskey, as assistant district commissioner.

The nssociation has launched a program to bring all sofeball teams in the state into the organization. Commissioners will be appointed for every county, working under the supervision of the district commissioners.

Mr. Davenport is engaged in organizing his district and expects to announce appointments and other information regarding schedules, etc., in a short time.

FIRST QUARTER WEIGHT TAX FIGURES ANNOUNCED

First qunrter weight tax returns to Michigan counties, announced last Friday, revealed that Charlevoix county's share would be $20,012.

The returns will be $900,000 less than for the same period last yenr, according to Deputy Higwhay Commissioner Harry C. Coons.

CAMP CHARLEVOIX ENROLLMENT HITS RECORD

Over 100 Boys and 40 Adults Are Coming to Camp This Summer

Plans ure under way for the best season in history at Camp Charlevoix, according to a communication received from Lewis C. Reimann, director.

Mr. Reimann states that 110 boys und 40 adults will be brought to Cump Charlevoix this summer, the largest attendance since the camp wus established. The enrollment compares well with the patronage of many of the larger summer hotels, and will result in bringing many parents of means to Charlevoix. Forty of the campers come from Grosse Pointe alone.

Mr. Reimann stated that, on a recent visit here, work was started on four new buildings and numerous other imprnvements at the camp.

Charlevoix citizens can he highly pleased with the above information, for it may be taken as an indication of the trend of tourist business for the 1937 season.

FISHERMEN AWAIT '37 TROUT SEASON

OPENING SATURDAY EARLIEST IN MANY YEARS

Barring Heavy Rains During Balance of Week, Opening Day Conditions Will Be Favorable

With an anxious eye scanning weather conditions for the week-end, Charlevoix and Michigan anglers generally are looking forward to the opening of the 1937 trout season nn Saturday, April 24.

Incidentally, the opening Saturday is the earliest in a good many years, and the 1937 season, which doesn't close until Labor Day, September 6, will be the longest enjoyed by Michigan anglers since the days of more lenient restrictions.

While accurate estimates are unavailable, conservation officials expected approximately 50,000 sportsmen will try their luck on the opening day. This figure is based upon the fact that 80,000 special trout licenses were sold four years ago, und it is estimated two-thirds of the purchasers fished the opening day.

Fishing conditions in the Lower Peninsula should le good. The early spring break-up has practically erased all traces of snow, even in the denser swamps, and lack of rain has allowed rivers and streams to approaeh mid-summer levels. The Jordan and Boyne rivers appear to be unusually clenr for so early in the season, and a similar condition exists on most of the smaller streams.

Barring heavy rains during the balance of the week, anglers should be able to fish under as good conditions as if the season opened on the usual May 1.

MANITOU SHOALS LIGHTHOUSE IS IN OPERATION

The Manitou Shoals lighthouse is now in operation at Leland, with Capt. John Renihan in charge. The channel between the shoals and the mainland has been cleared of ice, opening the shipping lane for the first time since the 1936 season.

DUAL FIELO MEET HERE ON SATURDAY

EVENT FIRST OF KIND HERE IN MANY YEARS

Charlevoix and Mancelona Thin-Clads to Compete in the Opening Track Eveot of Conference Season

Marking the first track event held in Charlevoix in a good many years, a dual meet between Charlevoix and Mancelona High school thin-clads will be held here Friday afternoon.

The eompetition will open the conferenee track season for both schools and will provide a tuning-up for athletes of both in preparation for a schedule of at least five other meets at future dates.

Stewart Coleman, track eoach, has announced the following list of events on the program, which will start at 3:45 Friday afternoon: 120-yard high hurdles, shot put, 100-yard dash, high jump, mile run, pole vault, 440-yard dash, 200-yard low hurdles, 220-yard dash, 880-yard dash, broad jump, 880-yard relay race. Coach Ray L. Kipke will act as starter, Gordon B. Todd and Robert Miles as field judges and timers.

Charlevoix's track candidates, numhering around 30, will divide for competition in each event. In the dashes there will be R. Livingston, G. Light, W. Eccleston, R. Edwards, R. Nowland and H. Chew; hurdles—I. Driggett, D. Gallagher, Goss, H. Withers, E. Bronersky and C. Richardson; mile—E. Radle, E. Cregory, E. Hansen, E. Stinson, B. Hull, R. Struthers and W. Duplessis; high jump—R. Bergmann, D. Gallagher, R. Goss, H. Bedford; 880-yard dash—B. Palmer, C. Gleason, C. Olach, Robert Bergmann, D. Richardson and R. Shapton; 440-yard dash—L. Shapton, J. Hiller and H. Miller; shot put—T. Carey, E. Radle, B. Pearl and E. Gregory; pole vault—B. Livingston, W. Schwab, W. Eccleston and H. Bedford; broad jump—L. Shapton, R. Livingston and E. Radle; relay—Livingston, Miller, Hiller and Shapton.

The meet will be held at the new south side athletic field which, while not in the best shape, is being put into first class condition as rapidly as possible.

TITUS NEW MEMBER CONSERVATION COMMISSION

Traverse City Author, Iron Mountain Man Are Appointed

Gov. Frank Murphy has appointed Harold H. Titus, Traverse City author and conservationist, and Tom Masterson, Iron Mountain editor, to the State Conservation Commission.

The governor's action in filling two of the three appointments possible on the commission increased speculation as to whether he would reappoint Harry H. Whitely, Dowagine editor and veteran commissioner. Whitely's term expired April 1, but the governor said he would continue in office until a suceessor is named.

Titus, a college chum of Murphy, succeeds Philip K. Fletcher, Alpena. Masterson succeeds M. J. Fox, also of Iron Mountnin.

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Despite the recent freak blizzard, spring fever is in the nir and Michigan legislators are getting restless. Adjournment of the present session is scheduled from Mny 14 to June 1.

There is much work to be done, and it seems inevitable that the publicized "speed-up" of the automobile industry will hnve to be applied soon to Lansing's lnw-mnking nssembly.

The 800 proposed laws include eivil service, lnbor relations, tax revision, general appropriations to state institutions, liquor lnw changes, and a flock of state nid measures to benefit schools, librnries, junior colleges, township roads, and so on.

Long sessions are ln sight.

Educational Aid

Generous state aid for Michigan's public schools is sought by the Michigan Education Assoeintion, sponsoring bills to increase the present annunl grant from $38,000,000 ta $45,000,000.

An inkling to the attitude of the House of Representatives was given recently by Rep. M. Clyde Stout (D), of Ionia, chairman of the ways and means committee. Stout declared that the stute lacked funds to provlde $7,000,000 more for schools, while nlso providing needed facilities for state hospitals and other depression-neglected institutions.

Minimum Wages

Governor Murphy's "Little New Deal" for Michigan has experienced rough riding. First it ran into a blockade of sit-down strikes in automobile factories. Peaceful settlements ended costly warfare in which labor obtained a moral victory of union recognition to bargain collectively for members of the union — exactly what Knudson and Chrysler had said they were willing to do nt the beginning.

With the strikes out of the way, Murphy wns just getting his breath when the United States supreme court upheld the right of a state government to fix minimum wages, max-

CORRESPONDENCE

James Ferris is building a new garage at his farm home.

The maple syrup season closed in this locality last week, with fairly good results.

Mrs. Bernie Ward and children, of Charlevoix, visited Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Baumbach, Sunday.

It will only be a short time for the anxious anglers to wait for trout fishing, perhaps in some favorite stream.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Ashdon and son, Charles, and Miss Jennie Block, of Charlevoix, spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Dice.

David Carmen, of Grand Rapids, is visiting his uncle, Frank Carmen, at Norwood. Mr. Carmen is the son of Martin Carmen, of Republic.

Mr. and Mrs. William Sipple and son, Billie, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Plenny Genett. Mrs. Sipple is a niece of Mrs. Genett.

Mr. McKay, who is employed at carpenter work in Flint, spent the week-end at home, with his wife, returning to Flint Sunday evening.

Mrs. Waldruff, who spent the winter at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edd Zook, is now at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Rollie Baumbach.

Mrs. Eva Pearl, of Grand Rapids, who is visiting relatives in Charlevoix, is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Alward, for a few days this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Smith, of Charlevoix, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Waite, accompanied by a couple of friends from Midland, were Norwood callers Saturday afternoon.

BARNARD

Don't miss the Bay Shore play on Thursday night, same time, same station.

Miss Margaret Boss, who is employed in Birmingham, spent Sunday at home.

Alfred Berg and son, well men, of Bellaire, put up a windmill for Carlton Smith on Monday.

Joe Stutzman came home from Detroit last Thursday on account of the death of his grandfather in Boyne City. He returned on Sunday.

George Dougherty attended an important meeting of the insurance company in Cadillac last week. He reports the company in a good condition financinlly.

We are glad to know that the side roads are becoming passable again after a long period of mud. We hope to see some gravel on them before the fnll rainy season.

The community extends sympathy to Guy Stutzman and family, in the death of his father at Boyne City last Wednesday. Several of the neighbors attended the funeral on Friday.

The Boss families were saddened by the death of their brother-in-law, Walter DeGroot, in Atwood, after a long illness. The bereaved family have the sympathy of all Barnard friends.

This week is an important one in club activities. Tuesday was the 4-H Club Achievement Day. Wednesday the Home Economics leaders went to Boyne City for their training meeting, and Thursday the local group will meet with Mrs. Will Ager for an afternoon meeting.

EVELINE

Mabel Clark worked for Mrs. Cooper, Saturday.

Russell Thomas' sister is visiting at the Thomas home.

Douglas Knudsen has gone on the lakes again for the summer.

Ralph Price took Karl Knudsen to Ann Arbor last week, to the state hospital.

Mrs. Roberts, from East Jordan, was helping Mrs. Spidle clean house the past week.

Mr. Ogden, our school teacher, is sick and there was no school last Thursday or Friday.

Mrs. Velma Spidle was here from Detroit for a couple of days. Her daughter, Joan, returned to Detroit with her.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Clark have purchased a house from Mr. Isman in East Jordan, on the west side, and are moving this week.

The Helping Hand Club had a good time at the last meeting with Mrs. W. Clark. The next meeting is in East Jordan, with Mrs. Thomas Wetsel, on April 28. We will celebrate Mrs. Courier's and Mrs. Harnden's birthday anniversaries, also that of John Nasson on that day. Mrs. Joe Clark and Mrs. Fred Alm were visitors.

DEADLINE PASSES WITH NO RECOUNTS REQUESTED

Final Vote in Spring Election Awaiting State Canvass

The statutory deadline passed Friday without the filing of recount petitions as the result of the closest biennial spring election in many years.

Official returns from seven of Michigan's 83 counties were still missing at the Department of State and delayed the official state canvass of votes which must be completed within 40 days after the April 5 election.

According to law, the board of canvassers must meet within 20 days after the election.

The deadline for filing recount petitions, 10 days after the election, elapsed at 5 p. m. Thursday.

A possibility of recounts in the closely-contested four-man race for two justices of the state supreme court had been considered.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

All cuts of veal are a good value this week while other meats, with the exception of fresh pork shoulders and hams, are on the expensive list. Poultry is still moderate in price and fish should be very reasonable.

Butter, after its flurry up and down is back to its average level. Eggs at wholesale have been slightly cheaper but not enough to reduce retails.

Asparagus and lettuce are the most attractively priced green vegetables. Green beans are again high. Garden rhubarb is gradually replacing the hothouse variety. Other fruits and vegetables are about as they have been.

Here are three dinner menus planned to fit different needs and pocketbooks.

Low Cost Dinner
Boiled Smoked Picnic
Mashed Potatoes New Cabbage
Bread and Butter
Coffee Gelatin Soft Custard
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Braised Rump of Veal
New Potatoes Stewed Tomatoes
Lettuce Salad
Bread and Butter
Strawberry Cream Pie
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday morning service, 10:45.

Meets first Wednesday evening each month at 7:45 p. m.

Sunday school, 12 o'clock.

Reading room open Saturday, 3 to 5 p. m.

We cordially invite the public to our service and reading room.

"Probation After Death" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, April 25.

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Ps. 18:32): "It is God that girdeth me with strength, and maketh my way perfect."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 290): "To be wholly spiritual, man must be sinless, and he becomes thus only when he reaches perfection."

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

Bulk of Drivers' Licenses to Expire

On the heels of his recent announcement of a drive by police of Michigan against unlicensed operators of motor vehicles, Leon D. Case, secretary of state, points out that nearly 700,000 such licenses will expire during the next nine months. The exact figure is 688,434.

Licenses cost $1 and are good for three years. They are issued as provided in the Uniform Operators' and Chauffeurs' act of 1931, the result being that every third year following that date, the bulk of operators' licenses expire.

Secretary Case points out that a driver whose license has expired, is no different, in the eyes of the law, than one who never had a license at all, and that the only way to make certain of an operator's license, is for everyone to check his own expiration date at once. It is printed on every license.

All applications for operators' licenses must be approved by the chief of police if the applicant lives in a city or village having a chief of police, or by the sheriff, if the applicant lives elsewhere.

An old proverb says it is too late to throw water on the cinders when the house has burned down.

CHAPTER VI

"They might."

"They shan't! I'll have her lie," Gail said fiercely. "Dick, don't you see that with every one here—every one in Clippersville—she'll be ruined! They'll think she's the sort of girl who runs around to hotels with boys," Gail began, in an agony.

"If the case against Miller is strong enough they may dismiss the charge against Ariel," Dick pursued after a moment. "Shall we—" he moved his head toward the building—"shall we go in?"

"Just a moment!" Gail had caught at his hands. "Are you sure we can't save her—can't say that Buddy was driving?" she stammered, delaying him.

"Not that way. But if they send for an assistant district attorney from San Jose—if they do," Dick said, "I know them all down there, and I'll do what I can to keep the questions down. But you see, Gail, the trouble is in getting into a mess like this," he offered tolerantly.

"Oh, I know, I know!" She beat her palms together. "Oh, what a fool a girl is!" she whispered frantically. "What possessed her, Dick?"

"Oh, I don't know." He was silent, and they stood without speaking for a moment, in the dark outside the courthouse. "She wanted a good time," he said. "She's—of course, she's beautiful. Well, come on." He touched her arm. "Let's go in."

She imagined Ariel, bareheaded frightened, shaken, descending these same steps, in dusty afternoon heat, and shuddered as she followed him.

There were bare, dangling lights, a man at a flat-topped desk, benches fences, gates, men in uniforms coming and going, murmurs.

"Hello, Tex. Hello, Joe. Good evening, Sergeant!" Dick said. He glanced at Gail. "This is Miss Lawrence's sister," he added.

"Sorry to have your sister mixed into this, Miss Lawrence."

"Oh, it's terrible!" Gail said in a trembling voice.

"Hear that the little girl died?" the sergeant asked Dick.

"Yes, we heard that. Very sad. Terrible for them?"

"The young lady had no license," Walsh said, glancing up from his papers at Gail. "It's an awful thing, you know, if a man can't take his wife and child out for a run," shaking his head, mumbling his words.

"Your Little Sister, Hey?"

But he was kinder, and she knew it.

"Your little sister, hey?" he presently asked.

Her little sister, yes, she answered, suddenly shaken by tears. She went away, and sat on a desolate bench, and Dick talked to the sergeant. The atmosphere of the dreadful place oppressed Gail like a pall, and she had to keep telling herself that this ordeal, like every other, would soon be over.

She started as Dick sat down beside her.

"Made a hit with the sergeant," he murmured; "he's been very decent!"

Gail went back to the desk, and smiled with blue eyes filled with tears.

"Thank you so much, Sergeant Walsh."

"Now, you have your sister here at ten o'clock day after tomorrow, see?" the man said. "It's too bad to have a little girl mixed into a thing like this!"

"Oh, I know it." Gail murmured thickly, heartsick. He was probably thinking that his little girl never would run about Sunday roads with intoxicated boys, she reflected bitterly.

Dick took her away through the nail-studded doors and the smelly hall.

"Dick, what kind of a fool is a girl," Gail began passionately—"what kind of a fool is a girl to let herself in for this sort of thing?"

"Well, that's what you wonder!" he said mildly.

"I don't know what we would have done without you," she said, wondering.

"I haven't done anything," Dick answered promptly.

Gail went on with her musing, not so much about Ariel now as about Dick. He seemed a very rock of strength tonight; she felt a passionate regret for all the times she had thought slightingly of him, treated him carelessly. Buddy Raisch, Larry Burchi, and Dorothy Camp had all failed Ariel. But big, homely, awkward, loyal Dick had not, and never would fail, any of the Lawrences. Gail felt puzzled, somehow.

She was even aware of a little self-consciousness with him tonight for the first time in her life. It was as if she had never seen him before. When they went back into the old kitchen, and he half sat and half leaned against the table in his usual way, she found herself studying him—fascinated by his ease, and his quick, emphatic use of words, and his adequacy in this crisis. Whenever he called her "Gail"—and he had called her by her name all her life—she felt an emotion of pleasure.

"Walsh will do all he can; I don't think we need worry," Dick said. "Burchi and the Raisch boy were both gone—out on bail—when we got there, but they say there's no question they both had been drinking. It was natural enough for them to think Ariel had been drinking, too. I think I got it over that she hadn't been."

"What's the worst that can happen to Ariel, Dick?"

This was Edith from the arm of Phil's chair, where she sat leaning against him.

"What I think'll happen," Dick said, reflecting, "is that the charge against Ariel will be dismissed, and that she'll be retained as a witness. But there may be damages—from Moss."

"Oh, dear!" Gail wailed. She looked at Phil. "Another mortgage, just as we were clear!" she said philosophically.

"No, I wouldn't mortgage the place again," Phil said deliberately. "I'd borrow on my insurance policy this time."

"Phil, are you insured?" asked both sisters, surprised and impressed.

"I took out some a little while ago." His colorless skin, as clear as a girl's, flushed suddenly. He looked at Dick and laughed a little uncomfortably.

Dick gave Gail a look full of significance and understanding.

"Phil's insured himself because he wants to marry Lily!" Edith said to Gail when they were alone, later.

"I know it."

"This," Edith said solemnly, "is real trouble, Gail."

"I know it," Gail agreed again.

"We thought we knew what trouble was before."

"I know."

They looked gravely at each other.

"I can't believe that I went off to Los Gatos only yesterday, never dreaming of any of this!"

"I suppose we go to work just as usual tomorrow?"

"Well, I'll have to," Gail said.

Lying in bed, she went over the whole bewildering panorama. The incredible had happened: this was real trouble. This was disgrace.

But she could not quite forget a new note, a new thread of friendship and happiness that had somehow come of it all. Dick's sternly concerned face as he first listened to Ariel's story, the authority with which he had assumed command of the situation, and his manner in the police station—definite, unfrightened, and friendly—all these seemed to create a new Dick, or rather to put an unknown person in Dick Stebbins' place. Protecting—self-reliant—devoted to the Lawrences.

Van would be tremendously concerned, too, of course. Van, who might have saved Ariel all this if he had acted quickly enough last night over at Monterey. If he had realized. . . .

But then, why should he? Had any of them realized the deadly danger into which Ariel was drifting? If her family's influence could not keep her at home, why should that of a man she hardly knew bring her back there?

"Except, of course," ran Gail's reasoning thoughts, "except, of course, that we never dreamed she would be over there alone with Dorothy and the boys, and he knew that she was."

A spasm of sheer pity for Ariel stirred Gail. Poor little Ariel, hot and tired and frightened, trying to drive a car through the Sunday traffic with a couple of heavy, half-intoxicated boys for her only companions. It was horrible.

Gail brought her eyes resolutely to her book. But instead of the printed lines there rose before her inner vision the picture of a hard, lean, serious young man leaning over a police sergeant's desk. Dick Stebbins was in the kitchen again, awkward, earnest, adequate. She was in the courtroom with Dick Stebbins.

She closed her book, put out the light. Soon she was floating, drifting, sinking, and rising on a sea of dreams.

CHAPTER VII

The big courtroom was very hot. Gail could hardly believe that this tense, dark, dirty place of fear and shame had been in existence yesterday and last year, and would be going on through all the years with the happy, marketing world so near and uncaring.

Phil and Edith were with her; the fifth Lawrence, white and frightened, and looking less than her seventeen years, was hushie the fence. Dick was with Ariel. Sometimes they whispered together; often she looked at her brothers and sisters.

Dick and Ariel talked to the judge, who looked from face to face seriously, biting his lips as he listened. Gail prayed wildly. Then Ariel and Dick came down and joined the others.

"The case against Ariel is dismissed," Dick said in a whisper. "So far so good! Miller was drunk," he explained, his words barely audible, barely formed with his lips. "He's been arrested before. Ariel's fined fifteen dollars for driving without a license."

"You mean they're not going to try her for anything, Dick?"

"The case is dismissed."

They couldn't believe it. Their eyes moved solemnly toward each other.

"We can't—Ariel and all—we can't go, Dick?"

"Sure you can."

Five minutes later the Lawrences, scared and white, but beginning to breathe again, were out in the street. Ariel's ordeal was over.

Dick brought the verdict to Gail late that afternoon.

"The jury wasn't out fifteen minutes. Guilty. They say Miller'll get five years."

"Dick, is that the end of it?"

"The end!"

"Oh, my G—d, I am grateful!" Gail whispered, tears in her eyes.

Phil went up to tell Edith. And Van Murchison took Ariel out for a drive. "He's going to have her home well before six," Dick reported.

"Could you dine with us, Dick?"

"Not tonight. I'm going over to Stanislaus, to see Mother. Gee," Dick added youthfully, after thought, "I wish you could get Ariel to stop running with that bunch of rotters!"

"Oh, she's cured now," Gail predicted. "When it's too late," she added sadly. "Well, we've been fools."

"I don't see that you've been a fool," Dick protested, surprised. Gail laughed, a little fluttered, looked down as she stamped a book, looked up.

She looked straight into his face, noted the line of jaw, the wide-apart, wide-open gray eyes. Her eyes fell to the big hand on the desk, with his old cap in the fingers. The shabby old library in the faded last heat of an autumn day seemed to lift and quiver with light.

"Dick, how are we ever going to thank you?"

"Oh, cut it!"

"And you know," she said, leaning toward him, looking at him with her heavy brows anxiously knitted—"you know what a child she is, Dick? That there is nothing wrong about Ariel—just mischief, and wanting to have a good time! You don't think people will remember this against her, Dick?"

"Oh, I suppose the old tabbies will whisper about it, for awhile."

"She'll just have to live it down," Gail said, wondering if her words had any meaning.

"Oh, sure."

He still lingered. Their heads were close together. Gail wondered what he would do, what the dull, browsing occupants of the library would do, if she suddenly kissed him on the temple.

He looked up, with his kindly grin.

The waters of the great sea were drawing her—drawing her away from solid ground. Gail was deeply, subconsciously aware of a fear that she would betray herself.

"Suppose," she thought, smiling her mysterious smile at him, "he suddenly leaned across here, and caught at my hands, and said, 'I love you!'"

"What's the matter?" Dick asked.

"Nothing. I just felt—a little—giddy. Reaction, I suppose."

For twenty minutes after he went away she knew neither where she was, nor what she was doing or saying.

Then she went up to Muller's and joined Edith, and they walked home together, happy, exhausted, grateful, Gail hugging her amazing, strange new secret to her heart as if it were a living thing.

Ariel came in a few minutes after dinner preparations were under way, and both older sisters glanced at her fearfully. She was quieter than usual, but she looked lovely, her face flushed, her hair flyaway gold under her white hat.

"Did you have a nice drive, darling?"

"Oh, heavenly!" Ariel said, with a weary sigh and a sober face.

"Couldn't bring Van back to supper?"

"Didn't think to ask him."

"Do you like him?" Gail asked encouragingly.

"Oh, he's darling," Ariel said listlessly. "Not that it makes any difference," she added bitterly.

"Ah, don't say that, dear!" Both sisters dreaded this mood, when she would be resentful and dark for awhile, and end up with hysterical laughter, hysterical tears, and physical collapse.

"Well, why should it matter, in this jay place! You don't suppose Van'll stay here one minute longer than he has to, do you?" Ariel demanded angrily. "I'm sick of it! Sick of it!" she said, in a sullen undertone.

Sam came in and lighted the gas above their heads; dusk had deepened almost into darkness.

"Sam, you're an angel!" Edith said gratefully.

Always on the Job

STREETS are deserted. Homes are dark. Night has wrapped the community in slumber.

In one building, however, a light is still shining. It shines on steadily through the hours of darkness until, at last, the dawn heralds the stir of another day. . . .

That light sums up the eternal vigilance of the telephone. It is truly a beacon of public service, one that stands ready to serve any one, anywhere, any time. And always with the same promptness and skill and courtesy.

All that modern telephone service can mean — all its protection and convenience and comfort — is yours to command twenty-four hours a day.

It takes no holidays. It is, in an old familiar phrase, "always on the job."

"Seventh Heaven"

Four huge sets, realistic to the last degree, re-create vividly the Paris of "Seventh Heaven," which opens Saturday, April 24, at the Palace Theatre. Simone Simon, sensational French screen find, and James Stewart are starred in the Twentieth Century-Fox version of Austin Strong's famed love story.

A complete section of the Montmartre district of Paris was constructed on the studio lot for street and outdoor action scenes.

H. G. Wells' First Screen Comedy Due

"The Man Who Could Work Miracles," H. G. Wells' first screen comedy, which comes to the Palace Theatre for two days next Wednesday and Thursday, April 28-29, stars Roland Young in the title role as a mouselike little clerk who suddenly acquires the power to work miracles.

Guy Kibbee, Alice Brady Hilarious New Comedy Team

Small-town America and the "savoir faire" of Paris mingle in comical conflict in "Mama Steps Out," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's satire on wealthy tourists abroad which brings Guy Kibbee and Alice Brady to the screen as the newest comedy team. The new picture opens Wednesday, April 28, at the Palace Theatre.

Declaring his 20-year-old son, Arthur, "a mere baby," James Rose, of Belfast, stopped the youth's wedding after he had led his bride to the altar.

JUSTICE AND MERCY

The newspaper man must sit in judgment over the news. There are times when he must print the truth regardless of consequences. And there are times when, for the record of civilization, nothing will be lost if the item about a wayward girl, who might go straight if she had a chance, is laid aside. And there are times, when at the cost of personal friendships, the official shortcomings of a neighbor must be put on page one . . . times when a mother's love must not be disillusioned, and times when the editorial heart will be heavy trying to decide what is best and what is honest, to print the cold facts as they are, so that the readers may know, or to suppress them to save others from a misery that will sear their souls to the end of their days.—Santa Barbara News.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM

The only hope for religious liberty in Germany is the combined efforts of the Evangelical church and the Catholic church (under the wise leadership of Pope Pius XI) to prevent the complete subjugation of these religious bodies by the temporal power of the Nazis. The fight is growing.

Americans look on and wonder how men like Hitler can feel themselves supreme enough to dictate to religion. They cannot conceive what it would be like to live in a country where religion is not free.

The framers of the American Constitution knew what it was like, however, and no single light from the many facets of the Constitution shines brighter than that which gives us "freedom to worship God."

A church wedded to the state is a weapon in the hands of unscrupulous rulers, but a free church is a weapon of liberty.

THE SCHOOL HOUSE OF OLD

Once upon a time every community had its own little school house. It was within sight of nearly all parents who sent their children to it. At the day's end mothers could look out and see shiny dinner pails coming up the road. When the weather was bad, father hitched up and went to "fetch the kids." If by any ill-fortune the building caught on fire it was only a one-room affair and the children could climb out of the windows to safety.

But now in the day of the consolidated school it is not uncommon to hear of horrible tragedies happening to the children either en route to the school or while there.

From now on parents will take these facts into consideration before signing away the country school. Most parents would prefer to tax themselves heavier in order to provide an adequate school in their midst if doing so means the assurance that their children will be safe.

It is through a loss of life that we learn to conserve life—heart-breaking though the lesson may be.

BILL NO. 93

Should a shoe store sell shoe strings, or should it be barred from doing so by the State Legislature because it would be competing with the street vendor who sells shoe strings?

A strange question you say, but the Legislature has a bill before it which is no more inconsistent than our question. The Murphy Bill (No. 93) seeks to prohibit utility companies from selling gas and electric appliances of any nature. This would mean that your gas and electric companies would be limited to carrying their commodity up to your building and furnishing your meter. It means that any trouble you might have with household or other electric or gas service which has been attended to formerly by one of these companies could not be serviced by them. If anything goes wrong with the wiring equipment in your home or business, the electric company could only sympathize with your predicament—but they could not correct it—under this proposed law. They could not even supply you with a fuse or a light bulb in an emergency.

In Oklahoma where such a law was passed, consumers in small cities and rural communities are loud in their criticism of the law. They must pay much more for parts and for service and suffer needless delay and much unnecessary expense in servicing appliances. Nor has the law benefited the communities nor protected the citizens; but has, on the other hand, caused a great loss to owners of store buildings, salesmen, clerks and service men thrown out of work, to newspapers, and to all consumers of gas and electricity through unnecessary expense for repairs and service.

It is easier to prevent the passage of unfair legislation than it is to get it repealed after being passed. It is the duty of every citizen to protest the passage of such a law as the Murphy Bill.

SEASON ON PAN FISH WILL CLOSE ON MAY 1

Bluegills, sunfish and warmouth bass become "taboo" to Michigan fishermen Saturday, May 1.

On that date it becomes illegal to take these fish until June 25 in all the inland waters of the state. The closed season is to give the respective species complete protection from fishermen during their spawning time.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

An effort is being made to raise a national temperance education fund of $1,000,000 before July 1, for road signs, radio programs, newspaper and magazine articles, movie productions, etc., to combat the use of alcoholic drinks.

The liquor interests spent over $25,000,000 last year in advertising their wares. Surely the detrimental effects of alcohol should also be made known. The local W. C. T. U. is soliciting subscriptions in Charlevoix.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS

Mrs. O. P. North, Mrs. E. J. Edwards and Mrs. Adah Beeman were guests of the Petoskey Federation of Women's Clubs at a meeting Wednesday evening. Mrs. C. L. Rose, of Evart, president of the northwestern district, was the honor guest, and gave a report of the state meeting held at Flint. The northwestern district convention will be held at Harbor Springs in October.

The Cribbage Club was entertained Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Sternberg. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Withers, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Martini, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gebenu and Mesdames Edna Powers, Roy Ripley, Clarence Heise and Larry Hansen. Prizes were awarded Mrs. Gebeau and Mr. Martini, and consolation awards to Mrs. Ripley and Mr. Withers.

LANSING LETTER

imum hours, commodity prices and otherwise regulate business and industry and the right of the federal government to enforce collective bargaining in business engaged in interstate commerce. Like an injection of adrenalin, the court decisions put new life into Murphy's "New Deal."

Manufacturers Approve

Michigan manufacturers have endorsed minimum wage laws for women and children. A bill by Rep. Charles W. Snow, Jr., of Jackson, would empower the state labor department to determine fair living wages and minimum standards for women and children. Affected by such legislation would be beer garden waitresses and night club hostesses. A similar bill by Senator Joseph Roosevelt (D), of Detroit, has been approved by the Michigan Manufacturers' Association.

The question of sex equality has been raised in Washington, D. C., where employers announce that men will be employed instead of women if minimum wages are equalized by statute for both men and women.

"Michigan NRA"

Governor Murphy's attitude on state regulation of industry through a local "NRA" is revealed in press interviews in which he says that the Legislature will be asked to enact laws:

1. Setting minimum wages for both men and women.
2. Requiring collective bargaining.
3. Eliminating espionage, discrimination and company unions.
4. Liberalizing occupational disease compensation.

Bills are to be drawn by Prof. E. Blythe Stason, University of Michigan, and Edward G. Kemp, the governor's legal adviser.

Conservatives

The prospect of "radical" legislation such as collective bargaining and minimum wages has been poohpoohed by several conservative members of the Senate and House. One prominent member has been confiding to his constituents that the Senate will be the real guardian of the people's rights in warding off "radical" laws. Rep. Philip Rahol (D), of Iron Mountain, countered last week with a constitutional amendment to abolish the Senate outright and let the House function as a unicameral legislature. Rahol's bill itself is classified "radical," although Governor Murphy has said that a unicameral legislature was very efficient in the Philippines.

In short, it raises the old question: "What is radical?" Times change, so do social attitudes.

Tax Sale in 1938

Delinquent taxes for 1935 and subsequent years may be paid without penalty by installment payments spread over 10 years providing that the 1936 tax bill has been paid in full. A tax sale would be held in May, 1938.

Such is provided in the Brown-Berka bill which has been passed by the House and is seemingly assured of passage in the Senate. The moratorium on mortgage foreclosures has been extended to March 1, 1939.

Legislators are convinced that a tax sale on delinquent property is imperative, if local governments are ever to clean up the present tax mess.

House Bills in Senate

Minimum age for old age pensions reduced from 70 to 65. Municipal refunding bonds subjected to approval of public debt commission.

"Freezing" prices of trade mark products to prevent price cutting by chains.

Any political subdivision may own and operate light and power plants.

Compensation of township officers and county supervisors increased from $4 to $5 a day.

Costs and fines collected by justice courts to be turned over to county treasurer for distribution.

Gambling on dog races.

Hit-and-run drivers guilty of felony.

Township boards to provide fire fighting apparatus through special assessment.

Hospital for insane in Wayne county; another bill would provide institution in Schoolcraft county for feeble minded.

Senate Bills in House

Civil service for state employes.

Secret primary ballot.

Driving while under influence of liquor is felony.

Sale of prison-made goods permitted to counties or political subdivisions of Michigan.

Repealing present exemptions for teachers in colleges, ministers, certain railroad employes, members of National Guard, physicians and dentists from service as jurors.

Filing of liens on unharvested crops with register of deeds instead of township or city clerk.

WASHINGTON NEWS LETTER
By Congressman John Lesinski
Eleventh Michigan District

Supreme Court

Opposition witnesses to the President's court reform program (S-1392, Ashurst, D-Ariz.) continued their parade before the Senate Judiciary Committee during the week. A motion of Committee-member Hughes (D-Del) that hearings be terminated by April 17 was not decided upon when made during the middle of the week. Chairman Ashurst announced that the move would be voted on early in the following week. An agreement was reached that all committee members would be allowed to vote on the motion whether or not they were present at the committee hearing.

Sit-Down Strikes

At one of the noisiest sessions of the House in years, the sit-down controversy came to a head. All the decorum of House rules vanished as the members objected to the manner in which the committee tried to force the Dies bill through under gag rule. H. R. 162 (Dies, D-Texas) called for an investigation of sit-down strikes by the House. The action of the committee in handling this resolution on the floor of the House was mainly responsible for its defeat. The members of the committee were in favor of the resolution condemning sit-down strikes. In allotting time for debate the committee allowed 50 minutes to those who favored the bill and only 10 minutes to those opposed to it. Upon this fact becoming known there was a great switch of sentiment. Many members of the House who favored the original Dies resolution found themselves opposing it because of the action of the committee.

The passing by the Senate of the Pittman Resolution calling for an investigation of sit-down strikes and labor espionage by industrialists also had a lot to do with the defeat of the Dies Resolution which would have investigated sit-downs only.

Veterans Hospital

Pursuant to resolutions adopted at the last national convention and at the last State and Upper Peninsula conventions of the American Legion, Congressman John Luecke introduced H. R. 6290 which calls for construction of a veterans hospital in or near Gladstone, Michigan. The cost is to be $1,500,000 and will provide for 350 beds. The Administrator of Veterans Affairs, subject to the approval of the President, is given authority under the bill to contract for the erection thereof and is authorized to accept gifts or donations for any of the purposes named therein. The City of Gladstone has offered a site within the city limits, confronting the lake for that purpose and it was largely at the instigation of the Legion Post at Gladstone that this movement was started.

Agriculture

Favorable report of the House Agricultural Committee of H.R. 6240 (Jones, D-Texas), a substitute for H.R. 8, the administration farm tenancy bill, featured the week's agricultural activities. The measure as reported appropriates $50,000,000 a year for a period of five years to be loaned to tenants for the purchase of farms. Under the original bill the same appropriation was to be made for the purchase of lands by the government for resale to farmers.

Title II of the Act appropriates $75,000,000 for each of the next two years for purposes of rehabilitation. Title III sets aside a total of $70,000,000 over a period of four years for purchase by the government of sub-marginal lands for retirement.

Sugar Legislation

The Administration Sugar Bill H.R. 5326 (Jones, D-Texas) was considered by a sub-committee late in the week, in its redrafted form. Strong opposition developed against the provision of the bill whereby new taxes collected on Philippine sugar would be paid to the Philippine government treasury. Further consideration of the bill will come during this week.

Patman Bill

A drive for enactment of legislation providing for government ownership of the 12 Federal Reserve Banks (H.R. 5010) was recently opened by representatives from 36 states, headed by Rep. Wright Patman (D-Texas), author of the bill. The steering committee consists of 80 members with Binderup (D-Neb) as secretary. Patman said his proposal has the support of at least one-third of the House membership.

The Development of Good Posture in the Young Child

The youngster who is well nourished and rosy checked, who is alert and vigorous in play, is likely to be the child who holds his body well poised or balanced. The child who is thin, pale, listless, and "always tired" is likely to be the child who stands in a slouchy, drooping position such as is commonly called the "fatigue posture." This does not mean that every child with good posture will be healthy, nor that every child who has an illness will have bad posture. But it does mean that there usually is a close relation between the child's health and the way he holds his body.

Good posture is much more than merely "standing straight"; it is the use of all parts of the body with proper balance, with ease and grace. This proper use of the body is called good body mechanics. The body is in some ways like a machine; its parts are accurately adjusted to one another, and if any part is out of correct position the machine does not work perfectly. For example, if the feet are not in good position, the balance of the whole body may be changed.

Parents must not expect the preschool child to have the same type of posture as his older brother or sister. As the youngster grows up his posture tends to change. For example, a little child who has just learned to walk is at an age when is abdomen is more prominent than it will be after he grows older. By the time he is five or six years old, the muscles of the abdomen should be strong enough to keep it nearly flat.

How can a mother help her young child to develop good posture? These are the fundamentals in developing good posture as set forth in a publication, "Good Posture in the Little Child," issued by the U. S. Children's Bureau:

1. Good general health; good nutrition; freedom from fatigue; freedom from repeated or long-continued infections, and from diseases that bring about deformities; good sight and hearing.
2. A well-balanced diet, including the foods that help to build bone and muscle—milk, fruit, green vegetables, eggs, and meat (and cod-liver oil for the child under two).
3. Plenty of sleep and rest.
4. Varied exercise outdoors—running, jumping, skipping, climbing. Encouragement by parents to take part in games and play that lead to symmetrical development of the body.
5. Wearing well-planned, well-fitting clothes and shoes, which put no strain on the bones or muscles or soft tissues of the child but let them develop naturally.
6. Sitting in a chair that supports the lower part of the child's back and that is low enough to let him keep his feet flat on the floor.
7. Sleeping in a bed that does not sag, with a firm, comfortable mattress and a flat spring; using no pillow, or a very small one, so that the child's neck is straight.

Since the child who is healthy is likely to have the best posture, parents who wish their child to have good posture should pay attention to the things that bring about general health. In their efforts to keep their child well and active they should have the advice of their doctor. A baby should be taken to the doctor once a month during the first year for advice regarding his health and hygiene and for a complete physical examination regularly at least every four months. During the second year he should be taken to the doctor at least every three or four months for advice and examination, and from his second birthday to school age at least twice a year.

TIPS SAVE FOODS IN REFRIGERATOR

Depending upon the construction of the household refrigerator, placement of food is one of the most important points in proper food preservation.

In a mechanical refrigerator or in a "side icer" the coldest place is directly underneath the unit. In the "overhead" ice refrigerator the middle of the top shelf is the coldest as a result of the bathing currents of cold air dropping down from the ice chamber. The sides of the lower shelves receive the warmed air which is travelling back to the ice unit.

Thus, foods that are delicate and absorb odors—milk, butter, cream, meat broths and moist cooked foods such as custards and cream sauces should be placed in clean, covered containers directly under the ice unit, suggests Miss Helen Baeder, of the Michigan State College foods and nutrition department.

Leftovers and uncooked meats that have had the paper wrappers removed should have the next coldest place. Fish placed in a tightly covered vessel to prevent odors should also be kept in this compartment.

Between the coldest and warmest aren come the eggs and cheese. Fruits and vegetables, however, should be placed on the warmest shelf to avoid harmful and injurious low temperatures. All foods with strong odors should be placed in the warmest place. In this way the warm air on its return to the cooling unit will deposit the odors on the ice or frost rather than on other foods that will absorb and become tainted by the odors.

The length of time necessary to leave the refrigerator door open may be reduced by placing the least used foods at the back. Temperature may also be kept down by keeping the refrigerator defrosted, or the ice chest half full.

EDITORS OF NATION TO TO VISIT THIS REGION

Will Come to Petoskey in July for Motor Sight-Seeing Tour

Editors of daily and weekly newspapers throughout the United States will visit Petoskey during the 52nd annual convention of the National Editorial Association, July 18 to 25.

More than 500 persons are expected to take part in the trip through Michigan, which will include Petoskey and a motor trip to Mackinaw City via the Shoredrive and Cross Village.

Both the Petoskey and Harbor Springs Chambers of Commerce are cooperating with the NEA to arrange the tour, which will reach Petoskey on Friday, July 23.

Safe and Sane DRIVING

BY THE NATIONAL SAFETY COUNCIL and Michigan State Safety Council

THE ONE-EYED MENACE

One of the serious faults found in both old and new cars in every "Safety Lane" inspection is defective headlights.

In the semi-annual inspection made in Connecticut recently, more than one-half of the cars rejected were turned back because of poor lights—79,652 out of 152,000. An earlier inspection in another state showed 86 per cent with defective head or tail lamps.

The automobile that comes rushing at you out of the blackness ahead with a single headlight is a serious menace. Is the right or the left lamp missing? You cannot tell, and involuntarily you swerve to the border of the road, sometimes dangerously close to a bad shoulder, to be certain your car will escape a possible accident.

Make an inspection of your own car's lamps frequently—every night is not too often. Carry an extra lamp bulb with you. Keep the lamps adjusted so that the beams will fall on the pavement—nor in the protesting eyes of other drivers. And you tail lamps are equally important. If you must stop on the pavement at night, their red warning is your only safeguard.

This Time Mother Didn't Know Best

An article in The American Weekly with the April 25 issue of The Detroit Sunday Times, tells of a rich woman who thought her son would not be so susceptible to women after familiarity with the beauties of Hollywood. But two divorces and other headaches show that the cure isn't working.

EDITORIAL

OH, MICHIGAN

After the election there was some light-hearted talk of Maine and Vermont seceding from the Union. Or, at least, it was suggested that the United States might issue passports to travelers pressed by necessity to enter those unreconstructed remnants of Old Deal dominion. However, both Maine and Vermont seem to be behaving themselves pretty well in their quiet New England fashion and the gibes have happily died away. Even Jim Farley would admit that there is no real reason why the two states should not be allowed to remain, at least as step-sisters, with the forty-six more enlightened sovereignties.

But is that the case with Michigan? Politically, of course, Michigan piled up the right brand of pluralities. But economically — good gracious! Isn't that uneasy peninsula between the lakes the place where all the trouble that afflicts this nation starts? Didn't the banking panic of 1932 rear its ugly head in Michigan and slither madly across the rest of the country? And haven't we now a plague of sit-down strikes made and patented in Michigan and ready for export? We have, indeed. Only a few months ago we thought fondly of Michigan as our greatest producer of automobiles. And now what does she produce? Strikes and strikes and strikes.

Governor Murphy seems to be a man of peace with a strong prejudice against enforcing the law. Couldn't he be induced to withdraw and let John Lewis take over Michigan as a kind of mandated territory? Then the State could isolate itself as a social laboratory devoted exclusively to Mr. Lewis's experiments. Meanwhile the rest of the country might really get a chance to sit down and decide whether it wanted to go along or just stick it out as it is.—From the New York Times.

VALUE OF TIME

The ticking of the clock should remind us that another minute, another hour, another day has gone. And yet, despite this constant reminder, we go along wasting time, squandering our birthright, forgetful that the clock of life is wound but once.

Our great industrial system, imperfect though it be, has given America the highest standard of living ever known, and is the creation of private initiative and individual enterprise "working for profit."—H. O. Weaver in Public Utilities Fortnightly.

STATE HIGHWAY CREWS GIVEN INCREASE WAGE

New Schedule Sets the Minimum at Fifty Cents Per Hour

A general five cent per hour increase with a 50 cent an hour minimum wage has been ordered for all state trunkline highway maintenance workers by Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner.

The increase will boost the highway department budget $500,000 a year and affect about 2,400 workers, it was estimated.

The previous minimum was 35 cents an hour. The wage increase applies to trunkline maintenance workers in all Michigan's 83 counties, the department said.

Van Wagoner, in ordering the increase, said: "The previous scale of pay was out of proportion to the cost of living level at that time. I emphasize that this pay raise applies not only to the men of our own organization but also to the workers in the contract counties."

LOCAL RESIDENT CELEBRATES HIS BIRTHDAY IN AN UNIQUE MANNER

O. W. Trayte, local resident vacationing in the east, celebrated his birthday anniversary on Saturday, April 10, in an unique manner, and as proof we publish his letter as follows:

"The writer had a birthday yesterday, April 10, and was challenged to do something out of the ordinary in order to celebrate same. So I did so in celebrating it in five states, viz.: Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York and New Jersey. Left Boston at noon Saturday, April 10; drove to Fall River, Mass., Providence, R. I., on to New Haven, Conn., from there to New York City, through Holland Tunnel to New Jersey, and registered in hotel at 8 p. m., stopping at cities mentioned to get refreshments, and in all did not get a ticket from any traffic cop.

"Weather here fine, grass green, spring flowers in full bloom.

"By the way, Mary, the late Mrs. Roen, was my challenger, and I challenged her to walk the board walk here (she not knowing its length) which is seven and one-half miles long. She is going to begin to pay her bet tomorrow.

"Yours very truly,
"O. W. TRAYTE.

"P. S.—After about a four months trip we are returning to Charlevoix shortly, having spent eight weeks sightseeing in New York City and many other eastern cities.

ASK SPORTSMEN REPORT CAPTURE MARKED FISH

Five Thousand Steelhead With Two Fins Removed Planted Last Fall

Anglers fishing Charlevoix county waters are requested by the Charlevoix Sportsmen's Club and the Fisheries Division of the Department of Conservation to be on the lookout for marked rainbow trout.

Last fall in October, 5,000 fingerlings with the dorsal and adipose fins clipped were planted in the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix for the purpose of studying the migratory habits of the rainbow, particularly.

If one of these fish is caught, the angler is requested to report the date, locality, length and weight of the fish to Claro Webster, president of the Charlevoix Sportsmen's Club, or to the Fisheries Division, Conservation Department, Lansing, Mich. Posters giving a description of the marked fish have been posted throughout the county.

ALL BUT "PIKE" LAKES ARE CLOSED APRIL 30

Remain Closed Until Opening of the Bass Season on June 25

Friday, April 30, is the last day of legal fishing this spring in all the inland lakes in Michigan, except a number of dosignated pike and trout lakes.

The designuted pike lakes are open the year around to fishing for all species of fish on which there is an open season and the trout lakes, which closed Labor Day, re-open Saturday, April 24. The lakes that close April 30 will open when bass fishing becomes legal June 25.

DELEGATION OPPOSES OIL COMPANY MOVE

include a part or all of the east side of Bridge street?"

It is a generally known fact that the Standard Oil Company has options on the Goldstick, Wilkins, Meyer and Merriam properties. It takes no great amount of thought to realize that they have taken such steps for only one purpose — to build a service station. Do the taxpayers of Charlevoix want a service station on Bridge street?

The city council has already acquired a portion of the block between Mason and Clinton streets for park purposes and at the present time are contracting to spend several thousand dollars for waterfront improvements. Plans have also been drawn for such recreational facilities as tennis courts, shuffle board courts, playground equipment, etc., to be installed on the property. The improvements are part of a plan, one perhaps which will take many years to realize, to improve the Round Lake waterfront and make it more attractive and in keeping with the surroundings expected in a resort town catering to tourists and summer resorters. One only needs to visit cities competing for tourist trade to find out that such efforts are not only commonplace, but very much a general procedure, and that Charlevoix is far in the background in improving its natural resources.

That the city council will be asked by the Standard Oil Company to grant a permit for construction of an oil station is practically a certainty. Out of fairness to the council, it is important that they, as representatives of the taxpayers of Charlevoix, know the trend of public opinion in regard to such a matter.

Thus the purpose of this article is to invite such expressions of opinion, written briefly and to the point, either to the Courier or directly to the city clerk. A good cross-section of public opinion in regard to continuance of the parking plan has already been expressed through petitions submitted to the council from the Board of Commerce, Kiwanis Club and, more lately, three such petitions bearing 145 names. If sufficient response is given to this appeal, at a very near future date, the Courier will publish in its columns a form of ballot providing each and every one an opportunity to express themselves as in favor or opposed to the issues in question.

We ask you, as civic-minded citizens, to express yourselves.

Wednesday, May 5, has been set aside as "Freshman Day" at Charlevoix High school. Eighth grade pupils from all surrnunding rural schools have been invlted to attend and from indications, a large number will take part.

A program has been planned consisting of both educational and entertainment features. Upon arrival of the rural school students, "big brothers and sisters" will aet as personal hosts. From 8:45 to 10:11 the visitors will attend ninth grade classes to observe the work which they will have an opportunity to pursue next year. Educational motion pictures, a regular weekly program feature, will be shown in the high school assembly nt 10:11.

At 11:14, the visitors will assemble in Room 211 of the junior high school, where they will be given information about the Charlevoix school system by Supt. O. P. North. H. E. Bingham, principal, will dwell briefly on some courses, and H. M. Oakley will instruct the group outline the kind of courses offered in junior bigh and gulde the group in making a pre-registration which will best suit their needs.

From 12 to 1 o'clock the school will give n luncheon for the visitors with the officers of the eighth and ninth grades acting as hosts. A progrnm will be given in connection with the luncheon, with Betty Willis acting as tonstmistress. Frnnces Meggison will welcome the visitors, and Eleanor Ecklund of the Marion Center school will give the response. Louise Young will give a musical selection, which will be followed by a reading hy Marjorie Wood.

From 1 to 1:15 o'clock the visitors will retire to the grounds of the campus, and from 1:15 to 2:45 will again attend classes. At 2:45 the entire junior high school will assemble with the visitors in the gymnasium, where Max Smith will direct the band in an entertaining and instructive concert. The instrumeatation of the band will he illustrated so that the group may have a better understanding of the band and a greater appreciation for band music.

At 3:30 o'clock both the junior and senior high schools will go to the athletic field, where track events will be staged.

It is the hope that this "Freshman Day" will serve as a means of acquninting children from the surruonding districts with the local school system in order that they will become more easily adjusted to their new school environment in the fall.

STATE-OWNED FERRY NOW IN OPERATION

Spring Schedule With Two Boats Operating Starts May 1

The State Highway Department stepped up ferry service at the Straits of Mackinac Saturday when the state boat, Strnits of Mackinac, resumed service.

State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner announced that the leased ice-crusher, Saínte Marie, which has been operated by the department during the winter season, would continue until May 1. The two boats will make ten trips daily from each port. State boats are not ice-crushers.

On May 1, the Sainte Marie will be taken out of service and another of the state-owned boats will begin operatinns. Schedules will then be expanded to eleven trips daily. First trips each morning will be at six o'clock and last trips at nine in the evenlng. Boats will leave each port at hour-and-a-half intervals. This schedule will continue until July 1 when the third state boat will begin operations.

HEARING ON HARBOR NEEDS HERE MAY 26

WAR DEPT. OFFICIALS COMING FOR LOCAL MEETING

Suggested Civic Groups Meet Prior to Hearing to Outline Requests to Be Presented

Charlevoix citizens and civic organizations will be given an opportunity on Wednesday, May 26, to express their views on needed harbor improvements at Charlevoix.

A communication from Lt.-Col. W. H. Holcombe, of the United States Engineer office, Milwaukee, Wis., gives the information that a public hearing will be held at the council chambers at 10 a. m. on that date, for the purpose of obtaining views of interested parties in connection with a review of the report of the army engineers submitted December 7, 1931, to ascertain whether or not any improvements on the Charlevoix harbor are advisable at the present time as called for by resolution of the committee on commerce of the United State. Senate, adopted March 30, 1937.

All interested parties are invited to be present or to be represented. They will be given an opportunity to express their views on the subject.

Oral statements will be heard, but for accuracy of record all important facts and arguments should be submitted in writing, in tripliente, as the records of the hearing will be forwarded for consideration by the War Department.

It is suggested that civic organizations meet at a date prior to this hearing to outline plans for improvements to be presented at the hearing, which presents a fine opportunity to obtain needed harbor improvements here.

GOOD WILL TOUR WILL CHANGE TO BOAT TRIP

Grand Rapids Business Men to Visit Lake Ports, Including Charlevoix

Changing its method of transportation this year, the Grand Rapids Association of Commerce will conduct its annunl outdoor tour by boat instead of automobile.

In former years the tour has always invaded the north with an automobile caravan, permitting its membership to make side tours from the established route to visit particular customers off the line of travel.

This yenr the tour will leave Holland by boat on June 14 and work north and south ulong the shore of Lake Michigan, stopping nt South Haven, Benton Harbor, St. Joseph, Traverse City, Charlevoix, Ludington, Muskegon and Grand Hnven.

The dnte of the visit to Charlevoix has not been announced but the local Chamber of Commerce will make suitable arrangements to entertain the 100 Grand Rapids wholesalers when they tie up nt the locnl dock.

Editorial

The attention of this newspaper has recently been called to a peculiar condition.

Some citizens have pointed out that one or two of the aldermen of the city have sponsored, and caused the circulation for signatures on a petition favoring certain action of the City Council on a pending matter. These citizens question the propriety of this conduct.

They are saying that a member of the Council is expected to use his best judgment and to vote upon matters coming before the Council according to that judgment after a full and fair hearing, much the same as a judge of a court. They assert that it should be the duty and policy of an alderman to observe that requirement, not only in the cause of good government and sound legislative action, but as a safeguard to the official himself who must otherwise submit to whatever inferences may be drawn from his indiscreet and over-zealous acts. Are these citizens right or wrong?

We believe the Council itself has decided this question. At a recent session it declined to permit an individual expression of the opinion of council members on the merits of the Standard Oil proposition on the ground that it would not be proper to pre-judge the issue. So the assembled citizens went away uninformed.

COMMUNICATION

The Courier of April 21 invites an expression of opinion in regard to certain matters:

I am opposed to building an oil station on Bridge street between Mason and Antrim.

I am in favor of securing the property in question for park purposes.

MRS. B. SALTONSTALL,
408 Mason St.

Bloomington, Ill.
April 24, 1937

Editor Charlevoix Courier,
Charlevoix, Mich.
Dear Sir:

I note in your issue of April 21, received today, that there is a proposition to locate an oil station on the east side of Bridge street, next to the City Park on Round Lake.

As one that has been a summer resident, and property owner, for 37 consecutive years, I wish to offer a vigorous protest.

The citizens of Charlevoix within that time have displayed wonderful taste and judgment in the beautification of this summer playground, and they will tarnish their record if they yield to the request made upon them.

Very truly yours,
L. S. RUPERT.

Editor Charlevoix Courier:

Hello Dell:

Guess your trip did a lot nf good. Liked your articles. But better get to the subject. Some learn by travel. Some read. But some won't even learn by experience. Which in Charlevoix's case has been a very dear one. Why is it that 30 years ngo we had more hotels, cottages and resorters than we have today? Just one reason: Then we were whnt was expected of a summer resort. About then we died. Yes, we did some advertising, mostly about things we did not have. During the next 25 years we did just about one attractive thing. Started a park on Bridge street where it could be seen, and also a little of one of our lnkes could be seen, then we quit. During this time we had a water scare; lost at least a million in business. Why? We were about 20 years behind with sewage disposal; lost thousands in loss of bonts. Same thing, an old tumbled down dock; another thing corrected 20 yenrs too lnte. Got a black eye one season because we couldn't see ourselves in our stores for lack of electricity. Again we nre playing with fire on this account.

NEW BOAT ON BEAVER ISLAND MAIL ROUTE

Capt. Leroy Allers Brings Diesel-Powered Mary Margaret Here

Pnssenger, mail and freight service between Charlevoix and Beaver Island is being provided hy Capt. Leroy Allers with the Diesel-powered Mary Margaret, which he recently purchased nt Benton Harbor.

The craft is 61.5 feet long, has a beam of 17.9 feet, and draft of 6.6 feet. She was built at Bay City and is powered with a 120 h.p. Diesel motor. The boat was formerly operated on un excursion run between Houghton and Isle Royale, nnd mnre recently as a fruit carrier between Benton Harbor and Milwaukee, Wis.

Despite its short length, the craft has surprisingly ample passenger accommodatiuns and freight storage. It has a large upper open deck and pilot house and cabin quarters on the upper deck. A galley is located on the lower deck. The boat can handle four automobiles and has large deck and helow-deck freight storage.

The craft hns passed inspection since being brought to Charlevoix and is licensed to carry 46 passengers, it is under-tood.

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL THURSDAY AFTERNOON

Charlevoix and East Jordan Meet in First Conference Contest

Opening a six-game schedule in quest of the Tip of Michigan Class C conference baseball title, Charlevoix High school meets East Jordan nt the south side athletic field Thursday afternoon.

The contest will open competition in the conference western division for both schools. With several veterans of last season in the line-up, as well as a promising group of new material, Charlevoix is expected to have a good ball club.

The game, to go six innings or more, depending on available time, will start at 3:45 o'clock.

CANNON RESIDENCE GUTTED BY FIRE SATURDAY MORNING

The Dan Cannon residence on West Hurlbut nvenue was almost completely gutted by fire at 2 o'clock Saturday morning.

The blaze had gained considerable headway before the alarm was turned in and firemen were unable to check the flames before practically two-thirds of the house was in ruins. All personal effects were lost.

SAME MANAGEMENT AT THE INN HOTEL

W. E. FLYNN AND ASSOCIATES RETURNING FOR 1937

Uncertainty Regarding Operation of City's Largest Hotel Removed by Confirmation of Report

Uncertainty regarding management of The Inn Hotel for the 1937 summer season has been removed through information received this week by Earl A. Young, local realtor, who has been in close touch with the situation for some time.

Confirmation has been made of the fact that The Inn, Charlevoix's largest summer hotel, will again be under the management of William E. Flynn and associates. This announcement will, no doubt, be received with unanimous approval by Charlevoix citizens who, through the many years of personal acquaintance with Mr. Flynn and his associates, recognize their interest in Charlevoix and successful management of The Inn Hotel and cottages.

Speculation concerning operation of The Inn resulted from sale of the hotel some time ago by the Central Land Company to Benjamin Alpett, of Detroit, in whose name the transfer is recorded in the office of the register of deeds. That others were involved in the deal is understood.

Mr. Flynn, it is understood, will arrive in Charlevoix around May 5, and further announcements regarding plans for the coming season will likely be released at that time.

LAKE MICHIGAN DRIVE OPEN TO AUTO TRAFFIC

Repairs to McGeagh Creek Bridge and Road Wash-Outs Completed

With completion of repairs at the McGeagh Creek culvert nnd wash-outs caused by spring freshets, the Lake Michigan scenic drive has been placed in shape for travel.

The city and county road commission furnished equipment and the WPA labor for the improvements which have made possible resumption of automobile traffic on this popular scenic drive.

ANNUAL CLEAN-UP WEEK IS MAY 10-15

CITIZENS URGED TO JOIN IN SUMMER PREPARATION

Mayor Issues Proclamation Proclaiming Effort—City Street Department Will Assist

Charlevoix's annual house cleaning campaign will start Monday, May 10, and continue through Saturday, May 15.

The city council has designated that period for the annual "Clean-Up" week, and health and fire officials and citizens generally are behind the movement to properly dress up the community for the coming season.

The following proclamation has been issued by Mayor Arthur Bergeon:

PROCLAMATION

The City Council has designated the week of May 10-15, inclusive, as Annual Clean-Up Week. The city street department will remove all cans and rubbish placed in convenient places on streets and alleys. We urge everybody to join in this Clean-Up movement so that we can live up to our slogan, "CHARLEVOIX - THE - BEAUTIFUL."

Signed:
ARTHUR BERGEON,
Mayor.

The immediate purpose of the Clean-Up Week is to clear the yards, alleys and vacant property of the city of all refuse and rubbish and garbage piles; it will reduce the fire hazard hy removing piles of inflammable materials and it will give the city a cleaner appearance.

Chief Charles Marshall of the local fire department urges people to burn the rubbish which will burn hut to do it reasonably and safely. Keep the fires under constant control and nway from all buildings or fences which might ignite.

Dr. R. B. Armstrong, city health officer, urges everyone to see that the accumulation of rubbish in the yard or in the home is burned or removed as a measure for preventing the outbreak and spread of any epidemic.

The good citizens urge all other citizens to see that their home grounds are made clean and attractive, not only for the summer visitors hut for the enjoyment of home folks.

DISTRICT MEETING OF REBEKAHS HERE FRIDAY

Afternoon and Evening Sessions Are Planned for 12th Annual Event

Charlevoix will be host to Rebekah lodge members of Northern Michigan when the 12th annual session of the Association of Rebekahs of District No. 18 convenes here on Friday April 30.

Mrs. G. C. Geneit, secretary of the association, is in charge of program arrangements for the afternoon and evening sessions. The meetings will open at the school gymnasium at 1:30 o'clock. Mrs. Myrtle Mitchell will give the address of welcome, and Mrs. Ora Hoover will give the response.

Lodges of the several cities to be represented will take part in the functions planned and a program will be given by Maple River Lodge No. 426.

Dinner will be served at 6 o'clock at the I.O.O.F. hall by the L.O.T.M.

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

A showdown is impending in Michigan between organized labor of industrial centers and business and manufacturing interests over the question of minimum wage and maximum hours.

This was indicated at a public hearing held jointly by the Senate and the House on House Bill 66 by Rep. Charles Snow, Jr., of Jackson, calling for an arbitrary 35 hour and five day week for women and minors, and on Senate Bill 28 by Senator Joseph Rooseveit, of Detroit, setting up machinery whereby wages and hours of women and minors would be determined by a wage board for each occupation.

Significant are these facts:

The Legislature is scheduled for adjournment in two to three weeks.

Michigan's labor-minded governor, Frank Murphy, is committed to a policy of minimum wages and maximum hours for both men and women.

"I suppose, jail or no jail, we eat sometimes?" Sam asked by way of answer, kissing the back of Gail's neck where the thick, tawny tendrils of hair curled up like a baby's hair. "Listen. There's a swell film at the Liberty tonight. Want to go, Ariel?"

"No, thanks." Ariel began to answer steadily, but her voice shook suddenly, and her words came in a rush. "I don't want to go and have every old church-going, psalm-singing, cake-sale-making old woman in this town pointing me out," she said in a low tone. "I don't want my clothes to come from Muller's any more, I don't want sodas at Dobbins', and dances at Oddfellows' hall. I'm sick to death of this whole place, and this house, and being poor! I'm not going to stand it, either! I'm going down to Hollywood if I have to walk there, and I'm going—"

"Ah, sweetheart, you'll only make yourself ill!" Gail pleaded, close beside her now, sitting on the arm of Ariel's chair, with one arm about the younger sister's shoulders. "Don't get yourself all wrought up. Listen, darling—listen, if the Whites do give a fancy-dress party, and we give a birthday party—"

She stopped, for Ariel, looking at her with a trembling laugh of scorn, broke as suddenly into tears, and was laughing and crying in the familiar manner before any one of them could attempt to divert her. Guided by Gail, she stumbled from the room and upstairs, sobbing incoherently and now beginning to feel wretchedly sick—cold, hot, nauseated, dizzy.

Gail turned down the wide old bed and flattened the pillows; she carried a fresh nightgown to the poor little convulsed figure, kept an arm about the shaking shoulders. She lowered the shades, lighted a bead of gas slipped the hot rubber bag comfortingly in between the old linen sheets.

And all the while her heart sang on a strengthening note, "Dick—Dick—Dick." It was good to be twenty-three and to have Dick in the world! Gail felt that she had never been so near to Ariel, never had loved her so dearly.

And so downstairs to the dear familiar plates and lights, the peach tapioca and the blackberry punch, the eager conversation that was punctuated with laughter and supplemented by the books they always dragged in somehow, for reference or support.

"Wonderful to have it cold again!" Edith said.

"Wonderful!" Gail echoed. But it was not the autumn coolness that made her heart sing and float like a skylark. The secret was always with her, and when she forgot Dick for a second, it was delicious suddenly to remember him again. Gail had never had any feeling like this in her life before; she had never known that there was such a feeling.

"Dick," she thought. "Dick. Dick. Dick. Dick."

And at the realization that he might quite naturally come into the dining room, and sit here visibly under the rasping gaslight, she felt actually faint with ecstasy.

"You don't like Van as well as you did," Edith guessed shrewdly in the days that followed.

"No—but still I like him," Gail answered defensively.

* * * * * * * *

They were in Ariel's room, and Ariel lying on her bed reading old magazines, on the Sunday afternoon following the accident. Outwardly, everything was just as usual, but Gail was conscious of changes in the air. She had been asked by Van to dinner up at the Chipps' the night before, and had declined. The thrilling prospect of shabby, quiet Dick Stebbins' company at the Lawrence house had made anything the Murchisons did or did not do unimportant.

Ariel had seemed languid and depressed, and Edith and Gail, happy in the usual sunshiny routine of beds and dishes, church and endless chatter, had been gradually infected by her mood. Gail, in a cautious undertone as they washed the breakfast dishes, had reported to Edith that Ariel had called Van Murchison on the telephone at about ten.

"I think from what she said at the telephone—she talked very low," she had resumed, "I think that he wanted her to go off somewhere to lunch with him."

"The Chipps'?"

"I couldn't tell."

"Gail, if I thought you didn't care, I'd pray about it!" Edith had said passionately. "Wouldn't it be wonderful!"

"I got a little fun out of it," Gail had analyzed the situation jauntily. "I mean, I loved the excitement and knowing persons like the Chipps, but I never got—anything, really, out of Van."

"Abigail Lawrence, he adored you!"

"No, no—he liked me. I amused him. We were like two boys. Really we were," Gail had persisted, as Edith began a significant smile. "He never put his finger tip on me—he doesn't make love! Or at least he didn't to . . ." she had finished, thinking aloud, feeling for words.

Upstairs in Ariel's room, they reverted to the subject.

"I like Van," Gail said. "But I think he's terribly giddy."

"What would you want him to be, a priest?" Ariel demanded unsympathetically.

"Don't you have the feeling he's always laughing at everything, Ariel?"

"No," Ariel answered stubbornly, scowlingly, "I don't."

"Oh, I do," Gail said patiently.

"I want to go away, Edith and Gail," Ariel presently said quietly. "Phil can make a fuss if he wants to. Or he can help me. I don't much care. But I'm going away from Clippersville."

They looked at her sorrowfully. She had said this many times before; she had been saying it indeed since her fourteenth summer.

They Looked at Her Sorrowfully.

But this was serious. Ariel had refused to return to school after the accident. Phil had talked to Mrs. Tripp, the principal. Mrs. Tripp had put the case plainly to Phil. Ariel Lawrence had been going too fast and too far for some time. A good boarding school, at her age. . . .

This had frightened Gail and Phil. They had not mentioned it to the others, least of all, Ariel. They had no money for boarding school, even supposing that Ariel would go.

But very probably Ariel would rebel. She seemed older, harder, colder, in these few days. The events of the past week had seemed to embitter her, to accentuate her familiar impatience with Clippersville and life in it. On Saturday afternoon Gail had found her toiling over a typewritten letter, supposedly to some moving-picture concern. She had seen Ariel enclosing snapshots, presumably of herself—her beautiful little golden-headed self.

Poor little butterfly, caught in the trap of poverty, pettiness, shabbiness, and general small-town ugliness! Ariel was only one of a thousand, a million, girls, all over the country who were dreaming of Hollywood, contracts, admiration, excitement.

"She'd not mind marrying a man like Van," Gail thought. "She'd know how to manage him. She wouldn't want more than he could give! . . . We seem to be growing up pretty fast all of a sudden."

She had grown up anyway. She was a woman now, because she loved a man. It made her feel solemn, consecrated. It was quite unlike any feeling she had ever known before. Deeply, eternally, she was Dick's—for sorrow or joy, their two lives were indissolubly united.

She could even feel a little heartache for the girlhood she must leave behind her. Love, marriage, wifehood—these were solemn things. Gail experienced a premonitory pang. It was not all fun, saying good-by to being giddy, free Gail Lawrence. It was not all fun, this strangely thrilling happiness, fear, and pain that inundated her heart.

They were still gossiping and idling comfortably in Ariel's room, and the old clock in the hall had struck three in Sunday stillness, when a door slammed downstairs, and Gail, flushed and tumbled, descended to find Dick himself in the kitchen.

Going downstairs, her heart rose on wings, and she felt suffocated, but when she saw him her mood experienced a sudden chill. Dick had on the old tweeds he had bought at a sale two years ago; his pockets were full of packages.

Suddenly, seeing him so, commonplace and unexciting, in the darkened kitchen, Gail found him entirely uninteresting; her dreams melted into every day air, and she felt ashamed and confused. Dick Stebbins in one's dreams indeed! It was a desecration of their filmy fabric even to think of him in such a connection.

He glanced at her with a quiet grin as she came in. He was unloading various cans and packages from his pockets—deviled ham, cream, rolls, butter.

Gail felt as remote from him as if she had never seen him in her life before. He was nothing, nobody; she disliked him because she had made a fool of herself over him in her own soul.

"Oh, are we picnicking?" she asked blankly.

"Aren't we?" he demanded, stopping short.

Her blood rose at once. Of course they would picnic! She began to put peeled tomatoes, lettuce, fish into a deep glass jar. Dick Stebbins! Why, he was the same country boy he had always been. Nice enough. The salt of the earth.

Dick came to stand beside Gail, the wrapped packages of coffee and sugar in his big hand, and she trembled and dared not look up.

They went up to the old dam, in the sweetness of the autumn afternoon, and built their picnic supper fire on the sunshiny shingle. The air was sweet with wild grapes, tarweed, and crushed grass; the scent of boiling coffee mingled with the other good odors in the hot sunset stillness. Phil sat silent, utterly content, watching a fish line, his handsome, thick Lawrence brows drawn together as he pondered something that was far away from fishing. Ariel and Van Murchison were on the shingle. Van was so close that his head almost touched her elbow; he was lying on his side, looking up at her as he talked.

Sam not being at home when the picnic expedition had started, a note had been left for him, pinned to the kitchen door. Van, arriving before Sam, had calmly read the note, and had sat down on the Lawreaces' doorstep to await Sam's return. After which they had followed the others in Van's car, a circumstance that added the last touch of felicity to the occasion for Gail. She remembered her old efforts to attract Van, a few months ago, the sallies of wit, the constant attempt to amuse him.

Ariel made no such efforts—not she! She simply was, and Van trailed her helplessly, irresistibly. When Ariel went down to walk across the old boards of the dam, Van followed. When she came back, and idly began to build a little pebbly pen for the velvet-brown, yellow-bellied water dogs, Van became her enthusiastic aide. Ariel, Gail noted, did not speak much; she never did. Van did all the chattering.

The little fire burned hotly in the windless air; long shafts of sunset were striking level upon the water now; the dam was a sheet of blue satin, twinkling in the light, and slippiug into exquisite jade and ultramarine shadows against the overhanging banks.

Sunday morning service, 10:45.

Meets first Wednesday evening each month at 7:45 p. m.

Sunday school, 12 o'clock.

Reading room open Saturday, 3 to 5 p. m.

We cordially invite the public to our service and reading room.

"Everlasting Punishment" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, May 2.

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Matt. 25:29): "For unto every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance; but from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p.262): "Consecration to good does not lessen man's dependence on God, but heightens it. Neither does consecration diminish man's obligations to God, but shows the paramount necessity of meeting them."

JUNIOR FARMERS TO VISIT CAMPUS

Approximately 2,000 high school boys from 230 vocational agriculture departments in Michigan will meet on the Michigan State College campus, May 6 and 7, for the 18th annual Junior Farmers' Week. Every section of the state is represented in the advance registration now being received by Robert Linton, member of the college education department and who is in charge of the event.

SAFE PLACE FOR MONEY

It is foolish to carry large sums of currency on one's person. This was illustrated recently when a man in a southern city cashed a check for over two thousand dollars. Instead of depositing that amount at the bank, he walked out with it snuggled in an inside pocket.

En route home the money slipped through the lining of his coat. Fortunately, it was found by an honest person.

Money lost rarely gets back to the owner. If not picked up by someone it yet may be washed away in the sewer or carried off by the wind. Even had the man reached home with his precious bundle he would have been running many hazards to keep it secreted upon his premises.

All in all, the course he chose was a foolish one. A checking account would have saved him much anxiety. There is only one safe place for money. Those who use bank institutions rarely regret their decision.

TROOPERS MAILING NEW SAFETY MANUAL

Four-Point Program Outlined In Booklet Now Being Distributed

Distribution is being made this week by the Michigan State Police of a new edition of "Creating Safer Communities," outlining a model program of traffic safety activities.

The 48-page manual describes a four-point attack on automobile accidents. Outside of a chapter on rural traffic, it is identical with an edition published last year by the Michigan State Safety Council. The new manual is published under the imprint of the Michigan State Police.

Information on setting up a community traffic safety organization and data on procedures for reducing accidents by removing their causes is included in the text. Commissioner Oscar G. Olander declared the program was based on accident control techniques tested in cities with outstanding safety records.

RICHARDSON HILL PROJECT IS GIVEN APPROVAL

WPA Grant Approximately $10,000 Sanctioned by President

S. A. Tokoly, Charlevoix county highway maintenance superintendent, has announced that approval of President Roosevelt has been given a WPA project to be known as the Richardson Hill project at East Jordan.

The grant, approximately $10,000, will be used largely for excavation work in cutting the big hill down and providing improvement to the highway at that point.

TWO HEALTH EXAMS ON WEDNESDAY, MAY 5TH

Dr. Carleton Dean Will Visit Maple Grove and Hetrick Schools

Dr. Carleton Dean will conduct two school health examination clinics in Charlevoix county on Wednesday, May 5.

At 9:45 a. m., the clinic will be held at the Maple Grove school, and at 1:30 p. m., the clinic will be at the Hetrick school.

These are the last school clinics to be held until next fall. Infant and pre-school clinics will be stressed throughout the next six months.

MICHIGAN INCLUDED IN TREE PLANTING PROGRAM

The Resettlement Administration will plant over 1,800,000 trees on its land-use projects in the Lake States this spring under its program of restoring lands unsuited for farming to wildlife, forest, and recreation areas, it has been announced by R. I. Nowell, regional director of the Resettlement Administration in Wisconsin, Michigan, and Minnesota. Most of them will be supplied by the U. S. Forest Service.

COOPERATE CHILD HEALTH DAY PLANS

Michigan Bakeries, of Traverse City, to Boost Nation-Wide Event May 1

In the plans for country-wide observance of National Child Health Day on May 1, Michigan Bakeries, Inc., is taking an active part. Through its Sunshine Club Magazine, with a monthly circulation of 75,000, the company will advertise the date to the public.

The corps of active "Michignn" Sunshine Ladies throughout the state will stress health habits and wholesome diets in their talks and contacts with the children and will endeavor to impress the girls and boys of school age with the important significance and reasons prompting a nation-wide Child Health Day.

Mrs. Marion Martin, Sunshine Lady in Traverse City territory, will carry out the local plan of cooperation.

STATE HAS TWELVE MILLION SMALL TROUT FRY

Planting and Transfer to Rearing Ponds Will Be Started Soon

More than 12,000,000 brook, brown and rainbow trout are now developing in the fry stage at nine state hatcheries for planting in the inland waters of Michigan.

This is better than an average hatch, state fisheries authorities say, and barring unforeseen conditions with abnormal mortality more than 10,000,000 trout will be available for planting this season.

The fry now developing at the hatcheries consists of nearly 8,000,000 brook trout; 3,000,000 brown trout; and 1,500,000 rainbow trout.

DR. LASHMET LECTURE ON CANCER HERE MAY 12

Illustrated Film Lecture to Be Given at School Gymnasium

Dr. F. H. Lashmet, of Petoskey, will present the popular educational film lecture on cancer at Charlevoix High school on Wednesday evening, May 12, at 8 o'clock.

This is a free lecture and it is hoped that everybody will avail themselves of the opportunity to learn more about this disease which unnecessarily remains one of the leading causes of death in the adult age group. The lecture is made possible through the auspices of the Michigan Medical Association.

ENROLLMENT AT CAMP DAGGETT NOW BEING RECEIVED FOR SEASON

Camp Daggett will soon open its 1937 summer season after more than a decade of service to both boys and girls. College leaders are being secured and plans for the biggest and best year for the boys and girls on Walloon Lake are under way.

Walter J. MacMillan will be back this year as camp director for the entire season. He has virtually grown up with the camp, having had more than 20 years experience in camping and recreation work. Mrs. MacMillan will again serve as camp mother.

Mrs. Dorothea Johnson Schleehte, former girls' director, has been granted a leave of absence for 1937. In her place will be Miss Ninn Lawrence, girls' physical director of Petoskey High school, who has been with Daggett for six years. She has had considerable experience with girl scouts and is well qualified for the duties of 1937 girls' season.

William King will act in the capacity of assistant director. He is an Eagle Scout and well liked by the youths.

Mrs. Alfred J. Brown will serve as camp cook.

Boys between the ages of eight and 16 will have two sessions, June 28 to July 10, inclusive, and July 12 to July 24, inclusive. Girls between the ages of eight and 16 will have Camp Daggett July 26 to August 7, inclusive, and August 9 to August 21, inclusive.

The directors urgently request that Northern Michigan boys and girls desiring to attend camp this year get their application in early as the number of early requests for applications point to a banner year.

The total cost for a session averages $1.16 a day.

BARNEY HARRINGTON IS TAKEN BY DEATH

VICTIM OF HEART ATTACK SATURDAY EVENING

Was Postal Employe Here for 24 Years—Funeral Services Conducted Tuesday Afterooon

Charlevoix citizens Tuesday paid their last respects to Barney L. "Dad" Harrington, beloved local resident, whose death from heart attack came Saturday evening.

His passing, coming as a shock to his family and friends, occurred while motoring in company with Mrs. Harrington and Miss Frances Milner on the Lake Michigan scenic drive. He had stepped from the car and was about to re-enter when stricken.

Funeral services, conducted by Rev. W. H. Rauch, were held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon from the Congregational church. Burial at Brookside cemetery.

Mr. Harrington was born in 1871 at Pierpont, O., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar O. Harrington. During his younger days he became a member of the Baptist church at Pierpont, and later was very active in the Friends Church, of Peloit, O. He was united in marriage to Etta Courtney August 8, 1896, and in 1907 brought his family to Charlevoix from Sebring, O., where he engaged in photography, his chosen profession. After several years as a painter and decorator, he joined the postal service in 1913, continuing until his retirement from this service on September 15, 1936.

Mr. Harrington is survived by his widow and one daughter, Mrs. V. Y. Tuttle, of Grand Rapids; also a sister, Mrs. L. C. Douglas, of Alliance, O., and a grandson, Jack Tuttle.

Mr. Harrington made a hobby of stamp collecting, photography and oil paintings. He was an ardent lover of nature and a person whose jovial disposition won him a large following of close friends. He will be greatly missed in this community.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS By Ann Page

Child health week is our annual reminder that if children are to grow into healthy adults they must be cared for now. Proper food is perhaps the greatest factor in maintaining child health and this means that their diet should be built around bread or cereals and milk generously supplemented with fruits and vegetables.

The present high cost of meats will not result in harm to children since only small amounts are needed by them.

Butter and eggs are somewhat lower. Lettuce is cheap, asparagus and peas are lower, cabbage and spinach relatively cheap. Potatoes are also noticeably less expensive.

Here are three meals suitable for the whole family including those of school age and up.

Low Cost Dinner
Pan-broiled Chopped Beef
Baked Potatoes Buttered Spinach
Bread and Butter
Raisin Bread Pudding
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Roast Pork Apple Sauce
Mashed Potatoes New Cabbage
Bread and Butter
Floating Island
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner
Cream of Celery Soup
Boiled Beef Tongue New Potatoes
Green Peas
Tomato Salad
Rolls and Butter
Strawberry Snowbank Pie

BARNARD

The Missionary Society of the South Barnard church met last week Wednesday with Mrs. Ed. Boss.

The last play of the series, put on by Hay Shore last Thursday evening, was enjoyed by every one present.

Mrs. Effie Burns and son, Kenneth, of Grand Rapids, have been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Boss.

Some improvements we have noticed: Mr. Dhascleer has a new roof on his barn, and Guy Stutzman a new one on his house.

The Nutrition Club met with Mrs. William Carr on Thursday. The lesson was "Protein and Iron in Foods." Plans were made for Achievement Day, which will be held in East Jordan on May 11.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Vance and family, of East Jordan, visited their cousins, the Clyde Smith family, Sunday evening. They also visited Mrs. Vance's sister, Mrs. John L. Boss, one evening recently.

As a result of a program contest recently held at a Grange meeting, in which the gentlemen were the winners, a party was given them by the ladies on Saturday evening. Needless to state it was an enjoyable affair.

Auto Trailers and Their Sanitary Problems

As time goes on and the cost of trailers is reduced to the reach of everyone's pocketbook, vacationists who now rent cottages or live in overnight cabins will have a cottage of their own and it will be on wheels. They will be able to move about at will and will have an enjoynble vacation with the same comforts of a home. There is one particular place these people will go with their house trailers and that will be to the public camps. They will find there the beaches they are looking for, the wild or wilderness they are seeking so as to get away from the buzz of the city. They will have playgrounds for their children, recreational facilities for the use of grown-ups, they can gather around the camp fire in the evening with their neighbor camper and make new acquaintances. If the present trend continues we soon will have large trailer camps and in a few years double the camps we now have, providing we keep the parks sanitary as modern science can provide. This not only means those sanitary problems we have to contend with now but those that will be brought about by the advent of the trailer camp in the parks,

From all observations made so fur there apparently will never be any problem of disposal of human waste any different than we have now with the tent camper.

The garbage problem will not very likely be affected by the advent of the trailer camp except in volume as they will wish to dispose of their garbage in park garbage baskets where it is picked up each day and hauled away.

The provision of sanitary water most likely will not be affected by the trailer camp taking the place of the tent camp as long as we follow our present policy of keeping our wells out of the use area of the park and the wells are deep enough to be sure we are not pumping surface water. About the only way the water supply would he affected would be in the quantity needed.

The problem that is coming to the front with the trailer camp as far as sanitation is concerned is the disposal of waste water. Of course there isn't as much water used per person in a trailer as in the home, but at least half as much is used and you can readily figure out approximately the water to be disposed of per day in each park during the peak season. Most trailers have a drain through from their sink to the bottom of the trailer and all of this water is disposed of on the ground in one small spot, sometimes for as long a period as two weeks. You can imagine what kind of a place the next camper has to camp in. This is the greatest problem we have encountered with the trailer. Underground tile lines leading to one disposal bed with convenient catch basins for campers to dispose of their water in has been thought of, but this would run into considerable money, which we do not have. Seepage pits conveniently located have been discussed and would be much cheaper, but it is doubtful if they could be kept sanitury. It is a problem not yet adequutely solved.

"If the state of Michigan is to continue as the nation's playground, we, here in Michigan, who have the responsibility of developing and maintaining the state parks, will have to make sure that every safeguard is taken to protect the health of those who use them. If the tourist business in Michigan is to be maintained as our second largest industry or developed to the largest, we must keep our thoughts abreast with the times and be prepared to meet the sanitary problems the house trailer brings on as their more extensive use comes about."

A Full Page Portrait of King George VI In His Coronation Robes

Tho Detroit Sunday Times, issue of May 2, will contain a page portrait of King George VI, printed in full color. This picture, an excellent likeness of the new British monarch, you doubtless will want to keep as a souvenir.

The comic opera tragedy of the French beauty who couldn't kill herself even when she shot her pilot lover while they flew through the skies. A feature in the American Weekly, the magazine distributed with next Sunday's Chicago Herald and Examiner.

They used to talk about the long arm of the government, but the way it's interfering with private business now perhaps we ought to say the long nose of the government.

POOR SLEEP POOR HEALTH

Sleep is nuture's grentest restorative. You can't huve good health without it. One cause of disturbed sleep is bladder irregularity. Make this simple test. Help nature eliminate waste and excess acid which can cause the irregularity that may result in disturbed sleep, scanty flow, frequent desire, and burning. Use buchu leaves, juniper oil and 6 other drugs made into little green tablets. Just say Bukets. Get a test box from any druggist. Locally at F. J. Fessenden, Druggist.

LANSING LETTER

eral was that an arbitrary short week —35 hours in five days—would work undue hardship financially, force production costs higher than ever, and result undoubtedly in stagnant business and more unemployment.

Because of the general unfavorable reaction shown against the Snow bill, amendments were proposed later by Rep. John F. Hamilton, Detroit Democrat, calling for a 44 hour, five and a half day maximum week, and making terms of the bill applicable to persons of both sexes under the age of 18 years as well as women over that age.

To meet seasonable needs, Mr. Hnmilton also proposed that the NRA provisions of allowing overtime work three weeks preceding Christmas and also a pre-Easter overtime period be included in the Snow measure.

The House labor committee, of which Rep. Joseph Martin, of Detroit, is chairman, gave assurances that the amndments would meet with the committee's approval.

Roosevelt's Plan

The proposal hy Senator Roosevelt is modeled nfter the New York sfnte minimum wage bill for women which passed the state assembly on April 21 and went to Governor Lehman for signature.

This measure provides that the varying needs of each occupation shall be recognized in the determination of fair wages and hours for women and minors. These wages and hours would be fixed by a wage board comprising three employer representntives of the occupation, three employe representatives, nnd three representatives of the public.

Hearings would be held. The act in general would be administered by the State Department of Labor.

Small Towns

What will be the effect of minimum wages, maximum hours upon Michigan's "Main Street"—its small communities, the towns and villages where industry is not concentrated and labor is not organized?

If legislators attempt to alleviate the unrest of industrial workers in the large centers without taking into consideration the economic interests of smaller communities, state regulation of this kind may reverse the present trend of decentralization.

Factory owners would no longer find that it was profitable to utilize lower living costs in small towns as compared with the cities. What would be an industrial gain of Detroit and other large cities would he the loss of small communities.

It is to the interest of the "little fellow" to watch Lansing carefully during the next few weeks. Monopolistic tendencies are in evidence which may be detrimental to interests of small towns.

University of Michigan

The House flare-up against the University of Michigan has cooled off. When a group of professors signed a round-robin condemning President Roosevelt's supreme court proposal, Democratic leaders in the House snorted defiantly.

Unknown to them was the fact that other professors at Ann Arbor, equally as influential and as numerons, were sympathetic with the Roosevelt plan. When House leaders let loose a blast against state servants sticking their noses into national affairs, the pro-court professors had to suffer in silence.

Governor Murphy, a university graduate, then turned to the institution for assistance in drafting minimum wnge, collective bargnining bills. The liberal legislation job is being performed by Prof. E. Blythe Stason with the aid of the governor's personal legal adviser, Edward G. Kemp.

Growing Needs

When the university mill tax bill comes before the House for consideration, these enrollment facts will be considered:

1934-35 ..... 13,691 students
1935-36 ..... 16,040 students
1936-37 ..... 17,391 students

The figures include all students—regular session, summer session, extension division classes, and so on. The 1936-1937 enrollment is an estimate based upon expectntion of summer school.

The present 73-100 mill tax brings $4,062,365.

The proposed 83-100 mill tax would produce $4,673,253. During the 1931-32 school year the university received $4,920,000 to care for 14,826 students.

With 2,500 more students to serve, the university is asking for only $250,000 more than it had in 1931-32.

SOCIAL SECURITY BRIEFS

"The security of the people is the sum of the arrangements set up by business, by the government, and hy society through which the things we cherish nre snfeguarded against the hazards we, as individuals, can not control." (Social Security Board report.)

Form SS-1, to be used by employers in making tax remittances under Title VIII of the Social Security Act must he obtained from offices of the Bureau of Internal Revenue. The Social Security Board does not supply these forms.

Title VIII of the Social Security Act imposes two taxes—an income tax on workers and an excise tax on employers. Both of these became effective January 1, 1937. The initial rate of each of these taxes is one per cent of the wages of the employe. The law makes provision for the employer to collect the income tax on employes by deducting the amount thereof from the wages of each worker when he or she is paid.

"Security begins with bread nnd hunter." Bnt it is no mere substance, no blessing to be had for the nsking, no gift of the government. The American system does not offer the individnal a lack of security. It grants him an opportunity nnd imposes upon him the obligation to find security for himself. (Social Security Board report.)

DEPARTMENT OF STATE NEWS BULLETIN

Case Repudiates Title "Services"

No representative of any so-called "title service" organization in this or any other state enjoys any rights, privileges or contacts with the Department of State that are not available to any person, Leon D. Case, secretary of state makes plain.

The comment was caused by reports that certain organizations, or individuals claiming to be connected with the Department of State, have represented that they possess "influence" or "pull," which enables them to secure motor vehicle titles in less time than anyone else could. Such persons and organizations have reputedly collected fees for services offered on this basis.

There are two ways to secure motor vehicle titles: to present applications at departmental branch offices for mailing to Lansing, or to present the applications, personally or by an agent, at the "counter" on the fourth floor of the capitol. A personal presentation of the application at the counter saves time involved in mail transmission and certain routine clerical operations, Case points out, but no preferenee is shown any person over another, regardless of the method of presenting npplications.

The most frequent desire for haste in securing car licenses nrises when dealers take used cars in, which they cannot re-sell until titles have been transferred. If they choose to pay an agent a fee to come to the capitol for personal presentation of applications for title transfer, it is their privilage, Case observes, adding, however, that favorable "contact" with the department is non-existent in this connection. No person connected with the Department of State offers any special service of any kind to the public, with or without a fee, the secretary of state points out.

CHANGES TO OIL-PLATING

In spite of everything, it paid him to take ads seriously, you see, else he might never have tried Oil-Plating. First of all he was impressed by the explanation of Oil-Plating.

Simple enough, if you'll think what happens as Johnny's dirty little hands touch the wallpaper. Anything greasy or oily on his hands becomes quite a permanent part of the paper. You'll say permanent!

In much the same way—forgetting technicalities—Conoco Germ Processed oil forms a lasting attachment for every working part of your engine. This union of oil and metal to produce a genuine, enduring Oil-Plating is brought about only by the Germ Process—patented

Thus the Germ Process not only multiplies the strength of the usual flowing type of oil-film, but creates Oil-Plating besides. And once Oil-Plating goes on, Conoco Germ Processed oil does not let it come off in minutes, hours, days . . . or any number of miles.

Unable to run off while the car stands, Oil-Plating kills the old fear of starting "dry." Likewise Oil-Plating refuses to let go in all the fury of 5,000 revolutions per minute. That's why your "good old car" or the latest model will stay more like new, with its engine Oil-Plated. And your whole Summer's driving will take less Conoco Germ Processed oil. DANIEL S. PAYTON TAKEN BY DEATH

DIED SUNDAY NIGHT IN SAN DIEGO, CALIFORNIA

Was Former County Clerk and Treasurer, and Charlevoix Deputy City Clerk—Funeral Here Monday

Charlevoix county has lost a former prominent official in the death of Daniel S. Payton, who died at 6:30 o'clock Sunday night at the home of his son, Vernon, in San Diego, Calif. His passing came after an extended illness.

Mr. Payton was born November 2, 1856, at Louisville, Ky. He received a grade school education in Louisville and Cincinnati, and took a course at the Bryant & Stratton's Business College at Cincinnati. He came with his parents to Eveline township in 1880. In 1882, he went to Arizona, where for three or four years he was engaged in dealing in lumber and mining supplies.

After returning, Mr. Payton was elected in 1895 as supervisor of Eveline township, serving in this capacity ten years, during which period he was chairman of the board two terms. He resigned this position to accept the office of county treasurer and served as treasurer and county clerk alternately for ten years. He was deputy city clerk of the city of Charlevoix for 13 years.

Mr. Payton was a prominent Mason and a life member of the order. He was among those responsible for the Masonic temple here, and served as secretary of the Masonic Building & Loan Association for many years.

Mr. Payton was married August 10, 1882, to Miss Minnie French. To this union were born two children, Vernon S., with whom he had resided the past five years, and Minnie E., of this city, who survive. Mrs. Payton died 18 years ago. Surviving also are three grandchildren, Donald S. Payton, a student of mining engineering at Albuquerque, N. M., Virginia Payton, studying music in New York, and Helen Payton, San Diego, Calif.; also a sister, Mrs. L. P. Lander, of Chicago.

Mrs. Vernon Payton will accompany the body to Charlevoix, and Masonic funeral rites will be observed at the Congregational church Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with Rev. John Alexander officiating.

MASTERS

It is hardly too strong to say that the Constitution was made to guard people against the dangers of good intentions, real or pretended. There are men in all ages who mean to exercise power usefully, but who mean to exercise it. They promise to be kind masters, but they mean to be masters.—Daniel Webster. (One hundred years ago.)

FUNERAL HERE SATURDAY FOR JOHN MASON

Body of Former Resident Who Died In Texas, Brought Here for Burial

Short funeral services were held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bridge last Saturday afternoon for John Mason, whose death occurred April 21 at Mercedes, Tex. Rev. John Alexander officiated and interment was at Brookside cemetery.

John F. Mason was born October 19, 1857, at Point aux Barques, Mich. He came to Charlevoix as an infant in the same year. He attended the public schools here and later operated a steamboat on Pine Lake between Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City.

He married Elizabeth Mary Nicholls at Charlevoix on December 26, 1883. One son, Harry Day Mason, was born to this union. The widow and son survive him, also one grandson and two sisters, Mrs. Ida Ackert and Mrs. J. A. Markham, of Charlevoix.

Mr. Mason left Charlevoix about 1890, moving to Oregon and later to California and Texas. At the time of his death he was a life member of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A. M.

CHARLEVOIX WINS FIRST TRACK MEET

DEFEATED MANCELONA 54 TO 50 HERE FRIDAY

Local Athletes Place in Every Event, Sweep Four Events — Compete Friday at East Jordan

Charlevoix High school thin-clads nosed out Mancelona 54 points to 50 to win a dual field meet here Thursday afternoon.

The event, opening the spring track season for both schools, was held under adverse conditions. A cold, high wind was unfavorable, providing discomfort for the athletes and spectators alike.

Charlevoix placed in every event to pile up a winning margin of points and took all places in the high jump, mile, 440-yard dash and 880-yard event.

Following are the results:

High Hurdles—Turnipseed, Mancelona; Bailey, Mancelona; Richardson, Charlevoix.

Shot-put — Helms, Mancelona; Gregory, Radle, Charlevoix.

100-yard Dash — Helms, Mancelona; Smith, Mancelona; Edwards, Charlevoix.

High Jump—Bergmann, Gallagher and Goss, Charlevoix; tied at 4 feet 8 inches.

Mile—Radle, Gregory and Struthers, Charlevoix.

440-yard — Shapton, Hiller and Miller, Charlevoix.

220-ynrd Low Hurdles — Smith, Turnipseed, Mancelona; Goss, Charlevoix.

220-yard Dash — Helms, Mancelona; Edwards, Nowland, Charlevoix.

880-yard Dash — Olach, Gleason and Palmer, Charlevoix.

Broad Jump—Shapton, Charlevoix; Smith, Mancelona; Livingston, Charlevoix.

Pole Vault — Turnipseed, Bailey, Mancelona; Livingston, Charlevoix.

Mancelona's quartet won the relay race.

Charlevoix will participate in its second conference track meet Friday, competing against East Jordan and Boyne City in an invitational meet at East Jordan.

BELOVED WOMAN TAKEN BY DEATH ON FRIDAY

Funeral Services Conducted Monday for Annie Matilda Metcalf

Funeral services were conducted at the Methodist church Monday afternoon for Annie Matilda Metcalf, long-time Charlevoix resident, whose death occurred Friday evening, April 23, at the home of her brother, Frank Metcalf.

Rev. John Alexander officiated at the services and Mrs. Alexander sang the hymn, "Lead Kindly Light." Burial was at Brookside cemetery.

Deceased was born at Uxbridge, Canada, the daughter of James and Susannah Metcalf. She came to Charlevoix with her parents in 1881, and was a teacher in Charlevoix county schools over 30 years.

She had been an active member of the Methodist church since childhood, was almost a constant teacher in the Sunday school, a work which she dearly loved, and was also active in missionary work and in the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Charles Arnold, two brothers, George A., of Muskegon, and Frank N., of Charlevoix, two nephews, Allen E. Arnold, of Birmingham, and Herbert Alcox, of Charlevoix, also two nieces, Susannah Metcalf and Lucille Hulme, both of Charlevoix.

YOUTHS' TEMPERANCE COUNCIL

The Y. T. C. met at the John Struthers home with a large number present. It is encouraging, the interest that is being shown. Our program of lighthouse character was the highlight of the evening. It was divided into four parts. Spiritual character was presented by Florence Palmer, in which she proved that spiritual character is very important for a life to be most successful. She included: Reverence, worship, ideals, love, purity, honor, faith, and hope. Social character was presented by Susanah Metcalf. In her talk she pointed out cooperation, reliability, friendship, service, generosity, sympathy, kindness, and loyalty. Iva Howe gave us a picture of what our mental character should be. She said observation, initiative, judgment, reason, self-control, obedience, courage, and will make up the mental character. How could we progress without it? Physical character was presented by Marie Hansen; efficiency, industry, strength, habits, cleanliness, health, and food. Each were presented from the spiritual standpoint, and the liquor and narcotic standpoint. Our strength of character is best when we built on the rock, which is Christ Jesus.

The program for the next meeting will be an alcohol demonstration, held at the home of Susanah Metcalf.

Refreshments of maple syrup, cookies and sandwiches were served.

CHRIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Service will be held in Christ church Sunday evening, 7:30 o'clock, May 2. Rev. Edward S. Doan in charge. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Now the latest. We have knocking at our harbor at least a million dollar yacht business. Are we again going to lose it by inadequate facilities? Heard a fellow say, Why take business off the east side of Bridge street? It can't be taken out; it is already about gone. The loss of taxes and the other can be answered in one. The few good businesses on the east can easily come to the west side; there is plenty of room, and some good buildings will replace some shacks. We need the water front. No one who knows or cares can deny that. Yachtsmen do not care to tie up behind such wrecks as line the water front here. Boats attract all people and the finest advertising we can buy is to open up to the lake so the tourists can see its beauty as they drive through. It will stop them as nothing else will. Seeing things as I do, I cannot conceive of any person so devoid of any care for our future that they would for a one second countenance the thought of an oil station in the very middle of it. Are we again going to wait 20 years to do the thing that should have been done before this? We are building docks now. Did you ever stop to think that the purchase of the Ayers property now would settle the affair and not cost us anything for the first payment? This building will salvage enough good material for the new docks and also to replank the old (which must be done) to make the down payment.

You have used your eyes this winter. I take five boat papers and read about every Florida harbor. We are away behind. As you know, I am in a position to realize the need here in sports and boating. Several fine things have been done in the past few years. Dock, sewage disposal, bathing beach, golf course, etc. But boating is the largest single thing we have. Here are a few: One yacht outfitted here, $30,000; three 1936 wrecks from a bad harbor, $15,000. Must stop. Could write a whole paper as large as yours all on the reasons why we must have the whole east side of Bridge street for the biggest business in this end of Michigan.

Best wishes for the cause.

BILL BELLINGER.

HOLD PEACE RALLY HERE ON MAY 14TH

DR. ROYAL G. HALL, OF ALBION COLLEGE, SPEAKER

Charlevoix Joining in State and Nation-Wide Program to Promote Peace Among Nations

Everyone in Charlevoix and vicinity is cordially invited to attend a special Peace rally, a program set up by the Emergency Peace Committee of the State, and sponsored by a local committee with Rev. J. W. Alexander, pastor of the Methodist church as chairman.

This rally will be held in the high school auditorium, Friday evening, May 14, at 8 o'clock. These meetings are being held all over the state and nution, and our city is fortunate to be selected as one of the centers for such a meeting.

The speaker for the evening will be Dr. Royal G. Hall, instructor of political science in Albion College. Dr. Hall has been a guest speaker in Charlevoix before, having appeared before the Kiwanis Club a year or two back. It is felt that those who heard Dr. Hall ut that time will want to hear him again on this one great and important subject. The subject for Dr. Hall's address will be "The Struggle for Peace."

Dr. Hall is widely known as a speaker and writer. His writings appear in national journals of note; and he is engaged constantly in delivering addresses before church, club, college, and other groups. He is a member of the International Relations Committee of the National Educational Association. He was the American lecturer at the International Conference nt Honfleur, France, in the summer of 1932; and again in 1936 he served in a similar capacity. This conference drew together a group of leaders from European countries and America, and conducted for two weeks a discussion of international, economic, social, and political issues. He has also had five years of social and religious work in Hawaii and Siam.

This will be a rare opportunity for the people in Charlevoix to hear first hand some of the conditions in European countries in relation to the conditions found in our own country.

There will be other features on the program; among them will be special music by the Melodiers, a musical organization composed of young ladies in our high school.

The fact is emphasized that there will be no charge of admission or collection taken during the program.

DR. LASHMET LECTURE ON CANCER HERE MAY 12

Public Is Invited to Hear Petoskey Physician at High School

Charlevoix citizens are again reminded of the appearance at the high school assembly room, at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, May 12, of Dr. F. H. Lashmet, of Petoskey.

Dr. Lashmet will present his popular illustrated lecture on cancer, and will present information that every person will be interested in.

FIRE HAZARD GREAT UNTIL FORESTS BECOME "GREEN"

Forest fire hazards will be high this spring until Northern Michigan turns "green" with new foliage and ground vegetation. Trout fishermen are being warned by conservation officers to be careful with fire in the woods. A number of minor fires already have occurred in widely-separated parts of the northern half of the Lower Peninsula.

MAROLD BLAST VICTIM WAS FOUND SATURDAY

Body of Leon Hill, Found Near Detour Point, Identified by Receipts

The body of Leon A. Hill, of Charlevoix, was washed up on the beach at Detour Point, 125 miles from the spot near the Straits of Mackinac where Hill and four others lost their lives when the tug Marold II exploded in upper Lake Michigan on New Year's Day.

Dan Kitts, of Fairport, found the decomposed body Saturday. It was battered so badly from the pounding waves on its long trip that identification was possible only through the contents of a water-soaked pocketbook containing $11 and receipts.

Sheriff William Miron notified Sheriff Floyd Ikens, of Charlevoix county, who said that Hill's widow and children now are residing in Flint. The body was ordered held until word is received from his relatives.

Hill was a member of a crew salvaging gasoline from the wrecked tanker Oswald Boyd when their tug blew up.

LEGION ERECTS SAFETY MARKERS

HANDSOME HIGHWAY SIGNS PLACED BY LOCAL POST

Represent Cooperation With National Safety Campaign Sponsored by This Organization

Motorists returning to the city after trips out of town have doubtless noticed with interest the handsome new metal signs erected at the outskirts of Charlevoix, displaying the emblem of the American Legion and a warning to drivers.

These signs were secured by the local post at considerable expense through the National Headquarters of the Legion and have been erected by it, in cooperation with the city, as a part of the Legion's national safety campaign. One is located at the Co-op corners on Highway 66; another on US-31, near Taylor's Cabins, and a third on Highway 31, just east of Meech street.

The signs are 18 inches by 30 inches in size, specially prepared, enameled and embossed in porcelain. The words, "Welcome to" are in red, and "Charlevoix, Michigan" in blue. Then follows the Legion emblem in the proper colors of gold and blue. Below this the admonitions, "Drive Carefully" and "Protect Our Children" appear in red, and then "Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226" in blue. All lettering is on a white field. The signs are erected on metal stakes at a distance of 40 inches above the ground.

Officers and members of the local post are to be congratulated on their fine public spirit in placing these attractive signs on the highways and thereby demonstrating their earnestness in conducting the important campaign that the Legion is making, nationally, to lower the distressing death rate caused by automobile accidents.

WELL KNOWN EVELINE WOMAN DIED SATURDAY

Funeral Service at East Jordan Tuesday for Mrs. Joseph Kemp

Funeral services were held at East Jordan at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon for Mrs. Joseph Kemp, well known Eveline township woman, whose death occurred Saturday nt Petoskey Hospital.

Services were held at the East Jordan Methodist church, Rev. John Cermak officiating, and interment was at East Jordan.

Sarah Elizabeth Mitchell was born March 25, 1868, at Wayne, Mich., the daughter of Jacob and Phllinda Mitchell. She was married in 1889 nt Charlevoix to Joseph Kemp, and the couple settled on the Eveline towaship farm which has since been their home.

Surviving are the husband nnd nine children, viz.: Neal J., of Charlevoix, Lance, of East Jordan, Mrs. George Curtiss, of Plymouth, Wallace R., of Alma, Mrs. Ira Olney, of Alma, Walter W. and Mrs. Leila Orvis, of East Jordan, Hugh M., of Croswell, and Mrs. Sedric Lndbrook, of Detroit. Other survivors include two sisters, Mrs. Florence Bell, of Ann Arbor, and Mrs. Jennie Westfall, of Plymouth, also 21 grandchildren.

Arthur C. Tilney, one-legged shoe repair man of Crawfordsville, Ind., has ridden a bicycle for 45 years, pedaling a distance of 78,000 miles and has worn out four bikes.

CHARLEVOIX WINS TRACK, BASEBALL

BEAT EAST JORDAN 15 TO 4 FIRST BALL GAME

Scored 52 Points to Cop Invitational Track Meet from East Jordan, Boyne City and Petoskey

Charlevoix High school athletes distingulshed themselvea in two sports during the past week and indicated the possibility of gaining additional honors in Tip of Michigan Class C conference competition.

Opening their baseball schedule here Thursday afternoon the Rayders swamped East Jordan by a 15 to 4 score in a seven-inning contest, nnd Friday scored 52 points to outdistance East Jordan, Boyne City and Petoskey in an invitational track meet at East Jordan.

Win Baseball Contest

Frank Kulpa and Danforth Gallagher shared the hurling duties in Charlevoix's baseball victory over East Jordan. Kulpa allowed one hit and struck out six batters in the first six innings. East Jordan scored three runs off Gallagher in the seventh. Doyle Richnrdson handled the catching duties.

Charlevoix scored two runs in the third inning, nine in the fourth and four in the fifth. Richardson, Gallagher, Kulpa and Charles Smith each made two hits.

Sommerville and Bowman were the losing battery. Sommerville struck out eight batters and Bowman led his team at bat with two singles and a base on balls in three times at the plate.

The box score:

		R	H	E
Charlevoix	.....002 940 0	15	13	2
East Jordan	.....000 100 3	4	4	4

Take Six Firsts at Track

At Friday's track meet at East Jordan, Charlevoix athletes romped off with six firsts and enough second and third places to win. Charlevoix scored 52 points, Boyne was second with 39 5-6, East Jordan had 37 1-6, and Petoskey 10.

Leslie Shapton won the broad jump and 220-yard low hurdles; Richard Bergmann the high jump, Edward Radle the mile run, Olach the half-mile, and Robert Livingston the pole vault.

Charlevoix continues its baseball schedule Friday, playing Boyne City at Boyne, and on Saturday, May 8, Coaches Kipke and Coleman take their track team to Petoskey for the annual Northern Michigan invitational meet.

ANNUAL HEALTH LEAGUE LUNCHEON BOYNE CITY

Dr. Howard McCluskey, U. of M., Obtained for Speaker

Advance notice is being given the people of Charlevoix county regarding the annual luncheon meeting of the Charlevoix County Child Health League, to be held Friday, May 21, at 12:30 noon, at the Dilworth Hotel, Boyne City.

The advance notice is being given because the League has been successful in accomplishing the almost impossible—the obtaining of Dr. Howard McCluskey, of the University of Michigan, as speaker. He will talk on the topic, "Mental Hygiene and the Health Profession."

More details regarding the program and important matters for discussion nt the business meeting will be published later.

EXTENSION GROUPS MEET ON SATURDAY

ANNUAL ACHIEVEMENT PROGRAM AT EAST JORDAN

Three Hundred Expected to Participate—Exhibits and Entertainment Are Arranged

(By B. C. Mellencamp)

The year's activity for the ladies who have participated in the Nutrition project and the Child Care and Training project will be concluded on Tuesday, May 11, in the East Jordan school auditorium, when the annual Achievement Day takes place. It is fully expected that 300 farm and city women will enjoy the wonderful program developed, and inspect the exhibits.

Fifteen different communities have studied the Nutrition project which started last October. Eight groups participated in the Child Care and Training project under the leadership of Mrs. Lydia Ann Lynde. This is the largest number of communities that have studied Home Economics projects. Miss Roberta Hershey, who has taught the nutrition project groups, will be present on Achievement Day.

C. H. Mahoney, specialist in horticulture, has been engaged to give the featured address of the afternoon. He will discuss vegetables in the home garden. Especially will this be appropriate at this time of the year when all of us are planning on a family food supply from our home gardens. The exhibits will likewise be a feature of the day. These exhibits cover practically all phases of nutrition interest. The public is cordially invited and urged to attend this Achievement Day.

Mrs. Abe Cohn, county chairman, ably assisted by Miss Bernice Bashaw and Mrs. Blanche Thompson, have spent considerable time and attention in arranging the various details, and for your enjoyment the splendid program which follows:

Morning Session—10:30

Call to order, Mrs. Abe Cohn.

Community singing, Mrs. Sadie Liskum.

Roll call of secretary, Mrs. Fred Willis.

Reading of minutes, Mrs. Fred Willis.

Report of county election, Mrs. Fred Willis.

Report of year's project, Miss Roberta Hershey.

Dinner at Methodist church.

Afternoon Session—1:30

Call to order, Mrs. Abe Cohn.

Community singing, Mrs. Sadie Liskum.

Address of welcome, Miss Bernice Bashaw.

Response, Mrs. Lavina Lockman.

Taap dancing, pupils of Miss Merry.

Flute duet, Marty Clark and Wilma Shepard.

Folks and Food, Miss Roberta Hershey.

Piano solo, Jacklyn Cook.

Vegetable Gardening—1937 Style, C. H. Mahoney.

Presentation of certificates, B. C. Mellencamp.

COUNCIL CONFIRMS THREE APPOINTEES

OAKLEY J. HAMMOND RENAMED CITY ASSESSOR

Robert Madill Reappointed, Harry A. Craig Named New Member of Cemetery Board

Three appointments to city offices were made by Mayor Arthur Bergeon and confirmed by the council at Monday night's session.

Two members of the cemetery board were named. They are Harry A. Craig for a period of one year to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Shirley B. Henry, and Robert J. Madill, appointed to succeed himself for a term of six years.

Oakley J. Hammond, deputy city clerk, was reappointed city assessor for another term. Mr. Hammond has served as assessor for two terms.

Resolutions providing authorization for installation of curb and gutter on Ainslie and Nettleton streets were adopted, along with the division of cost for project. A similar project, petitioned by property owners on East Upright avenue, east of May street, was also approved and necessary legal steps taken to provide authorization for the improvement.

The contract for construction of new yacht slips at East Park, city property between Mason and Clinton streets, was awarded to Charles Roe, of Harbor Springs. Work on this project will be started following completion of other dock jobs Mr. Roe now has under way here.

PERCH SPAWNING RUN ATTRACTS SPORTSMEN

Over Forty Boats Anchored Sunday on Round Lake Harbor

Round Lake harbor took on the appearance of a regatta Sunday as hundreds of sportsmen gathered from regional nnd down-state points for the annual spring perch run which is now under way.

Every conceivable type of craft was used by the anglers, even to rafts, canoes and larger fish boats. Hundreds of persons also fished from the docks und, without exception, good catches were reported by all. Excellent perch fishing is also available at Ironton. One group of over 20 boats was noted Sunday afternoon off Orvis Bay, south of the Ironton Ferry.

ACHIEVEMENT DAY A GREAT SUCCESS

NEARLY THREE HUNDRED TOOK PART IN PROGRAM

Displays of Handicraft Work Were Very Commendable—Name the County Champions for 1937

(By B. C. Mellencamp)

The annual 4-H club achievement day held on Tuesday, April 20, in the Boyne City High school gymnasium, proved to be an outstanding event. The attendance was the largest to enjoy any 4-H club event, and the quality of work displayed by over 350 club members was very evident. The gymnasium on all three sides was completely taken up with the many displays.

Fifteen hot lunch clubs finished the club requirement and displayed a set of four posters. These covered the entire east side of the gymnasium and made a very attractive appearance. It took 14 tables to hold the handicraft articles. It was very surprising to see the many large articles completed by the boys. In fact, one of the cedar chests completed by a sixth year boy, certainly displayed a lot of comment. The clothing articles were displayed on a white background extending the entire length of the north and south sides.

Without a doubt the big feature of the afternoon program was the dress revue in which nearly 100 girls participated. The response to the address of welcome by Glenn Trojanek, East Jordan, was particularly well-received by the huge audience. Lester Walcutt, of East Jordan, acted as chairman and very ably took charge of the afternoon program. Superintendent of Schools F. K. Killian extended the address of welcome to the hundreds of visitors. Community singing was led by W. Savola, music instructor, and the club pledge by Alma Barber, of Bay Shore. The entertainment features of the program were handled by the hill billies, a musical organization from the Boyne City High school. They put on several specialties that kept the audience in an uproar during the progress of the program.

William C. Palmer, county school commissioner, gave a short talk. Mr. Palmer has long been interested in the 4-H club program and has helped greatly in its success. The announcement of awards and special recognition were extended by Mr. Kettunen, club leader, and Miss Beatrice Boyle, assistant club leader. They spoke in very high terms of the splendid work being done by over 40,000 club members in the state of Michigan.

DISTRICT REBEKAHS MET HERE FOR CONVENTION

Mrs. Grace Geneit Named Vice President of District Eighteen

Charlevoix Rebekahs were hosts to delegates from Rebekah lodges of Northern Michigan at the 12th annual session of the Rebekah Association of District No. 18 here last Friday.

A fine program was enjoyed by the delegates attending, and entertainment features were provided by the hostess lodge.

Mrs. Myrtle Mitchell, of this city, gave the address of welcome. The principal address was given by Mabel Alexander, of Detroit.

East Jordan was selected for the next meeting place and officers for the ensuing year were chosen as follows: President, Bertha Milton, Petoskey; vice-president, Grace Geneit, Charlevoix; secretary, Maude Kichtinger, Boyne City; treasurer, Bessie Frook, Pellston.

In the Spring a Young Man's Foncy

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Apprehensiveness over Governor Murphy's "little New Deal" for Michigan is rapidly fading as the cards are dealt, one by one, during the closing weeks of the legislative session. If industry had any fears of so-called "radical" legislation—such as an arbitrary 35 or 40 hour maximum week for women which would impose hardships on canneries, small factories, retail stores, telephone exchanges, and others — most of the fears were dissipated in recent developments.

Take, for example, Rep. Charles Snow's minimum wage bill, House Bill 66.

As amended both by committee and by the House on general orders, this measure proposes a 48 hour and six-day week; food plants are given seasonal exemption from the hour provision; the state labor department is granted wide discretionary powers to "modify" the provisions in the interest of "public convenience and necessity."

"Strike Arbitration"

The latest card in the Murphy labor deck was revealed last week-end when the Legislature received a labor-relations bill which would outlaw

Edd Yettaw, living at Bay View, northwest of town, has been quite ill the last few weeks, and a physician was called.

Mr. Vandenberg, of Ellsworth, is now located in the Pecumen building on Main street with his second hand furniture store.

Moses King has returned from Grand Rapids, where he went as juror, and is now working at the court house again.

Fred Cahill is still substituting for Wilfred Davison on the mail route, while Mr. Davis is recuperating from his recent operation for appendicitis.

Willie Welch is working Mrs. Bertha Edwards' farm this summer, instead of Harry Chamberlain, who has operated the farm for several years.

Blaine Wilson has returned from Ann Arbor, where he went last week for eye treatment and to get glasses. He visited in Flint and other points during his stay.

Rev. Guy Liskum preached at the F. M. church in town Sunday forenoon, as Rev. Glen Cornett, the regular pastor, had to preach the funeral sermon for Mr. Smith, east of Bellaire.

Maurice Dawson and family have moved to the George Morrow farm, southwest of town, and will work for Mr. Morrow this summer. He is keeping part of his stock on the Darling farm.

Vero Burch, of Kewadin, is building a fireplace at the log cabin of Clyde Roller, on the Charles Austin farm, at Bay View. Mr. Roller and wife will be up this way during the summer season.

Clarence Patton, who has been living southwest of town on the Phil Eckhardt place, has purchased the Wooton farm at Bay View and moved last week. His children will attend Bay View school.

Rev. Reed, the M. E. pastor here and at Bellaire, organized a Sunday school last Sunday afternoon at the Esseltine school house, east of town. Dwight Bannister, who lives on the east side of town, is the superintendent.

Mrs. Eleanor Stonehouse Aemsiegar, of Alden, has returned to Mancelona from the Hodge home here, where she was operated on for appendicitis. She will remain at home until she recovers sufficiently to return to Alden.

Rev. G. A. Weaver, missionary from Petoskey, was down this way Sunday, and preached at Creswell, Turner and Ball Sunday schools. He was well pleased with the gain in attendance at the several schools. There were 22 at Creswell, 27 at Turner, and 36 at Grand View.

The young people of Bellaire M. E. church, in charge of Mrs. Reed, the pastor's wife, gave a presentation last Sunday evening of the events in the Book of Ruth, which was a fine spiritual representation of that book of the Bible. Miss Melva Bedell, teacher at Turner school, near Bellaire, took the part of Naomi, and certainly did splendidly. A free will offering was taken.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS
By B. C. Mellencamp

Inasmuch as this is the time of year when there is great interest in seeds and fertilizers, it seems proper to again call to the attention of cooperating farmers that good seed must be used.

If you are purchasing seed this spring, first of all be sure that you buy seed that is adapted to this county. Home grown seed, Michigan seed, and seed from most seed producing states is considered adapted. Seed from Canada is O.K. to use, but imported seed that is stained 10 per cent red is unadapted and no payments can be made from this source. Furthermore, whenever you buy seed, don't forget to save your invoice, which must show where the seed was purchased, its origin, its cost, and amount purchased. Also remember that cheap seed is the more expensive in the end. Also, remember you run the gamble of not receiving payment for seed that is purchased at too low a price to be considered good quality. And next remember that you must have a satisfactory stand at time of compliance if payments can be made.

Several farmers apparently have the wrong interpretation of the use of commercial fertilizers. Absolutely no payment is available unless fertilizer is used on soil conserving crops such as established hay fields, new seedings without a nurse crop or where the nurse crop is used at one-half normal rate and not cut for grain, and all pasture fields. In other words, commercial fertilizers used on corn, beans, potatoes and any other soil depletion crop are not eligible to receive payment for this practice. Another thing is that you must use not less than 32 units of phosphate or 50 units of potash if payments can be made. As an example, 200 pounds of 0-16-0 is the smallest amount of phosphate that you can receive credit for. Two hundred and fifty pounds per acre of 0-20-0 earns a payment of $2.80 per acre, as both phosphate and potash requirements are met in the same analysis. See your dealer about the use of fertilizer, or your county committee, or your township committee so that you use the commercial fertilizer properly. The office in Boyne City will gladly send out any information required, so write in if you are uncertain.

Thus far 627 payments have been made to farmers in this county. Thirty-one payments are still to be received before the 1936 program has been completely closed. Remember that your township committeeman has blanks for your use in obtaining the proper information relative to buying seed or threshing your own seed. See your nearest committeeman and get the blanks that will help you keep the proper record on all practices. To be safe, keep a record of everything that takes place during the year that has reference to the soil conservation program.

STANDARD SERVICE

IS SAFETY SERVICE

... More than 23,000 Standard Oil Dealers are on the job a quarter of a million working hours every day to check your motor oil... to help prevent burned out bearings, scored cylinders and other costly engine troubles caused by lack of lubrication.

It's easy to say, "My oil's okay," but it takes less than sixty seconds to be sure... to let your Standard Oil Dealer show you the "oil line" on the gauge.

This check-up on your oil is only one of the many motoring aids your Standard Oil Dealer offers, to make driving not only safer, but also pleasanter and more economical for you.

$10,000 IN CASH PRIZES FOR HUGE "SERVICE SURVEY"

CHICAGO — Automobile drivers of the Middle-West are invited by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to take part in a huge survey of the services now being rendered at gasoline stations.

To take part in the survey it is necessary only to drive to a Standard Oil Dealer's station and secure an entry card.

Your Standard Oil Dealer will give you full details of the "Survey," will validate your entry card and demonstrate "Standard Service" with at least three typical examples. Upon request he will assist you in preparation of your entry.

A committee of three members composed of Prof. Lloyd D. Herrold, Northwestern University; George W. Barton, Safety Director, Chicago Motor Club; and Roger B. Stafford, Managing Editor, "Super Service Station," Chicago, will act as judges in the selection of the most valuable reports.

Motorists who submit the winning reports will receive cash awards amounting to $5,000, while Standard Oil Dealers who assist the winners will be awarded a like sum, making a grand total of $10,000 in prizes.

All reports must be mailed before midnight of June 15, to be considered for the cash awards.

CHAPTER VII.

And this was the night that Phil actually got a trout—quite a big one—and the night they saw a rattler, and the night they picked the hazel nuts.

"Oh, we do have fun!" Edith commented luxuriously, lying on the flat hot stones as the meal finished.

There was silence in the group that was resting on the shingle in the dusk. A great owl floated low over the dam, and was gone; the creek rippled, rippled in the pause.

Clearing away all signs of the picnic in the fast-gathering dusk, Gail tried an experiment. Upon Dick's carrying off the coffee pot to throw the grounds away behind the trees, she rewarded him with a casual "Thank you, dear!" said in just the tone she used to Sam and Phil. Later she said again, "Take that, will you, dear?"

She couldn't remember whether she had ever called Dick "dear" before. If she had, it had not meant anything. Probably she had, for it seemed to make not the slightest impression on him tonight. If he had looked surprised she had planned to laugh quite naturally and say, "I thought I was talking to Sam!"

But there was no necessity for this explanation. Dick paid no attention to the affectionate monosyllable. Oblivious old Dick, she thought, who never dreamed that close beside him was a woman who was thrilling with love and happiness and the need for him in this wonderful hour of autumn warmth and moonshine!

They walked, singing, down the steep, rutty half mile to the cars; Gail needed a hand now; the hand that gripped her own was Dick's. She marveled that he could not feel the electric current that ran through the tips of the square, firm fingers.

Afterward she always remembered the night they went up to the dam. A hot night of moonshine and laughter and talk on the shingle above the dam.

Soon the weather changed and autumn came in, with October, in earnest. The leaves began to fall now, and the winds to blow. To Gail it was a thrilling time, this autumn filled with hints of change, of endings and beginnings. She was in love, and it was entirely different from what she had expected it to be. Far from giggles, rapture and excitement, it was a serious business; it made her feel grown up and responsible.

She could never love anyone else but Dick; it was all settled. Everything she thought now had to have him in it; the future had narrowed itself down to just Dick.

He had no money, he was country-bred, he was only the son of the people who rented the old Lawrence place over in Stanislaus—it did not matter. Gail, who had always felt that Clippersville limited and bound her, knew herself quite willing—oh, breathlessly willing!—to live contentedly in Clippersville forever, or out on the Stanislaus ranch forever; if Dick so decreed. What Ariel or Edith would think of this sudden altering of all her dreams was nothing; there was nothing anywhere, except Dick!

All life was a miracle now, and she walked in the glory of it like somebody lifted above the earth. All the happy old customs that she and Edith had known for years were touched with new joy and new pain. When Dick joined the family circle the air was only a little more electrified than when he did not come.

And meanwhile Van had established a more comfortable footing in the old Lawrence house than ever before, and while he and Ariel did not seem to be exactly flirting—exactly having an affair—there was a far more substantial base to their relationship than his friendship with Gail had ever known. Very quietly, in an almost bored tone, Ariel told her sisters in early November that Van was going east to get to work.

"No more college?"

"No, he wants to get into business. His father says he'll start him in the New Jersey plant."

"Then he won't come back to Clippersville?"

"Yes. He's going to be back for a week in January. That's—that's month after next!"

"He's coming back after her!" Edith said, when she and Gail were alone.

"Oh, Ede, it does look like it!"

Gail's imagination was off at full speed: Ariel married at eighteen to young Van Murchison; Edith and Phil and Sam living on here at the old house; herself and Dick . . .

But this last snatched at her breath. Herself and Dick. People in the library would glance at her: "She's engaged; she's going to marry that young lawyer, Richard Stebbins."

Dick would have cases, and she would study every detail of every case and keep up with him. And she would have babies—babies tumbling about among the flowers.

Happiness, happiness, happiness—to be married to him, to have Dick all to herself! The miracle of marriage, the amazing dazzling glory of it, surrounded her with a cloud of mist by day and of fire by night.

It began to seem as if things were happening in Clippersville, after all. The sluggish current of Gail's life was stirred in many ways. It was not only that Phil got a raise, and that Van Murchison might marry Ariel. Sam was working for a scholarship, and might actually win a year at Columbia? Columbia university in New York. Gail was assistant librarian now, with the name "Abigail Lawrence" printed in gold on the library windows and a salary of fifty-five dollars a month.

And then Christmas was coming. Always exciting, it seemed doubly so this year. She fairly danced to work in the mornings, and Edith would come home in the darkness of five o'clock to hear her singing over dinner preparations in the kitchen.

Dick was boarding with them now, for his mother had gone to Oregon to stay with a daughter newly widowed, and there were only men on the Stanislaus ranch.

There was one cloud in the sky, to be sure. Gail and Edith acknowledged its existence bravely one December evening when they asked Dick if he thought Phil really cared for Lily Cass.

"That's a hard question to answer," Dick said, with a faint frown and a sigh.

"Do you like her, Dick?"

"Well—she's not my type. But she's an awfully sweet little thing, really."

"Is she divorced, Dick?"

"No. But there's talk of it."

"If she were, do you believe Phil really would marry her?"

A pause. Then Dick asked slowly, "Would you girls care?"

"You've answered!" Gail said, with a brief, mirthless laugh.

"I suppose I have." Dick sighed again. "There—there never was anything wrong with Lily," he offered, doubtfully.

"No!" Gail agreed forcefully. "Except that she was as common as fruit flies, and ran with that terrible box-factory gang, and chewed gum in church, and talked way up in G major."

This rather finished Lily's case for the moment. But a little later Gail said apologetically, "I don't know why I got so wild about poor Lily. She certainly is having a rather tough time of it."

"I'll tell you!" Dick said eagerly. "Phil's the quiet sort. He loves Clippersville; he wouldn't change places with the President. Phil wants to stay here and develop the place, and he loves Lily—or if he loves her—" Dick floundered, turning red, and correcting himself hastily.

"We know he loves her; you needn't be so scrupulous!" Gail said with a dry little laugh. "I believe you'd stand up for Phil if he went out some night and cut somebody's throat!"

But she loved Dick for his loyalty none the less, and carried the mutton stew with one idea in her mind, "They all eat it, and he loves it carried!"

Christmas falling on a Tuesday, they all went up to the woods on the Saturday afternoon preceding it, and came back laden with evergreen, scarlet toyon berries, crisp, polished huckleberry branches, and the one great bunch of mistletoe that Dick climbed high into a dying oak to secure.

Gail, frantic to start tying bundles and mixing batters, had to spend the wet Monday in the library. She walked up to Muller's at five o'clock, not only to wait for Edith but to help her effectually while she was waiting. Edith was in an exhausted whirl of last Christmas sales; Ariel also was there as one of her Christmas assistants, at two dollars a day.

Rain was twinkling and sparkling in the black night as the Lawrences came wearily, excitedly out and started for home. Ariel was very silent.

But Gail and Edith were gay. Christmas eve, at library and shop, was over, and nothing but fun and holiday ahead. Edith thought of the tissue paper and ribbons in her lower bureau drawer. She would begin wrapping and marking packages right after dinner; she had completely ruined herself on presents, as usual, and she felt the usual joy in her plight.

Gail thought of presents, too. She wondered if Dick would give her a present—of course he would! She would not care what it was; it would be the most valued thing she received. Dick needed socks and ties and belts and gloves—if he went to Los Angeles next week he would need gloves—but she had dared give him none of these. Books. She had two books for him. In one, with a fast-beating heart, she had written, "Dick, with love from A. L." Love from Abigail Lawrence for Dick Stebbins!

"Perhaps we'll be married by next Christmas!" thought Gail, running, racing, hurrying home in the black, rainy darkness of Christmas eve.

It seemed to her the most wonderful Christmas they had ever had. From the hour on Christmas eve when she, Ariel, and Edith got home wet, cold, and tired to the warm kitchen and to planning and laughter and tea, toast, and jam and wrapping gifts and surprises, until the two o'clock dinner on Christmas day was safely served, there was not a flaw.

They got all their presents ready and at eleven o'clock set the table for breakfast, then walked under warm shining stars to church at midnight. Every one stumbled back utterly exhausted, to go to bed heavily and blindly, fingers sore from strings and tinsel, backs and feet aching, hands scented with pine resin, hearts filled with happiness.

And then it was Christmas morning, and every one was thanking every one else and Gail was honestly amazed at all the things they got—and such beautiful things. Tables were loaded with boxes and bundles. Everybody got everything; there was no end to the gifts, nor to the tissue paper and ribbons that rained on the floor for somebody always to gather up and heap on the fire.

Breakfast, leisurely and late, was wonderful, and by eleven o'clock the scents of the early afternoon meal were in the spicy, warm Christmas-scented air. Dick was leaving for Los Angeles at seven; Ariel had promised Miss Lizzie Vail, with whom she had been studying dramatic expression, to have supper with Lizzie and her mother.

"Hat come home early, darling, for tomorrow's your birthday, and we have to celebrate all over again!"

Thus Gail, as she flew about the kitchen in the full glory of dinner-getting.

"Oh, I will, Gail!" Ariel was very docile. She seemed to her sisters to be at her sweetest today. Van had sent her no present that they knew of. But Christmas mails were always late. Phil and Dick walked down to the post office at noon, returning laden with cards and small packages. But if Van had sent either to her, Ariel gave no sign.

At two they sat down, ravenous, to the feast. Everything was perfection. Long after three o'clock the sextette lingered at the table, nibbling raisins and nuts, trying the German honey cakes that had come as a greeting that morning, sampling the Christmas candy.

And when finally there was a stir, it was only after an unanimous decision to abandon all plans for supper. Phil went off to some joint unknown—probably to see Lily—Sam helped clear the table, Dick had to walk down to his office to get some papers, and Ariel herself suggested that she walk with him because she had a present for Mary Blaney, and could leave it by the way.

"But please leave the silver and glasses for me to wash—please," Ariel pleaded.

"Oh, nonsense!" Gail said. She and Edith made short work of the clearing up.

SUBSIDIES AND AIRWAYS

In the case of the airplane, which caters to those who respond to the time-saving appeal and are willing to pay a premium for speed, it is doubtful if the air carriers could afford to carry passengers at existing rates if the subsidies for the carriage of air mails were withdrawn and the air lines as a whole were called upon to pay for the free service they now enjoy in lighted airways, radio beams, and radio weather reports.

Spoiled a Picture Saved a Ballgame!

SMASHED CAMERA Gives Tigers A Lucky Break

LEADING 2 to 1 in the ninth inning of a game with the St. Louis Browns, the Tigers permit the first two batters to reach first. Two on . . . nobody out . . . winning runs on base. Attempting a sacrifice, the batter bunts along third base line.

TRYING to throw the runner out at first, the pitcher heaves the ball wide of the base. It smashes into the camera of a newspaper photographer and bounces back.

THE ball is rifled home, preventing anyone from scoring. The next three are retired in order, the Tigers winning the game—and the camera getting an "assist".

A "LUCKY BREAK" FOR MICHIGAN FANS ...AND HERE'S STILL ANOTHER

IT'S AN OLD baseball axiom that "smart teams make their own good breaks"... by playing heads-up, hustling baseball, taking advantage of every opportunity.

It's the same in motoring! Millions of motorists make Mobilgas America's Largest Selling Gasoline ... by demanding a hustling, high-powered motor fuel that gives a car every possible "break".

And because this high-powered fuel delivers maximum power, Mobilgas costs less per mile.

SUMMARIZE WPA RECREATIONAL COUNTY PROGRAM

A. C. Belding, Director, Reports on Activities of Groups

The following summary of the WPA recreational program in Charlevoix county is outlined by A. C. Belding, director:

"Four dramatic groupa were organized in the county. Each group presented a play which, with its specialties, made a complete evening's entertainment. These entertainments were exchanged, making a total of 16 performances.

"About 100 persons took active part in the above programs, nearly 2,000 attended the playa, three orchestras assisted with their music, and several soloists sang between acts.

"Two large portable stages, one temporary stage, and one enlarged stage gave ample room for these entertainments. Several curtains and atage fixtures have been made and laid away for future use.

"The fine cooperative spirit shown by the different groups, the sociable parties and lunches given the visiting groups produced a feeling of friendship thnt will last through the years to come.

"It is hoped that permanent groups of this kind may be organized throughout the county, and what we have started may become a permanent course of social and recreational activity."

HIGH COURT UPHOLDS POND NET CONVICTION

A. D. Shawl Loses in Test Case on Anti-Trap-Net Fishing Law

The State Supreme Court Friday upheld the conviction of A. D. Shawl in Emmet County Circuit Court for violating an anti-trap-nest fishing law.

The decision from which Justice Louis Fead dissented cited that Shawl removed the top from his trap—or submarine net—and extended the side walls to the surface of the water and nttached them to a wooden opening only eight feet square, leaving 91 per cent of the net's top covered.

"By the enacting statute it waa clearly intended to prohibit the use of nets of this character which were covered to any substantial degree," the court decision stated, finding Shawl's net violated the purpose of the Legislature.

The anti-trap net law applies to Lake Michigan and Lake Superior watera. Shawl was convicted but received a suspended sentence, the court records showed.

POOR SLEEP POOR HEALTH

Sleep is nature's greatest restorative. You can't have good health without it. One cause of disturbed sleep is bladder irregularity. Make this simple test. Help nature eliminate waste and excess acid which can cause the irregularity that may result in disturbed sleep, scanty flow, frequent desire, and burning. Use buchu leaves, juniper oil and 6 other drugs made into little green tablets. Just say Bukets. Get a test box from any druggist. Locally at F. J. Fessenden, Druggist.

TO AID IN CHILDBIRTH

There is a bill before the New York Legislature which would give to each mother at childbirth the sum of $75. The money would be paid to doctors and hospitals. With a bill like this in effect any mother would be eligible to draw on the fund whether she be rich, poor, alien, or unmarried.

DONDERO AMENDMENT LIMITS HIGH COURT AS BAR TO PACKING

Rep. George A. Dondero, 17th Michigan district, is the author of a joint resolution introduced in the U. S. House of Representatives, which offers an amendment to the Constitution of the United States to fix the number of Justices of the Supreme Court. The object of the amendment is to prevent making the high court the plaything of any President, regardless of party affiliation, and to give the American people full and direct control of this coordinate branch of the federal government.

The Dondero proposal fixes the number of justices at nine to be named in the same manner as at present. Upon approval of this amendment, any change in the number of justices could be effected only by the direct voice of the people through another amendment. Neither the President nor the Congress would have power to add to or reduce the membership of the court. Since the Constitution of the United States specifically provides for a Supreme Court, Rep. Dondero contends that all changes should be effected by enactment of equal dignity. Under the Dondero plan, if the American people want to increase the membership of the Supreme Court, they can do this directly and thus preserve "the government of the people, by the people, and for the people."

In speaking of his proposed amendment, Rep. Dondero said, "I believe in no half-way measures when it comes to assuring control of the federal government to the people. Members of Congress and the President, under this system of government, must periodically render to the people an account of their stewardship. My proposal would guarantee to the people a direct and full control of the Supreme Court and remove all possibility of change unless directly enacted by the people, thus strengthening the structure of our American form of representative government."

Rep. Dondero's resolution provides: "The Supreme Court shall consist of nine active judges, one of whom shall be appointed as Chief Justice, and eight of whom shall be appointed as Associate Justices, to be appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. The Judges of the Supreme Court shall hold their offices during good behavior, and shall, at stated times, receive for their services a compensation, which shall not be diminished during their continuance in office."

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT BULLETIN

Tuberculosis Clinics to Be Held Next Week in District Health Unit No. 3

With the tuberculin testing program completed for this spring, attention is being devoted to the coming tuberculosis X-ray clinics provided by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association and sponsored by the District Health Department for the counties of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego. The Michigan Tuberculosis Association furnishes the X-ray technician, the X-ray machine, all the films used, as well as paying for the developing and reading of these films by a tuberculosis specialist, and are able to do this because of the sale of Christmas Seals in this area. It is because of the interest in the schools and general public of this Christmas Seal Sale that we are able to furnish this service in our four counties.

We wish to announce the following dates and clinic locations for the X-ray this year:

May 10—Peliston school building.
May 11—Petoskey school building, gymnasium.
May 12—Boyne City school building, gymnasium.
May 13—Gaylord school building, gymnasium.
May 14—Elk Rapids town hall.

In order to clarify any doubt as to who may come to these clinics, we wish to state that all who reacted positive to the tuberculin test recently shall be given an opportunity to be X-rayed, provided they were not X-rayed last year, or if they were X-rayed and the X-ray was positive. Also any new cases of tuberculosis that have been found since the last X-ray clinic shall be X-rayed and any direct contacts to active cases shall also have this opportunity, as well as those people who have a letter of request from their family physician. Since our X-rays are limited in number this year for the first time, it is necessary to get our major cases in first. However, tentative plans are that the X-ray clinic will be available in this district three times a year rather than once a year, as heretofore scheduled. Those cases not being X-rayed in May will be brought in to their nearest clinic in September or December.

Many times inquiries are made shortly after the X-rays have been taken regarding the diagnosis of that person's X-ray. We wish to state that ordinarily it takes from eight to ten weeks before the District Health Department receives the reports back on these X-rays. We shall appreciate your waiting until you have heard from us regarding your report.

AT THE MOVIES

Iceberg! Untamed Terror of the Seal

The terrifying drama of the struggle for life aboard a doomed ship . . . the frenzy of lost souls . . . the tragedy of parting lovers . . . Hollywood's wizards screen a sea disaster that is a miracle of realism in "History Is Made At Night!" showing Saturday and Sunday, May 8 and 9, at the Palace Theatre.

"Men Are Not Gods" A Gay Triangle Tale

The romantic complications that ensue when a dramatic critic's impulsive secretary alters one of her boss's reviews and sends an actor she has never seen soaring to overnight fame are described in amusing fashion in "Men Are Not Gods," Miriam Hopkins' latest starring vehicle which comes to the Palace Theatre for two days beginning next Wednesday, May 12.

The newest offering of Alexander Korda's imposing new Denham studios, "Men Are Not Gods" marks the first English production Miss Hopkins has made.

Extra! Color photographs of the King and Queen of England will be published in The Detroit News next Sunday. Order your copy of Sunday's Detroit News in advance to make sure that you get these color portraits.

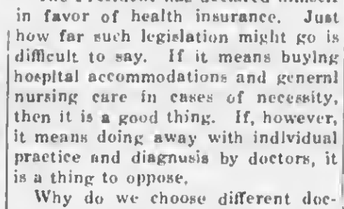
HEALTH INSURANCE

The President has declared himself in favor of health insurance. Just how far such legislation might go is difficult to say. If it means buying hospital accommodations and general nursing care in cases of necessity, then it is a good thing. If, however, it means doing away with individual practice and diagnosis by doctors, it is a thing to oppose.

Why do we choose different doctors? Psychologically, there is a reason. One doctor might cure us, another, administering the same treatment, might fail. We can't all have confidence in the same person. With the government coming between the patient and physician, the patient would have to accept whomever was sent to his door.

State control of medicine would also restore the old prescription method of treatment to its full importance, back to the time when doctors dealt more in bottles and pill boxes, than in examinations (X-ray, etc.), which gives us the correct diagnosis of the present day.

And would doctors in routine work take the same pride in their practice as they do now when it is important to them to build up a clientele through dependable service?



THE PEDESTRIAN'S RIGHTS

Yes, indeed, the pedestrians do have rights, although sometimes drivers are reluctant to admit them.

At the intersection with a "Stop-Go" signal light, the person on foot has the right to cross on the green in dignified comfort. If the yellow flashes while he is still on the crosswalk, he has both the moral and legal right to keep on and clear the crossing without jumping to avoid death.

Moreover, if he is proceeding over this cross-walk on the green signal, and motor cars are entering the intersection parallel with him, which intend to turn either to right or left across his path, he still has the right-of-way; and these turning cars must allow him to proceed without interference.

If, however, there is no "Stop-Go" signal light, the pedestrian still has reasonable rights at other intersections. He will, of course, not attempt to cross if motor vehicles are streaming by thickly. But when opportunity occurs, with scattered cars on the street, he has a right to cross on the cross-walk.

On this cross-walk, he should be allowed the right-of-way, and approaching drivers should see that he has safe passage.

LANSING LETTER

sit-down strikes and lockouts while state mediation efforts were under way.

In fact, the revolutionary idea — and that word is used in an abstract way—appears to be much to the liking of industrial and commercial leaders who recently experienced costly labor warfare that impoverished temporarily the consuming power of workers and put a dent into profits for 1937.

The state law would prohibit labor strikes hastily called by leaders and often without due notice to the employer.

Labor would be given the privilege of recognizing or refusing to recognize any organization as the collective bargaining agency for the majority. The state labor relations board would conduct elections to determine this bargaining agency.

An inkling of the attitude of organized labor is seen in the protest of Rep. Phillip J. Rahoi, leader of the so-called House progressive "bloc," that the measure goes out of its way to recognize the rights of industry and that it imposes new responsibilities on labor.

State's Responsibility

"We can't wait two years for a solution."

Those words by the governor have put a hospital modernization program on the "must" list for the Legislature.

A building program would provide relief from congestion in state institutions for mental patients. Michigan is now 26th in per capita provision for mental patients. The bills would provide 7,000 more beds.

The governor's emphatic declaration followed closely on the heels of remarks by Senator Miller Dunckel, Republican, of Three Rivers, that — "someone in the governor's chair must in time have the nerve to take hold of this problem boldly."

School Aid at Stake

With state institutions pressing the Legislature for needed financial aid, members of the House and Senate are beginning to wonder how it will be possible to grant $9,000,000 more state aid annually to the schools, to return $8,000,000 more in taxes to counties for local highways, and to provide $6,000,000 state aid for hospitalization of adults on welfare relief.

As an offset against the financial measures was a proposal by Senator D. Hale Brake, chairman of the Senate judiciary committee, that the state sales tax be increased from three to four per cent. Coming as a dash of ice water in the face, the idea has served as a "brake" to legislators, for the governor has let it be known that the state treasury must be balanced. Higher taxes are never popular with legislators.

State Police

Drivers' licenses would be handled by state police which would receive all receipts from fees, according to the Kessel-McKay bill. Advocates declare it would yield $500,000 a year and would finance 100 more troopers and safety devices. Motor clubs are reported to favor it.

Blossom Festival

The grand old Michigan custom of having a seasonal festival, crowning a good-looking girl as "queen," and then holding a parade has been adopted from one end of the state to the other. Smelt queens, perch queens, bass queens—these are glorified throughout Michigan. Winter snow festival queens even appear in bathing suits.

Benton Harbor is holding its annual blossom festival this week with a coronation, reception and banquet for the blossom queen and a gala and colorful parade this Saturday afternoon.

Holland's tulips will take the state during the week of May 15 to 23. The opening ceremony is the scrubbing of the streets. Dogs pull milk carts. Flower girls offer tulips for sale. Old men with long pipes frequent the coffee shops for the daily "koffie kletz." Dutch merchandise appears in shop windows.

Furs and Prosperity

Returning prosperity has brought a great demand for furs. From Alger county in the Upper Peninsula comes news that an Illinois man has bought property at Grimes Lake and will operate a fur farm in winter and tourist summer resort in summer. The investor, Paul Lauterman, had been visiting the Upper Peninsula for many seasons.

Furniture Museum

Grandmother's queer old rocking chairs of the Civil War era, horsehair sofas of the "Gay '90s," and the ultra-modern designs of the '30s will all have a place in Grand Rapids' unique furniture museum, the only one of its kind in the country, which will be ready for inspection possibly by this summer.

The building was remodeled under a $24,000 WPA grant, and the city has appropriated $3,000 a year for maintenance.

It will be a "house of yesterday and tomorrow," a fitting exhibit for the nation's furniture capital and another distinctive attraction for the state.

KIWANIANS BEAUTIFY TRUNKLINE ENTRANCE

Planted 63 Trees on US-31 at City Limits Wednesday Evening

Beautifiention of the entrance of US-31 into the city of Charlevoix from the south was accomplished last Wednesday evening through efforts of the Kiwanis Club.

Twenty-six members turned out to plant 63 trees on the sides of the highway in the vicinity of the Munyon property and results from even a casual observance, justified the efforts.

Attorney Floyd Supp, R. F. Sloan and Rev. John Alexander have gone on the "water wagon" this week as a committee of three whose duty it is to water the new plantings. An oil tank, filled from Stover Creek, is being used for the purpose.

TUBERCULIN X-RAY AT BOYNE CITY, MAY 12TH

Urge All County Residents Exposed to Disease to Visit Clinic

When those in Charlevoix county who have been exposed to tuberculosis are modernly examined at the Christmas seal clinic of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association—to be held in Boyne City at the school gymnasium, Wednesday, May 12—they will join the hosts of others all over the world who have been aided in recent years by that incalculably valuable scientific discovery, the X-ray. The Michigan Tuberculosis Associatlon alone has brought the so-termed "magic eye" to more than 30,000 in the state in little more than five years.

All contacts who have not been reached by the association or the cooperating District Department of Health No. 3, are urged to eommunieate by mail at once with the Health Department at Charlevoix, the Michigan Tuberculosis Association at Lansing, or report for an interview when the clinie is held in the school gymnasium at Boyne City, Wednesday, May 12.

ACHIEVEMENT DAY A GREAT SUCCESS

The summary shows that there were 22 groups carrying on handicraft club work with 125 members enrolled in and 119 members finishing. This is 25 members more than we had in the program last year. The clothing projects had 20 clubs with 108 members starting and 102 members finishing. In the hot lunch program there were 15 clubs with 161 members starting and 151 finishing. Following members were elected as honor members in the handicraft project: H. Clark, Jerome Rayman, Franklin Cellner, James Rayman, Bobby Straw, Keith Ager, Pearl Badgley, Ray Holborn, Paul Wood, Bud Barber, Edwin Bradley, Franklin Mascho, Clarence Hindbaugh, Homer Willis, Peter Walker, Donald Boss, Otto Skeel, Gerald Boss, John Clark, Raymond Anthony, Oramel Griffin, Harvey Nelson, Jack Davis, Alan McGeorge, Melvin Hardy, Floyd Harwood, Ralph Stallard, Glenn Trojanek, Robert Sloop, Clifford Gibhard, Lawrenee Speigl, Glenn Ingall, Robert Walker, Robert Ford, Tony Faculak, Archie Stanek, Eddie Thomson, Carl Skornia. From this list, seven members will be selected to receive a trip to the club camp at Gaylord. In addition the two winners of the wood identification contest, Millard Tousley nnd Cliffnrd Gibhard, will receive trips.

The following club members were selected as honor members in the clothing projects: Jean Black, Betty Ecklund, Eleanor Ecklund, Mildred Raymon, Evelyn Ager, Valora Hardy, Pearl Badgley, Lois Graham, Jessie Potter, Mildred Potter, Marion Smith, Shirley Burnett, Alma Barber, Delores Burnett, Leona Yahr, Margie Davis, Marie Kotesky, Lucille May, Myrtle Ferguson, Nellie O'Dell, Marilyn Hair, Eunice Willis, Yvonne Hardy, Katherine Johnson, Nancy Price, Arless Thompson, Betty Davis, Ruby Leist, Anna Slezak, Edna Boss, Bessie Skeel, Marie Matchett, Marjorie Matchett, Jane Thayer, Roberta Hall, Elaine Empey, Shirley McGann, Margaret Strehl, Betty Strehl, Irene Brintnall, Jean Galmore, Gladys Larson, Ada Clute. CHARLEVOIX WINS AT TRACK EVENT

SCORED 48 POINTS IN PETOSKEY INVITATIONAL

Placed In All But One Event In Competition With Four Schools at Track Meet Saturday

Charlevoix High school won the annual Petoskey Invitational track and field meet Saturday with a total of 48 points. East Jordan was second with 37, Boyne City had 32, and Petoskey 15. East Jordan won the relay, and Radle, of Charlevoix, won the mile run, these two events being feature ones on the program. Radle holds the state Class C school title in the mile, won last year.

Stanek, of East Jordan, was the high point man with 14 points, while Charlevoix thin-clads placed in every event with exception of the 100-yard dash, and gathered in four firsts.

Following are the winners in the various events:

Pole Vault — Sommerville, East Jordan; Green, Boyne City; Schroeder, East Jordan; Livingston, Charlevoix; height 9 feet 9 inches.

Mile Run—Radle, Charlevoix; Koteskey, Petoskey; Penfold, East Jordan; Gregory, Charlevoix; time 4 minutes 58 seconds.

120-yard High Hurdles—Bennett, East Jordan; Bergmann and Goss, Charlevoix; time 18.5 seconds.

100-yard Dash—Dickerson, Boyne City; Stanek, East Jordan; Still and Donaldson, Petoskey. Time 11 seconds.

Shot Put — Stanek, East Jordan; Still, Petoskey; Gallagher, Charlevoix; Dilworth, Boyne City; distance 37 feet 1.3 inches.

440-yard Dash — Hausler, Boyne City; Hiller and Gleason, Charlevoix; Bradley, Boyne City; time 54.4 seconds.

High Jump — Bergmann, Charlevoix; Schroeder, East Jordan; Chew, Charlevoix; five others tied for fourth. Height 5 feet 3.5 inches.

220-yard Low Hurdles — Stanek, East Jordan; Goss, Charlevoix; Bennett, East Jordan; 26 seconds.

220-yard Dash—Dickerson, Boyne City; Still, Petoskey; Livingston, Charlevoix; Beeman, Boyne City; time 24.6 seconds.

Half Mile — Olach, Charlevoix; Dudley, East Jordan; Davis, Boyne City; Palmer, Charlevoix; time 2 minutes 28 seconds.

Broad Jump — Shapton, Charlevoix; Goss, Charlevoix; Koteskey, Petoskey; Stanek, East Jordan; distance 18 feet 6 inches.

Relay — East Jordan, Charlevoix, Boyne City, Petoskey.

Coaches Kipke and Coleman will take their track men to Cadillac Saturday for the annual regional meet, and a week hence the Northern Michigan Class C meet will be held here.

COUNCIL AWARDS CONTRACTS FOR STREETS

Lusk and Sharrow Get Nettleton and Ainslie Street Jobs

Contracts for street improvements on Ainslie and Nettleton streets were awarded Monday night by the city council and legal steps taken for sanction of improvements on East Upright avenue.

The job of constructing combination carb and gutter on Nettleton street was awarded to Edgar Lusk, and the Ainslie street job was awarded to Bert Sharrow. A large maple tree, standing in the Nettleton street right-of-way near the intersection of Petoskey avenue, will stand, for the council voted unanimously against cutting the tree down.

Providing a pump necessary to carry water for cooling of the Diesel motor at the electric light plant, the council voted authorization for purchase of a Manistee pump. Lowering lake levels have made necessary installation of the pump, it is understood.

MOONLIGHT GARDENS TAVERN IS OPENED

Mrs. Della Jeffery Began 1937 Summer Season on Wednesday

The tavern at Moonlight Gardens, owned and operated by Mrs. Della Jeffery, opened Wednesday for the 1937 summer season.

The interior and exterior of the buildings have been attractively decorated in preparation for the opening and the place presents its customary fine appearance.

Great family trees in America are few, but it is probable that many new ones were started during the war by grafting.

ODD FELLOW OPEN NIGHT BIG EVENT HERE MONDAY

Ten Northern Michigan Lodges Represented at Round-Up

Ten Northern Michigan Odd Fellow lodges were represented at an open meeting and round-up sponsored by Charlevoix Lodge No. 293 here Monday evening. Between 75 and 100 persons were in attendance.

A most enjoyable program was conducted, opening with the singing of "America." Arthur L. Fitch gave the address of welcome. Harry Oldham favored with three vocal selections with guitar accompaniment, Francis Peterson drew deserved applause for a group of novelty violin numbers, and Iva and Ora Howe favored with piano ducts, piano and violin selections and vocal numbers. Assembly singing was also a fine feature.

Two grand lodge officers gave interesting and instructive talks. They were Grand Master Andrew Brodie, of Detroit, and Grand Secretary Fred A. Rogers, of Lansing.

A light lunch followed the program and the balance of the evening was spent at cards and dancing. The occasion was a most enjoyable one and was highly praised by those in attendance.

CHARLEVOIX TOURIST CAMP OPENS SATURDAY

Caretaker Hugh "Dad" Brady Announces Readiness for Season

Hugh "Dad" Brady, veteran caretaker of the Charlevoix Tourist Camp, has announced that the official opening for the 1937 summer season will be Saturday, May 15.

Preparations for the opening, cleaning up the grounds, cook houses and buildings, has been under way for several weeks and the camp presents its usual fine appearance.

The camp has already accommodated many early-season tourist parties, and a better than average season is in prospect.

CONKLIN & BISSELL DOCK CONSTRUCTION COMPLETE

Work on Other Building at New Fish Market Progressing Rapidly

Work is progressing rapidly on the Conklin & Bissell construction program on the south shore of Round Lake harbor.

Roo Brothers, of Harbor Springs, have completed construction of the docks. The main dock has a frontage of 110 feet and three landing docks 32 feet long and eight feet wide have been built. Construction on the net house is also nearing completion.

COUNTY SPONSORS A RESORT FOLDER

FINE EIGHT-PAGE PAMPHLET IS IN CIRCULATION

Describes Resort Attractions of the County in Pictures and Story—Complete County Map

Sponsored by the advertising committee of the Charlevoix county board of supervisors, an attractive eight-page illustrated resort folder has been placed in circulation.

Printed in two colors, the 30,000 issue of folders contains a fine group of photographs depicting appealing outdoor scenes from throughout the county, has write-ups of Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City, Walloon Lake and Beaver Island, and a complete county map which shows Beaver Island, the south portion of Emmet county and the north portion of Antrim county.

The map is designed to provide a route guide for tourists inquiring for rivers, streams and lakes, and is sufficiently complete in detail to allow routing for inquirers. All county golf courses, smaller resorts, camps, bathing beaches, etc., are shown on the map, as well as all trunkline, county and township roads.

The folder material was compiled by advertising committees of the several cities of the county, working in conjunction for the advertising committee of the board of supervisors. Other advertising features developed by the group include road signs advertising Charlevoix county, which were placed at the intersections of M-66 and M-75 on US-131, and display cards depicting Ripley's "Believe It or Not" quip on the Ironton ferry.

Finances for the advertising program were appropriated by the board of supervisors and, taking into consideration the fine results produced by the committee, has been wisely and beneficially spent. Charlevoix county's resort business should greatly benefit from the program.

HEALTH LEAGUE CONTINUE LUNCHEON PLANS

Will Discuss Possibility of Four-County Institute at Meeting

The Charlevoix County Child Health League is continuing plans for their annual luncheon meeting to be held Friday, May 21, at Dilworth Hotel, Boyne City.

Dr. Howard McCluskey, of the University of Michigan, will be the guest speaker. A brilliant and fascinating speaker, Dr. McCluskey will combine excellently the serious and humorous phases of his subject, "Mental Hygiene and Its Relationship to Health."

At this meeting will be discussed the feasibility of developing an annual four-county rotating institute. The counties to take part in discussing this project are Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego.

Reservations for the annual luncheon may be made through the various county nurses, District Health office, or the League chairmen.

RAYOERS LEADING BASEBALL LEAGUE

HAVE HUNG UP THREE CONSECUTIVE VICTORIES

Defeated Boyne City Thursday by 8 to 7; Harbor Springs Tuesday by 8 to 4 Score

Charlevoix leads the western division of the "Little Eight" Class C conference baseball league by virtue of three victories and no defeats.

The Rayders have taken East Jordan, Boyne City and Harbor Springs in order, defeating Boyne by a 4 to 3 score last Thursday, and Harbor by an 8 to 4 count at south side athletic field Tuesday evening.

Charlevoix 4, Boyne 3

The contest at Boyne last Thursday went into an extra inning. Charlevoix scored two runs in the first inning and one in the fifth, which Boyne matched with a run in the third and two in the seventh. Charlevoix managed one score in the extra inning and then staved off a Boyne rally in their half of the inning to win.

Kulpa and Richardson were the winning battery, Green and Dickerson the losers. Kulpa had eight strike-outs and Green 10. Smith and Kulpa had two hits for Charlevoix.

Charlevoix 8, Harbor 4

Charlevoix combined three runs in the first inning, two in the fifth and three in the sixth to defeat Harbor Springs 8 to 4 at south side athletic field Tuesday afternoon.

Smith and Ager led the Charlevoix attack, the former getting a triple and a single in four times at bat. Ager hit a double, was given two walks and scored, three of Charlevoix's runs.

Kulpa and Richardson were the winning battery again. Kulpa had eight strike-outs and gave three bases on balls. DeLaVerne and King were Harbor's battery.

Charlevoix meets Harbor Springs in a return game at Harbor, Friday afternoon.

Alton, Ill., Woman Adds Building at Corner Mason Street to Holdings

Earl A. Young, local realtor, has announced the purchase of the Bridge property by Miss Edith Blair, of Alton, Ill., owner and operator of the Chickawago Club south of this city.

The property involved includes the buildings now occupied by Fagan's cigar store, Stenberg's barber and beauty shop and Goldio's Tavern, at the corner of Bridge and Mason streets. This purchase is the second of Bridge street property by Miss Blair in recent months. She acquired the Priest building on the opposite corner.

PLAN ORGANIZATION CITY BASEBALL TEAM

Glenn Rose Named As Manager; First Practice Session Next Sunday

Charlevoix will be represented in Northern Michigan baseball competition this summer, and Glenn Rose returns to a familiar role as manager and organizer of the local club.

Mr. Rose has announced that the first practice session will be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the south side athletic field, and that all those interested in playing are asked to report.

NEW PRO AT BELVEDERE GOLF COURSE

RAY O. COURTRIGHT, U. OF M. COACH, EMPLOYED

Brings Prestige of Outstanding University Record to the Charlevoix Club — Succeeds Converse

Howard L. McGregor, president of the Belvedere Golf Club, has announced that Ray O. Courtright, head golf coach at the University of Michigan, has been engaged as professional at the Belvedere course.

Mr. Courtright will succeed Dr. Milton Converse, pro at the Belvedere several years, whose dental practice prevents him from returning this season.

At present, Mr. Courtright is head golf coach and assistant football and basketball coach at the U. of M., where he has been connected the past ten years. Under his guidance, the U. of M. golf team has won the Big Ten golf championship for the last five successive years, and for the same period has won the individual championship and the runner-up. Two of Mr. Courtright's best known pupils are Johnny Fischer and Charlie Koesis.

In addition, the U. of M. golf team was national collegiate champions in 1934-35 and also won the individual championship of the national collegiate in 1933 and 1936.

Mr. Courtright spends his entire time in the University of Michigan and, in addition to his positions as football, basketball and golf coach, has charge of teaching prospective coaches of golf at the university.

CITY MOURNS DEATH OF WILLIAM TAYLOR

FORMER LAKE CAPTAIN VICTIM HEART ATTACK

Succumbed Wednesday at Dixon Avenue Home—Funeral Services and Burial Held Friday

The following tribute to William C. Taylor, well known local resident who died of heart attack last Wednesday afternoon, is contributed by a friend and published herewith:

"Seldom has the hand of Death taken from the older ranks of our community one who was more widely known, or who will be more universally missed and mourned.

"His illness dates back for but a few months and from that time until the sad announcement of his death, a host of friends hoped for his recovery. Heart trouble was the cause of death which came instantly.

"Capt. William C. Taylor was born in Guelph, Canada, March 21, 1861, from where he moved, at the age of three, with his parents, to Detroit. In 1883 they moved to Charlevoix where the family has always made their home.

"He sailed the lakes for many years, in which time he served as an officer on the passenger boats plying between Chicago and the Northern Michigan ports; in later years he confined himself to home boats.

"In 1911 he retired from sailing and took over the confectionary business which he had continued to manage through the summer months up to the time of his death.

"He was married in 1888 to Miss Rose Thompson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Thompson, of Charlevoix.

"To the bereaved wife, in whose household his removal makes the first vacancy, and to the sister and son, the sympathy of all goes out in the fullest measure. We mourn with them, not alone for them.

"Those surviving to mourn his death are the wife, Mrs. Rose Taylor, one son, Leon Taylor, and family, and Mrs. Louise Elston; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Taylor, of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Walt, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Parrish, of Manistee; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Plick and Mrs. David Parrish, of St. Ignace, all of whom attended funeral services.

"The funeral service was held at the See funeral home, 203 State street, Friday, May 7, at 2 p. m., Rev. John W. Alexander officiating. The home was filled to overflowing with friends who desired to manifest their regret and sympathy at the last sad rites. "A Friend."

PEACE RALLY AT HIGH SCHOOL FRIDAY NIGHT

Dr. Royal G. Hall, of Albion College, Assigned As Speaker

Attention is again called to the Peace Rally to be held at 8 o'clock Friday evening at the high school assembly room.

Dr. Royal G. Hall, of Albion College, one of Michigan's most prominent educators and lecturers, will talk on the topic, "The Struggle for Peace," a subject related to the theme of the state and nation-wide Peace Rally program. Dr. Hall is an outstanding instructor at the Bay View summer school.

The Melodiers, a musical organization composed of five young high school ladies, will present musical numbers. There will be no admission nor collection taken at the meeting.

The Literary and Sewing Club will serve a Cafeteria supper at Methodist church, Thursday, May 20, 6 o'clock. Adv19tf

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

In session now four months, Michigan's Legislature faces a heavy program of incompleted business that has prompted a decision by Gov. Frank Murphy, Speaker George A. Schroeder and Lieut. Gov. Nowicki, presiding officer of the Senate, to keep legislators on the grind from six to eight more weeks.

The civil service bill, already passed by the Senate, was sidetracked in the House by a rebellion among Democrats over a dearth of political plums. Patronage "pap" is sought by leaders to sweeten up hostile legislators, many of whom feel that the governor has "neglected" them in preference to the more pleasant duties of speechmaking in New York, Washington, and elsewhere.

At a party caucus held in the Tally-Ho club, liquor-serving establishment a block from the capitol and just closed as a "fire trap," Governor Murphy renewed his insistent demands for enactment of a civil service law. He conceded to House requests that present state employes be given preferential consideration.

The short day ended with them both stretched luxuriously on Gail's bed, reading at intervals, talking desultorily, waiting for night to bring the other members of the family home.

"How long will Dick be in Los Angeles, Gail?"

"Only about two weeks. It's a ship case. A great chance for him."

"I think he's such a dear. I've grown awfully fond of him this fall," said Edith.

"He's a darling."

Ariel put her head in the door.

"I've been asleep," she said, blinking.

"We looked in and saw you when we came in."

"I'm going to Miss Vail's now," said Ariel, who was hatted and coated and gloved. "I'll be back early."

"Dick will be gone when you come back!"

"I know it. I said good-by to him." Ariel looked very pretty in her dark blue coat and snug blue hat. She came in, kissed Gail, kissed Edith. "I don't want to go!" she said, with a weary sigh.

"I hate to have you," Gail said affectionately.

"Think of being eighteen tomorrow, baby. Mother's poet, eighteen."

"Mother's nothing!" Ariel said bitterly.

"Gail," Edith asked, when Ariel had gone, "did she get anything from Van?"

"Not that she told me."

"It might be delayed in the mail."

"A telegram wouldn't be."

"I know."

There was a silence in the big, shabby, pretentiously furnished room. Gail roused herself, stiff and drowsily. "I told Dick I'd start packing his bag for the trip," she said, with an exultant rise at her heart.

"We'll miss him."

"Oh, won't we!"

Edith yawned ugonizingly. Gail crossed the hall to Dick's cold big barrack of a room to find him done with his packing and ready for good-bys. He looked almost handsome—or at all events Gail found the lean, big-featured face handsome—as he belted his coat and pulled on the new gloves that Edith had not been too self-conscious to give him, if Gail had.

"You're worrying about this case!" Edith accused him. For he seemed unusually grave.

"No. Yes, I'm kind of worried," Dick said.

"Ariel's gone to the Vails', Dick, and Phil isn't back. Sam!" Gail called. "Come out and say good-by to Dick."

"I think we ought to kiss him good-by on Christmas night!" Edith said gladdily, in a rare mood of daring.

For answer his big-coated arm went about her, and he kissed her so heartily that she emerged breathless and protesting. Then it was Gail's turn.

The clean-shaven hard cheek was against her own, his tremendous grip lifted her, held her shoulders tight;

She Felt Weak, Helpless.

she felt weak, helpless, she drank the deliciousness of that first kiss as if it were a draught of heady wine. For an instant she was his, dazzled and ecstatic. Then panting, laughing, she was squarely on her feet again, still close to him.

"Well, Edith! The next time you have a bright idea you might take Dick and me into your counsels!"

"Don't worry—about anything that comes up, Gail," Dick was saying rather confused and breathless himself, very big, very much the man. "I'll be back in a few days. Everything will come out all right!"

He was gone. They heard the engine start in the yard, and laughed at each other as they wandered down to the kitchen.

Edith and Sam had tea and cold turkey, after all. But Gail, although she sat with them at the table, was feeding on finer food, and could not touch their tangible viands. Her mouth, her whole being, still pulsated to Dick's grave, hard, definite kiss. How he had kissed her!

Phil came in at nine, and they talked idly until the clock amazed them by striking ten. Then every one was up at once, and Gail went to the telephone. If Ariel was as late as this, Phil must go get her. Poor Phil, who looked so tired!

"Let me run upstairs, Gail," Edith pleaded, "and see if she hasn't slipped in and gone to bed! She can't be at the Vails' this late."

"She's there if old man Vail has gotten started on the Civil war," Sam muttered.

They were still laughing at his joke when Edith came downstairs with a letter in her hand, and a whitened face.

"It was on her pillow, Gail."

"What!" Gail whispered. Without moving her eyes from Edith's, she tore open the sealed envelope.

"She's gone!" Phil said.

"Eloped with Van!" Sam suggested.

"Read it," Gail whispered, handing the written sheet to Phil.

Phil read it slowly, aloud:

"Gail dearest, and all of you: Forgive us. We had to do it this way for reasons we'll write you.

"It's always been Dick, Gail. I think Ede knew, months ago. Knew how I felt anyway. But I never knew how he felt until lately.

"We're going to Los Angeles, and we'll be married there. I couldn't stand the gossip at home, and having no money for clothes or anything.

"I've told every one that I have an aunt down South—it's true—and that I'm going to try to get into the movies.

"Please tell every one that. At least until we're married, Gail. If there is any hitch, I never can come back. But there won't be. Dick says there won't be. We'll write you everything, and where we are, and everything.

"Don't tell anyone—don't tell anyone, Gail. Just tell them I'm trying to get a job in the movies, and let it go at that. If I don't make good, Dick'll bring me home.

"Expect a telegram tomorrow. I do love you, Gail, and I'm sorry."

It was signed, "Ariel."

"My G—d! Dick Stebbins!" Phil said, in a long silence.

"Gail, don't look so!" Edith said trembling, crying. "She's safe with Dick! Maybe—maybe it's the best thing that could have happened!"

Gail moved her lips as if she were about to speak, swallowed, shook her head. She got up and went to the sink and took a glass of water, her back turned toward the room.

When she turned about her face seemed oddly changed. It was white, it was older, somehow, and infinitely weary. Her hand wet with the cold water, she brushed her hair feverishly from her forehead; her lips were wet with water, too, as she spoke.

"Well," she said quietly, in a conversational tone, her heavy brows knitted in a faint frown. "Well, that's that. Isn't it? That's that."

* * * * * * *

Edith and Gail had the Wilcox cottage at Carmel for two dreamy August weeks, easily managing to stay under their table allowance of ten dollars a week, and revelling in the atmosphere of pines, sea air, golden dunes, and charming, friendly, informal neighbors.

Carmel abounded in interesting folk, who found Gail and Edith interesting in their turn.

These were peaceful days—definitely happy days.

"I feel as if I had gotten my soul back again," Gail said. "I never thought, somehow—I never saw myself, somehow, at twenty-six, contented to be a Clippersville old maid," she mused, as if half to herself, as if thinking aloud.

Edith was silent a minute.

"You don't have to be a Clippersville old maid, Gail," she said then, lightly, but with a touch of pain in her voice.

"I suppose not." Gail paused in her turn. "You mean Ollie Chase?" she asked indifferently.

"Ollie. Or Gregory. You could be Mrs. Gregory Own-Your-Own-Home-In-Westgate Gray," Edith said.

Gail mused on this, her heavy brows drawn.

"Somehow it doesn't click, Ede. Somehow—well, it would have driven me out of my senses with joy, at twenty, to have two or three of Clippersville's rising young citizens want me. But now it just—doesn't click, that's all. I'm vaccinated."

"Was it Van, Gail?"

They had been to the edges of this ground before many, many times. But in the more than two years since that fatal Christmas night that had ended one phase of the Lawrences' life forever, Edith had not quite dared this much before.

"Yes, partly, I suppose," Gail answered simply.

"You did care for him, Gail?"

"Oh, no; not that!" Gail laughed a little wearily, without much mirth. "No," she said thoughtfully. "He wasn't the sort of boy for whom one cared. But I rather went crazy that summer, Ede, and it's that that I hate to remember.

"I was sick of Clippersville and poverty and dish washing, and when Van came along I sort of lost my bearings. I thought you could force your—well, your fate. Grasp what you wanted. I did everything he wanted me to do, went about with those rich people although I knew all the time I didn't belong there, and that they didn't want me. And in the end, I had nothing to show for it."

"As if that wasn't natural enough, Gail, for a girl your age!"

"Oh, it was natural enough. But if I didn't have much sense at twenty-three, Ariel was only a baby at seventeen. She saw me discontented and reckless.

"It was half a joke with me. But it was deadly serious earnest with her. She wasn't going to be caught in the trap you and I were in—perfectly respectable, and not having any fun!"

Her words carried Gail over that wearisome road her thoughts had beaten list in the last thirty-odd months, and she could not go on. Jealousy and pain mingled together like suffocating fumes in her heart.

Ariel, Dick's wife. Ariel for more than two wonderful years Dick's wife—sharing his breakfasts, meeting him at the door at night, close in his arms when fires were lighted on winter evenings, and happy on the front seat of Dick's car when summer expeditions were afoot. It wasn't fair—it wasn't fair.

These agonies were routine now. She knew how long the spasm of sheer physical wretchedness would last, how long it would take her to return, sane and weary, to the routine of library and kitchen, Clippersville streets and the company of old books again.

From Dick there had come but one brief letter, received on the New Year's day just one week after he and Ariel had gone away. Ariel was well, the letter had said, and they were to be married tomorrow. There had been delays because of residence, and other legalities; they would write full particulars in a day or so. Meanwhile the family was please not to say anything about it. And he was as ever theirs affectionately, Dick.

And after that the long months had spun themselves to a year, to two years, to more, and there had come no other word. Clippersville was perfectly satisfied to hear that Ariel Lawrence was staying with an aunt, down Pasadena way, and working hard to get into the movies. There was nothing to bring Dick back to the home town, with his father dead, his mother living with a widowed sister 'way up North, and the Stanislaus place rented to strangers.

So Clippersville dismissed Ariel and Dick as separately solved problems; Edith and Phil philosophized about having the youngest member of the family settled, and it was only in Gail's heart that the pain and the sense of loss lived on.

More Mileage to you—

BREAD & BUTTER TO ME

My station is all on its own. My living's got to come mostly from just you people right here. I want your steady trade, so's to build a real growing business. And there's where it helps me a lot, I can tell you, to be selling Conoco Germ Processed oil. You see it makes customers and keeps them for me. It's patented—the only oil that can Oil-Plate your engine. Meaning that a definite part of this oil always fastens direct to every working part . . . forms a real Plating of oil, which can't run down. Other oils will "dry off" every time you park, but Oil-Plating can't, so you'll never make any hard, grinding starts. And that ends the worst wear of all. Or when you're hitting it up all day, you won't find this real Oil-Plating rubbing right off, like just some plain little drops of oil. Oil-Plating's not thinning out either, nor burning right up. Which gives you mighty solid reasons why Oil-Plating means more mileage from your engine and your Conoco Germ Processed oil. Besides making customers, I get a kick out of changing you to an oil I can believe in myself, right to the limit.

IMPROVEMENTS ON REARING PONDS IS STARTED

Build Concrete Walls and Gravel Creek Bottom at Stover Creek

Aiming toward one hundred per cent efficiency in the operation of the Stover Creek rearing ponds, the Charlevoix Sportsmen's Club has an ambitious program of improvements under way at the present time.

Conerete walls are being installed along both banks of the creek for the upper series of ponds. The bottom in these sections will be covered with fine gravel after the walls are put in. The program will be carried as far as finances of the club permit this year.

The purpose of the improvement is to permit complete seining of the ponds at intervals during the growth of the fish and subsequent division in accordance to size, thus preventing prevalent cannibalism which has caused heavy losses yearly. The straight conerete side walls and clear bottom will allow complete removal of fish at any time.

STATE PURCHASES FIFTH CAR FERRY FOR STRAITS

Approve Acquisition of Former Ann Arbor Railroad Car Ferry

Addition of a fifth state ferry boat to operate at the Straits of Mackinac next summer was assured last week when the State Administrative Board approved the purchase of "The Ann Arbor IV" for $25,000.

The boat which was previously owned by the Ann Arbor Railroad Company, will be taken to Cheboygan and reconditioned and renovated, estimated to cost $75,000, and is scheduled to be put in service July 1.

"The Ann Arbor" will have a capacity for 85 automobiles and will bring the total for the atate owned and leased boats to more than a 350 car capacity.

The highway department had money for the purchuse and reconditioning in its ferry fund, and needed only the Administrative Board approval for the deal.

DISTRICT FORENSIC CONTEST AT GAYLORD

Alice McHugh Local Representative in Oratory Contest

Miss Alice McHugh, who won the sub-district oratorical contest here recently, failed to win at the district forensic contest held Thursday at Gaylord.

The oratorical contest was won by Elmer Radka, of Rogers City, with the oration, "What Think Ye," a denunciation of war. Miss McHugh was awarded a dictionary for winning the sub-district championship.

Aubura Arnold, of Traverse City, was winner in declamations, and the title in extempore speaking went to Vernon Kemp, of Petoskey, who won the sub-district title here.

TAX ON MAIL ORDER BUSINESS APPROVED

House Votes Measure to Even Competition for State Businesses

A three per cent state use tax bill to require out of state mail order companies to pay a levy equivalent to the retail sales tax had House approval Saturday.

The Gartner-Dignan measure is described as a compensating tax and would put merchants on the same basis as those in Michigan. During floor debate it was pointed out that Michigan firms are at a handicap when bidding against outstate companies for business because of the three per cent sales tax.

SEEK ABOLITION OF STATE EMERGENCY RELIEF BOARD

Abolition of the state emergency welfare relief commission, an "emergency board created and given extraordinary powers during the depression," has been placed squarely before the Michigan Legislature.

Rep. Vernon J. Brown, Mason, R., introduced a bill to repeal the act of the 1933 Legislature creating the measure after another storm of protest in the House against Dr. William Haber, state relief administrator.

PLOWING FOR BEANS SHOULD BE EARLIEST

Prompt Preparation of Field Necessary to Insure Good Yield

For best results in the 1937 bean crop bean growers are advised to get their spring plowing of last season's seeded sweet clover done as early as possible.

Experiments conducted over a three year period by H. R. Pettigrove, farm crops department, and C. E. Millar, soils department of Michigan State College, show that growers planning to plow under sweet clover for this season's bean yield should get their plowing done early in May, before the fifteenth if possible.

Tests prove that those who wait for a larger growth and plow late in May are likely to have an exeeedingly dry, loosce seed bed on which beans yield poorly.

While the disadvantage of late plowing was not so great in wet seasons, the experiments show that there never has been any advantage. Many late plowed sweet clover fields in Michigan's best bean sections gave a total bean failure last year because of the prolonged drought.

Delayed plowing, the recent experiment proved, can cut bean produetion in half. Beans plunted late in May will lie in the ground for as long as 20 days without germinating, while those planted on earlier plowed land will sprout in four days.

TERMINAL COMPANY CONSTRUCTION PROGRESSING

Erection Storage Tank Under Way; Warehouse Is Completed

Providing a feature of unusual interest to local eitizens, is the ereetion of the huge 1,600,000-gallon storage taak for the Charlevoix Terminal Co.

The work is being done hy the Chicago Bridge & Iron Co., and the tank mounts higher daily. Other construction is also progressing. The warehouse has been completed and Roe Brothers, of Harbor Springs, have started construction of the dock on Lake Charlevoix. A large portion of the pipe line has been laid and will be finished with completion of the dock and storage tank.

A. & P. STORE WILL STAGE CLERKS' WEEK SALE FROM MAY 17-22

Heralding the event as one of the greatest merchandising sales in its history, the local A. & P. Store will stage a Clerks' Week sale, commeneing Monday, May 17, and closing Saturday night, May 22.

The event, similar to Managers' Week held early in January, is a sale for which the Great A. & P. Ten Co. has extended to its clerks the opportunity of lining up an array of sale values for the benefit of the store's customers. In preparation, the elerks have heen working two months assemhling the many bargains to be offered. Further information may be obtained regarding the sale from Junior Supernaw, head clerk, and Harold Chew.

The Courier will herald the Clerks' Week sale in its advertising columns. Posters, signs and other advertising material is heing furnished by the company.

MEGGISON HERD AGAIN ASSOCIATION'S BEST

Was High in Milk, Butterfat Production During Last Month

George Meggison's purebred Jerseys were first last month among all herds in Northwest Michigun Dairy Herd Improvement Association. Averaged per cow for the 30 day test period was 685 pounds of milk, testing 5.5 per eent, and 38.0 pounds of butterfat.

All herds on test during April averaged 533 pounds of milk and 22.7 pounds of butterfat per cow.

Fred Willis has purchased u purebred bull calf for herd sire from an outstanding Holstein herd in Cheboygan county.

Some of the members are top-dressing alfalfa with 0-20-20 or similar fertilizer. This should increase yields and provide the cows with that good alfalfa hay they all prefer.

MOTHER'S DAY PROGRAM HELD LAST SUNDAY AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The Congregational Sunday school observed Mother's Day Sunday during the last half hour of the session. A song by the primary department, a recitation by Davida Blake, and the reading of several tributes to mothers by the F.H.C. class were program features.

Carnations were awarded to 26 members of the school in recognition of their perfect attendance and punctuality record during February, March and April. A silver pin engraved with the word "Mother" was presented to Mrs. William Wood as a representative mother with the thought of recognizing the mother's part in the unusually high average attendance at Sunday school the year through.

SEYMOUR-DARRAH WEDDING EVENT OF SATURDAY AT PETOSKEY

At a wedding solemnized at 6:45 Saturday evening at Petoskey, Miss Evelyn Seymour, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Seymour, this city, was united in marriage to Robert F. Darrah, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Darruh, of Petoskey.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Linnell at the Presbyterian manse. Attending the couple were Miss Beatrice Leusing and Robert Truesdale.

The bride wore a baby blue silk crepe suit and carried a corsage of sweet peas and lilies of the valley. Her attendant wore a suit of blue flowered silk and carried a corsage of sweet peas.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given at the Bartlett House by the bride's parents, following which the couple left on a wedding trip to Southern Michigan.

The bride is a graduate of Charlevoix High school, class of '32, and has been employed the past three years in the office of Drs. G. B. Saltonstall and F. W. Young. Mr. Darrah is a graduate of Petoskey High school and holds a postal position in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Darrah will make their home after May 15 at 621 Rush street, Petoskey.

ZENITH RADIO CORPORATION TO MOVE INTO NEW QUARTERS

THE LARGEST RADIO MANUFACTORY ON ONE FLOOR IN THE WORLD

Will Have Ample Capacity to Continue Company's Rapid Rate of Expansion

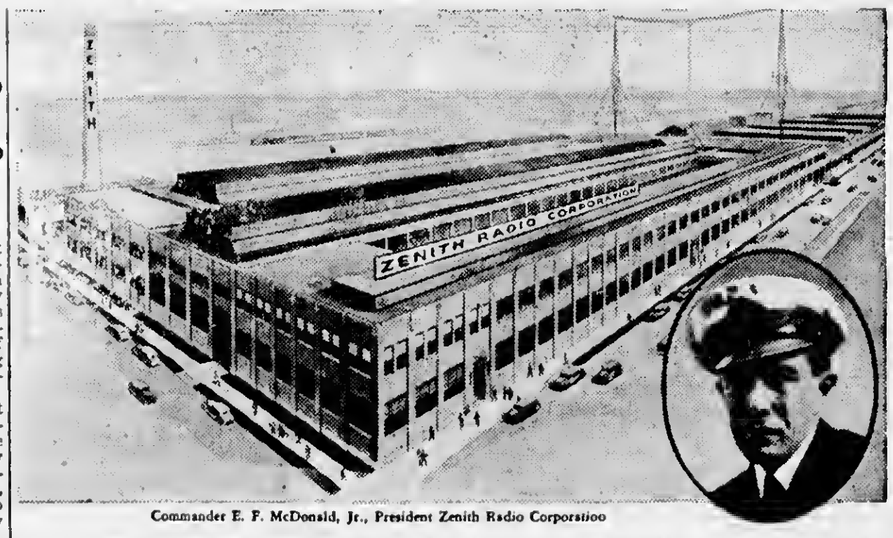
According to a statement just released by Commander E. F. McDonald, Jr., president of Zenith Radio Corporation, the company will within a few days occupy its new factory at 6001 Dickens avenue in the northwest section of Chicago. Machinery is now being moved into the buildings, preparatory to starting manufacture.

Hugh Robertson, vice president and treasurer, in charge of preparing the company's new home for occupancy, describes the new plant as the largest radio manufactory on one floor in the world, capable of producing 10,500 radio sets every eight hours, or nearly 22 radios a minute.

Buildings are brick and concrete extending four city blocks along Dickens avenue. The new factory is well ventilated and lighted.

The company will fabricate its own steel into chassis frames and various other metal parts for home, farm, boat, trailer and automobile radios. A special section is set aside for automotive radio engineering, design and manufacturing, a division of the company's business which is undergoing considerable expansion.

A new method for increasing production capacity provides for the distribution of parts to the manufacturing lines during the night, so that manufacturing may proceed without interruption during the daylight hours.



Commander E. F. McDonald, Jr., President Zenith Radio Corporation

Operations are so planned that production flows in an orderly manner from one end of the mammoth building to the other. Raw material enters at the receiving platform and flows through a centralized inspection department. As the raw material swings out of the department it is divided among multiple manufacturing lines, each affording a vista over 300 feet long and each employing hundreds of specialized operators.

At every important point in the manufacturing process, engineers will check the hundreds of individual operations necessary to the making of a radio set. It is estimated that at least one out of every three workers in the new Zenith factory will in one way or another be responsible for inspection operations to assure accuracy and good performance.

The final product, after passing through these multiple inspections and being packaged, rolls out to depressed and canopied railroad sidings and concrete truck roadways with facilities for loading 35 standard freight cars and 16 highway trucks and trailers at one time.

The Zenith Radio Corporation, which between May 1 and December 1, 1936, doubled its business over the same period of the preceding year, and recently announced the resumption of dividends to stockholders, serves not only the entire domestic market, but exports its radio products to 97 foreign markets.

Do It Now may appear to be an old chestnut, but it still ranks as a most valuable piece of advice.

POOR SLEEP POOR HEALTH

Sleep is nature's greatest restorative. You can't have good health without it. One cause of disturbed sleep is bladder irregularity. Make this simple test. Help nature elimlnate waste nnd excess acid which can cause the irregularity that may result in disturbed sleep, scanty flow, frequent desire, nnd burning. Use buchu leaves, juniper oil and 6 other drugs made into little green tnblets. Just say Bukets. Get a test box from any druggist. Locally at F. J. Fessenden, Druggist.

LANSING LETTER

Labor relntions measure giving the governor powers of a strike dictator. Organized labor is critical of the responsibilities, not found in the federal Wagner act for interstate commerce, which the Murphy bill would impose on employes in intrastate commerce, and strong pressure is being applied to have the bill amended in the House this week when the bill is due to be reported on general orders.

Minimum wage legislation for women and minors. House bill 66 by Rep. Charles Snow, Jr., of Jackson, which has passed the House, calls for a 48-hour, six-day week with hour exemption for canning factories and women exeentives who receive $30 or more a week and with modifications for Christmas nnd Easter trade seasons. Senator Roosevelt's minimum wage bill, setting up wnge boards for each occupation, was favored by both employers and employes nt a public hearing.

Occupational disease legislation. Alrcady passed by the Senate and House.

Teachers' tenure bill.

Hospital building bill to provide needed facilities for insane and mental defectives.

Rural Electrification

With the blessings of the stnte administration, the House recently passed a rural electrification bill (House bill 51) which gives three or more persons the right to incorporate an electric membership corporation, to condemn rights of way, and to operate without control or supervision from the public utilities commission or any other state department in establishment of rates.

The sponsors, Reps. Frederick Knppler, of Lake Linden, and Charles M. Myers, of Dowagine, defeated nttempts to "cripple" the bill with regulatory amendments.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

Case Moves to End Evasions of Gas Tax

Instances of suspected collusion between retnilers and consumers of gasoline for the evasion of the state's gasoline tax have caused Leon D. Cnse, secretary of state, to warn against certain practices in the submission of tax refund claims to the Department of State.

The gasoline tax law provides that users of gasoline for other than highwny purposes are entitled to gas tax refunds, on written applications by the users themselves, after the fuel has been consumed. Applications must be accompanied by copies of invoices; refunds, when allowed, are sent directly to the retailers for distribntion to the consumers entitled to them.

For some time the department hns been receiving refund claims which investigation has shown were signed in blank by the consumer at the time of purchase, the remainder of the affidnvit and the submission of the claim being handled directly by the retail dealer.

All such claims will be denied entirely, Case has ordered. All claims must be made by the purchaser personally, or under his direction and observation, and then only after the fuel has actually been used, the state lnw specifically provides, it is pointed out. Retailers are especially warned yb gas tax collection officials against securing consumers' signatures in blank on refund applications.

Criticism by C. L. Brody, secretary of the Michigan Farm Bureau: "This bill as it stands contains faults so serious that unless they are remedied, it ought to be defeated. . . . The bill is an idenl measure for the creation of a gigantic electrical racket at the expense of the farmers it claims to serve."

In the meanwhile, the U. S. rural electrification ndministration (REA in the New Deal nlphabet) granted $2,810,000 to build 2,464 miles of lines in Cass, Berrien, St. Joseph, Van Buren, Kalamazoo, Allegan, Barry, Ottawa and Ionia counties.

Murphy to Washington?

A New Yorker, coming to Lansing on business last week, heard this "gossip" in legislative corridors at the capitol:

Governor Frank Murphy is slated for a cabinet position at Washington, D. C., probably as secretary of labor. An appointment as supreme court justice is also possible. As soon as the social legislation program is enacted by the Legislature, Murphy's appointment will be made by the President.

Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner, would be Murphy's choice as a successor, nnd Lieutenant Governor Nowicki, an engineer, would go to the highway department berth.

Purely as gossip, all this is good fuel for the hot stove political league on cool May evenings.

Relief "Waste"

Charges of extravagance and waste in spending of public relief money were made in the House recently by Rep. Elton Eaton, newspaper publisher nt Plymouth, following months of careful investigation in gathering evidence. Eaton centered criticism on Dr. William Hnber, director of the SERA, and on Fred E. Levi, $500 n month director of the Welfare and Relief Study commission which completed its work last December. Levi has been drawing his monthly check since that time.

While Rep. Vernon Brown, of Mason, introduced a bill to repenl the 1933 emergency act creating the SERA, House Democrats joined in condemnation of relief spending. Rep. Clyde Stout, of Ionia, favored return of welfare responsibilities to the counties. Rep. Charles Sundrom of Michigamme, charged relief inefficiency in teh Upper Peninsula, declnring he had even seen n banker taking home a relief ham.

The governor, praising Dr. Haber, snid that the welfare director had asked to he relieved January 1 but had been persuaded to stay on the job.

Modern Aladdin's Lamp

Like fnntastic tales of the California gold rush or of Aladdin's magic lamp of oriental fame are the strange stories that come from teh oil fields nround Gladwin nnd Beaverton. Labor has gone up to $1.50 an hour; a room mny cost $15 n week.

Consider teh case of the grocer who took in a 10-acre plot of sand land on a smnll bill years ago. He received $3,000 in oil roynlties in three months.

Or the farmer, hard-pressed to save hls property from mortgage foreclosnre, who rceeived $700 in roynlties in one week from an oil well, a roaring gusher.

Gladwin, n boom town, tells the story of a widow who deeded a note holder n number of acres of sand land. One month ago the land was sold for $3,700. The happy ending to this story, in our judgment, came when the new owner gave the poor widow hulf of the sales price.

MUSKEGON PREPARES FOR BIG CENTENNIAL

City Part In Fur Trading and Lumber Era to Be Depicted

The historical background of Greater Muskegon's Centennial and Lumberjuck Festivul, to be held there July 17 to 31, is so closely tied up with all of the middle west that this entire section of the country is lending its support to make the event a big success.

The story of Muskegon's part in the fur truding and lumber era days cannot be told without weaving in many sections of tbe middle western states, for its part in the timber period is a story of the entire area, to which it sent billions of feet of lumber so that the homes of the rapidly developing cities might be rushed forward.

The Centennial is more than a single event. It marks the 300th anniversary of the birth of Fr. Marquette, the 150th anniversary of the founding of the Northwest Territory, the 100th anniversary of Michigan's admission as a state into the Union, and the 50th anniversary of Muskegon becoming lumber queen of the world.

For many yeurs, immediately following the Chicago fire in 1870, and continuing until 1887, when peak production was reached in the local harbor with over 700,000,000 feet of lumber manufactured in a single year and shipped to various parts of the middle west, Muskegon furnished to almost all cities of that territory the Michigan pine they needed to erect their homes.

Taking its lead from the Chicago Century of Progress, the Muskegon Centennial will build its own exhibition grounds. Most of the buildings and the huge stockade including all of the varied features, will be of log construction, carrying out the century-old heritage of the local river valley.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS
By Ann Page

Somewhat lower prices for meats, butter and eggs prevail in wholesale markets and the housewife should find beef, lamb and fowl a little less high. Eggs are plentiful, their quality is good and the price reasonable, three good reasons for using eggs freely.

In general vegetables are higher as gaps in production occur between one producing section and the next. Gradually the list of available fruits is increasing. The first cherries and huckleberries have arrived with promise of more to come.

All salad greens except large heads of Iceberg lettuce are rensonnble. Serve salads to flagging spring appetites.

Seasonuble foods make up the following menus.

SURVEY SHOWS CAT IS A MENACE TO WILDLIFE

Stomachs Found to Contain Prairie Chicken, Birds and Rabbits

The 20 or so house cats which have been hanging around the Pigeon River CCC camp northeast of Gaylord have given conservation men plenty of opportunity to see what "Tabby" sometimes does to wild game.

Lee Fisher, graduate student of Michigan State College, who is conducting partridge investigntions in the Pigeon River area for the Department of Conservation, has made a number of observations on the work of domestic cats in the wild during the past two years. At one time he learned there were more than 20 house cats in and around camp; some belong to enrollees; others were strays that fed on garbage in addition to the wild birds and animals they killed.

On several occasions cats were tracked in the snow to learn what they were feeding upon when in the woods. The information thus obtained in addition to that collected by examination of stomachs of the cats which had been shot revealed the following food items: Four prairie chickens, two of which had been killed in live-traps; about six horned larks, the eggs or young from several horned-lark nests; a snowshoe rabbit, cottontail rabbit and two meadow mice.

HORSES AND HORSE-POWER

Grandfather was an expert at driving with one hand. With his arm curved about his best girl, he could let old Dobbin jog along with a minimum of attention and a maximum of safety.

But those were the good old days. Nobody had yet dreamed of harnessing 30 or 40 horses together and flitting along the highway at 50 or 60 miles an hour. Grandfather would have said that any young fellow was crazy to attempt that with one hand—or both hands.

Yet many a modern Romeo tries it. And they light their cigarets with hands cupped about the match before their eyes. Half-blind, you might say; certainly blind to the fact that traffic hazards are a thousand times greater than in horse-and-buggy days.

That is one reason, doubtless, why drivers 18 and 19 years old have more fatal accidents than those of other ages. And drivers 20 to 29 years have the next highest rate.

Driving a motor car today is quite as important a job as anybody might care to tackle. It requires good eyesight, good hearing, both hands, both feet, and a high degree of mental alertness at all times.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT BULLETIN

In 1880 tuberculosis caused 326 deaths for every hundred thousand people in the United States. Now it causes only 60 deaths for every hundred thousand people. This has been accomplished by a steady pressure consisting of improved diagnostic and treatment measures, more and better hospitalization, widespread public education which has changed the public attitude toward the disease, and economic trends operating to raise the standard of living and to furnish aid to the under-privileged.

Today there are 1,204 sanatoriums, departments and preventoriums for the tuberculous in United States. They provide approximately 100,000 beds for treatment and there are 7,000 additional beds in prospect. Back in 1900, Michigan did not have a single tuberculosis sanatorium; now it has 29 "approved" institutions in which tuberculous putients may receive the specialized treatment their illness demands. These 29 institutions have a total of 4,563 beds available. Most of these beds are in public hospitals. The State Sanatorium at Howell provides 490 beds and the tuberculosis unit at Ann Arbor has 98 beds. With the completion of the Northern Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Gaylord, which will be ready for occupancy some time the latter part of the summer, it has been hoped to hasten the hospitalization of cases needing urgent care in this area.

Tuberculosis is caused by tuberculosis! Formerly, it was the consensus of opinion that this was a fatal disease, but medicine has progressed to such an extent that a large majority of tuberculosis patients are saved who twenty years ago were regarded as beyond help. When a person is diagnosed as actively tubercular he should place himself in the care of a competent physician who will advise whether sanatorium care is needed. The best place to cure the patient is at a sanatorium—best for the patient and for the family. Here the patient is given complete rest and relaxation, nutrition, fresh air and sunshine — the basic elements of treatment in this disease. Nutrition builds up the weakened body until it can resist and overcome the tubercle bacilli. Bed rest eases the work of the lungs; it quiets their motion and thus it gives scar tissue a chance to form and heal over tuberculous lesions and open cavities in the lung.

However, some patients do not rally by merely following the basic elements of recovery and the chest surgeon has another weapon at his disposal—collapse therapy. He furthers the healing power by collapsing or compressing the infected area, thus closing in cavities and stopping the spread of the tubercle bacilli. Bed rest is a passive weapon; collapse therapy is an active weapon. It has, in the words of a University of Michigun surgical authority, "revolutionized the management of tuberculosis."

Chest surgery has at its command a dozen different operations to help the tuberculosis patient in his fight for recovery. Ten years ago surgery was rarely used in treatment of tuberculosis in Michigan. Now it is prescribed in many of the sanatorium cases. Dr. G. L. Leslie, medical superintendent of the State Sanatorium at Howell, reports that many of the sanatorium cases now receive major or minor operations to help them toward cures.

Chest surgery operations are not ordered hastily in Michigan hospitals nor performed by wholesale. Each case is carefully considered before the exact operation that fits it is decided on.

THE INN HOTEL TO OPEN JULY FIRST

NEW PROGRAM OF ENTERTAINMENT THIS SEASON

W. E. Flyno, Managing Director, and Aboer C. Roseozweig, Master of Ceremonies, Announce Plans

W. E. Flynn, managing director of The Inn, who has announced the gala opening for the summer season on Thursday, July 1, promises the hotel will offer many and new activities and attractions thut will help make u glorious vacation.

The cool summer days will brighten the enjoyment of all the sports and recreations which will include new tennis, indoor baseball and volley ball courts, un enlarged "kiddies" playground and the beautifully appointed open nir "Danzant Gardens" among the trees with attractive "patio" lighting effects. The indoor Danzant room will be well in keeping with the major changes that are now being completed.

A new innovation which should prove popular is the "games" rnom, which will be well equipped with various types of games, including ping pong, pool and billiard tables for the further enjoyment of the guests and their friends of the summer colony.

Abner C. Rosenzweig, master of ceremonies, has selected an exceptional orchestra and band in the Society Syncopators, a talented group of eight musicians, for danzant and concerts, and promises that there will be nctivities and attractions planned for every afternoon and evening for the purpose of having all the entertainment centered about The Inn for the guests and their friends.

The Inn will be "truly a gay spot," with everything that makes for a real vncation for all. Plans are well under way for a special program for the Fourth of July week-end, including sport events, concerts, floor shows and danzant each afternoon and evening.

"Early reservations for the holiday week-end and throughout the summer season are most advisable," suggests Mr. Flynn.

MAY COURT TERM ADJOURNED TO JUNE 17

Jack Ellis and Morris Allen Sentenced to Jackson Prison

The May term of circuit court, which convened Monday before Judge Parm C. Gilbert, was adjourned Tuesday afternoon until June 17.

Due to the smull docket, the jury was not called, but will be subject to duty at the adjourned session or if otherwise summoned.

Two sentences were passed by Judge Gilbert. Jack Ellis, alias Denver Lake, was sentenced to serve from three and one-half to 14 years at Jackson prison following a plen of guilty to a forgery charge. Ellis, who gained considernble local repute as a singer of Hill Billie songs, is wnnted on enough warrants in other Michigan cities where he has transgressed against the law, to keep him out of circulation for some time.

Morris Allen, 19, who was returned from El Pnso, Tex., on u warrant charging him with breaking and entering, pleaded guilty to the charge. His request to be sent to Jackson prison was granted with a sentenee of three to 15 years, with the minimum recommended. Allen admitted breaking and entering the MacDonald cottuge on Park avenue on two occasions, nlso a cottage on the Chicago Club.

Seven applicutions for citizenship were granted by Judge Gilbert, and severnl non-jury mutters were disposed of.

RESORTS IN READINESS FOR SUMMER SEASON

Memorial Week Expected to Open a Record Tourist Season

Michigan's summer playgrounds are being put in readiness for the opening of the tourist und resort season over the Memorial Day week-end as resort assoclation and state officials predict the "greatest season in histnry" for the state's second largest industry.

Thousands nf residents of Michigan and nearby states are planning to take advantage of the first chance of the season to get away from the cities and into the northern part of the state where woods and lakes await them.

A shortage of cottages for the week-end already has been reported generully throughout the resort sections.

"If we have good weather, Michigan should have the best resort seuson in history," Hugh J. Gray, secretary-manager of the West Michigan Tourist and Resort Association, snid at Grand Rapids.

Last year the United States Chamber of Commerce report ranked Michigan as having the greatest tourist trade of any state in the Union.

Cottage rentals and inquiries are reported ahead of last year's.

UTILITY WALK-OUT FAILEO SATUROAY

MAYOR BERGEON THWARTED PLAN OF CITY EMPLOYES

Threatened Arrest If Plants Were Tampered With Following Ultimatum Arising from Wage Dispute

A threatened walk-out of electric light und water depnrtment employes, resulting from a disagreement over wages, failed to materialize Saturday night.

Mayor Arthur Bergeon thwarted the plan when he took charge of the Bellaire hydro plunt and the Charlevoix unit and threatened to post police in each with orders to arrest any person tampering with the equipment.

Saturday night's action was the climax to a week of uncertainty brought about by a written ultimatum, signed by all employes, threatening a walk-out and disruption of service if a higher scale of wages demanded hy the men was not granted prior to the deadline Saturday night. It is understood Superintendent Forrest Plum had given orders to pull the switch at the Bellaire plnnt at midnight Saturday.

As a result of the ultimatum, the city conncil held several special meetings last week. Although not willing to grant the wage scale demanded by the employes, the council made a counter proposal granting un incrense running upward from 15 per cent, which the men refused to consider. It is understood this scale will he paid now that the threatened walk-out is abandoned.

Apprised of the proposed cutting off of electric and water service, Charlevoix eitizens generally had made preparntions for the emergency by laying in a supply of candles and lamps for lighting purposes, und filling bath tubs and miscellaneous containers with water.

CHARLEVOIX THIRD AT REGIONAL MEET

SCORED 27 POINTS AT CADILLAC SATURDAY

Qualified Six Men for State Meet Saturday at Lansing—Plan for Big Class C Meet, May 29

Charlevoix High school, with six men scoring, took third place in Class C competition at the regional track meet Saturdny at Cndillue.

Mancelona was the Class C winner with 35 points, Shelby was second with 28 2-5 points, and Charlevoix third with 27 1-5. In view of Saturday's results, Charlevoix placed six men in the state Class C track meet to be held Saturday at Lansing. Edward Radle, state champion in the mile run in Class C, placed second, and Edward Gregory third in the same event. Jim Hiller took third place in the quarter-mile, Leslie Shapton was second in the broad jump, Richard Bergmann was second in the high hurdles, and Oloch placed third in the half-mile.

These men will represent Charlevoix High school at Lansing. Coaches Kipke and Coleman will accompany the team.

Other regional winners were Cadillac in Class B and Ellsworth in Class D.

Following the state meet at Lansing, Charlevoix athletic officials will rush completion of plans for the annual Northern Michigan Class C track meet to be held Saturday, May 29, at the new south side athletic field. This event promises to draw the largest field ever to compete in a track meet at Charlevoix. At least five Class C schools will be represented, and nearly 100 athletes will take part.

Prepnrntion of the south side athletic field, the most complete lay-out in Northern Michigan, is progressing rapidly. Bleachers are now being erected and guard ruils along the track installed. The project, sponsored by the board of education, is under WPA supervision.

ASHES CHARLES BUSH SCATTERED ON JORDAN

Former Local Resident Died at Ann Arbor—Body Cremated

Wednesday afternoon the last solemn rites were held for the nshes of Charles Grant Bush and they were scattered upon the waters nf the Jordan River as it passes Graves Crossing.

Mr. Bush grew to manhood in East Jordnn, and the Jordan River at Graves Crossing was his favorite haunt in the days when his father did lumbering in that area.

Mr. Bush died in Ann Arbor on Armistice Day, 1932, and his body was cremated in that city, and on Wednesday afternoon his wish was fulfilled in regard to the disposition of his ashes. Rev. C. W. Sidebotham officiated at the service.

Besides the widow and five children Mr. Bush leaves one brother, Stanley, and two sisters, Mrs. Nellie Hudson and Mrs. Nina Malone.—Charlevoix County Herald.

VISITORS INVITED TO CHARLEVOIX NURSERY

George R. Hemingway, Owner, Calls Attention to Spring Attractions

Its nature's coronation every Spring, with the opening of the buds now life is all about us. Our capacity to see and enjoy is uur challenge each day now.

No greater influence in building benuty and offering joy messengers than the Charlevoix County Nursery, owned und operated by our resorter, George R. Hemingway, of Oak Park, Ill. His deep interest in the growing trees and flowers has been shared with every community in Northern Michigan.

Mr. Hemingway reports very favorable wintering of nursery material which gives evidence of added hardiness to the choice northern grown evergreens, shrubs and ornamental trees and hardy flowers. The nursery being near the Ironton Ferry has the influence of being almost surrounded by water and is free from early and late frosts.

Mr. Hemingway cordially invites visitors at all times to enjoy the season's blooms. The famous Japanese cherries will soon offer an unusual treat. Planting time is here and this season a new "cash and carry" plan is giving exceptional values.

RAYDERS RETAIN BASEBALL LEAO

FOUR VICTORIES AND ONE DEFEAT BEST RECORD

Defeated First Time of Season by Boyne City, Tuesday — Won Over Harbor on Friday

Although defeated Tuesday afternoon 12 to 7 by Boyne City for their first set-back of the season, Charlevoix High school baseball team retained their lead over the western division of the Northern Michigan Class C league with four victories and one defeat.

Boyne succeeded here Tuesday after being beaten by Charlevoix earlier in the season. They collected 13 hits to Charlevoix's eight, including a home run by Hausler, first man ut bat. Dickerson made three hits for Boyne, one a three-bagger.

Charlevoix was charged with five errors to Boyne's two. Kulpa and Green, the two hurlers, had even records, each striking out eight and giving four bases on balls. Doyle Richardson made two hits for Charlevoix and M. Richardson hit a triple.

The score:

									R	H	E
Boyne	1	0	3	1	5	2	0		12	13	2
Charlevoix.	2	0	3	1	1	0	0		7	8	5

Charlevoix added their fourth straight victory Friday afternoon at Harbor Springs, taking an 8 to 3 victory, the second over Harbor. Charlevoix scored four runs in the fourth inning and added two more in each of the last two innings.

Charlevoix will complete their baseball schedule Thursday, May 20, at Enst Jordan.

OUTLINEO HARBOR PROGRAM TUESOAY

COMMITTEE NAMED TO MEET WAR DEPT. OFFICIALS

Will Ask for 20-Foot Upper aod Lower Channels at Hearing to Be Held Here May 26

A program nf harbor developments deemed necessary for Charlevoix's present and future requirements was outlined at a meeting of city council and hoard of commerce members and other interested persons Tuesday evening.

The meeting was called for the purpose of designing a definite program for pre-entation May 26 when officials of the United States War Department come here for a hearing on the advisability of harbor improvements. The meeting is scheduled for 10 a. m. on May 26, at the council chambers.

At Tuesday night's meeting it was decided, following lengthy discussion of the matter, to request deepening of both the upper and lower channels to a depth of 20 feet. In view of the passage of coal carriers to Boyne City, the establishment here of the Charlevoix Terminal Co. and its requirements hy water transportation, as well as the increasing number of large passenger boats using this hurbor, the 20 foot channel was deemed not only advisable, but a necessity. The anticipated freight tonnage will he used especially as an argument for the proposed request.

Mayor Arthur Bergeon, acting unofficially as chairman of the meeting, appointed a committee of five to prepare the improvement program and present same before the War Department officials. This committee is composed of City Engineer Robert F. Sloan as chairman, Fred E. Cartier, Harold Hallett, Kenneth Usher and E. J. Edwards. Mayor Bergeon and Capt. Oscar Smith of the local coast guard unit will assist in an advisory capacity.

Favorable consideration of the request by the War Department would require a big program of pier improvement, as the present revetments are not designed for the channel depth to be reqoested.

DETROITER LEASES MOONLIGHT GARDENS

Will Open Season at Popular Dance Hall Saturday Night, May 22

Moonlight Gardens, one of Northern Michigan's most popular dance halls, has been leased by Mrs. Delia Jeffery, owner, to George Shiotelis, of Detroit, for the summer senson.

The official opening for the summer has been announced by Mr. Shiotelis for Saturdny evening, May 22. Dick Snook, the trumpet maestro, and his orchestra, have been engaged for the season. This group comes from Grand Rapids, where they have played engagements for some of the leading amusement and entertainment places.

Dancing will be offered Saturday, May 29, and, after June 1, the schedule will be Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings throughout the summer.

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Paralleling Governor Murphy's labor relations bill (House Bill 571) which would invest the state executive with authority of a strike dictator is a milk control board bill (House Bill 368, by Hatch, Priest, Jarvis and Schneider) which would give the state authority to fix the price of milk.

Both measures are far-reaching in their proposals to increase state powers.

What the labor relations bill would do to industrial centers, the farm control bill would do to rural dairy centers. Both would set up the state government as the mighty arbiter between labor and the producer.

Declares Roy McDonald, of St. Clair, vice-president of the Michigan Farmers' Union, which is urging enactment of the milk control bill: "Farmers are on the verge of a strike in Michigan."

Opposing the price-fixing plan are the National Milk Producers Association and the State Milk Producers Association, whose officials believe that governmental tinkering of the

The high school play given at the parish hall Sunday night was well attended, and proved a big success.

Tony Woyan, who is installing a saw mill here, spent Saturday at Pellston, returning here Tuesday.

Chester Baddy, manager of the A. & P. store at Charlevoix, spent Tuesday and Wednesday here on business.

Robert MacFarland and Gordon Love, of the MacFarland Lumber Co., Grand Rapids, were visitors here Thursday.

Dr. and Mrs. Russell Palmer returned home Wednesday, following a 15-day visit at Detroit, Lansing and Charlevoix.

Edward Green returned Wednesday from Charlevoix, where he was called as a juror at the May term of circuit court.

Mrs. Dave Wilson and Mrs. Redding returned home Wednesday from Charlevoix, where they spent a few days on business.

Mrs. Vernon Lafreniere left last week for Garden, Mich., to spend a few weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Belfy.

Barney Martin made a trip to Petoskey with the gas boat Silver Moon on Tuesday after a load of freight for Nels Lafreniere.

W. C. McDonough and Charles Martin left Saturday for Chicago, from which point they expect to ship for lake service this season.

Mrs. Henry Partridge, of Charlevoix, spent a few days here last week visiting her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ashdon.

Commander Ward Bennett and E. C. Yoeman, of Coast Guard headquarters, of Grand Haven, were here Friday and Saturday on business.

Herman Pischner returned on Wednesday from Charlevoix, where he has been employed at Hamilton & Son boat yard the past two weeks.

Father Fox was a passenger Monday on the Mary Margaret, going to Grand Rapids and Muskegon for a visit of several days. He is expected home Friday.

Mrs. Alice Sommerville, daughter, Josephine, and granddaughter, Donna, returned to their home in East Jordan on Tuesday, after a visit here with their son and brother, Paul Sommerville.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS
By B. C. Mellencamp

Ladies' Achievement Day Greatly Enjoyed by a Large Attendance

On Mny 11th in the East Jordan auditorium a wonderful delegation of ladies from all points of the county enjoyed the many features staged in connection with the annual ladies' Achievement Day. Especially did the many exhibits attract attention. These exhibits were displayed around the gymnasium floor. Above each exhibit a placard was hung which gave the name of the exhibit and the community responsible for it. Never before have so many exhibits vividly told the story of the nutrition and child care projects.

Probably the most instructive exhibit was one on children's furniture. A little dresser was constructed by placing a well finished board over two orange crates. This was about the right height for children and made a very convenient place to hold dresses and other articles of apparel. A little chair likewise made from an orange crate covered with cretone completed the wardrobe.

In the nutrition display the exhibits forcibly brought to the attention of the visitors the importance of fruits and vegetables, rich in vitamins, and the use of foods in place of the old tonics and remedies of yesterday.

The forenoon program was introduced by Mrs. Helen Cohn, county chairman. During the forenoon session Miss Roberta Hershey gave a brief summary of the results of this year's project. She stated that 232 ladies were enrolled and that each one on an average, helped three other people outside of the group. Four hundred four better health practices were reported. One hundred eighty-three families use more vegetables milk and tomatoes.

A wonderful noon meal was served to approximately 116 ladies in the Methodist church. The afternoon program started at 1:30 again with Mrs. Cohn as chairman. The address of welcome was given very graciously by Miss Bernice Bashaw and the response by Mrs. Lavina Lockman. Next appeared several musical numbers that were enthusiastically received by the large attendance. A tap dancing number put on by eight young girls was especially fine. A flute duet by Miss Wilma Shepard and Miss Marty Clark was well received. Not to be outdone, Miss Jacklyn Cook rendered a piano solo.

Miss Robeita Hershey gave a splendid talk on "Folks and Food." She kept her audience in good humor by relating many amusing incidents of her work in other states. The main address of the afternoon was given by C. H. Mahoney, specialist in vegetable gardening from the Michigan State College, on the subject, "Vegetable Gardening, 1937 Style." Mr. Mahoney gave many recommendations on varieties of vegetables, time of planting and cultural methods to use. The ladies were deeply interested in his discussion as shown by the dozens of questions asked in regard to various problems. The last feature of the program was the presentation of certificates to the ladies who had completed their course of study.

For the new year the election resulted in the selection of Miss Jennie Black, of Charlevoix, as county chairman, Mrs. Connie VanHoesen, of Boyne City, as recreational leader, and Mrs. Florence McGhan, of Charlevoix, as county secretary. Twenty-three different communities participated in the Achievement Day. The ladies have selected another project in nutrition for the new year and everything points to another highly successful program which will start this fall.

Second Checks in 1936 Soil Conservation Program Have Been Received

Very recently the second checks covering the 1936 Soil Conservation program have been received. These checks run very small in amount as they only represent approximately seven per cent of the conserving payment already made. It is to be remembered that 10 per cent was held back from the conversion payments due in the first check.

Please keep this in mind, that the soil building payments were made in full, and that the 10 per cent deduction was only made from the soil conserving payment. Therefore in cases where farmers received their entire payment from soil building practices, they do not receive a second check. This is the reason why there will be in the neighborhood of 100 who do not receive a second check, but who did receive their first check.

The last year's program now is practically completed. In fact there are only eight checks that have not been received. These checks have been held back because of various claims incurred in past programs. As near as can be determined with the receipt of the last checks there will be approximately $25,500 paid out to 658 farmers in this county in benefit checks.

HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER OPPOSES GAS TAX HIKE

Proposal to Increase Three-Cent Gasoline Levy Meets Rebuke

Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner, went on record this week against any increase in the three-cent state gasoline tax.

The commissioner's stand was taken before a delegation of officials from ten Michigan cities who argued against any legislative proposal to increase highway revenue returns to the county road commissions. Commissioner Van Wagoner's statement came in direct answer to a question from city officials.

"I am opposed to any proposal which would increase the gasoline tax," the commissioner said. "The motorist is taxed enough as it is."

When Phil, only a few weeks before these happy holidays at Carmel, had told his sisters that some time this summer he was to be married to Lily Cass, widowed now, it was the usually quiet Edith who broke into tears, protest, and pleading, and the usually impetuous and proud Gail who said gently:

"If you love her, Phil, Ede and I wouldn't want anyone who—who loved anyone—really truly loved her—to be unhappy."

"Gail, you're so sweet!" Phil, taken unawares, and completely disarmed, had said gratefully.

"So that's the next thing we have to face!" Edith had said when the sisters were alone.

"I suppose so."

"I'd like to know how he thinks we're going to manage financially."

"Oh . . . Perhaps renting the corner to the gas-station people."

"Which we'll never do!" Edith had said hotly. She had hesitated, surprised at the expression on Gail's face, and had added, quickly, "You wouldn't, would you, Gail?"

"Well, we're getting more and more into the downtown streets, Ede. We're going to be forced out, some day. And a hundred a month is big money for that empty corner.

"If Phil marries Lily," she went on, after a thoughtful interval, "I mean to act—well, with all the character—I mean with all the—well, philosophy I can scrape together, I'm going to act as if she wasn't Lily Wibser of Thomas Street hill, but Phil's wife. Not the one we would have chosen, maybe—"

"Gail, you're so wonderful!" Edith said passionately, as she paused. "I think you're the most wonderful woman alive!"

"I used to think I was unusual, Ede," Gail had said in a sudden humility, "I couldn't help it—the way things went at school, the literature prizes, the grades I skipped. But if I am, what has it gotten me?"

"Oh, Gail, you can't tell what's ahead! We don't know what's coming!"

"I know. I'm twenty-six," Gail had said seriously.

CHAPTER VIII

They came home on a hot Saturday afternoon, wearied, sunburned, and content from their vacation at Carmel.

"It's good to get home!" Gail said, luxuriously unpacking, undressing, bending her slender body double to brush her inverted fluffy mop.

"But I could live at Carmel forever!" Edith said.

And then suddenly there was Phil flying upstairs, and the thunderbolt of the news. Phil married! He and Lily married this morning, partly because Lily's house had burned down yesterday afternoon with all her clothes and all the children's clothes. And Phil only waiting his sisters' return to invite his wife and the three tiny stepsons into the Lawrence house for the time being, anyway, "until we can find some place. . . ."

Lily helped Gail get supper that evening. Wolfe, Miles, and Daniel Cass played in the Lawrences' side yard, under the willow, where Phil and Gail, Edith, Sam, and Ariel had all played a few years ago, and their father before them.

Lily was nearly thirty; she knew little of books, art, culture, social fineness. But about other things—men, life, wifehood, motherhood—of course Lily knew a great deal. Between her and Gail, as they worked together, there rose a strange wall of silence. Their conversation became monosyllabic, careful, considerate.

Gail was very gentle; she was conscious of an inner trembling. There was a jar, a shock in Phil's marriage, but it was a fact accomplished now, and Phil must not ever know how his sisters felt. She and Edith must just make the best of it—Lily and the children would not be under their roof for long, anyway.

The children were round, shaggy little fellows, with Celtic blue eyes and dark hair. Dan, the three-year-old, still retained a certain babyish uncertainty of outline, his wet little mouth hung open, his tawny hair, hands were caked with dirt. His blue eyes were affectionate, hopeful. As he ate his supper he leaned comfortably against Gail's knee. Gail, peeling apples, found the feeling of the soft, warm, boneless little body rather disarming.

It seemed utterly unnatural for life to go on in its old grooves—the old grooves [illegible] the new. To [illegible] to work with [illegible] morning leaving Lily [illegible] complacent in the house [illegible], simply was not a possible situation. Gail felt disturbed and nervous, she began to hate to go home.

Even Edith, whose main effort was to preserve peace in these troubled days, found Lily's self-satisfied young wifehood trying beyond bearing.

Phil saw nothing of his sisters' attitude; he was in a seventh heaven of happiness. But Lily saw enough to convince her of Gail's and Edith's contempt and dislike, and, having the whip hand, took her revenge in a hundred little ways quite invisible and unmanageable to Phil.

"We can't stand it!" Gail said to

"We Can't Stand It!" Gail Said to Edith.

Edith, lunching with her at the Woman's exchange.

"Well, why don't they find a house?"

"Oh, I don't believe they're even looking!"

"Why should they? They're perfectly comfortable, and you and I do all the dinner dishes!"

"Has Phil gone crazy?" Gail would ask gloomily. "What does he think we are, to put up with it?"

"You know what she said, after that very first night. Remember when she came down to the library and said, 'Phil and I intend to get out of here at the first possible moment'?"

"I remember. But then she told Sam yesterday that the house was as much Phil's as ours."

"Well, it isn't!" Edith said stubbornly and fiercely.

"I suppose it is." And Gail would shut her lips in that new, firm line, and knit her thick Lawrence brows until they almost met.

"What can we do, Gail? We can't go on like this."

"I don't know what we can do," Gail would ponder darkly. "No use in the world appealing to Phil!" she said more than once.

"Oh, no use at all."

"He told me that the cheapest place he could move in, with the three children—and I dare say another coming—"

"Oh, Gail, no!"

"Well, I wouldn't be one bit surprised. He told me that the only decent places he could find were sixty and seventy-five, and that he simply couldn't pay it. They ran up a bill of more than two hundred at Muller's, you know, when Lily's clothes were all burned up."

"I know. Invisible stockings and fourteen-dollar hats!" Edith said in the pause.

"And now that Joe Cass is dead and Lily getting nothing from her people, I suppose Phil can't afford it. We never had any too much, as it was, and Phil's simply added four more persons to the list."

"You'd think," said Edith in patient scorn, "that Phil might have seen that coming!"

"I try—I really do try to be decent to Lily," Gail said after awhile. "I try to think up things that will interest her, and be reasonable when she's helping me in the kitchen. But when I hear a thing like her telling Sam that Phil has as much right in the house as we have . . ."

Another silence. Then Gail added, very low, "Something rises up in my soul, and I feel that I could murder her!"

"I wish we could get away, Gail, you and I."

"Oh, I mean to!"

"If we could live in Carmel!"

"I know. And if we rented the corner for a gas station, and you and I had that, we could live there."

"Then that reconciles me to the gas station!" Edith said, fervently.

"I suppose," Gail summarized it all somberly, "the only decent thing—the only square thing—is to make the best of it. It's one of those things that would be so darned easy—so picturesque in a book. And it's—so hard—"

The voice that to Edith was always brave and gallant faltered a little, but Gail wanted no sympathy. There was a scowl between her eyes, a gruffness in her aspect that repudiated it.

"This effort to make the best of it won't get us anywhere," she said.

Yet Edith was quite keen enough to notice the courage with which Gail carried the whole situation that night. The atmosphere, which in the three weeks since Phil's marriage had been charged with dangerous electricity, cleared. Gail was not only nice to Lily; she seemed able, with her own peculiar winning sweetness, to put herself in Lily's place. It was as if she had a part to play, and was determined to play it to its utmost limits.

For the first time, tonight, she spoke of the marriage, its suddenness and surprise. If Lily suspected some lingering trace of apology in this she gave no sign, but, she brightened visibly, and the dinner table was more like its old self than it had been since the Saturday of Edith's and Gail's return.

Phil, in the futuous blindness of love, was radiant with satisfaction, and Edith felt that he would feel that they could all go on living together indefinitely—the happy family in which men are so pathetically eager to believe.

"No, he won't do that!" said Gail. "For I'm going to talk to him tomorrow, and get everything definitely settled. Then we'll only have to work toward our goal. Enough money for the smallest overhead expenses we can manage, and then you and I'll get out—out of Clippersville forever!"

"I love Clippersville," Edith said dreamily. "I don't think anyone could love a place more. I always think of Clippersville as the sweetest place in the world," the younger sister pursued.

"Just the same, I'm going to get out, Edith Lawrence!"

"And just the same, I'm going with you, Abigail!"

This on a Monday, the last of September. On the Tuesday, on the Wednesday, Gail looked for her chance to talk to Phil, in vain. On Thursday Gail went home to lunch to find Edith and Lily in a glory of housecleaning. They appeared to be working together harmoniously enough, and Gail walked back to the library at one o'clock moralizing in her own soul upon the desirability of making the best of things in this curious world, putting up with what could not be changed, enduring what could not be cured.

The only way to get past certain things in life is to plunge right through them, like them—or pretend you did—learn from them, and go on to other lessons.

The early October day was somber and overcast without rain, but equally without sun. Leaves were turning restlessly in the gardens; other leaves, heaps of them, were being raked into damp, somber piles that smoked in the lifeless, ominous air and scented the world with autumn. A strange bush lay over the town; something was expected, something was drawing nearer and nearer across the great range of the eastern mountains and under the pale cool sky.

Edith and Gail almost always walked home together. But Edith was not downtown today, and Gail had no need to stop at Muller's book department as usual. It was the third, the night they called the "house's birthday," and Gail—reflecting rather ungraciously that they might as well break Lily into some of the customs of the Lawrence household, since the poor little creature appeared to be only too anxious to copy her new family's ways and ideas, stopped at the hardware store and bought twelve new drinking glasses.

"Did you wish them wrapped as a gift, Miss Lawrence?"

"Well, yes," Gail said, with a whimsical twist in the corners of her mouth. "Wrap them as a gift."

"We haven't given Phil and Lily anything," she thought as she walked on. "Well, they didn't give us any warning. Perhaps Edith and I'll make some gesture—some day, before we leave. And Ariel—Mother's poet! To have no wedding, no fun, no beauty. And not to have loved us. She couldn't have loved us, to walk out that Christmas night and send us no word—never to write.

"It's a funny world. Things seem to happen to us Lawrences. But such queer things, and in such funny ways."

The two older Cass boys—they were to be Lawrence boys soon, for Phil, in his gentle way, adored his stepsons and was eager to have them take his name—the two older Cass boys were digging contentedly down at the end of the garden where the grass was sprouting green and pale in the shadow of the heavy evergreen fence. Gail waved at them as she followed the uneven, discolored flags of the path to the side door.

And then Phil in the kitchen chopping ice—chopping ice . . .? And Lily flying down the back stairway, with a terrible face—a terrible face.

"Gail! Edith was hurt."

"Edith!"

"She fell. She struck her head." This was Lily. She gestured with an arm. Gail ran.

Edith was unconscious on the couch, her eyes closed. Her soft tawny hair was damp, her forehead wet. A girl—

CONTINENTAL OIL CO. USES NEWSPAPER SPACE

Finds Newspapers Best Medium for Advertising Conoco Products

Convinced that newspaper space represents the most advantageous medium for merchandising its products as evidenced by substantial increases in sales of Conoco germ-processed motor oil following past newspaper advertising campaigns, Continental Oil Company is again launching a large-scale advertising campaign in some 1400 carefully selected papers in all sections of the nation.

The campaign will continue into September and will be distinguished by the fact that it will feature the Charlevoix Oil Co., the local dealer, as well as the company's oil.

Surveys conducted by Continental's advertising department showed two factors which decided the nature of the forthcoming campaign. First, it was ascertained that the best sales results followed the use of newspaper advertising; and second, that the average motorist is far more concerned with the mileage he obtains from his motor oil than any other single factor.

TB X-RAY WAS GIVEN AT BOYNE CITY WEDNESDAY

Examination Financed by Xmas Seals Given to 104 Persons

The magic eye of the X-ray, modern weapon against tuberculosis, was brought Wednesday, May 12, to 104 residents of Charlevoix county who had been exposed to a case of active tuberculosis.

Financed by pennies spent in the county for tuberculosis Christmas seals, the X-ray films were taken by Arnold J. Linden, technician in charge of the traveling X-ray unit of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association., District Department of Health No. 3, under the direction of Dr. Carleton Dean, cooperated with the association in arranging for the clinic.

The films have been sent to Detroit where they will be read and interpreted by medical experts.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS

Ned Durance and daughter, Emma Lou, of Flint, were week-end guests of Charlevoix relatives. They were accompanied home by Mrs. Durance, who had been guest for several weeks of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carey.

Mr. and Mrs. William Stern, of New York City, are spending their honeymoon at the May cottage on Park avenue. Mrs. Stern, before her marriage, was Harriett May, daughter of the late M. S. May, of Grand Rapids.

Miss Rae Graveur, who has been spending the winter in Clearwater, Fla., has arrived here for the summer season. Miss Graveur is secretary for her sister, Mrs. Carl C. Steiner, who, with Mr. Steiner, manage the Belvedere Hotel.

Rev. and Mrs. G. R. Parker have returned home from an extended visit in Memphis, Tenn., with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kane. They attended the Michigan Congregational conference at Owosso while en route home.

Miss Florence A. Franklin, manager of the Chicago Club of Charlevoix for many years, arrived here Tuesday for the 1937 summer season. Work of preparing the Club for the summer will be started at once under Miss Franklin's supervision.

Mrs. W. B. Stewart and Mrs. C. S. Bigelow, of Toledo, O., the former well known Belvedere Club summer resident, were visitors here Monday. While here, Mrs. Bigelow rented the Donald Boudeman cottage on the Belvedere Club for the summer season.

The Charlevoix County State Bank was represented at the meeting of Group No. 2 of the Michigan Bankers' Association, held Tuesday evening at Traverse City, by Robert Bridge, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ladd, Elmer D. Hawley, Miss Esther West, and J. M. Foster.

CAMPAIGN FOR BETTER DAIRY PRODUCTS HELD

State Official Worked in Conjunction With A. R. Reowick

During the week ending May 8, Frank Jankowski, directing supervisor of dairy inspectors for the State of Michigan, has worked with Dr. A. R. Renwick, of District Health Unit No. 3, in concerted drive, the object of which was to point the way toward the production of a better quality of dairy products for the market. Mr. Jankowski has received a gold medal for the highest score ever made in the state on creamery butter.

One of the main phases of the week's campaign was a series of talks given to schools at which there is a considerable representation of students from rural areas. The idea was to bring to the attention of country students the desirability of putting out a clean and wholesome milk, and clean and wholesome butter, ice cream and cheese. Some 835 students at the following schools received the benefit of these talks and, by the enthusiasm of their responsive applause, showed that they appreciated the information imparted, particularly the kindly and humorous way in which Mr. Jankowski imparted his message: Monday, Elk Rapids, Alden, Bellaire and Ellsworth; Tuesday, Alba, Vanderbilt and Johannesburg; Wednesday, Alanson and Pellston.

Any other school desiring to hear this message relative to the values of dairy products in the diet and the ways in which a quality product may be produced cheaply can make arrangements to hear Mr. Jankowski at some future date.

On the program with Mr. Jankowski, Dr. Renwick gave a short talk on sanitation and personal cleanliness.

Besides this program at some of the schools, considerable time was spent in checking on the cleanliness practices of Grade A dairies at Charlevoix, Harbor Springs and Baylord.

MOTHPROOF BAGS DEFY FUR EATERS

Moths may continue to flit gloomily about in closets but they will go hungry if proper precautions are taken in storing furs at home this summer. Garments should be placed in heavy moth proof bags and sealed with gummed paper. Commercial moth preventatives may be placed in the bottom of the bag, but should not touch the garment as they often cause discoloration.

Mary Bomhold—was there, white and concerned, not touching Edith.

"I thought you were the doctor, Gail," Mary said in a still voice. "We took off her shoes," she added inconsequentially.

Gail was breathing in great spent breaths. She could not speak. Her lips moved soundlessly.

"She fell—?" asked the silent, moving lips.

"No," Phil was beside his sister, his arm about her. She leaned against him, suddenly spent. "No. It was the statue—the Neapolitan Boy," he said. "One of the kids—Danny—ran against it. Mary and Edith were just going out, and Ede leaned over and caught at the pedestal—and it toppled and struck her."

"How long ago?"

"Ten minutes. We telephoned you."

"Doctor?"

"He's on his way."

"Phil—Phil—" she whispered, swallowing.

"I don't know, Gail. We don't know. Lily says that one of her brothers—"

Lily knelt beside Edith, and with her gentle, common, stubby little hands fitted an improvised ice bag on Edith's head.

"Ah, that's lovely, Gail!" Edith said unexpectedly in a clear, low, happy voice. "Are we swimming? Green—green—green water—like emeralds—wet emeralds."

She lapsed into silence again, sighing contentedly.

"She's coming out of it; it was only a shock," Phil said, frowning, with a reassuring nod and glance for Gail.

Gail was not conscious of the passing of time. She was conscious of but one thing—Edith. She must hold Edith here, by the sheer power of that sisterly love that was the strongest love in her life.

Doctor Peters was here, and Doctor Reynolds. They wanted another opinion, a man from San Francisco. Concussion, undoubtedly, and possibly fracture, but it might be that both were slight. In undertones, in the hall, old Doctor Peters told Phil of other cases—cases from which one never would have supposed that little boys could recover. But they had.

"Doctor Bensinger from San Francisco is coming," Phil told Gail when she emerged, white and dazed, from the sitting room at ten o'clock. "He'll be here about three. And Dr. Peters says that if Edith goes on all right until this time tomorrow, she's got a good chance."

The weary eyes were raised.

"Then the only thing to do is—live, until this time tomorrow."

Lily brought her warm wrapper, her slippers, downstairs, set a cup of hot coffee before her.

"Oh, thank you, Lily," Gail said, with the first honestly affectionate look she had ever given her little sister-in-law.

"Oh, Gail, if it hadn't been Danny!" Lily said, weeping.

"Poor Danny!" Gail murmured, with a steady, dry-eyed shadow of her old smile.

She went back to her post, sitting in the low chair that had been "Mother's rocker" for twenty-five years. Old Doctor Peters came and went in the quiet room. Lily was up all night; Phil and Sam kept vigil in the kitchen.

Sometimes Edith murmured. At about two o'clock she opened her eyes, looked straight at Gail, and said, in her own smiling way, "I'll tell you, Gail. I'll go first and get the cottage ready, and be waiting for you!"

"All right, my darling," Gail's trembling, tender voice answered.

"Put that comforter over her feet, will you, Lily? She doesn't feel any too warm."

Lily had been kneeling. But she was on her feet now, and as she brought the comforter a strange expression came into her face.

"Let's say some prayers, Gail!" she said suddenly, in a frightened tone.

"Ah, as if I hadn't! And she did, too," Gail whispered back. "We said our prayers together, just as we used to, a little while ago, and she seemed so sensible; just—hungry—for them."

"Doctor Bensinger is here," Phil announced in the doorway.

"Phil!" Lily said quickly, running to her husband, catching him importunately by the arm. "Take Gail away—Phil—"

"Take—?" Gail echoed. She got to her feet, looked dazedly from Phil to the doctor. The San Francisco physician was beside Edith. He had straightened up—had said something to Doctor Peters.

They were trying to make her leave Edith, and she would not go. She looked from face to face, terrified. Then she was conscious of choking, and of seizing Phil with both frantic hands and of trying to scream.

Then the room rocked and the world rocked, and there was nothing but blackness everywhere.

CHAPTER IX

Gail went to the strange country of grief. She saw the sunlight changed and sickly, the trees brassy and dead; the country town, where all her life had been spent, was a pasteboard town now, a place of unrealities and emptiness.

Every one was kind to her. She was amazed at the kindness, at the pains these good folk took, to help her through the echoing, queer days. She thanked them absently, came suddenly to consciousness, confusedly thanking them again.

Letters brought her beautiful messages; she found other beautiful words in books.

"Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted."

Grandma Polk, foremost in suffrage and prohibition and social work generally for half a century, copied out a poem for her in a trembling, beautifully clear old hand.

I shall go gently, never fear—give little warning,
Say not good-night, but in some happier sphere,
Bid you good-morning.

Old Man Whitman, who had known Stevenson, sent her the exquisite verses that genius had written for one in grief:

He is not dead, this friend; not dead,
But in the path we mortals tread
Got some few trifling steps ahead, and nearer to the end.
So that you, too, once past the bend
Shall meet again as face to face this friend
You fancy dead.
Push gaily on, strong heart! The while
You travel forward mile by mile
He loiters with a backward smile
Till you can overtake
And straths his eyes to search his wake,
Or whistling, as he sees you through the brake,
Waits on a stile.

"The dove, finding no place to rest her foot, returned to him in the ark," said the priest gravely at Edith's funeral.

And browsing among the books to which she turned with the sure instinct of the living creature that must fight for its life, Gail thought in lines of music, "Oh, lyric love, half angel and half bird . . . " she whispered, walking alone to the library in the cool winter mornings. "Oh, Edith, Edith, come back to me, heloved, or I die!"

Miss Mary Tevis, the rich, eccentric old maid who had once given Edith dresses and hats, took Gail with her to Santa Barbara for Christmas. They drove down in the big Tevis car, and stayed at an enormous hotel, saw movie queens entertaining hilarious friends at dinner, spent whole mornings swimming, idling on the sand. They went to a big inter-collegiate game in Pasadena, and came back to Clippersville feeling that somehow they had cheated the year, and that there had been no Christmas at all.

The oil company began to build a trim little station, all red-and-white paint and fences, on the corner of the Lawrence place, and Phil spent his Saturday afternoons and Sundays clearing the overgrown garden at the other side of the house, chopping down moldy old shrubs and trees starved and cramped for light and air. Sunshine flooded the house that had been robbed of it for forty years; the rusty marks of the vines showed on the shabby paint.

The trees fell with long crashes in the hot January sunshine, and lay prone across the pampas grass and verbena bushes. Light streamed oddly into the dining room, and into the downstairs sitting room, where Edith had lain muttering on a chill October afternoon. The old house seemed shabbier than ever in this humiliating undressing, and yet it was good to have the great oaks on the western side of the garden exposed in all their stalwart beauty, and to obliterate the old paths with their hottle borders, and roll the tortured and raked earth smooth for a lawn.

Phil and Sam toiled and sweated happily at the changes; the small boys tumbled ecstatically, like worm-hunting robins, in their wake. Great brush fires smoked up into the clear warm spring air, and the ashes sifted softly upon Lily and Gail, who sat on the steps of the side porch and gave general directions as to the pruning of vines and the lopping of branches.

The heavily massed foliage gave way, parted, fell in great clumsy masses to the ground. Sometimes both men got tangled in it, and had to be helped out, with panting and laughter.

"They are happy," Gail thought, seeing Phil grow younger, simpler, more contented every hour. The disreputable old house, weather-beaten without and within, was heaven to him. Lily, paler now than she had been, her slender shapeless body already rounding out toward motherhood again, held in her stubby little common Wilbser hand the keys of life for Phil. He had never been ambitious, socially or in a business way; what other men did, what the neighbors meant, signified nothing to Phil.

"They are happy, and I mustn't spoil it. Sam will marry here in Clippersville, just as Phil has, and they'll always be friends. And when I can I'll go away, I'll find my sort of living, too.

"But until I go, I must add to their happiness. Nobody—nobody ought to suffer, if there's any way out!"

If Lily had ever annoyed Gail, she did not annoy her now. Lily's complete lack of culture was nothing — Gail never thought of it. Lily's little airs and graces as Mrs. Phil Lawrence passed unnoticed. Lily could go to the movie with Phil, at the end of the long, busy day; there was no imposition in leaving the children with Gail, for Gail was at home anyway, and the children adored her.

She spent a wet March evening pasting pictures in her camera book, turning the pages backward, lingering against her will over the little prints.

Ariel, about ten, a fairylike little creature, with ringlets, Edith, in her white sweater, laughing and holding the dog—what was his name?

"Phil, what was the name of that mongrel we had for awhile?"

"Bim?"

"Bim."

Pictures taken out on the Stanislaus place with the Stebbinses. Dick, a rough-headed, long-legged fellow of twenty, little Sam all freckles and elbows.

Picnic pictures, up at the dam. Edith, quite a little girl, laughing, with her eyes glowing under a broad straw hat, and in the gingham Miss Lotty had made her. Pictures with Papa in them: Papa opening a bottle of olives—Papa going off bicycling with Doctor Smith.

And Edith again—and again—and again: in her bathing suit; in a kitchen apron, with a big spoon; in her kimono, with her drying hair all over her shoulders.

"I think I could bear it better, Phil," Gail said sometimes, "if Edith had had the beauty and sweetness she wanted to—if she hadn't had to plug to Muller's day after day, in her shabby little corduroy dress!"

"But she was happy, Gail. She was one of the happiest girls I ever knew. If she could just have you—"

But this would be too much. Gail must flash from the room, flying, hurrying bowed before the storm.

On a certain March Sunday Phil asked Gail rather timidly if she thought it would be a good day to take their luncheon up to the dam.

Gail looked up with her perplexed little smile, bringing her thoughts home, drawing her thick dark brows together for a second. Then her serious face brightened.

"Oh, Phil, it'd be a marvelous day for it!"

He looked at her as if he had never seen her before, although he gave no sign of finding a change in her. But there was something actually beautiful in Gail's face now, something disciplined, spiritualized, something for which Phil this morning found the word "noble." Somehow he felt a blur over his eyes and a certain dry thickness in his throat, as she began, with all her old readiness and easiness, the familiar preparations.

"Of course you never saw any sandwiches like them, Mikesy, because I invented them. When Uncle Sam was only a little boy, he and my sister Ariel . . ."

Stab, stab, stab at her heart. Her voice went on.

"He and my sister Ariel used to ask for 'heavenly' sandwiches, and I used to make them this way—deviled ham, and jelly, and cheese, and anything else I had—all together."

Her mild, sweet-tempered look went kindly to the little boy. Her skillful hands went on slicing the big loaf, trimming crusts, pressing the filled halves of the sandwiches together.

"See if there are any of those paper napkins on that shelf, Phil."

She looked up, caught her brother's gaze.

"What is it, Phil?"

"Nothing!" Phil said.

If the sight of the shining dam, surrounded by feathery spring greenery, hurt her when she and Phil, Sam, Lily, and the children reached it at a glowing noontide—if the sight of it hurt her, she gave no sign. Phil noted that her thick dark eyelashes were wet, and her eyes ringed faintly with umber. Busily, efficiently, she set out about the preparing of the luncheon, she and Lily murmuring as they made coffee and toasted little sausages on sharpened sticks.

Afterwards the children dug and splashed in the creek, and their elders grouped themselves on the shingle, talking of Clippersville affairs and Clippersville folk.

Lily had the peculiar quality, not unusual in women of her alert, keen type, of being able to make even the most casual gossip interesting. What she did not herself know about the old families in town, her mother and grandmother did, and Lily had been listening to Ma and Gram all her life.

Gail listened fascinated to her stories. They were never sensationally told, although they dealt with murders, mysteries, feuds, crimes, life, and death. But there was something in the details, in the general pictures Lily painted about them, that Gail found inexhaustibly entertaining.

"Old Mrs. Peevey," Lily would recount, "always felt that Jim Canna was there the night Belle White was killed—or knew something about it anyway—and she used to go to the courtroom. . . .

"Ma had gone over to get a cup of yeast risin's from Lizzie Gunn . . .

"She says 'Do you s'pose you have a piece of that gray voile in your piece bag, Mis' Wilbser?' . . .

"Ma didn't have her clothes off for four nights. She always sets up with the Rogers family when they die. . . .

"And old Mrs. Gausey tore her hair—Gram says she just twisted it like it was so much cotton yarn—and she says, 'It was them hoots drug him to his death!' . . .

THE GREATEST TIRE EVER MADE TO SELL AT THESE LOW PRICES

COME in, examine a cross section cut from a Firestone Standard Tire, then examine the deep-cut, non-skid tread and see how much extra value you get. You will quickly understand why more and more car owners are equipping their cars with these tires. You will agree that never before have you seen so much quality, so much built-in mileage and so much safety at so little cost. You will find the Firestone Standard Tire is made safer from blowouts with the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping. The patented construction of two extra layers of Gum-Dipped Cords under the tread protect against punctures and bind the tread and cord body into one inseparable unit. The wider, flatter tread with more rubber on the road will give you longer mileage and greater protection against skidding. Firestone is able to give you all these extra values because Firestone Standard Tires are built in such large quantities that great savings are made in production.

Don't drive another day on thin worn tires that are dangerous and may cause an accident. Join the Firestone SAVE A LIFE Campaign by equipping your car with Firestone Standard Tires — First Grade Quality at Low Cost.

DON'T RISK YOUR LIFE ON THIN WORN TIRES

Protect yourself and your family from the danger of driving on thin worn tires which may cause a serious accident.

DO YOU KNOW

THAT last year highway accidents cost the lives of more than 38,000 men, women and children?

THAT a million more were injured?

THAT more than 40,000 of these deaths and injuries were caused directly by punctures, blowouts and skidding due to unsafe tires?

Above is a section cut from a smooth, worn tire, which shows the non-skid protection worn off. Tires in this condition are more liable to punctures, blowouts and skidding.

Above is section cut from a new Firestone Tire. Note the thick non-skid protection against skidding, blowouts and punctures. Come in today, see by actual demonstration.

Worked Overtime to Meet Nelson Eddy's Deadline

Nelson Eddy discovered recently what it is to have a deadline to meet.

He worked every day from early until late for he had to be finished with "Maytime," his third co-starring picture with Jeanette MacDonald, on a definite date to start his 1937 concert tour.

"Maytime," one of the most elaborate musicals attempted in Hollywood, opens at the Palace Theatre, Saturday, May 22, for a three day engagement. Two weeks of work remained after Eddy's last scenes were made.

Ancient Steamboat Chartered for Colorful Location Scenes

The Sacramento River with its winding stream goin' 'round the bends, its trees growing down to the water's edge, and the general atmosphere of the Ol' South was used as location for the new Hal Roach feature-length comedy, "General Spanky," opening Tuesday, May 25, at the Palace Theatre.

Fisherman's Wharf, Scene of Picturesque Romance

Love-in-the-rough romances for motion picture plots can be found in only a few localities in the United States, in the opinion of Errol Taggart, one of Hollywood's youngest directors.

First in the down-to-earth settings is Fisherman's Wharf, heretofore untouched as a motion picture background, but used by Taggart for his locale in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Song of the City," a story of rugged men of the sea, which opens Thursday, May 27, at the Palace Theatre.

By the way—how long before we'll be having trailer preachers?

DEER, CATTLE DAMAGE ROADSIDE SOD BANKS

State Highway Department Will Experiment With New Cover

The State Highway Department announced this week that experiments would be conducted this summer in an effort to curb damage to roadsides by deer and cattle.

State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner explained that the doofs of deer feeding on grass along the highways had torn up sod placed to prevent erosion on steep backslopes. He said that maintenance workers were ready to start a series of experiments to find suitable vines which can be planted on backslopes in place of sod.

"Apparently, the carefully planted and maintained sod along the highways appeals to the appetite of Michigan deer," the commissioner said. Highways in the forest areas of northern counties have suffered the most although in some more settled sections cattle have caused the same difficulty.

It was pointed out that vines hold the same possibilities for erosion control as sod. They will form a dense matting which will be less appealing to deer and cattle and which will also be more stable. Experiments are planned for counties in the northwestern part of the Lower Peninsula.

This is the first time that any extensive use has been made of vines as a plant material for controlling erosion along Michigan highways.

To Find Out Whether We Got Our Manners From Monkeys

An article in The American Weekly, with the May 23 issue of The Detroit Sunday Times, will point out that scientists of several universities have decided to study the family life of the queer, shy gibbons in their native jungles for new light upon human morals and customs.

"Don't knock a competitor" has not yet been accepted by women as a rule of conduct.

Considering how many opportunities we have for making mistakes, even the worst of us do pretty well.

Chancery Sale

In pursuance and by virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, in Chancery, made and entered on the 6th day of March, 1937, in a certain cause therein pending, wherein Robert B. Armstrong and Maud Armstrong, his wife, are Plaintiffs and Charles F. Goessling is Defendant,

Notice Is Hereby Given, that I shall sell at public auction to the highest bidder, at easterly entrance to the Charlevoix County, Michigan, Court House, in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, (that being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said County), on Wednesday, the Second day of June, 1937, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, Eastern Standard Time, the following described property, viz.: all that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the Township of Marion, County of Charlevoix, and State of Michigan, described as follows:

All that part of the northwest quarter (NW¼) of Section Sixteen (16), in Township Thirty-three (33) north of Range Eight (8) West, as per the United States Survey thereof lying to the east of the center line of the Emmet and Grand Traverse State Road; excepting from the above description a parcel containing two (2) acres more or less situate in the southwest (SW) corner of said description heretofore sold and deeded to Thomas Shupton, which parcel is so excepted from the operation of this description and conveyance is bounded as follows: Commencing at a stake in the center of the State Road on the east and west quarter line of Section Sixteen (16), Township Thirty-three (33) north, Range Eight (8) West, 11.12 chains east of the west quarter post of said Section Sixteen (16); thence east on said east and west quarter line 5.51 chains to a stake; thence north 3° 15' east, 4.43 chains to a stake; thence north 83° 10' west, 4.01 chains to a stake in the center of the State Road; thence south 20° 15' west, 5.20 chains along the center of State Road to the place of beginning and containing 2.19 acres of land, more or less. The parcel of land hereby conveyed contains 100 acres more or less.

Dated April 12th, 1937.

Safe and Sane DRIVING
BY THE NATIONAL SAFETY COUNCIL
and Michigan State Safety Council

OTHER STATES—OTHER LAWS

Are you preparing to tour through several states, perhaps to the coast, on your vacation? It will be important, then, to familiarize yourself with their various traffic laws.

Speed limits vary greatly. Sometimes cities and towns seem to have peculiar local rules. But you will find there is a good reason back of most of them. They are planned to prevent accidents and save lives.

Your license plates will show that you are a visitor, and will secure for you considerable courtesy; but ignorance of driving regulations is not an alibi for anybody. It is every driver's business to know the law. Knowing it may save you from an accident.

You may find that some of these far cities and towns have erected bulletin boards in their outskirts, on which are outlined their more important traffic rules. And after you have passed through, you may find a similar sign, saying: "Thank you for your courtesy. Come again!"

It is a pretty custom. It might be followed to advantage by other cities. You go on your way with a friendly feeling for that place, glad you were careful to obey their driving rules.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday morning service, 10:45.

Meets first Wednesday evening each month at 7:45 p. m.

Sunday school, 12 o'clock.

Reading room open Saturday, 3 to 5 p. m.

We cordially invite the public to our service and reading room.

"Soul and Body" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, May 23.

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Gal. 5:16, 17): "This I say then, Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfill the lust of the flesh. For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye cannot do the things that ye would."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (page 223): "Sooner or later we shall learn that the fetters of man's finite capacity are forged by the illusion that he lives in body instead of in Soul, in matter instead of in Spirit."

"Guests We Never Invite Again." First of a new series of delightful social cartoons by Fish, the brilliant satirist. Reproduced in full color in the American Weekly, the magazine distributed with next Sunday's Chicago Herald and Examiner.

HOPPER PLAGUE THIS YEAR UP TO WEATHER

Whether Michigan farmers have a grasshopper visitation in plague proportions in 1937 depends upon the amount of sunny weather in the next few weeks.

Plenty of eggs were laid late last summer, according to a survey over the counties in which the grasshoppers have been most prevalent. These counties include Luce and Mackinac, Wexford, Oceana, Newaygo and Benzie.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

"Check Addresses" Motorists Are Cautioned

With the approach of the outdoor and summer vacation season, motorists of Michigan are cautioned by Department of State officials to check the home addresses on their drivers' licenses.

The 1931 operators' and chauffeurs' licensing act makes it the duty of operators to notify Leon D. Case, secretary of state, of changes in address. Forms are available at police and sheriffs' offices.

In the event of injury or accidental death of motorists, drivers' licenses at times furnish the sole means of identification; only complications result if the addresses are not correct, department officials point out.

Not infrequently the department receives queries as to the whereabouts of missing persons believed licensed in this state as motor vehicle operators. Little aid can be extended if a motorist's registered address is not up-to-date, it is pointed out.

Someone quite correctly describes the gentler sex as "speaking acquaintances."

LANSING LETTER

law of supply and demand would merely increase prices, lower demand, and leave the producer no better off than he is today.

As this news letter pointed out five weeks ago, the agitation for minimum wages, maximum hours and other benefits to industrial workers could not reach the point of a state statute without a similar agitation being started among farmers for state regulation of farm prices. The gate was opened wide to such price-fixing when the United States supreme court upheld a Virginia milk price control law, declaring that the state possessed such powers in the interest of public welfare.

Higher Prices

Settlement of many sit-down strikes in Michigan was made on the basis of higher wages to workers, thus adding to the spiraling cost of products which the farmer has to buy, although farm prices have not advanced to a corresponding degree.

Passage of the milk control bill would mean higher prices for consumers by restricting competition among producers.

The Legislature has already passed a trade mark bill giving the manufacturer the right to fix prices of goods to be sold in Michigan and penalizing retailers who undercut these established prices.

It is of interest to note that legislative steps to restrict competition in business inevitably lend to higher prices for the consumer to pay. The NRA and its attempts to restrain competition served to whetten the appetite of independent retailers for similar state regulation now aimed principally at chain store competitors.

It now appears as if the milk control board plan, stabilizing the dairy industry in Michigan, is sought primarily by independent producers — "the little fellows" — as a means of lessening competition from the big producers, many of whom are organized nationally like chain store companies.

Michigan may have a dairy "AAA" in a few months if the milk price-fixing bill is enacted into law by the Legislature.

Summer 4-H Club Work Starts

After completing a very successful winter program, the 4-H club members are making preparations to start on their summer projects. Quite a number of clubs are planning on having their organization meeting within the next two weeks. Some changes in the canning and food preparation requirements have been made. New bulletins in canning, food preparation, dairy and pig projects will soon be ready for distribution.

Some of the projects that can be carried are: Canning, food preparation, 4-H club girl entertains, garden, corn, beans, potato, soil conservation, forest fire study, forestry, and livestock.

If there are any communities that are not yet contacted and that wish to organize a summer 4-H club, please write your county agent.

Poison Bran Bait Available at 10 Cents Per Bushel

Already many requests have been made for cut worm bait, as apparently they are showing a lot of activity. This poison bran applied in the evening will control these worms very nicely.

Until further announcement, this material can be purchased from John Lewis, Boyne City, who is in charge of the mixing this year. His warehouse is directly across from the Boyne City Railroad freight office, and can be purchased any day from 9 to 5 o'clock. It will cost 10 cents per bushel, and a bushel is ample for at least one acre, if distributed evenly.

A dramatic tale of Continental espionage by E. Phillips Oppenheim appears in This Week, the magazine with next Sunday's Detroit News. Watch for this great story entitled, "Flower of Death."

Reorganized State Fairs

Governor Frank Murphy's inaugural message to the Legislature gave consideration to governmental reforms and social legislation, but omitted reference to farm needs.

Formerly mayor of Detroit and governor of the Philippines, Murphy has devoted a major part of his time since the inaugural January 1 to problems of Michigan cities.

A few days ago he reorganized the governing bodies of Michigan's two agricultural fairs, declaring: "The agricultural character of the state has been slurred and subordinated to the industrial areas of the state. The fair at Detroit has been shabby, rather than an outstanding achievement of the state."

Liquor Control

Sale of liquor by the glass in all communities, excepting those specifically voting against it, would be permitted in Michigan under a bill favored by the House liquor traffic committee. It would set up a $500 annually license fee for taverns selling beer, wine and liquor by the glass and would prohibit sale of liquor to persons under 21.

Twenty per cent of the voters of any community could initiate a referendum on the question of sale by glass.

Since the days of King Louis XIV of France, who imposed bone-dry prohibition on the French post at St. Ignace, Michigan has been wrestling with the liquor problem. The solution is like a mirage; it is not what you thought it was going to be.

Hollywood and Detroit

When a foreigner comes to the United States, he usually visits New York, Hollywood and Detroit.

New York is the symbol of skyscraper prosperity; Hollywood, American movies; and Detroit, automobiles.

P. A. Menon, native magistrate from India, visited Detroit automobile factories last week and observed: "You are in such a hurry in Detroit. You are always rushing somewhere and when you arrive you hurry somewhere else. You never sit still long enough to enjoy life."

Magistrate Menon's visit to Detroit gives emphasis to the invitation by the New York 1939 World's Fair to have the Michigan Legislature appropriate funds for a Michigan state exhibit. When foreigners come to see New York's world fair, many of them will also come to Detroit to visit the automobile factories.

Armaments and Michigan

Europe's feverish race for war armaments is pepping up the mining business in the Upper Peninsula.

Reports the Ishpeming Iron Ore: "During the years of the recent depression the statement was frequently heard in mining circles that the Lake Superior district would never again experience a 60,000,000-ton iron ore year. . . . It begins to look as though the prediction would not be fulfilled, for right now there are indications that 60,000,000 tons of ore will go down the lakes in 1937.

"Underground mines are working five and six days a week, and preparations are in progress at the open pit mines for an active shipping year."

HEALTH LEAGUE LUNCHEON AT BOYNE FRIDAY

Illness Prevents Appearance of Dr. McCluskey—Program Outlined

The Charlevoix County Child Health League annual luncheon will be held at Hotel Dilworth, Boyne City, Friday, May 21, at 1 p. m.

Due to illness, Dr. Howard McCluskey has been forced to cancel all speaking engagements; however, they have secured Dr. Clare Gates, also from the University of Michigan, who is field secretary for the joint committee on public health education. He will discuss the phases of lay participation in public health education. The program is as follows:

Mrs. E. E. Edwards, Charlevoix, presiding; luncheon; address by Dr. Clare Gates; vocal solo, Mrs. L. Dieken; remarks, Mrs. Russell Barden, Charlevoix county chairman of the Child Health League; Dr. Carleton Dean, director, District Health Unit No. 3, "The Value of Lay Participation"; a few comments will be made by Miss Mary Buser, Antrim-Charlevoix nurse, and Miss Dean Rinek, Charlevoix county nurse.

A few very important business matters will be discussed: (1) The feasibility of a four-county rotating Public Health Institute each October. (2) Assisting in reaching as near 100 per cent dental correction as is possible. (3) Assist the District Health Unite in sponsoring Mothers' Classes this fall throughout the entire county. These classes are given under the auspiees of the State Health Department and taught by a woman physician.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Dr. E. W. Stack

Oeteopathic Physician and Surgeon, of Traverse City, will be at Mrs. John Burns' home, Grant street, every Friday, beginning May 21st, until further notice.

MICHIGAN FRUIT PROSPECTS BEST IN YEARS

Post Winter and Spring Have Been Favorable for All Fruits

Michigan fruit growers have better than average crop prospects this year the state-federal cooperative crop reporting service predicts.

The outlook for winter grains, hay and pastures in the state on May 1 was close to average, the service reported. At the same time fruit crop prospects reported "above the May 1 figure for both last year and the average of recent years."

"The past winter and spring months have been favorable for most Michigan orchardists," according to the report. "There was virtually no winter injury to buds or trees and temperatures during March and April were low enough to retard premature bud development, thus minimizing the likelihood of damage from late frosts. Nearly all sections of the state reported prospects of a heavy set of fruit on May 1."

NATION'S PUBLISHERS TO VISIT STATE

COMING IN JULY TO SEE MICHIGAN FIRST HAND

Over 350 Will Come for Visit at Mackinac Island and Northern Michigan Motor Tour

"What About Michigan?" This is the question which the American public is asking today, according to DeLoss Walker, associate editor of Liberty magazine. Mr. Walker spoke recently before a joint luncheon of Detroit commercial and advertising leaders, declaring the public has the prevailing idea that chaos and rebellion prevail in the automobile state.

As a spearhead of an intensive drive to present the truth about Michigan, the Michigan Press Association, of which The Charlevoix Courier is a member, will be host next July to a convention and state tour of newspaper editors. The editors are coming to Michigan from all parts of the United States for a three-day business meeting at the Book-Cadillac Hotel in Detroit and for a four-day educational tour of the state.

"Not in its 62 years of existence has the Michigan Press Association, comprising daily and weekly newspapers, had such an opportunity for needed public service," reports Philip T. Rich, publisher of the Midland Daily News and chairman of the convention bureau.

"In view of the recent sit-down strike turmoil and the resultant focusing of popular interest in the state, the coming assembly of newspaper editors is like a heavenly-sent answer. We are expecting to entertain 350 to 450 newspapermen and their families. An automobile will be awarded to the publisher who writes the best account, published in his own newspaper, of Michigan in 1937."

As Detroit is the recognized world's capital of motordom, it is fitting that editors should visit a modern automobile plant. Present plans call for an inspection tour of a nearby General Motors factory, probably the Cadillac plant, where editors will have the opportunity of viewing the so-called "speed up" in actual operation.

Editors will probably visit Henry Ford's Greenfield Village at Dearborn.

Thursday morning, July 22, editors will leave Detroit on a four-day tour of Michigan. The present itinerary calls for a brief stop at Ann Arbor, home of the University of Michigan, and for noon luncheon on the campus of Michigan State College at East Lansing.

Evening dinner will be in Grand Rapids, the furniture center, after which editors will board a Pullman train leaving shortly after midnight for Traverse City arriving in time for breakfast and a morning's tour of the cherry region.

Leaving Traverse City at noon Friday, the train will proceed to Petoskey where they will be met by 100 to 150 automobiles for their visit through Harbor Springs and resorts and over the Shore Drive to Cross Village. They will be conveyed by ferry to Mackinac Island in time for dinner at the Grand Hotel.

Editors will have two days' time to enjoy an outing at this famous island and resort hotel the choice period of the entire summer. Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock the editors will board a steamer for a return trip to Detroit. Those publishers who are returning home by way of Chicago may board on a Chicago-bound boat.

At Detroit the nation's editors will learn of Michigan's automobile industry. They will inspect the automobile-made city, fourth largest in the United States today.

From Detroit to Mackinac Island, the NEA tour has been planned to afford an attractive picture of Michigan's resort resources.

FROGS MAY BE TAKEN LEGALLY ON JUNE 1ST

A five-month open season on frog-catching becomes effective in Michigan, Tuesday, June 1.

No license is required to take frogs and there are no size, catch or possession limits restricting the take, authorities say. Any legal means may be used to remove frogs from their native habitat, except that when a spear is used artificial light is forbidden by law. The last day of frog season is October 31.

FRANK ACKERT, PIONEER RESIDENT, DIED TUESDAY

Frank Ackert, a pioneer resident of this city, died at 5:30 o'clock Tuesday morning at Charlevoix Hospital, where he had been taken for treatment.

A sister, Mrs. William McLain, residing at Flint, has been notified and funeral arrangements are pending her arrival here.

THREE SCHOOLS TIED IN LEAGUE BASEBALL

Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City Forced to Play Off

Charlevoix High school's baseball team missed an opportunity to win the western division title in the Northern Michigan Class C baseball league when they were shut out 4 to 0 Thursday at East Jordan.

As matters now stand, there is a three-way tie for the title and privilege of playing the eastern division winner for the conference crown. The tie resulted from East Jordan's victory Tuesday over Harbor Springs.

To decide the title, the three schools will compete in a play-off. Boyne City and East Jordan play here at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, Charlevoix meets the winner of this contest on a neutral diamond at the same hour Friday afternoon. The "Little Eight" title will be decided next Monday when the western and eastern division winners meet.

DOG TAX DEADLINE TUESDAY, JUNE 1ST

Rate for the 1937 Licenses Doubles After That Date

Dog owners have until Tuesday, June 1, to pay the 1937 dog license without addition of penalty costs.

The rate until June 1 is 50 cents for male and unsexed dogs, and $1 for females. After June 1, the rate doubles and a campaign will be instituted by law enforcement officials to pick up unlicensed dogs.

POPPY DAY WILL BE OBSERVED SOTURDAY

Members of Legion Auxiliary Have Charge of Sales in This City

Poppy Day will be observed in Charlevoix on Saturday, May 29, with members of the American Legion Auxiliary in charge of the annual evnt. Extensive preparations are being made for the campaign.

Memorial poppies worn in honor of the World War dead ond to raise funds for the welfare of the disabled veterans and needy familles of the dead and disabled will be distributed throughout the city. Organization of corps of "poppy girls" to offer the flowers to everyone on the streets during the day and to receive contribution for the Legion nnd Auxiliary welfare funds. The flowers have ordered from Battle Creek where they have heen made by disabled veterans.

"Poppy Day" is the day of personal tribute to the men who gave their lives in the nation's defense. On that day everyone can show that they still remember and honor the sacrifices of thoso who lost their lives in the war. The poppy is their flower, made in their memory by their disabled comrades.

BIG WEEK-END OF FISHING EXPECTED

RECORD PARTIES SIGNED FOR MEMORIAL HOLIDAYS

Steelhead Started "Hitting" Last Week—Expect Sport at Height for Coming Week-End

Memorinl Day week-end will mnrk the beginning of the 1937 steelhead fishing season in Charlevoix.

Definite reservntions for this three-day holiday period now in the hnnds of boat owners furnishing guiding service for this sport indicates the heaviest influx of sportsmen in the history of this city.

Responsible for this unprecedented demand for lishing accommodations is the fact that the steelhead really started "hitting" last week, resulting in hundreds of telegrams and letters going out to those who have made inquiry if the steelhead lishing was on, telling them to come on for the holiday week-end. That the number of fishing parties coming from Southern Michigan and out-of-state points will tax boat accommodations to the limit is almost a certainty.

It is estimated in the neighborhood of 20 steelhead were caught over last week-end and, with the "run" on, it is helieved the coming week-end will see excellent fishing. Memorinl Dny week-end is also usually the opening of Mackinaw trout fishing in Lake Michigan, and it is probnble both sports will be availnble over the holidnys.

BLESSING OF BLOSSOMS CEREMONY NEXT SUNDAY

Hundreds to Gather at Old Mission for Annual Rites

Hundreds of orchardists will gather on the Old Mission Peninsula, Sunday, May 30, to take part in the traditional nnd colorful ceremony of the Blessing of the Blossoms. During the program lalty and clergy will unite in a request for Divine Providence to care for their crop and bring it to harvest maturity.

Rev. Howard Towne, chnirman of the committee in charge of the program, has assured that there will he an accurate re-enactment of the ancient rites and that all the pomp and color of medieval pagentry will be incorporated in the ceremony.

Negotiations are under way to provide a speaker of note for the occasion and one who is familiar with the historical background of the event.

FIRST GRAYLING TAKEN FROM THE PIGEON RIVER

Believed One of Plant of 5,000 Made There Last Year

The first grayling reported taken in Michlgan waters so far this year was caught by an unknown fisherman In Pigeon River and given to William Horsell, superintendent of Pigeon River state forest, northeast of Gaylord.

The grnyling measured eight and three-quarters inches in length, was extremely fat and appeared in very good condition. It is believed to have been one of the 5,000 grayling fingerlings of the Montana variety planted in Pigeon River by the stute last year.

MEMORIAL DAY PROGRAM READY

MEMORIAL SERVICE SUNDAY, CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Memorial Program Monday With Judge Joseph Sanford, of Muskegon, Giving Address

Sunday, May 30, will be Memorial Sunday in Charlevoix, with services for veterans' and patriotic organizations at the Congregational church at 10:30 o'clock.

Members of Leslie T. Shapton Post American Legion, of the Spanish-American War Veterans' Association, American Legion Auxilinry, and Woman's Relief Corps will attend the service in a body. Legion members, other veterans' bodies, unattached ex-service men and women's organizations will assemble at the Legion quarters preliminary to the march to the church.

The usual Memorial Day program will be observed on Monday, May 31. The American Legion, as in former years, will have charge of the program, which will conform closely to the ceremonies of previous years. Judge Joseph Sanford, of Muskegon, son of Capt. and Mrs. James Sanford, of this city, will deliver the address.

The parade will form on Park avenue at 9:30 a. m. The order will be as follows: Colors, Legion junior bugle and drum corps, band, veterans, auxiliary and Woman's Relief Corps, fraternal organizations, school children on trucks.

The ceremonial of casting a wreath on the water for the sailor dead will take place in the memorial park and will be conducted by ladies of the Woman's Relief Corps and Legion Auxiliary. Taps will be played nnd the march resumed to Brookside cemetery.

The program at the cemetery will include: "Star Spangled Banner" by school band; invocation by Rev. John Alexander; exercises by W. R. C.; "Gettysburg Address," Alice Meyer; floral tribute; nddress, Judge Joseph Sanford; salute, taps; "America" by school band; benediction, Rev. W. H. Rauch.

Chnrlevoix business places will be closed all day Monday.

FIRST YACHTING PARTY HERE OVER WEEK-END

Detroit and Wisconsin Men on the Schooner Esperanza II

Chnrlevoix's first yachting party of the 1937 season was here over the week-end.

In the party on the yacht Esperanza II were Richard B. Cronin and A. D. Cronin, Jr., of Detroit; J. F. Kuhlenburg, of Manitowoc, Wis., and H. H. Kohlenberg, of Two Rivers, Wis.

The padty was en route to Mackinac Island. The yacht will be entered in the Port Huron-Mockinnc Island race and will return to this port at that time.

DRASTIC REDUCTION IN TELEGRAPH RATES

New Schedule Starting June 1 Will Save Users Several Million

Drastic reductions in rates for overnight telegraph service which will become effective June 1, will provide substantial savings to residents of Charlevoix, it has been disclosed by the Western Union Telegraph Company.

A tariff filed Saturday with the Federal Communications Commission nt Washington, D. C., will reduce the cost of both short and long messages nnd cut the telegraph bill of the nation by approximately $3,000,000.

NORTHERN CLASS C FIELD MEET MAY 29

NORTHERN MICHIGAN SCHOOLS COMPETE HERE SATURDAY

First Major Track Event Here in Many Yeas—Over Hundred Athletes Will Compete

The first major track meet held in Charlevoix in many years will be conducted Saturday afternoon at the new south side athletic field.

The event is the annual Northern Michigan Class C track and field meet, competition which will hring upwards of a hundred athletes from over a half dozen schools. Schools which have already entered teams are East Jordan, Kalkaska, Mancelona, Boyne City and Harbor Springs, in addition to Charlevoix. Rogers City and Gaylord are other possible entries.

By virtue of winning the regional Class C title at Cadillac two weeks ago, Mancelona's well-balanced track squad is favored to carry off the meet, although competition will be strong in every event and upsets are very possible.

Preliminary races will be held in the morning, starting at 9 o'clock, according to Coach Stewart Coleman, who is handling arrangements for the meet. The pole vault finals will be held in the morning, and finals in all other events in the afternoon, starting nt 2 o'clock.

Following is the list of events in the order of running: 120-yard high hurdles, 100-yard dash, shot put, mile run, 440-yard dash, high jump, 200-yard low hurdles, 220-yard dash, brond jump, 880-yard dash, relay.

The Charlevoix school band will be on hand to furnish music during the program. Visitors are requested to keep behind the fence erected along the track. Bleachers will be nvnilable for spectators.

The new south side athletic field, one of the best track lay-outs in Northern Michigan, has been placed in fine shap for the field meet and will be used by visiting athletes for the first time.

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

Unlike the traditional Roosevelt luck at the White House, Frank Murphy, of Michigan, has been haunted by unexpected grief ever since his inaugural on New Year's Day.

The Legislature has been in session for four months, yet an examination of the record will show that comparatively few administrative measures of importance have been enacted.

Warm weather and payless dnys are arriving. Legislators have much yet to do before they can actually "point with pride" in addresses back home.

Labor was given an opportunity to taste the forbidden frult of sit-down strirking to evade legal rights of property. By the time the governor concluded to exercise his state police powers and to keep labor trouble from becoming an industrial prairio fire, public opinion had "jelled" to the extent that employers and employes alike were demanding that "government do something about it."

Tho result was the labor relations board bill, imposing responsibilities on both labor and industry in the interest of the public.

FIRST OIL TANKER COMING THURSDAY

BRINGS CARGO FOR CHARLEVOIX TERMINAL CO.

Bulk Plant Ready for Operation; Have $25,000 Investment in the Plant and Equipment Here

With construction work and installation of equipment practically completed, the Charlevoix Terminal Co., Charlevoix's newest industry and one of the largest bulk gasoline storage concerns in Northern Michigan, will be set for operation this week.

The first consignment of gasoline for the company, which has the distribution of D-X products in Michigan north of M-55, will arrive here on Thursday, May 27, when the tanker Justine Allen comes with a 600,000-gallon cargo.

The big 1,600,000 gallon storage tank was completed last week, fire valves installed and pressure tests made. Three other horizontal tanks of 15,000 gallon capacity for ethyl gasoline and kerosene have arrived and will be installed at once. The 288-foot dock on Lake Charlevoix was finished Tuesday afternoon, pile clusters for mooring of the tanker driven down and everything is set for arrivnl of the boat. Pipe lines, yet uncompleted, will be finished before Thursday, according to Ray Cornell, who has been in charge of the work since it was started several weeks ago.

While n large amount of work still remains to be completed, operations will start this week, Mr. Cornell states. A concrete floor in the warehouse remains to be laid, loading dock for trucks completed, service pumps installed, etc. Material is on hand for extension of the Pere Marquette sidetrack past the old Parmelee warehouse to the Terminal Co. pumping station.

Mr. Cornell stated that the Terminnl Co. will have an investment in excess of $25,000 when the project is completed. Around $4,000 in labor has been expended up to the present time, and work will continue until all equipment is installed, the tanks painted, grounds graded and sodded, and other clean-up operations completed.

CHARLEVOIX PLACED TWO AT STATE MEET

Radle Took Second in Class C Mile; Oloch Fifth in Half Mile

Charlevoix High school took two places for a total of 10 points in the state Class C track and field meet Saturday at East Lansing.

While running the fastest race in his career, Edward Radle, 1936 Class C champion in the mile, took second place, losing to Cruickshank, of Plainwell, in a closely contested race. The winning time was 4:42.3, just one-tenth of a second slower than the state Class C record. Radle's time in winning the state championship last year was four minutes and 46 seconds, which indicates the pace set this year.

Oloch placed fifth in the half mile for Charlevoix, and other local contestants, including Bergmann in the high hurdles, Jim Hiller in the quarter mile, Leslie Shapton in the broad jump, and Edward Gregury in the mile.

TWO CRUISES ARE SCHEDULED IN JUNE

GRAND RAPIDS GROUP COME HERE JUNE 15TH

Society of Automotive Engineers to Arrive June 26th for Overnight Stay—Plan Entertainment

The first of at least a half dozen summer cruises will visit Charlevoix on Tuesday, June 15, according to Gordon Todd, activities director of the Board of Commerce.

The cruise will bring a group of more than 100 Grand Rapids business men representing manufacturers, wholesalers, retailers, banks, insurance men, transportation companies nnd other industries, who will participate in the fourth annual West Michigan Out-of-Doors Tour and Fellowship cruise of the Grand Rapids Chamber of Commerce on June 14, 15 and 16.

The group will arrive in Charlevoix at 1:15 p. m. on the S. S. North American, and remain for two hours. Plans for entertainment of the visitors are now being made.

Heretofore members of the tour have been transported around the state each year by automobile, and this year's cruise is an innovation. The purpose of this tour nnd cruise is to create favorable publicity in the newspapers of the middle west, just before the opening of the tourist season, to attract additional thousands to all parts of West Michigan, to afford an opportunity for business men of other cities to become better acquainted with business men of Grand Rapids, and to give the Grand Rapids men a chance to strengthen their own friendships with each other.

During the period which their boat is docked here, members of the tour will call upon local business men at their stores or will invite them aboard the ship.

The second cruise scheduled for Charlevoix comes on the S. S. South American. The group is the Society of Automotive Engineers. They will arrive here at 3 p. m. on June 26, and will remain until 9 o'clock the morning of the 27th. A banquet will be held at the Charlevoix Beach Hotel. Other extensive plans for entertainment of the visitors are being made.

Emery Hatch, secretary-treasurer of the Chicago, Duluth & Georgian Bay Transit Co., owners of the Strs. North American and South American, was here Wednesday, arranging details with Board of Commerce officials for entertainment of those taking part in the summer cruises coming to this port.

THE ARGONNE SUMMER PROGRAM ANNOUNCED

Present Howard Davenoort's Swinging String Ensemble Saturday

Willis J. Kerns, owner of The Argonne, popular local entertainment place, has announced the opening of the summer program of dancing on Saturday, May 29.

Beginning a summer's engagement on this date will be Howard Davenport and his Swinging String Ensemble, featuring Joe DeLano, Red radio network violin and guitar artist. Davenport, well known locally as a dance band director through the appearance last summer of the Singing Aces at The Argonne, brings his musicians from the Southern Bar nt Grand Rapids, and previous successful engagements at the Olympic Club in Flint.

Continuing after Saturday night's party, The Argonne will offer dancing nightly from 9 until 2 during the remainder of the summer. Chicken dinners and lunches, for which The Argonne is famous, continue popular with patrons.

PARTY THURSDAY MARKED CLOSE ATTENDANCE CONTEST

The Congregational Sunday school supper held last Thursday evening in the church dining room marked the conclusion of a three months attendance and punctuality campaign, and there was a special treat of ice cream on their pie for all those who averaged 75 per cent or over. Moving pictures of the Hindenburg disaster were shown after supper.

ALL STORES TO BE CLOSED ON MONDAY

Charlevoix business places will be closed all day on Monday, May 31, in observance of Memorial Day, it has been announced by Gordon Todd, activities director of the Board of Commerce.

A baby daughter arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wilhur, of Pontiac, last week. Mrs. Wilbur was formerly Bessie Potter, of Barnard.

Farmers are very busy these days getting in their crops. By reports of other communities in the south part of the state, we consider we are in a favorable section of the country.

Truly, as Major Edward Bowes says, it is the little thing that counts. In our last week's news a small letter "s" made one item a falsehood instead of a truth, as perhaps was noticed by all who read them.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cummings, Miss Catherine Krchak and Gordon Cummings left on Sunday for Detroit, where they have employment. A farewell party was given at the Grange hall on Saturday evening which was an enjoyable occasion to all present.

NORWOOD

Lyle Smith, of Detroit, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Baumbach for a few days.

Mrs. Charles Coleman, after closing her school term at Bliss, is visiting her parents for a few weeks.

The literature has not arrived for our Sunday school, but the lesson may be found in Gen. 28:10-22 and Gen: 24-30.

Mr. and Mrs. Edd Golden and son, also Mr. and Mrs. John Bugbee, of Charlevoix, were Sunday guests at the Plenny Genett home.

William Sipple and his two daughters, from Detroit, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Plenny Genett last week, where Mrs. Sipple is convalescing from poor health.

In the merry month of May we see many attractive flowering shrubs in blossom in the greening woodlands. Now the flowering dog-wood is blooming which adds beauty to the marsh margins and roadsides.

Friends and acquaintances of Harley McGhan were saddened to learn of his death, which occurred Saturday night. Mr. McGhan quite often served as mail carrier on rural route No. 1, and had made many friends along the route.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Brown, of Dearborn, accompanied by Fred Antonissan, arrived here Friday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Brown were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Brown, while Mr. Antonissan visited his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Richardson, and family. Also, Miss Antonissan, of Niagri, Wis., is a guest of the Richardson family this week.

CENTRAL LAKE

It is blossom time.

Wilmer and Dorothy Morse were callers at the Elk Rapids dentist's office last Friday.

Bay View, Grand View, Kewadin and Eastport schools have closed. Baay View had a picnic at the bay.

A good sized crowd attended the farm meeting at North Holland last Friday. County Agent Ousterout was present.

Mr. Rood, of the Ellsworth Canning Co., we hear has promised four cent cherries for this year. Many paid that last year.

The cord wood men are now operating on the lumber job on the Lambert DeVries place, which lumber was sold to a Grayling company.

Jay Emery and family returned to Flint last week after a short visit with relatives here. He was asked when they were going to strike again there and said, "Just as soon as they need something again."

G. A. Morse and helpers are still drawing logs to the Watkins saw mill. They have quite a stack of lumber piled up. Mr. Watkins has had to close the mill, and is now in the hospital at Petoskey.

There was a large crowd in attendance at the funeral of the little Parker boy, injured some time ago by a son of Dick Kirby with a gun left in Mr. Kirby's car. Rev. Reed of the M. E. church preached the sermon.

There were eight in attendance last Sunday at Turners and 13 a week ago; 10 at Creswell and eight a week ago; 21 last Sunday at Grand View, and 18 a week ago; 18 last Sunday at Bay View and 20 a week ago. Turner and Creswell will join in observing Children's Day two weeks from Sunday.

MARION CENTER

We have been working for our dental banner, and expect to have it soon.

Eleanor Ecklund of our school gave the response to the welcome on county freshman day, in Charlevoix.

SCHOOLS TAKE PART IN FINGERPRINTING

Civilian Identification Files of State Police Grow as Youngsters Aid

Civilian fingerprint identification records of the Michigan State Police are expanding rapidly with the addition of thousands of school cards.

Young America was quick to grasp the value of positive identification records at some central bureau. In scores of cases where the state troppers had requests for fingerprint cards, the incentive came from student groups and the students themselves took the prints and completed the record of identification information.

Among recent additions to the civilian files were 900 cards from schools in Eaton Rapids; 6,000 cards from Barry county schools; files from schools at Bath, Bay City, Albion, Flushing and several of the schools at Grand Rapids.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

Motorists Warned of Junk Car Racket

Many persons who junk their cars, either by design or as the consequence of accidents, may unwittingly be aiding car thieves, Leon D. Case, secretary of state, points out.

The possibility of motorists being involuntary party to auto theft rings, exists more often in the case of new or nearly new cars wrecked, it is pointed out. If car thieves can acquire a fairly new model car, wrecked and about to be junked, and acquire its title as well, their path is not difficult. It is necessary then only to steal an identical car, make alterations such as switching motors, to have a car and title which no policeman could challenge, Case points out.

Motorists can protect themselves against such a possibility if they will note that the only instance in which a title does not "follow the car," is when the car is junked.

Section 14-a, of Act 65 of the Public Acts of 1931, provides that a motorist disposing of his car to a junk dealer, must assign title to the dealer, but not deliver it to the dealer. Rather, the title must be sent to the secretary of state, together with an application to junk, which can be secured from licensed car junkers. A junking permit may then be sent to the dealer by the secretary of state, though title may be revived by the dealer, on approval of the same official.

Reports of police departments, and the department's investigators, have definitely shown department officials that car theft operations as described, have been carried on. Wrecked cars may be "snatched" in any part of the state. In every instance, however, such operations would be impossible if junked car titles had been sent to Lansing in accordance with law, it is pointed out.

I'LL OIL-PLATE YOUR ENGINE

Nobody but a Conoco Mileage Merchant like me can Oil-Plate your engine, because nobody else can change you to Conoco Germ Processed oil. There's a patent on it. The Germ Process is not like all the processes that "take away" from an oil—sort of like making skim milk. Instead of that, after the oil is refined in every right way, something altogether extra is put in Germ Processed oil. This is a great discovery, because then a genuine plating of oil is able to form in your engine. If you would imagine a slippy skin of oil really grown to every working surface—and not just floating around—that's a picture of Oil-Plating. A plating can't flow down while your car is parked, so you won't punish your Oil-Plated engine doing all the stopping and starting you please. Or if you're hitting a pace all day—maybe even pulling a trailer up the mountains—it does not make Oil-Plating rub away. That's letting you out of all the worst wear, at the same time that your Conoco Germ Processed oil is saving you quart after quart.

"They say when Old Man O'Connor was dying he kep' sorter groping on the bed, and Daisy—she was expecting any minute then—Daisy says, 'Do you want your big blackthorn stick, Pa?' 'Yes,' he says, 'I don't know where I'm going, Daze, and I'd just as soon have my stick in my hand!'"

Just now, when the waters of her own soul were running so low, Lily's stream of conversation had its uses; it soothed Gail, it diverted her from too constant a contemplation of the dark current of her own life.

It was all real, all human; Gail was conscious of a little thrill of pleasurable anticipation when Lily got into a narrative vein.

And of course there was always plenty to talk about in Clippersville. There was always a fire, an accident, a marriage or divorce to supply interest and to lead the conversation off into countless collateral and connected lines.

Today there was the astonishing fact of the Wilcox baby to discuss. An eight-pound boy normally born to a normal and happy mother, and putting on an ounce a day—nobody in Clippersville could believe it, least of all the happy parents.

"He acts," Gail said, "like a person in a dream."

"Ma and Gram," said Lily, "went over to see the baby because Gram nursed Mrs. Wilcox's mother for seven years—she was a paralytic—and she says that Mrs. Wilcox was crying, and she ast her would she look at Sterling—what do you know about Sterling for a name!—and she says, 'Shall we call the doctor?' she says. 'He's been lying like that for fifteen minutes!' and Ma says, 'All he's doing is snoring, Louise!' and honestly," said Lily, with a pathetic, serious look at the others—"honestly I thought my grandmother would pass quietly out of the picture, I honestly did!"

And when Gail, who laughed so rarely now, would laugh, Lily would look surprised. But she liked to hear Gail laugh, just the same, and Phil always rewarded his garrulous little wife with a look of gratitude.

Today they also had to discuss, as did all Clippersville, the amazing, the sensational bankruptcy of the Murchison Flour mills. Rumor had been playing with this possibility for some time, but Clippersville was as full of rumors as an army camp, and nobody had taken seriously the idea that the invincible Murchison fortune might fall.

But fallen it had, completely, entirely. The Clippersville mills, the Salinas offices, the New Jersey plant had all passed into other hands, the Chipps' mansion was for sale, and the Chipps were going to live, without a servant, on the Los [illegible] to make it pay.

It was all too [illegible]. The mere name Murchison had been one with which to conjure for a generation, and for years everybody had told everybody else that they had been "coining" money, that they had "scads," that they were "made" of it!

The Murchisons and the Chipps, with their trips to New York and their fashionable affiliations with San Francisco and Burlingame! This was a tumble for them, sure enough. "They say that Arthur Murchison could have been sent to jail!" Clippersville said, not without satisfaction.

"What d'you suppose will happen to Van, Gail?"

"I was thinking. He was working at the New Jersey plant, the last I heard."

"I thought he was abroad?"

"He was—with another boy. Or he was going. Mrs. Chipp told Edith—"

A pause. Gail saw Muller's book department, and the fashionable, white-gloved Mrs. Chipp pausing to patronize grave little Edith in her corduroy dress.

"He'll have to get to work now!" Phil said, with a chuckle.

"Every penny he had came from his stepfather," Gail added, "and if Mr. Murchison really is down and out, Van will have a hard time!"

"Prob'ly the best thing that could happen to him!" Lily opined heartlessly. They talked of other things, but they always came back to the Murchison failure.

The March day grew very hot at the dam; there was no wind. Lily's three little boys after lunch crept into the shade near the grown-ups, and laying whining, panting, and fretting, their faces flushed and wet with heat.

Dreamily, as if absently, Gail began to tell them a story.

"Well, once there were three little boys, just the ages of you and Miles and Danny, Wolfe. Their names were Hammy, Jammy, and Sammy—Hammy, Jammy, and Sammy Formaldehyde."

"They were relations of the Immortal family?" asked Phil in the pause, his heart beat quickening. Gail had fallen to dreaming, with her eyes far away.

"They were—" She roused herself, smiled a little. "They were Monica's children."

"Oh, Monica married then?"

"Monica married a sewing-machine agent."

"Oh?" said Phil. A look of peace came into his kind, worried eyes. He settled back: "Go ahead!" he said.

The hot spring sun beat down upon the sapphire waters of the dam, but where the creek widened and spread at its mouth the shade of the redwoods fell, and there was greenness and coolness. Only the dragonflies were moving in the fragrant March world; there was no cloud in the Italian blue of the sky, no splash of fish in the dam.

Up on the surrounding ring of the guardian hills the lilac was still blooming, in pale blue plumes; the manzanita streaked the summits with creamy lines; even the bay trees bore golden tips. A bluejay screamed like a bullet through the air, and was gone. Then silence, and the ripple—ripple—ripple of the water that accentuated the silence once more, and Gail's slow, rich, hesitating voice beginning the new chronicles of the Formaldehydes. But no Formaldehyde story had ever affected Gail before quite as this one did. This was new. This was creation.

The hour marked a change in Gail, and she felt it without realizing just what it meant. She knew, vaguely, that everything was different, on this March Sunday—the sky bluer than she had ever known it before, the buttercups more mysteriously golden, every new leaf, every crystal shadow in the dam or flash of diamonds in the creek penetrated with new meaning, with unearthly light.

Phil, in his shabby old clothes, Lily, already a little clumsy and slow in movement, seemed to thrill and throb with the cosmic pulse of the whole great world, and more than all—more than sky and trees, creek water and blossoming spring—Gail felt herself alive, alive with everything that lived. Gail Lawrence, nearly twenty-seven years old, tawny-headed, blue-eyed lithe, strong, adequate—feeling, remembering, acting, loving and suffering—was living at last!

The miracle of it remained with her as they went home in the late afternoon; stayed with her illuminating, interpreting, changing all the commonplaces of life into glory. Gail felt dazed with felicity; it must not stop, this penetrating, poignant sweetness. She knew it would not stop.

She went through a week of planning, of dreaming.

"Is this you with me, Edith?" her soul would ask as she stamped and pencilled books and slips, smiled and answered at the library desk. "Are you helping me at last?"

And then, a week after the picnic, came a Sunday of deluge, when Phil and Lily went to a movie and Gail took the three little boys for a wet walk. The older two came back contentedly enough to blocks and crayons, but little Danny was almost too tired for luncheon, and quite too tired to play, and at three o'clock Gail sponged his sticky little face and put him down on her bed, with her old woolly dog, for a nap.

"Riff-raff," she said to him affectionately, straightening her big room, putting another log of wood—wood from the famous old Lawrence pine that had come down only a few weeks ago—into the little stove.

"Wiff-waff," Danny as affectionately returned.

Gail closed bureau drawers, straightened books on the shelves. She carried a finished, fat, satin-bound microscopic blue blanket into Lily's room, stood looking thoughtfully at Lily's upper bureau drawer that was already filling with bands and knitted jackets for Philip, junior.

In the hall, she called down to the sitting room. "Wolfe! Everything all right?"

"I'm down here," Sam called back. "I'm building these kids a cattle barn!"

Gail went back into her room. Little Riff-Raff was asleep, looking like a tousle-headed angel. The room was warm and orderly and still, rain tapped, tapped, tapped tirelessly on the tin of the kitchen roof. Clippersville was buried in wet tree tops, in the silent Sunday afternoon; here and there blue smoke struggled up above the oaks and elms and pear branches.

On Gail's desk lay a heap of paper—large sheets—and her own green fountain pen. She sat down, dreamy eyes fixed on space, the pen's smooth butt pressed against her cheek.

"I don't know why I shouldn't write stories," she mused, half aloud. "I've read enough!

"Edie, wouldn't it be funny if I were really to be a writer some day?

"'To the dear memory of my sister, Edith Partington Lawrence.'"

The pen touched the paper; began to move.

Danny slept deeply, luxuriously, in the center of the big bed, the old woolly dog tightly clasped to his shabby little underwaist. Rain streamed steadily down the high windows, and drummed on the tin roof; the high feathery new tops of the trees below moved gently in the constant onslaught of the warm drops. Wood fell in the stove, and flamed up and was quiet again.

After awhile Gail threw a covered sheet aside, numbered a second, covered that. She pushed back her hair; her face was pale, her eyes shining. The scratching of the pen recommenced. The clock struck, struck again. Danny slept on, and the rain continued to fall.

But at six, when Lily was home and the boys having supper in the kitchen, a hot, golden sunset suddenly broke over the world. Gail walked up past the old stables, and saw the light shining red on the trunks of the oaks and on the village and on the woodpile and straining itself through the screen of the young grape leaves. Everything sparkled and glittered, scents heavy, wet and delicious crowded the air; the broken tumbler, that had been on the pump ever since Gail could remember anything at all, was a diamond tonight, and the tiny yellow balls of chickens, cheeping and trembling after their oblivious mother across the wet grass, were almost more of beauty than the human heart could bear.

She reflected that she would do her full share of the dinner work and of the dishwashing afterward. Then she would take a bath, and get into pajamas and wrapper, and arrange shoes and dress for the library day tomorrow, and carry her week's laundry—for this was Sunday night—out to the big basket in the upper back hall.

And she lighted her desk lamp, and drew those five scribbled pages toward her, and in a silence and solitude of her own room read them once again—and found them good.

The loss of Ariel, the deeper blow of Dick's loss, Phil's marriage had been earthquake, the unbearable last burden after the hardened years. And beyond that had been the consuming flame of Edith's going, the unthinkable thing, the death of something that was herself, that was her own life.

The earthquake and the fire. And now into Gail's heart comfort came creeping back, new interest, new hope—the still small voice of the Lord.

Thus began the new life, in the unchanged setting of the old. Gail did not know whether what she dreamed and what she wrote was good or was not good, nor did she care. It had to come, and the coming was a sort of ecstatic hearing—a giving of life.

In April she had the letter: a dozen typewritten lines:

"Dear Miss Lawrence:

"The readers report that, delightful as this story is, it is 'not quite in our tone.' The feeling of the Atlantic is that, when a tale is as intimately true to life as this is of yours, the tone is surely a tone for the Atlantic to adopt.

"It gives us much pleasure to accept so admirable a story.

"Very truly yours,
"The Editor."

DRIVING INTO MICHIGAN

To get a clear perspective of a thing one must view it from a distance. To truly appreciate the state of Michigan one must drive into it from another state, one which has not had the attention given to highways and scenic attractions which has been given to Michigan.

Then it is that the returning Wolverine appreciates his own state. He has traveled over miles of highway with hazards to the side and in front, and with little scenic beauty to exult him. But suddenly a wide safe highway opens ahead, pine trees dot the hill-sides, farms look prosperous and beauty predominates. He is in Michigan!

TEMPORARY WORK COVERED BY SECURITY ACT

Students Working in Resorts Classified Among Eligibles

Persons who find temporary employment during the summer season will, in thousands of cases, be covered by the Social Security Act even though they may not know they are included in its provisions.

This announcement was made today by the Regional Office of the Social Security Board in Cleveland. It was pointed out that thousands of high school and college students who work during the summer months will be covered by social security and that all persons who are planning temporary employment should make inquiry to discover their exact status under this program.

Students who earn money as musicians, entertainers, waiters, bell boys, clerks, or other employes in temporary work, are covered by the federal old-age benefits section of the Social Security Act, it was pointed out by the Regional Office. Similarly, a school teacher who becomes a counselor or an athletic director in a privately owned, profit-making summer camp or one who works in any type of commerce or industry included in the provisions of the Social Security Act must have deductions made from his or her wages.

Even in such cases as athletes who may play professional baseball during the summer, it is necessary for those who are thus employed to contribute towards their future old-age benefits account, according to a statement issued by Benedict Crowell, regional director, at Cleveland.

PET DURING SUMMER AN AID TO CHILDREN

Teaches Them Responsibility They Otherwise Might Not Acquire

Every child should have some experience with a pet, for psychologists suggest that a child learns many things in caring for a pet that he may never acquire otherwise.

Pets teach a child to be kind to animals and give him real experience in responsibility in providing food, water and shelter for the pet.

"Many homes are so arranged that it is not possible to have a year around pet such as a cat or dog," says Catherine G. Miller, child development instructor at Michigan State College. "Yet the summertime is ideal for having a pet that can be cared for in the garden."

"A turtle makes an interesting pet. He gets along very well if he has an old tub partially filled with water and a rock on which to climb for his sun bath. His food requirements are simple, a few crumbs of bread, a tiny piece of meat once in a while and a fly for a treat.

"This is an excellent time to acquire a tadpole and I'm sure any child will watch with delight his growth into a frog. This makes a good lesson in nature study as well as an interest for the child."

A rabbit requires slightly more care but is a good pet to have. He needs a cage or pen of some kind because he likes to chew flowers and shrubs. Once he has a cage the rest of his care is not difficult. He can be trained to use a box of saw dust so that the cleaning of his cage is simple. His diet consists of dry oatmeal for his solid ration and any kind of green stuff—lettuce, carrots, carrot tops, cabbage, celery or just plain grass. Bunny will wash himself like a kitten and will respond to any affection given him.

It matters not what, Miss Miller suggests, but she does recommend letting the child have some live thing to care for and to love.

EASTERN STAR RECEPTION FRIDAY EVENING A DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR

An event which will long stand out in the memories of local Eastern Star members was a reception given last Friday evening for Grand Ruth Dorothy See.

A fine banquet was served at 6 o'clock at The Bartlett House in honor of grand officers, with 85 members, including many from surrounding chapters in attendance.

A program opened with prayer by Rev. G. R. Parker and closed with Dr. F. F. McMillan, worthy patron, introducing the grand officers with exception of Grand Ruth, who was introduced by Conductress Mildred Webster by a fitting rhyme after the banquet.

The reception was continued at the Masonic temple, where the Chapter was called to order by Worthy Matron Ella Fochtman. The initiation of Olive Allen, Caroline Sorensen and Lillian Brow was exemplified by the following grand officers: Cassa Leonard Howe, worthy grand matron; George E. Ferguson, worthy grand patron; Grace Catterfeld, associate matron; Milton Miller, associate patron; Florence Ryckman, grand conductress; Bessie Ferguson, associate conductress (pro tem); Florence VanHaaran, grand chaplain; Hilda Frye, grand marshal; Ida Elstone, grand organist; Dorothy See, grand Ruth; Anna Kuhn, grand Electa.

Music during the initiation was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Percy E. Elstone, duet of the Grand Chapter, who also favored with two other much appreciated selections.. Moving pictures of the Grand Family were shown and refreshments brought to a close a most delightful occasion. All of the grand officers were presented with gifts by the local chapter as remembrances of the affair.

Monday is a holiday. Thousands of families will be on the "look-out" for picnic foods. It's the year's first outing call. As usual, the A-G Stores answer the demand by offering picnic foods at special prices.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCHES
Charlevoix and Ironton

Next Sunday the Congregational church will observe Memorial Day. The Leslie T. Shapton Post will worship with us, also the Woman's Relief Corps.

In connection with the service, a memorial service will be held for those of our number who have passed away since May 30, 1936. This is a custom that has been observed by our church for several years. We have also made is possible for anyone who wishes to join us in the memorial service for their loved ones, and is welcome, but we ask that the names of those to be remembered be handed to the pastor not later than Saturday noon.

There will be no union evening service because of the baccalaureate service that is to be held at 8 p. m. in the high school gymnasium.

MARTIN-SENOUR
100% PURE MONARCH PAINT

Is YOUR home like one of those pictured above? Have you hesitated to give it a much-needed coat of paint because of the cost? You needn't worry about that. Five-room cottages such as these have been painted with Monarch House Paint for as little as $15—a cheap rate of insurance against the destructive rays of the sun and the ravages of rain, snow, wind and cold. But it takes a 100% paint like Monarch to do the job right.

When you buy Monarch House Paint you are sure of getting 100% pure paint. It is made of pure carbonate of lead, pure zinc oxide, linseed oil, turpentine with necessary amounts of drier and color—the identical formula that is recognized as standard for a 100% pure paint. Use Monarch and you'll never find the paint on your house cracking or peeling. Neither will it flake off nor turn crumbly. A coat of Monarch House Paint lasts for years and coats your home with tiny metal-like shields that defy rot and decay sun or storm.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT

Variety of Foods Essential to Baby's Diet

The way the baby is fed during the first year of life may make him either strong and healthy or weak and sickly; wrong feeding may even be the cause of his death. For this reason a physician experienced in the care and feeding of infants should be consulted as soon as the baby is born and at regular intervals thereafter; at least once a month if the baby is breast fed and more frequently if he is artificially fed. He will advise the mother with regard to all the details of feeding. For the sake of the baby's health the doctor's advice should be followed with the greatest care.

The baby should learn soon after birth to take food at regular hours by the clock and be satisfied when fed only at those times. If the mother invariably gives the baby his feeding at the times decided on and if she is invariably firm in requiring him to wait until the hour for feeding arrives, the average baby can be trained very early in life to wake regularly for food and to keep quietly most of the time between feedings.

It is an accepted fact that the breast fed baby has the greater chance for survival than the artificially fed baby. Breast milk is easily digested, cheap, clean and convenient. No other thing has a greater influence on the development and health of the baby than breast feeding. Breast feeding gives a baby a better chance for life and for steady and normal growth. The death rate of babies not breast fed is higher than the death rate of breast-fed babies.

To provide the baby with the food substances that milk — even breast milk — doesn't contain in sufficient amounts, and to help his body utilize breast milk most completely, additional foods must be given him early in life. Cod liver oil should be begun before the end of the first month of life, preferably by the end of the second week. Cod liver oil is sometimes called "bottled sunshine" because it supplies the same factor that sunshine does. Both cod liver oil and sunlight are needed if the baby is to be protected from rickets.

Orange juice or tomato juice (strained) should be begun by the end of the first month in order to protect the baby from scurvy. If orange juice is used, it is advisable to begin with one teaspoonful twice a day. If tomato juice is used, give twice as much as one would of orange juice. Orange juice should be diluted with an equal amount of cool boiled water; tomato juice is given without water.

It is advised that cooked cereal be started at the beginning of the fifth month. Egg yolk is generally started by the fifth month. Some doctors give it in the third month or even earlier. Unsweetened luke-warm water that has been boiled should be offered the baby regularly between feedings if the baby is awake — two or three times a day.

PEOPLE WHO SHUN THE MODERN PLAN

There are still some people who shun the modern plan of paying for equipment while it is being used.

These people prefer to save the purchase price of a vacuum cleaner, a radio, a washing machine or similar equipment and then pay cash for the article.

For those so inclined a savings account at this bank is a big help in accumulating the purchase price.

"Wake Up and Live" a Sho-Wow; Howlarious, Swelegant Musical

In "Wnke Up nnd Live," which opens Saturday, May 29, at the Palace Theatre, with Walter Winchell, Ben Bernie and Alice Faye in the featured roles, Twentieth Century-Fox believes thnt it has the sweetest, hottest, most galamorous and galorious musical ever turned out by that studio.

Eclipsing even such swelegant musicals as "On the Avenue," "One in a Million" and "Sing, Baby, Sing," this new filmusical brings the famed Winchell-Bernie feud to the screen in an eye-filling production that lays strong claim to being the hotchatopsa of them all.

Famed Verona Church Copied In Full Glory

Travelers the world over have stood in silent admiration before Verona's famed Cathedral of San Zeno.

The majestic Romanesque structure dating to the 12th century has been reproduced in Hollywood. It is among the architectural gems of Italy's ancient city plucked by Cedric Gibbons, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer art director, to serve as a setting for "Romeo and Juliet," opening Tuesday, June 1, at the Palace Theatre with Norma Shearer and Leslie Howard co-starred.

Recruiting 1,000 for Film Army a Tough Job

London casting agencies were frankly stumped when Alexander Korda called for an army of 1,000 men to play the soldiers of Queen Elizabeth in spectacular scenes in "Fire Over England" which comes to the Palace Theatre Thursday and Friday, June 3-4.

Safe and Sane DRIVING

BY THE NATIONAL SAFETY COUNCIL and Michigan State Safety Council

QUICK ON THE TRIGGER

Many motorists seem to take an inordinate pride in getting away at high speed from every stop. With engine racing and hand twitching on the gear-shift, they can hardly wait until the traffic light changes from red to yellow.

Probably they do not know that in three racing start- they can waste enough gasoline to carry them a mile.

The same type of motorist has a habit of coming up to the light at high speed, depending on quick application of the brakes to stop in time. He figures that if the signal light doesn't change he will be able to rush on and "beat the light."

He does not figure, of course, that these sudden stops are wearing his brakes out rapidly, and soon they will need relining.

Most important of all, however, neither of these hair-brained drivers has considered the chances of an accident in these reckless maneuvers. They would probably scoff at the idea that possibility of an accident is increased at all.

But common sense tells us that the hazards they run and the hazards they create are many times those of the driver who seeks to "play safe" at each street intersection.

Dust—mankind's friend and enemy. Strange discoveries about this nuisance which is everywhere. But mankind couldn't live without it. A double page feature in the American Weekly, the magazine distributed with next Sunday's Chicago Herald and Examiner.

LANSING LETTER

House Democrats Revolt

Lack of political patronuge is blamed by some House Democrats. A final agreement is now in sight whereby present state employes will be exempt from a requirement of civil service examinations. It will be ear-marked "compromise"—a second choice but better than none at all.

The occupational disease bill was passed by the Republican Senate under leadership of Senators Hittle and Brake. As the measure did not meet the administration's ideas, a House substitute bill was prepared under direction of Rep. Joseph Murphy, of Detroit. Five members of Murphy's House labor committee then proceeded to "walk out," refusing to report the revised measure to the floor.

Just about the time that Governor Murphy was ready to mediate differences among his legislators, more sit-down trouble flared. Electric power was shut down in the Saginaw valley, crippling industry and labor alike. The governor had to make a choice of the kind which he made in the Chrysler strike. And again, while the Legislature consumed many hours in argument about petty differences, the governor was kept on the strike front line.

State Police

Nine hanks have been robbed in Michigan since January 1.

The effect has been a public discovery that the state police system is inadequate to cope with organized crime.

Admitted Commissioner Oscar G. Olander: "With less than 200 men to cover the entire state, there is not a sufficient concentration of forces in any aren to cope udequately with the raids of organized gangs."

In pleading the necessity for additional troopers, the state police commissioner in effect has done his own "debunking."

"Toonerville Trolley"

Now that Tnhquamenon Falls, one of the notable scenic attractions of the Upper Peninsula, have become a part of the state park system, it is inevitable that enterprising boosters will try to junk something which is a novelty to many travelers—a narrow-gague logging railroad called "The Toonerville Trolley."

The upper falls are nbout 200 feet wide with u 48 foot drop.

One of our most memorable vacation thrills was n wild ride down n roller-coaster logging tracks in the Flambeau National Forest in Wisconsin. We cast a one-man verdict for retention of Michigan's "Toonerville Trolley" to Tahquamenon Falls.

More Bookkeeping

Enactment of a minimum wage and maximum hour legislntion in Michigan this year is likely to impose new bookkeeping worries on employers.

The Senate lubor committee has reported n substitute bill from that which was passed in the House.

Employers would be required to post work schedules for different shifts of women workers and minors, including a starting time, lunch period not more than four hours after starting time, and finishing time.

The result may be a clock-punching regimen rivaling Charles Chaplin's "Modern Times."

The second stumbling block in the path of Murphy has been bickering along Democratic factions. The governor has stated repeatedly that his No. 1 measure is civil service for state employes. A Republican Senate passed the bill, but a Democratic committee refused to report it out.

Selling Michigan

It seems a paradox to say that hundreds of Michigan people were sold on Michigan for the first time last winter when tourist ussociation officials toured the east and west coasts of Florida, showing motion pictures about Michigan.

One man from Detroit said he had never been north or west of Lansing, so reports Hugh Gray, manager of the Western Michigan Tourist and Resort Association. The Detroiter had been to the west coast, to Yellowstone Park, to Florida, but he had never visited the northern section of Michigan or the Upper Peninsula!

MANCELONA WINS FIELO MEET HERE

NOSED OUT CHARLEVOIX BY A MARGIN OF TWO POINTS

With Ideal Conditions Prevailing, Eight Conference Records Broken During Annual Track Meet

In n thrilling and closely contested meet here Saturduy, Mancelona's thin-elads nosed out Chnrlevoix 43 points to 41 to win the Northern Michigan Class C conference field and track chumpionship.

The relay race was the deciding event in the hard fought duel, Mancelona placing second to Charlevoix's third to win the deciding points. Boyne City was third with 23 points, East Jordan fourth with 20, Harbor Springs fifth with five points. Kalkasku failed to place in any event.

Run off under perfect weather conditions, eight conference records were broken. Ed. Radle stepped the mile in 4:52 for a new conference mark; C. Bouman, East Jordan, bettered the shot-put record with a heave of 40 feet 6 inches; Smith, Mancelona, was clocked at 23:7 for a new record in the 220-yard dash; Bailey and Turnipseed, Mancelona, tied at 10 feet for a new conference pole vault record; Turnipseed and Smith lowered the high and low hurdles records, the former setting a mark of 17.1 in the 120-ynrd high hurdles, and the latter a mark of 24 seconds flat in the 220-yard low hurdles. Hausler, Boyne City, clipped nearly five seconds off Shapton's previous record for the 440-yard dash, setting a new mark of 52.5 seconds. The conference relay record was broken by Boyne City's team at 1:38.4. The previous record was 1:44, held by Charlevoix. The conference record for the 100-ynrd dash was equalled by Smith, Mancelona, with a time of 10:5.

Following are the results:

Shot-put — C. Bouman, East Jordan; Dilworth, Boyne City; Brower, Harbor Springs; Gallagher, Chnrlevoix. Distance, 40 feet 6 inches.

100-yard Dash—Smith, Mancelonn; Dickerson, Boyne City; Stanek, East Jordan; Beeman, Boyne City. Time: 10:5.

GAMBLE STORES LOCATING AN AGENCY HERE

Store to Open Latter Part of Week In Old Post Office Building

Charlevoix's new authorized Gamble Store Agency located in the old post office building will be opened this week. Ernest D. Robinette, owner and manager, has been busily engaged for some time getting the store set up for the opening. New, modern fixtures are being installed.

Everything will be In readiness, when the people of this community will have their first opportunity to inspect the extensive lines of merchandise handled by this new store. This merchandise consists, in part, of automotive supplies, featuring tires and batteries, paint, rndios, and household necessities.

All stores bearing the "Authorized Ageney Gamble Stores" sign are owned by the mnn operating the store. These merchants are in business for themselves. The investment is theirs—they do their own ordering—they place their own advertising. It is their business. Yet the vast reaources of Gamble Stores are behind them.

This new Gamble Store Agency is one of 1581 Gamble Stores and Gamblo Store Agencies now operating in the middlewest.

BEGIN MOVIE REEL STEELHEAD FISHING

Walter Hastings, Conservation Dept. Photographer, Here Friday

Charlevoix's now famous steelhead fishing is due for some real publicity in the near future.

Last Friday afternoon Ben East, outdoor editor of the Grand Rapids Press, and Walter Hastings, pbotographer for the Michigan Department of Conservation, were here "shooting" movies which will eventually go into a complete reel showing the picture proof of how the steelhead received the name, "Silver Sided Dynamite."

Views showing parties lenving and returning from fishing pnrties were taken, and Mr. Hastings plans coming at intervals to get "shots" of the steelhead being caught. The final result will be a complete reel on steelhead fishing.

LAKE HURON LEADER IN WHITEFISH PRODUCTION

SPORTSMEN'S CLUB PROGRAM STARTEO

STOVER CREEK REARING PONDS STOCKED WITH FISH

Over 125,000 Steelhead, Brook and Rainbow Trout Released—Ponds Improved This Year

What promises to be the most comprehensive fish propagation program ever undertuken by the Churlevoix Sportsmen's Club has been launched for the 1937 season.

Approximately 125,000 steelhead, brook and German brown trout have been released in the Stover Creek rearing ponds to be raised to the advanced stuge for planting in Charlevoix county lakes and streams this fall.

Released up to the present time are 61,000 brook trout, including 20,000 advanced fingerlings; 35,000 steelhead trout, including one pond of 2,000 year-old fish, and 27,000 German brown trout, also including 2,000 year-old fish.

The Stover Creek ponds were greatly improved in preparation for the 1937 season. Approximately 350 feet of concrete sidewalls were constructed, the bottom cleaned and covered with gravel. All new screens, of graduated size in accordance with the fish to be planted, were installed. Extra preeautions were taken to prevent larger fish from jumping tbe screens into the ponds with smnller fish.

The system this year includes eight ponds. Each has been numbered and an accurate record kept of the kind and number of fish placed in each. These figures will provide a check on propagation results when the fish are taken out for planting in the fall. Roy Rnnger, who is vice-president of the Clnb, had charge of the program of improvements, and gave his time and efforts for the purpose.

Fish for the rearing ponds have been supplied from the Mihigan state and federal hatcheries. Early consignments came from Oden and the lnst shipment arrived by fish car Wednesday afternoon from the federal batchery nt Northville. Other shipments probably will be received during the season in addition to plantings to be made in the lakes and streams.

HOLIOAY CROWO SETS A RECORO

CITY FLOODED WITII VISITORS OVER WEEK-END

Fishing Chief Attraction for Tourists From Out-of-State and Southern Michigan Points

If the influx of tourists visiting Charlevoix for the Memorial holidays may be taken as nn indication, the 1937 summer season has promise of being the best in many years.

That the holidays drew the lnrgest crowd in the remembrance of locul citizens is generally conceded. Visitors began arriving Friday evening and by Saturday this city had taken on n mid-summer appenrance. Hotels, rooming houses and restaurants reported excellent business, and the tourist camp had a mid-summer registry.

Fishing, for which this city has rapidly gained in prominence, proved the chief attraction, bringing visitors from out-of-state and many Lower Michigan points. Those operating boats for lake fishing found it difficult to supply the demand, and all available equipment was in use. Rowboats for perch fishing were at a premium and the bait situation proved a problem.

Perhaps the greatest consolntion came from the fact that this city lived up to its reputation as a fishing center. With the exception of Mackinaw trout, catches came up to expectations for such an early date. While the number of steelhead taken was not as large as will be possible when the season is another week or so along, all parties took a few. Some boats brought in as high as six. Only a scattering few Mnckinaw trout were taken, but the catches of perch went beyond all anticipations. Fishermen in boats or lining the docks were on hand as early as 4 o'clock in the morning, and limit catches were made in goodly numbers. The big yellowbellies were plentiful and this sport proved popular with the greatest number of visitors.

While the perch "run" is now practically over, steelhead and Mnckinaw trout fishing will improve in coming weeks. This sport is expected to draw many visitors to Charlevoix during the remaining summer and fall months.

CITY PAIO HOMAGE TO ITS WAR HEROES

IMPRESSIVE MEMORIAL DAY PROGRAM MONDAY

Servies Conducted at Memorial Park and Brookside Cemetery Were Largely Attended

Charlevoix paid homage to its soldier and sailor dead with ceremonies at Memorial Park and Brookside cemetery as veterans of past wars participated in a solemn observance of Memorial Day on Monday.

While missing from the ranks were veterans of the Civil War, members of Leslie T. Shapton Post, American Legion, veterans of the Spanish-American War, members of the W. R. C., the Junior Legion drum and bugle corps, members of fraternal organizations, the school band and school children were among those forming the march to the services. It was a colorful parade.

The ceremonial of casting a wreath on the water for the sailor dead was conducted by ladies of the Womnn's Relief Corps and Legion Auxiliary nt Memorial Park. Taps were sounded as the march was resumed to Brookside cemetery.

Numbers on the impressive program at the cemetery included "Star Spangled Banner" by the school band; invocntion by Rev. John Alexander; exercises by the Woman's Belief Corps; "Gettysburg Address," delivered in a masterful manner by Alice Meyer; address by Judge Joseph Sanford; salute, taps; "America" by the school band; benediction by Rev. Alexander.

Judge Sanford, a former local youth, who is the son of Capt. nnd Mrs. James Snnford, this city, gave a brief and inspiring address, urging a greater measure of reverence for those who gave their lives for their country.

GRAOUATION PRO-GRAM IMPRESSIVE

FINE ADDRESS GIVEN BY DEAN W. W. WHITEHOUSE

Fifty Seniors Awarded Diplomas at Commencement Exercises Wednesday—Banquet, Prom, Thursday

A banquet nt the Bartlett Hotel, followed by a senior prom at the gymnasium Thursday evening, will bring to a close the graduation nctivities of the Charlevoix High school senior class of '37.

Sunday evening's baccalaureate services and commencement exercises held Wednesday evening filled the school gymnasium to capacity as parents and friends of the graduates gathered to witness honors bestowed upon the 50 students completing their scholastic careers in Charlevoix schools.

Baccalaureate services were impressive. Rev. G. R. Parker, of the Congregational church, delivered the sermon, using as his topic, "Life Is Like u Relay Race," a subject befitting the important turning point in the lives of the graduates. The musical numbers on the program were especially fine.

Graduation exercises were equally Impressive and the selection of Dean W. W. Whitehouse, of Albion College, as commencement speaker was justified in the masterful address he delivered before the graduates and assembled relatives and friends.

Dean Whitehouse's topic was "Youth Faces Tomorrow." In his work at Albion College, close contact with the problems of youth enabled him to offer a keen analysis of the situution as it is today. Economic, social and political theories were placed in the form of illustrations which drove home possible solutions. By stressing character developments as a primary part of an educational career, he proved thoroughly inspirationul.

The commencement program in its entirety was outstanding. Miss Marjorie Miller and Miss Marjorie Falting very ably gave the salutatory and valedictory addresses. Musical selections by the school band were exceptionnlly fine.

Harry E. Bingham, high school principal, presented the class, and diplomas were awarded by Clarence B. Meggison, secretary of the Board of Education.

COUNTY INDEPENDENCE FETE AT EAST JORDAN

Observe 50th Anniversary of Incorporation in Connection

East Jordan will celebrate the 50th anniversary of its incorporation as a village this summer. The celebration will be held in conjunction with the Fourth of July celebration, the dates being Saturday, Sundny and Monday, July 3, 4 and 5.

Plans are beginning to get under way to hold the biggest and best homecoming ever staged in East Jordan and people are asked to get in touch with former East Jordanites so they can plan on attending the celebration. Some of the committeemen are already at work, and more plans will be announced next week. Chnrles Murphy, general chairman; Oscar Weisler has charge of the fireworks; Jack Kenny, reception; and George Secord will again handle the publicity end of it.—Charlevoix County Herald.

LANSING LETTER

By GENE ALLEMAN

Field Manager, Michigan Press Association

The old-fashioned saloon bar, symbol of conditions that led to national prohibition, may return in Michigan.

By a vote of 70 to 20 the House of Representatives passed an amended liquor control hill that permits drinking, while standing at a bar. The amendment was defended by Rep. Harry Glnss (D), of Grand Rapids, who said he could see no sense in legislating the question of n drinker's posture — standing up or sitting down. Liquor by the glnss would be permitted locally by a city ordinanee or referendum vote.

While loosening present restrictions against drinking at a bar, the House bill tightens up on the sale of beer to minors—raising the age limit from 18 to 21.

The measure is now in the Senate.

Calling Names

The House of Representatives is overwhelmingly Democratic. The Senate is Republican by a hnir.

Yet n condition continues whereby administration measures nre passed easily through the Senate, but are bogged down in the House.

CHAPTER IX

The dull old grimy kitchen swooped and soared about her. She had been hulling strawberries, putting every twelfth one into Danny's expectant mouth, open at her knee.

The letter from the Atlantic had strawberry juice on it; no matter. It

"I Don't Know Why I Shouldn't Write Stories."

shook like a tacking sail as she read it.

"Phil! Look here a minute."

"My—Gawd!" said Phil, upon reading it.

"Read it, Sam!"

"When'joo write a story!" Sam said, incredulous.

"Oh, Phil, you don't suppose—you don't suppose I'm—I'm going to write!"

"Well, for heaven's sakes," Lily said patiently, "the way you carried on, I thought some one was dead!"

Gail sat at the table, her elbows resting on the worn oilcloth, pressing the crushed letter against her face. She felt as if her body had taken wings and was about to lift itself up into the air.

"Phil Lawrence," she whispered presently, taking her hands down, regarding him seriously, "I've sold a story!"

He looked at her kindly from the old rocker. Lily tired easily now, and had established her shapeless person wearily on his knee. Phil's eyeglassed eyes looked over Lily's head.

"'Bout time something good came to you, Gail," Phil said simply. His sister felt the words to be an accolade.

"Oh, I can't believe it—it isn't me!" Gail whispered. "It's—it's the Lawrence luck, coming back!"

She got up and carried the glass dish of strawberries into the dining room. She tilted the cover of the pail, and poured the lightly tumbling hulls down into it. Then with a damp old rag she wiped the oilcloth, afterward at the sink rubbing her finger tips with a withered half lemon. And all the time the juice-stained letter blazed in the breast pocket of her old midshipman's blouse like a burning jewel.

CHAPTER X

So came Clipperaville to be proud of another Lucky Lawrence. A thousand pleasant little episodes, as the summer wore along, told Gail that she was famous and that her old friends and neighbors were glad.

The Challenge ran her picture with a flattering article. Patrons of the old library, coming and going in the hot afternoons, smiled at her over the broad desk top.

"Tickled to death to hear we have an authoress!" the women whispered, nodding and smiling. Gail would flush brightly, joyfully, in return. She saw them all differently now, these busy, strained young mothers, with their babies in rompers and sun-bonnets; these shapeless big middle-aged women with their corsets showing under their dingy voiles. They were her marionettes now; they moved to the strings in her fingers.

Walking home, in the burning bright sunset, she looked at the hills that ringed sleepy Clippersville, those gauzy, transparent hills that were the color of the sky all summer long. She looked at the great oaks and the locusts that lined the Calle, and the magnolias and peppers on the lawns. She looked at the stout women in cottage gardens; women with hair wetly, smoothly dressed; women watering marigolds and wallflowers in the afternoon shadows. They were all beautiful to her.

If Lily telephoned her, and she had to stop in the market, she saw the market or the fruit store or the five-and-ten with new eyes. Their wilted wares, their wearied salesfolk, their anxious bargainers were newly dramatic. When some shabby woman from Thomas Street hill, with a fat, drooling baby on her arm, and another stumbling and whining at her knee, priced the pork chops, pried the chopped beef, looked worriedly from one to the other, Gail felt her heart go out on a rush of love and sympathy for all poverty—all motherhood. She did not know why.

She had letters from persons, faraway unknown persons, praising her story when it was published. Gail answered them simply, unable to believe the words that flowed from her fountain pen. She could presently write: "If you liked 'Simply Impossible,' I hope you will like 'Post Office Closed Tomorrow.' It is coming out very soon in some magazine."

The great Barnes Rutherford, ill, idling in a palace on the Maine coast, wrote her. He, sixty-five, the dean of the greatest profession of all, could find time to write to a little Clippersville girl, and tell her he thought "Simply Impossible" was a good story!

Even more touching were the literary folk of Clippersville. It had so many! Wistful, discarded men and women, living in shabby little gas-lighted cottages smothered in dusty vines, suddenly appeared on all sides, and proudly claimed kinship with the writer. Gail accepted their condescensions graciously; she knew that she was not of their ilk.

Miss Libby Gatty had sold a story to the Black Cat twenty-five years ago; a story that one of the judges had thought deserved first prize. Miss Lou Bennett had known Edward Townsend, who wrote the Chimmie Fadden stories, when she had been in New York with her uncle in 1897, and had met Archibald Clavering Gunter.

"Oh, my uncle knew everybody!" said Miss Lou, tossing her withered head, growing splotchy in the face at the mere exciting memory. "He knew Frank Munsey; he knew everybody!"

Tottering old Kane Rissette had had quite a literary experience as one of the publicity agents of a big railroad in the days before he drank so hard. He lived with a widowed sister now, and Mis Rissette Biggs kept him in order. He delighted in remembering all the literary lights who had come into the office of the railroad magazine and paid their written, and sometimes rhymed, tributes to California.

Then there were the poets, most of them women. They tremblingly brought out for Gail's inspection their hoarded clippings, discolored strips of newspaper or magazine pages. Mrs. Jadwin, who ran a boarding house down by the flour mills, had once won a twenty-five-dollar prize for a poem called "Cloud Voices."

"Oh, my dear!" said Hatty Scheock, who wrote women's club news for the newspapers all over the state, and nature poems beginning "Hail!" and whose pen name was "Lillian Lynne." "Oh, my dear, is there any moment in the world like the one when you know you're getting it, you're in the mood? For, you know, I can't always write," Hatty rushed on. "Sometimes . . ."

There were times when she just felt dull and blank, as if she'd never written a line. And then, suddenly, perhaps when she was in the kitchen with Mamma . . .

"Oh, I know!" Gail would sympathize, with dancing eyes.

And all the time, deep within her, she knew that she and Hatty were not alike. She knew that she could lean down to Hatty, but that Hatty could never reach up to her. It made her humble, and sometimes, when it came to her with a fresh pang of realization that only Edith could have shared all this truly, that only Edith would have appreciated it—indeed, that she owed much of it to the poem-loving, book-loving, truth-loving little sister—she felt a deeper sorrow even than the younger sorrow had been.

Lily sat sewing or idling on the side porch in the afternoon, and the three little boys worked in the wide yard. Sam and Phil had carried their work as far as trimming off the dry limbs of oaks and peppers; the thorn trees sent rich lacy shadows across the new green of the grass.

"Lily, what'a for dinner?" Gail would ask out of a dream.

"The cream puffs and corn and the peaches, and there's a lot of cold rice. I thought maybe poached eggs."

"It's too hot for meat."

Silence again.

"Thinking up another story, Gail?"

"Well, there's one kind of teasing me."

"I can kinder tell by your eyes when you're thinking of your sister," Lily said once.

"Edith?"

"Well, I was thinking of Ariel, then."

"Ariel . . ." Gail always spoke the name on a long sigh. "She couldn't wait," she would muse aloud sorrowfully. "Doesn't it seem funny, Lily, for a person to go away—just as if she had died—and never to write—never to send any word?"

"She may have a houseful of kids by now," Lily, whose mind rather dwelt upon this subject, might suggest.

"Even if she had—!"

"Did you like Richard Stebbins, Gail?"

A quick twist at her heart. A quick memory of a man's ugly, fine face and slow smile. But Gail's voice would come quietly enough.

"Oh, very much.

"Even if I could account for Ariel, I couldn't account for him," she said once.

"Every family has some member in it that acts that way," Lily generalized shrewdly.

• • • • • • •

In September Lily's daughter was born. Gail carried the newcomer down through the big open house to the kitchen, where she tremblingly wiped and oiled the mottled, writhing, weeping little scrap of womanhood.

"God grant that I don't hurt you, baby!" said the Second Gail Lawrence to the Third, aloud.

The baby did not die under her ministrations, anyway. She whimpered, as her waving little saffron arms were introduced into the microscopic shirt, but when Phil and Lily's mother came down, hot and anxious, half an hour later, the little Gail was sound asleep in her namesake's arms.

"She's real pretty, Phil!" said the grandmother proudly.

"Is she?"

"Well, she's just as cute's she can be. I don't know's Lily'a ever had a better-lookin' baby. She'a got the Lawrence look, all right."

"Look at the Lawrence eyebrows, Phil."

"Gee, she'a sleeping hard," Phil observed, in a half-amused, half-resentful tone.

"Lily all right?"

"I suppose so!" he muttered discontentedly. "My G—d!" he said, under his breath.

He went to sit on the doorsill, his chin in his hands, elbows resting on knees. There was the silence of a dreaming autumn Sunday afternoon in the house that had been ringing with agony for the last endless hour. Old Mrs. Crowley went through the room with an unsightly bundle of linen. She lingered on her way to the laundry tubs to smile at the youngest Lawrence.

"She looks kinder mad at the way she was treated—yes, she does! She says, 'Why did ye yank me 'round that way, and spank me good, when I ain't done nothing!'" crooned the toothless old washwoman. "How do, Mis' Wilser. How's all your folks?"

"All real well, thanks, Mis' Crowley. How's Hazel?"

"Hazel had a bad spell last Sunday—'twas a week ago."

"You'd oughter be glad you don't have to have 'em!" Mrs. Wilser said to Phil's still bowed and horrified back in the doorway. She chuckled.

"Look at her sleep—the darling," Gail murmured.

"I always say that if the men had to have 'em every other time, there'd only be two babies, his and then hers, and then no more!" old Mrs. Crowley said with relish.

"Ain't that true?" approved Mrs. Wilser.

"Wiff-waff, come here and see your sister!"

"It's about time you got married, Gail, and had a few of your own!"

"Children have to have an old maid aunt."

"What say?"

"I said that all children have to have an old maid aunt."

"Baby?" asked Iliff-raff, at Gail's knee, with a solemn upward glance.

"Your baby sister."

"Mrs. Lawrence," Betty Crooks, sailing into the room in all her formal nurse's regalia, said authoritatively, "Mrs. Lawrence wants some one to go over to the Williamses' for the other children, and she said to tell you, Mr. Lawrence, that she feels fine and wants some tea!"

"Tea!" Phil echoed, outraged.

"Certainly. She feels fine, only she's sleepy. And she can have some tea before she goes off to sleep. Say," said Betty, who had been in school with Phil and Gail, "you aren't too tired to go up there and see her a minute?"

"Too tired, no!" Phil said dazedly. "But—but she doesn't want—you heard her—she feels as if I was to blame—"

"Oh, for goodness' sake, that was just at the finish!" Betty said wholesomely. "You go up and see her, and tell her I'm bringing up some tea!"

Phil, with one wild glance about, fled to the accompaniment of women's laughter.

"You're going to be lucky," Gail murmured to the child. "The girl that is born on the Sabbath day is wise and lucky and good and gay!"

The little, warm, pulpy hand held tightly, confidingly, to her finger. It seemed gripped already about her heart. There was a smell of household oils, of clean new flannels, of sweet baby dampness. The baby seemed to sag limply against her arm.

"You look like you could sit there forever, holdin' that child, Gail!"

"I feel as if I never wanted to let her go, Mrs. Wilser."

"They won't do that with every one," Mrs. Wilser said—"lay so quiet, and act so good! I'll bet you're goin' to think a sight of that baby."

"I'll bet I am," Gail said seriously.

"Well," said the old woman to her granddaughter, "you've started on a hard journey, young lady! Some day," she added to Gail, "some day she'll be tellin' folks, 'Why, yes, I was born in a place called Clippersville in California.' Ain't that funny?"

"Maybe life is just a succession of births," Gail thought.

"If they take 'The Bells of Saint Giles,'" she mused, "I'll go to New York for a visit."

A little laugh broke over the new baby's head. Gail's novel was barely begun; she did not know that it would ever be a novel. But still she thought: "If they really do take 'The Bells of Saint Giles,' I'll go to New York."

She loved to hold the baby at this time of the day, and when Lily was downstairs again and autumn was deepening, darkening into winter, five o'clock often found Gail, with her little namesake in her arms, rocking, gossiping in the old kitchen, while Lily bustled about the dinner-getting, and the little boys stuffed themselves on fresh-cut bread and peanut butter at the table.

"I'll thicken that stew, Lily.

"I don't mind anything," Lily would say, "as long as you'll keep that young one quiet. What used to drive me nearly crazy was when they'd all begin to squawk just as I'd get my hands into the dinner!"

"Keep her quiet!" Gail would laugh. Gail the Third was a very model of babyhood. Nobody ever had any trouble keeping her quiet.

VACATION FUN GOES HAND IN HAND WITH MICHIGAN!

• Michigan is the home of water-sports!

• The launching of the canoe

WHAT is your idea of vacation play? Is it fishing? Camping out? Hiking? Touring? Or just resting beside some lake or stream?

You can find them all in Michigan.

Three departments of our State Government contribute to the enjoyment of a vacation in Michigan. The Department of Conservation has developed our beautiful State parks and forests. The Highway Department has built highways famed for smoothness and scenery. The Troopers of our Department of Public Safety contribute to the safety and courtesy of the road.

Throughout Michigan, thanks to Nature and to man, fine vacations await you at every hand.

THAT NEIGHBOR OF OURS

In this age of jumping into a car and being in a neighboring city within a short time, it is ensy to outgrow some of the contacts which brought happiness and satisfaction to our forefathers. There was never a sorrow or a happiness in the neighborhood our grandparents did not know about and did not share. It was this close fellowship which welded together the people of one community.

Today, through many fncilities, we are kept in touch with the starving in China, the homeless in Spain, and the large problems of our political life. We are ncquiring the Cosmopolitan outlook. But along with this wider viewpoint let us hope we are not suffering a loss which is vital to our democratic life, our interest in the Mnn Who Lives Next Door.

NATURAL RESOURCES

Funny, isn't it, how every year there are people returning to foreign countries with their pockets full. In this "land of opportunity" they have made enough to enjoy plentiful old age in their sunny fatherlands. Yet every day, on every side, we still hear complaints that opportunities are all used up.

No, opportunities aren't used up for the man with a background of vicissitude. They are only used up for the man who doesn't appreciate what he has. This country is still abundant in natural resources. But they can never be mined by sitting down and complaining about one's luck.

EMPTYING THE GRAB BAG

If you are an average person, government spent $142 of your money last year. If you are head of a family of four, that means $568 of your earning went for taxes.

The total cost of government, according to the "Commentator," was close to $18,000,000,000 in 1936. That represents spending at the rate of almost $1,500,000,000 a month; $49,000,000 a day, Sundays and holidays included, and $34,000 an hour.

In 1936 our national income was $469 per capita—and total government debt $422!

The American people are burdened with a debt of incalculable size. They are faced with taxes that can only be described by the word confiscatory. And still they permit the politician tu spend extravagantly—while they too often scramble for their part of the bounty like islanders diving for coins.

CALL FOR SKILLED LABOR

Because too many parents have desired professional careers for their children the white collar field is becoming over-crowded.

It is only natural for parents to seek the best type of life for their children but in doing so they often fail to consider the child's lack of aptitude for the profession they choose. An individual usually finds more happiness when he is free to chart his own course.

The professional job does not always offer the greater economic security, either. This is becoming evident today with the demand for skilled workers in industry growing while many professional people must work for starvation wages.

IT MAKES A DIFFERENCE

Dr. Bertrand Russell, who has long held unique views on how to raise children, has become a father at the age of 64.

When asked if he had any special plans for rearing the boy, he declined to answer. So time will tell.

But most of us wouldn't be surprised to see a little old-fashioned discipline go into the rearing. A lot of theorists prove just plain sensible when the theory comes home to roost.

COURTESY ON THE HIGHWAY

We enjoyed a pleasant driving experience the other evening which we will pass along to you. It occurred on one of the main highways where the traffic is usually quite heavy. The speed we had maintained was approximately 45 to 50 miles an hour. Eventually we overtook a large truck at the base of a hill. It could travel only about 20 miles an hour on the incline, and this speed diminished as it neared the top.

As we all know, the time spent behind a truck going up hill seems never ending to the driver who is always in a hurry or who takes an unnecessary chance by trying to scoot around it in an effort to save a couple seconds. It is not a habit of ours to do this so we trailed along behind until we both almost reached the top. At this point we were given a pleasant surprise by the truck driver who signaled us to remain behind by flashing his green and red lights off and on. In another second two cars coming from the other direction sped into view and met us exactly upon the crest of the hill. We turned our lights off and on, and he did likewise, as we finally drove past tim on the way down the other side. He knew we got his signal and that we appreciated his courtesy. How much safer it would be on the highways of the state if we would all exercise these little courtesies to each other whenever the opportunity affords.

THE ITALIAN WAY

In Italy soil erosion is checked by terracing the land. Trenches are built horizontally, one above the other. Each terrace is wide enough to hold the run-off from the area draining into it. The water infiltrates rather than rushing off in gullies which will cut more gullies and carry away the precious soil.

Farmers with unproductive hill sides might profitably experiment with this type of soil conservation.

Winter 4-H Club Program Most Successful Ever Conducted in the County

After all of the data has been studied and the official records summarized it is found that Charlevoix county had the largest program ever carried on. A feature of the project activities was the great interest and wonderful results in the hot lunch aetivity. In fact, Charlevoix county, with 15 hot lunch clubs, very nearly led the state in this project. It is highly gratifying to note the number of club members who increased the amount of milk drank daily and those who developed the habit of using milk who did not before.

A summary shows that out of 107 in the clothing club project, that 101 finished. Out of a total of 130 boys who participnted in the handicraft project, 120 finished. In the hot lunch project, out of 161 club members 150 completed the requirements. Thus in 398 projects, 371 were completed.

Order for Publication—Appointment of Administrator

Card of Thanks

We wish tu express our most sincere thanks to those who gave their sympathy and assistance during our recent bereavement, the death of Charles Howard; also to the Odd Fellows for their loyalty. Dave Howard and other relatives.—Adv22t1pd

At the Achievement Day held in Boyne City, it is estimated that over 700 folk saw this remarkable display. One of the big features of the day was the presentation of certificates and the announcement of the various types of recognition given to club members for excellence in their club program. No doubt the greatest recognition given to club members is a trip to the state camp, which is held at Gaylord. The award carries with it a sum of $4 which takes care of the expense during the four days of the camp, and who wouldn't be interested in receiving this trip?

From the membership in the clothing project, the following members have been awarded this trip to the club camp with their expenses paid: Eleanor Ecklund, Marion Center school, fourth year; Marian Smith, Bay Shore school, fourth year; Ada Clute, Deer Lake school, fourth year; Margaret Strehl, East Jordan club, third year; Jessie Potter, Barnard school, second year; Lucille Mac, Murray school, second year, dress revue.

In the hot lunch program the Horton Bay school received first place and the Ironton school second. Delegates to the club camp from this project are: Jack Urman, Tainter school, third year; Bertha Barkley, Horton Bay school, first year; Florence White, Ironton school, first year.

In the wood identification contest the two winners were Millard Tousley, Hopyard school, and Clifford Gibbard, East Jordan school, who also are the delegates to the club camp.

From the handicraft club project the following club members have been selected to represent the county: Bobby Strnw, Marion Center club, sixth year; Clyde Kent, Clarion school, fifth year; Wesley Dingman, Clarion school, third year; Oarmel Griffin, Tainter school, third year; Homer Willis, Bay Shore school, second year; Glen Trojanek, East Jordan, second year; Pearl Badgley, Woodward school, first year.

Already the organization of summer clubs is taking place. If you live in a community that has not been visited, kindly let me know and we will be glad to organize the 4-H club work.

Reward!

A generous reward will be paid to anyone finding or reporting the finding of the body of Bruce McDonough, one of the victims of the Mnrold II explosion on Simmons Reef. Inform Mrs. Sadie McDonough, St. James, Mich.—Adv22t1

Clever Parrot Gave Beery Stiff Acting Competition

"Haw, haw," screeched Peter, the parrot.

Wallace Beery threw down his script in disgust.

"That bird not only steuls all my scenes," he declared, "but he mukes is worse hy laughing at me."

Peter cocked his head to one side as if listening attentively.

"Birds and animuls have a lot more sense than people give them credit for," asserted Beery. "Tuke Peter. He knows when that camera is turning. Why, you never saw an uctor that could chew scenery the way he does."

"Oh, shut up!" said Peter.

"Is that any wuy to talk?" Beery asked, taking Peter out of his cage.

Peter hopped on Wnlly's shoulder and nipped at his ear.

Quite a hird is Peter. He appeared with Beery in "Treasure Island" and now has a featured role, with dialogue, in "Good Old Soak," Beery's new starring picture which comes to the Palace Theatre for a two day engagement, Tuesday and Wednesday, June 8 and 9.

"At least I'm supposed to be the star," said Beery, "but after looking at the 'rushes' I begin to wonder if I'm not just stooging for Peter."

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

The bride is apt to find marketing, what and how much of various foods to buy, her hardest job. Lower prices for vegetables, lower prices for lamb and fish, a lengthening list of fruits and lower prices for butter and eggs nwait the early June bride's first marketing. Of course the first nrrivals of peaches, melons or new variety of herry are high but each week sees a longer list and lower prices.

Currots are the only really high priced vegetable left. Beets cost but two-thirds of last week's price. New potatoes ure more plentiful and lower.

Seasonable foods make up the following menus.

Low Cost Dinner
Boiled Picnic Ham
Potatoes Buttered Cabbage
Bread and Butter
Vanilla Pudding with Bnnanas
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

May 27, 1937

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date at an adjourned session with Mayor Bergeon presiding.

Present: Aldermen Cartier, Hallett, Hooker and Kibbe.

Absent: Aldermen Erber and Ranger.

Alderman Hooker offered the following resolution seconded by Alderman Cartier:

RESOLVED by the Common Council of the City of Charlevoix, that the establishing and constructing of a combination carb and gutter along both sides of East Upright Avenue between May and Alice streets in said City of Charlevoix is a necessary public improvement, and that the cost thereof, including the cost of survey, plans, specifications and expenses incidental thereto, be defrayed by special assessment.

RESOLVED FURTHER that the plans, plats, diagrams, specifications and estimates of cost of the committee on streets and alleys and the City Surveyor for the establishing and constructing said combination carb and gutter be and the same are hereby approved and adopted, making a total cost of the sum of Six Hundred Sixty and 50/100 Dollars.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the expenses of said public improvement be defrayed as follows: That the sum of Six Hundred Sixty and 50/100 Dollars, being the estimated cost of said public improvement, shall pursuant to Act No. 215 of the Public Acts of 1895, as amended, being an "Act to provide for the incorporation of cities of the fourth class," be paid by special assessment, payable in five equal installments to be assessed upon the following lands and premises which constitute a special assessment district and deemed to be benefited by said public improvement: All lots, parts of lots, lands and premises abutting and fronting on either side of East Upright Avenue between May Street and Alice Street in said City of Charlevoix; Provided, that the whole amount levied by such assessment on any one lot ar lots shall not exceed twenty-five per centum of the value of suid lot or premises as valued and assessed for State and County tuxation in the last preceding tax roll. Any cost exceeding that per centum which would otherwise be chargeable upon the said lat or premises shall be paid from the general funds of the City of Charlevoix.

ADOPTED this 27th day of May, A. D. 1937, by the following Yea and Nay vote: Yeas: Aldermen Cartier, Hallett, Hooker and Kibbe. Nays: None. Absent: Aldermen Erber and Ranger.

Aldermun Hooker affered the following resolation seconded by Alderman Kibbe:

RESOLVED by the Common Council of the City of Charlevoix, that whereas the said Common Council did, by allirmative vote of two-thirds of all the Aldermen Elect, resolve to make the following improvement: The constructing and installing of a combinution curb and gutter along both sides of East Upright Avenue between May Street and Alice Street in the said City of Charlevoix, and that the cost thereof, including the cost of survey, plans, specifications and expenses incidental thereto, he defrnyed by special assessment, and whereas the said Common Council did by an allirmative vote of two-thirds of all Aldermen Elect of said Common Council resolve that the expenses of said public improvement, estimated at the sum of Six Hundred Sixty and 50/100 Dollars, shall pursuant to Act No. 215 of the Public Acts of 1895, as amended, being an "Act to provide for the incorporation of cities of the fourth class," be paid by special assessment, payable in five equal installments, to be assessed according to frontage upon the following lands and premises which constitutes n special assessment district and deemed to be benefited by said public improvements: All lots, parts of lots, lands and premises abutting and fronting on either side of East Upright Avenue between May Street and Alice Street.

NOW, THEREFORE, Robert F. Sloan, Oakley J. Hammond and Rollie L. Lewis, who constitute the Board of Speeinl Assessors, be and they are hereby directed to make such assessment for the sum of Six Hundred Sixty and 50/100 Dollars, pro rata upon all lots, parts of lots, lands and premises within the district aforesaid, said assessment to be made in accordunce with the provisions of Act No. 215 of the Public Acts of 1895, as amended, being an "Act to provide for the incorporation of cities of the fourth clnss"; and that said Board of Assessors meet immedintely for the purpose of making such special assessment; and it is farther ordereol that the City Clerk make a certified copy of this Order nnd deliver the sume, immediately, to one of the Special Assessors, together with the plats and diugrams of said public improvement.

Detroit builder, charged that certain members of the House labor committee had "sold out" to industrialists in maneuvers over an occupation disease bill. He directed his remarks in the general direction of Rep. Joseph Martin, Detroit engineer, who had raised a question why Hamilton had threatened to offer "60 amendments" to the bill.

A lobbyist for leading industrialists is reported to have advised friends that one representative sought $300 apiece for seven legislators—but "the ghost didn't walk."

The upshot of the sensational bribe talk was that the administration leaders clamped the lid down tight . . . . and the Hittle-Burke occupation disease bill was passed exactly as it had been drawn up in the Senate.

Civil Service

Many Democrats in the House are vigorously opposed to the governor's civil service bill which sailed through the Senate with comparative little opposition and which is still waterlogged in the House statet affairs committee.

The Senate measure, as prepared by Professor Pollock, of the University of Michigan, provides for certain educational qualifications that give preference to persons who have received a high school or college training. Of the present 12,000 state employes, 46 per cent have an eighth grade diploma; 32 per cent high school diploma; 16 per cent, college diploma; four per cent less than eighth grade, and two per cent undetermined.

Opponents of the measure declare that 6,240 employes stand to forfeit their jobs under the Pollock job preference plan in civil service.

From White House

That a very close relationship has existed since January 1 between the White House at Washington and the executive's office in Lansing has been generally known. Gov. Murphy was in frequent contact with President Roosevelt during the sit-down strike crisis. Murphy's success in settling labor trouble that threatened to become a national problem of equal seriousness to the 1933 bank moratorium epidemic has started tongues wagging that the Michigan governor is slated to succeed Madam Perkins at Washington as secretary of labor.

Hence a legislative record desirable to labor leaders takes on a new significance at Lansing. This explanation is given as the reason why the governor yielded to labor in modifying his original labor relations bill. Modifications would outlaw company unions, grant sole bargaining rights to any union having a majority membership, eliminate a requirement of notice in advance before calling a strike, and restrict the injunction power of the court in the matter of property rights.

A recent illustration of the White House-Lansing understanding is seen in the state administration's failure to provide an appropriation bill for the New York's 1939 World Fair. President Roosevelt vetoed an appropriation for the New York show at the very time that a New York fair representative was trying to sell leaders on the merit of a legislative appropriation.

Results: No appropriation bill was introduced in behalf of the eastern show, but a measure was sponsored by Rep. Francis Morley (D) and Rep. Carl DeLano (R) appropriating $100,000 for the San Francisco exposition, also in 1939.

Fine County Parks

The foresight of Iron county in preserving strips of timber along scenic highways and in aequiring scenic spots for county parks has led to the development of the finest county park system in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Purchasing roadside timber along highways was started in Iron county as far back as 1918. Today wide strips of forests along scenic roads are a source of enjoyment to tourists and of pride to residents.

At Fortune Lake the government's CCC camp is spending around $300,000 annually for park development.

Forest Fires

Radio and the airplane will be mobilized in 1937 in preventing forest fires in the heavily wooded Upper Peninsula.

Enrollees in the CCC camps of the Hiawatha and Marquette forests are being trained by U. S. forest service experts in the use of field radio sets.

Ground crews will be directed from observations taken in an airplane and relayed by radio.

The U. S. Forest Service will occupy and use 14 lookout towers in the Upper Peninsula this year . . . nine to be manned by CCC enrollees.

Top O' Michigan Potato Show Annual Meeting

A very important meeting was held in Petoskey last Tuesday night when plans were formulated to dissolve the Top O' Michigan Potnto Show Association and to consolidate with the Central Michigan area in the formulation of a new organization.

Extension Specinlist H. C. Monre and C. L. Nash were present to assist in the reorganization. Mr. Moore stressed the fact that four district potato shows should take cure of the situation very well in the stute. Under the new situntion some 32 counties will be included in the Northern Michigan area, which certainly will mnke a wonderful show and very representative of the entire district.

A committee of three was suggested to meet with a similar committee from the Cadillac areu to perfect plans. The election of officers for the new year resulted in the selection of Dale Nichols, of Pellston, as president; Frank Rotter, of Cheboygan county, as vice-president; R. S. Lincoln, county agent, of Petoskey, as secretary, and Glen C. Townsend, of Petoskey, as treasurer. With Petoskey as the tentative location for the annual potato show, Charlevoix county farmers will have a splendid opportunity of exhibiting and attending this great exhibit.

Forest Tent Caterpillar Very Prevalent and Doing Severe Damage

As a result of the great numbers of worms throughout the county, it will be very useful knowledge to know the life history of the worms and thus be in a better position to stage the fight for supremacy. As one drives the roads the large number of nests found in different species of trees is very noticeable. It is here where they can be controlled the easiest, as the worms retire for the night in the felty dense nest which they spin.

The following history of the caterpillar will prove to be highly interesting. There is only one generation a year and the eggs are laid in July in masses of a brown gummy substance which is laid around small trees. Each egg mass contains from 300 to 400 eggs. When the eggs hatch the tiny larvae they usually join together and build a common nest. The eggs hatch early in the spring and the larvae four to six weeks wandering over the which is the present stage live from trees during the day time and feeding on the foliage. When full grown they measure about two inches in length. Usually in the fore part of July the larvae spin a cocoon in protected places, and included in the silken envelope is a quantity of yellow powder which resembles sulphur. Very soon from the cocoon comes a winged moth. These flies or moths lay eggs and the life history is complete.

The two common species found are the apple tent caterpillar marked with a line down the back, and the forest tent caterpillar that is marked with a row of lozenge shaped dots. Another striking difference is that the forest caterpillar has a much smaller nest than the apple caterpillar.

For control measures first of all destroy all nests, and seeondly, plowing a furrow around a certain area will prevent more larvae from entering. In this system the straight side of the furrow should be next to the field to be protected, preventing the worms from climbing over. It seems that it is very difficult for them to get over, and then they begin to wander along the furrow where it is quite easy to kill them by burning or crushing them. Next, those already in the area can be killed with either a liquid or a dust spray. In the liquid spray use at least four pounds of arsenate of lead with 100 gallons of water, with skim milk or powdered milk included in the spray in a small amount. A dust mixture can be made by using one pound of calcium arsenate and 20 pounds of hydrated lime mixed by shaking or turning in any tight container such as an old churn.

This year's infestation will be very severe, but if they run true to form they will begin to decrease in numbers by another year and in all probability will do little or no damage for several years, after which they begin to increase as they did a year ago.

CORRESPONDENCE

Harry Mason and family, of Eastport, observed Memorial Day exercises at this place, Sunday. They have another car now, that gives them much better service than the one they recently had.

Allen Aardema and children were business visitors Friday nt the Lowell Button home at Elnkton, east of Central Lake. Mr. Aardema had never been there before, although having lived here for probably 20 years.

Mrs. Ruby Kirby Edwards, of Charlevoix, spent Memorial Day here and visited the grave of her father at Southern cemetery. Several people from far away came home to decorate graves of their loved ones.

The Careys, from Detroit, and Mr. and Mrs. Barnett, of East Jordan, spent Memorial Day at the William Carey home at this place. It was about a year ago that their son was killed in an auto accident near Grayling.

Norman Arnold is busy preparing the Franz residence and grounds on the north end of Torch Lake for occupancy by the Franz family. Miss Bartlett, of this place, has opened her cabins at Eastport for occupancy, and resorters are now arriving.

Ivan Morse, of Detroit, came up with his car Saturday and visited over the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Morse, at Bay View. O. R. Morse is still improving, and able to talk much better than formerly, and gets about with his wheel chair.

Fred Patterson is hustling the water works project here and has laid mains under the business streets recently. J. H. Smith & Sons have put in a large door in their garage building in place of the large window, broken in a car accident this spring by Manlos McGuire.

Mrs. William Bowers has been supplying at the post office during the absence of Postmaster Alva James, who inspected the rural route. New mail boxes have been ordered to be purchased by some of the patrons. Mrs. Davis has been accompanying Wilfred Davis on the route since his return from Petoskey Hospital.

There were 14 at Creswell, eight at Turners, 15 at Grand View, and 24 at Bay View Sunday schools last Sunday. Miss Phyllis Hale, of Turners, is convalescing nicely from an attack of scarlet fever, and expects to be able to assist the Misses Frances Patton, Maxine King and Velma Justice in singing at Creswell on Children's Day, a week from next Sunday. The Turner Sunday school will combine with Creswell in the exercises for that day.

OPTIMISM RULED AT RESORT MEET

OPERATORS ANTICIPATED RECORD SUMMER SEASON

Resort and Hotel Operators Held a Successful Meeting Thursday at Traverse City

Inspired by optimistic forecasts for a record rebaking resort season and given frank criticism of the ways in which tourists and resorters are handled in some localities, 200 members of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association and resort section of the Michigan Hotel Men's Association adjourned a successful meeting held Thursday at Traverse City.

Out of the evening program came a campaign, started by Ben East, Grand Rapids outdoor writer, to have Sleeping Bear dune made into a state park. The suggestion was made by Mr. East in a most interesting discussion of the recreational possibilities of Michigan.

"A new star has risen on Michigan, the recreational star," Mr. East said, "and we must hitch nur wagon to it."

After discussing the appropriateness of mnking Sleeping Bear into a state park, Mr. East, who sponsored the national park nt Isle Royale and state pnrk at the Tahquamenon Forest, openly criticized several agencies which serve resorters nnd which, he said, are still in the "stage coach" days.

"The railroads serving Northern Michigan are offenders in this respect," he said. "They have not brought their equipment, their road beds nor, in some instances, their stations up to the standards needed to handle this high class tourist and resort business."

SELECT CHERRY QUEEN FOR 1937 ON JUNE 18

Charlevoix Asked to Enter Candidate Again This Year

Selection of the ruler of the Nationnl Cherry Festival to be held at Traverse City on July 14-15-16, is scheduled to take place on June 18. At this time a Northern Michigan beauty will be picked to rule over the cherry kingdom of the Grand Traverse for the duration of the festival.

Last year there were 15 entries from communities in the region, but indications are that there will be a somewhat larger number this year. A letter has been received from the Cherry Festival Committee asking this community to participate in the selection by sending a candidate.

Method of finnl selection will be decided when the committee in charge of the matter is called into session again within a few days. As in former years, charm, poise, beauty and the ability to meet people graciously will be the deciding factors in determining the winner. Defeated contestants will automatically become members of the Queen's court and be entertained by the festival committee during the fete.

"Do not be afraid to do something new and different in attempting to entertain summer guests," Stewart Woodfill, manager of the Grand Hotel at Mackinac Island, told the audience. "The resort business is an amusement enterprise and we need more of the showmanship of P. T. Barnum und Flo Ziezfeld if we are to keep our summer visitors."

Mr. Woodfill stated that the resort history of the state was divided into three periods, the first up to 1918, the second from 1918 to 1928, and the third from 1928 to the present.

"The 1937 model tourist is an extremist, wanting both peace and quiet at some scenic retreat nnd also wanting exciting sports and colorful entertainment. He wants something out of the ordinary. He wants to be amused like he was never amused before. He wants something to hold his attention and divert his mind from the strain under which he has been laboring for the past few years. He wants dynamite to go off in the morning and, in the afternoon, he may want to quietly enjoy the splendor of a beautiful Northern Michigan day. At night he may be ready to have a Dante's Inferno dance before him while he sips a cocktail or a glass of beer."

Attending the meeting from Charlevoix were Mr. nnd Mrs. Carl C. Steiner, managers of the Belvedere Hotel; Mrs. Helen Hoover, manager of Hoover's Inn, and Earl A. Young, local realtor.

JOHN KIRBY, PIONEER CITIZEN, DIED FRIDAY

Masonic Rites Observed at Funeral Services Conducted Monday

Chnrlevoix lost a highly respected citizen last Friday in the death of John Kirby, who died at his residence on Sherman street following an extended period of ill health.

Born in Canada on October 13, 1851, Mr. Kirby came to Charlevoix 52 years ago. He was blacksmith by trade and was active in this nccupation until recent years when his advanced age necessitated retirement.

Mr. Kirby was married in 1881 tn Anne Jane Whitley, who preceded him in death in 1933. To this union were born four children, who survive, viz.: Harker, Glenn and John, of Flint, and Mrs. John P. Kane, of Sheboygan, Wis.

Mr. Kirby was a life member and active in the Masonic order, whose rites were observed at funeral services conducted Monday nfternoon frnm the See funeral home. Burial was at Brookside cemetery.

TAX ALLOCATION COMMITTEE IS ORGANIZED

Meet June 30 to Set Final Tax Distribution for County

Organization of the Charlevoix County Tax Allocation Board has been completed, according tn County Clerk Fenton R. Bulow.

Membership of the board is composed of Howard C. Stephens, Hayes township, chairman; Lillis M. Flanders, county treasurer; William G. Palmer, county school commissioner; James Gidley, East oJrdan, representing schools, and William P. Gilliam, Boyne City, member-at-large.

A tentative allocation of nine mills for county, four mills for schools and two mills for townships has been set. The board will hold its final meeting on June 30, two days following the annual June meeting of the board of supervisnrs, to set a permanent allocation.

Safe and Sane DRIVING
BY THE NATIONAL SAFETY COUNCIL
and Michigan State Safety Council

DEPENDABLE TIRES

There is high satisfaction in having complete confidence in your nutomobile tires. But their dependability rests heavily upon your own shoulders.

The best tires in the world can be so neglected and abused that they become hazardous within n few thousand miles. On the other hand, give them good care and attention, and the story of their service might rival a tale by Baron Munchausen — and still be true.

Proper inflatinn is the first requisite. If the air pressure is too low, the side walls of the tire will weaken under continual bending until a blowout results. One such blowout at high speed might he the last you would ever experience. Soft tires also make the car harder to steer.

Many drivers do not think about replacing tires until they are old. But tires may be "old" long before their normal life has run its course. Usually they show plain evidences of hard usage and weakness; then is the time to replace them.

Check the air pressure in your tires often. Keep the right pressure. Exnmine the inner walls for indications of breaking. Safety depends upon sound tires.

Charlevoix Offers Much for Pleasure of the Vacationist

Ideal Location Between Three Lakes Most Unique to Be Found; Best of Hotel and Cottage Accommodations; Every Facility for Sports

The skies of Italy are not more genial; France is not more fruitful; Venice presents no more beautiful water-scape than does Charlevoix. Land of Indian legend and romance, where the forests that skirt its lake shores sweep down to the water's edge. Land that once was the happy hunting ground of the Chippewa or Ottawa Indian is now the playground of the present day masters of America.

On the high hills on the north bank of the Pine River, where the ancient Indian factories for making arrow heads were once located, sweep the broad boulevards of a modern city, bordered with attractive homes, each with its villa plot of trim lawn, shrubbery and flower gardens. Unusually favored by nature; accessible from Charlevoix by motor boat or automobile, lie some 80 miles of lake shore, located on the shores of Lake Michigan and bisected by Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix, the hot southwest winds of summer are made temperate and cool by crossing this large body of open water. Thousands of summer tourists visit Charlevoix every season, from South, East and West these visitors representative of our best American people, make an annual summer pilgrimage to Charlevoix; invariably they promise to come again, and invariably they do.

As a summer convention city, Charlevoix offers advantages that convention visitors praise with a uniformity that is eloquent. Our guests praise not only the unexcelled facilities for housing them, but also our brand of unadulterated hospitality.

Within a few minutes walk from any home in Charlevoix are spread lakes of the bluest, fishing of the finest and limitless boating; broad, smooth, well kept motor roads lead into the country in every direction; there is an infinity of pleasure or recreation for every varying taste or mood.

Charlevoix has developed progressively; it owns its own waterworks, its own electric light plant, sewage disposal plant, municipal docks, yacht slips, parks and playgrounds; it has spent money with a liberal hand to provide the facilities that make for comfort, beauty and good citizenship. It aims to attract only the better class of visitors.

Early History of Charlevoix the Beautiful

To one having an eye to either business or beauty, the banks of the Pine river early presented attractions as an eligible site for a town. A mile back from the shore of Lake Michigan lies Lake Charlevoix, its arms stretching away to the southwest twenty or miles into the interior. Between it and Lake Michigan lies Round Lake, covering an area of a hundred acres or more. Pine river, the outlet of Lake Charlevoix, runs directly through it. The river in a natural state was a narrow, crooked, swiftly flowing stream, full of snags and overhung with trees, as unlike the broad, deep and almost straight channel through which large steamers now go up into Lake Charlevoix as one can well imagine.

In the sheltered basin of this land locked harbor whose towering terraced shores were crowned with stately forests of century old oaks, the commercial life of the town of Charlevoix was given its first impetus in 1864.

The erection of a single store and the construction of a wharf was commenced in this year. The first school was opened in a fisherman's shanty on the south side of the river on or near the site now occupied by Dahlquist's store. It was without windows, and the young men of the settlement volunteered to put it in order. The funds for the necessary improvements and equipment being raised by the good women of the village; who conducted a supper and bazaar for the purpose. Though a wintry storm was raging, the settlers for miles around attended the event which netted the sum of $75.

From such a modest beginning illustrative of the sturdy qualities of the good old pioneer stock that founded it, Charlevoix the Beautiful had its beginning.

Located in the most favored spot in this glad land of Sun and Summer where the days are never long enough for the fascination they bring, many of which are halted at their close with sunsets as glorious as any Italy can show.

The Charlevoix of today is a city of beautiful homes, of well paved streets where the big trees arch above to shelter one from the rays of the midday sun.

Charlevoix is a city of churches, of modern efficient public schools, and the chosen summer home of a great

Welcome to Charlevoix

This special illustrated resort edition of the Charlevoix Courier is designed to recall Charlevoix's attractions to regular summer residents and to introduce these attractions to newcomers and prospective visitors.

This edition is sponsored by the Charlevoix Board of Commerce through its advertising committee. The information contained is compiled by The Courier staff.

The many pleasures to be found here by vacation-seekers are described in story and picture. The entertainment features planned for the pleasure of summer visitors are outlined insofar as definite information at this date is possible.

This publication has been made possible by the cooperation of Charlevoix hotel managements, merchants and business institutions. They have represented themselves in order to give the summer visitor definite knowledge of the institutions prepared to serve them upon their arrival in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix In Readiness for Annual Influx of Visitors

Expect Best Resort Season Since 1929; Preparations Under Way to Maintain Slogan, "Charlevoix-the-Beautiful"; Visitors Come From Every State

Charlevoix is busy with preparations for an anticipated record invasion of tourists and resorters this summer.

On every hand may be seen the evidences of this preparation—an effort which for years has maintained that truthful slogan: "Charlevoix-the-Beautiful." The resort and tourist industry is one of the most important in Charlevoix, and the city is happy in anticipation of resumption of its annual summer business.

Tourists soon will be streaming into Charlevoix from all parts of the country, stopping for gasoline, meals, lodging and supplies. Resorters will be opening their cottages. Hotels will be welcoming thousands of vacationists. Charlevoix is prepared for them.

Last year tourists came to this famous resort city from every state in the Union. A count of the states as indicated on license plates was kept, and showed that all 48 states, besides many Canadian provinces and foreign countries had touring citizens on Charlevoix streets.

Water transportation plays a very important role in bringing summer vacationists to this city. While Charlevoix's perfect land-locked harbor has long been known to the lake-farer, the 1936 season marked the peak in the number of visiting yachts. No previous season had ever seen the amount of water activity, and 1937 promises to exceed last year's record.

Due to the excellent facilities for entertainment found here, the larger lake transportation companies have found Charlevoix a most desirable stop-over for vacation cruises. This fact is indicated by the number of cruises scheduled for the coming summer.

According to present plans, the Grand Rapids Board of Commerce will arrive here June 15 on the S. S. South American. On June 26, this vessel will bring the Society of Automotive Engineers, arriving here at 2 p. m. and remaining until 9 a. m. the following morning. On July 4, the S. S. South American comes again with a cruise from Cleveland to Chicago. Over Labor Day, the S. S. North American comes with a cruise from Detroit, and the South American arrives with another cruise from Cleveland and Chicago.

Like last summer, the Board of Commerce will provide entertainment for the visitors. Fishing parties will be arranged, a golf tournament conducted, bridge for the ladies, etc. Every facility of the city is offered the visitors, and it is due to the fact they like Charlevoix hospitality that the number of cruises during the past have increased tremendously.

Charlevoix has not overlooked the fact that yachtsmen expect facilities to make their visit here enjoyable. The city maintains three large municipal docks, has a group of yacht slips where water, garbage disposal and other conveniences are available, and, before the present summer season is fully under way, will have 10 more yacht slips which are now under construction at East Park, on Round Lake harbor.

It would be hard to find a spot anywhere that offers more for the enjoyment of vacationists than Charlevoix. It is with this fact a reality that this city extends its invitation to tourist and resorters.

CHARLEVOIX CHANGED FROM INDIAN NAME

Named in Honor of Father Charlevoix, French Jesuit Missionary

Charlevoix county was first named Kechkawko, for a leading chief of the Saginaw Chippewas who signed the Indian treaty of 1819. He was a noted character in his day, of a tyrannical, overbearing disposition little disposed to recognize any system of court or legal procedure. He was finally tried and convicted at Detroit of being accessory to the murder of another Indian in January, 1826, and avoided suffering the penalty of the law by taking poison conveyed to him by one of his wives.

The present name was given in honor of Pierre Francois Xavier de Charlevoix, the French Jesuit missionary, traveler and historian. Born in 1682, he came to Canada in 1705, and made extensive travels up the St. Lawrence, through the Great Lakes and down the Mississippi in 1721, and wrote during the following year his important History of New France which was not published until 20 years later.

Water Sports, Colorful Venetion Boat Parade on July 25

Center Program Around Visit of Great Lakes Yachting Association Fleet

The Charlevoix Board of Commerce will center its program of water sports for the 1937 summer season on Sunday, July 25, during the visit here of the cruiser division of the Great Lakes Yachting Association.

This fleet of pleasure craft, following participation in the annual Chicago-Mackinac Island cruise, will arrive here on Saturday, July 24, and stay until Monday, July 26. Upwards of 50 boats from smaller cruisers to palatial yachts, will gather here for a three-day celebration at least, many for a longer stay. A small group of yachts came here on the same date last summer, found Charlevoix's harbor so inviting and its hospitnlity so complete, that they began then making arrangements for the 1937 visit on a larger scale.

For the pleasure of these yachtsmen, many entertainment features are being arrnnged. Dancing parties will be given as well as other affairs for their pleasure. In fact, the keys of the city will be turned over to them.

On July 25, a complete program of water sports is plnnned, starting at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Races, diving and novelty stunts will be included.

The same evening a Venetian Night boat parade, a spectacle only Charlevoix's perfect harbor setting can produce, will be held. Local pleasure craft will be augmented by the visiting yachts to make this beautiful scene the grandest ever held in Charlevoix. Like in previous years, thousands of spectators will gather around the hills of the natural amphitheatre which forms the setting for Round Lnke harhor, to witness this colossal event.

EAST JORDAN TURNS TO RESORT INDUSTRY

Located on Lake Charlevoix at Mouth of Famous Jordan River

East Jordan, which until only late years hummed with the lumbering industry, has started to capitalize on its natural advantages as a summer resort.

And it has been but a simple process for, with its ideal location at the tip of the south arm of Lake Charlevoix, East Jordan has had only to "dress up" what nature endowed her with to produce a most attractive and inviting situation.
